Dogs' Days Are Numbered At Sausalito Post Office

By JAY GOODWIN

They call me "Special."

And my brother — another pooch who looks more like his dachshund mother than his terrier father — they call "Delivery."

I'm not sure why they named us that, but perhaps it's because we made our home at the Sausalito Post Office for three weeks.

I shudder every time I think of the whole experience, but maybe if I retell my tale, it'll help other dogs like me and "Delivery."

Just before Thanksgiving, my brother and I were riding in a car with our family. Family, hah! We hadn't been fed lately and were treated miserably.

Well, all of a sudden, as we're heading down Bridgeway, the car screeches to a sudden stop and me and "Delivery" are thrown out of the car.

As the dust settled and we pulled ourselves together, I soon realized we were in for quite an ordeal.

There we were, in the middle of Sausalito, two 5-year-old dogs, tired, sick and starving. Our ribs were even showing because we hadn't had a decent meal in weeks.

So I said to my brother, "Well, Big D, we're in quite a fix. Where are we gonna spend the night or get something to eat — "I'm freezing."

He suggested an all-night diner, but I quickly reminded him we were abandoned in Sausalito, not San Mateo, and that an all night diner was out of the question.

All of a sudden, a brainstorm hits me. Why not head for the post office. That place is bound to be open with all those workers sorting Christmas mail.

So "Delivery" and I drag ourselves over to the loading dock behind the post office building and huddle together near the mail carts. Sure enough, at 3 a.m. the night crew checks in and we were immediately treated like royalty.

The night superintendent kept bringing us food — including turkey the day after Thanksgiving — and the clerks built us a makeshift home out of an overturned mail cart.

Things were definitely improving. We were eating better and finally putting some meat back on our ribs.

At first, neither of us was prepared to make friends with the postal workers. In fact, after getting thrown out of that car on Bridgeway, both of us were downright scared of anyone we didn't know.

But, eventually, we recalled our father's wise advice — "Don't bite the hand that feeds you" — and started to accept the post office's hospitality.

As I said, things were getting better, but something was definitely missing. We still yearned for a permanent home. You know, a place to settle down in. With some kids and, perhaps, a newspaper or a pair of slippers to fetch occasionally.

Well, someone — I still don't know who — called a woman named Helen Galantiere, who is president of the St. Francis Animal Protection Society.

She came down to the post office, picked us up and has been trying to find us a permanent home ever since.

I'm not sure, but I gather finding homes for abandoned dogs in Marin County isn't easy.

If you've got little children or a newspaper you'd like fetched every now and then, contact Helen Galantiere or the Sausalito Post Office and they'll introduce us.

So that's the story. It isn't a happy one, but I'm not asking for sympathy — just a home.

Fire Does $47,000 Damage To Larkspur Home, Contents

A blaze, caused by a compressed fireplace log that exploded, destroyed the James Alexander home in Larkspur yesterday, causing an estimated $47,000 damage to the residence and its contents.

Three firemen suffered minor injuries while fighting the flames.

Firemen said the blace began about 3 p.m. when a Nikkel log exploded in the living room fireplace, knocking the fire screen across the room and spewing embers around.

Alexander is Northern California distributor for the Nikkel Fire Log Division in Sacramento.

The Alexander's son, James Jr., 11, was the only one home at the time and came up from downstairs to find the room engulfed in flames. He ran from the house.

By the time firemen arrived, the two-and-a-half story woodframe home at 271 Wilson Way was totally involved in flames. Firefighting efforts were hampered by the fact the home is built on a steep hill and firemen could not get around to the rear of the structure, according to Chief William C. Shurtz.

The residence is located in a heavily wooded area, surrounded by other homes, and Shurtz said "we would have lost more than one home had the fire occurred in the summer." The blaze was under control within 10 minutes, but took nearly an hour and a half to extinguish completely.

Capt. Gordon M. Bell suffered a cut hand pushing a hose through a broken window and volunteer fireman Paul Winkelman was treated for soot in his eye. Volunteer William Anderson received a badly bruised leg when he fell through a deck.

Nixon Can't Accept Peace Terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger reported today that his negotiations with North Vietnam have failed thus far to produce a cease-fire agreement which President Nixon could accept.

He placed the blame for the impasse on delaying tactics by Hanoi on details of creating an international team to oversee the cease-fire agreement.

The President's chief foreign policy adviser told a news briefing:

"We will not be blackmailed into an agreement. We will not be stampeded into an agreement, and, if I may say so, we will not be charmed into an agreement until it is right."

Kissinger also said that if and when an acceptable cease-fire agreement is reached, objections by the South Vietnam government would not prevent the United States from signing it.

He added that he anticipates more bargaining sessions between himself and the North Vietnamese in Paris.

"I expect we will meet again," he commented, "but we have to meet in an atmosphere worthy of the seriousness of the endeavor."

In Paris, U.S. and North Vietnam officials said diplomatic "technicians" would confer again today despite the absence of Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the top peace envoys on the two sides.

But in a clandestine radio broadcast today from the jungles of Cambodia, the Viet Cong's provisional government in South Vietnam warned it will continue fighting unless Washington signs a tentative peace treaty drawn up in October by Kissinger and Hanoi envoys.

Nixon has conferred several times with Kissinger, his national security advisor who returned earlier this week to Washington after 10 days of secret and direct talks with Tho and Xuan Thuy, the chief of the North Vietnam delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Over the past two days, Kissinger also has conferred with Nixon's highest ranking advisors, including Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and outgoing Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The inclusion of other advisors, diplomatic sources said, indicated that Nixon may have reached a decision on terms for a cease-fire and wants to line up the support of key administration officials.

President Nguyen Van Thieu outlined his own cease-fire plan earlier this week but the White House said it did not support it. Instead, the White House said, Nixon was working on another plan.

Sources said the President might send an evoy, possibly Gen. Alexander M. Haig, who is Kissinger's deputy, to Saigon to try to convince Thieu to support a U.S. agreement with North Vietnam.

If Thieu refuses, the sources said, it would leave Nixon with the decision to go ahead with any agreement as it now stands.

William J. Porter, the chief of the U.S. delegation to the Paris peace talks, met for 2-½ hours Friday with Thuy outside Paris. They did not discuss their meeting, described earlier as the first in a series of "technical" discussions.

Diplomatic sources said they were engaged in ironing out the details of an eventual cease-fire agreement, the central subject in the talks by Kissinger and Hanoi envoys.

The two sides said today Porter and Thuy would meet at the home of a jeweler named Arnaud Clerc outside Paris. The two met Friday at another suburban site.

In its radio braodcast, the Viet Cong's provisional government assailed the United States for what it called "wily tricks" to create an illusion of peace.

It said it would continue the war to "completely defeat" the United States and South Vietnamese governments unless Washington signed the agreement announced Oct. 26 by Hanoi and Washington. If the United States signs the agreement, the Viet Cong said it would respect it and "carefully" carry it out.

Board To Reward Cost Reductions

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors asked top department heads yesterday to join in a concerted effort to reduce the cost of government by increasing efficiency, promising to reward the "more effective" when salaries are reviewed.

The meeting, attended by three of the five supervisors, found general acceptance among both elected and appointed officials of the board's plan "to streamline government."

But yesterday's so-called "workshop session" of the board was not completely onesided, as several department heads called for more autonomy, more responsibility and more support from supervisors.

The 90 minutes of give and take was the first step in a new program to cut $300,000 from the county budget this fiscal year and eventually to reduce the county's 1,600-man work force by 2 to 4 per cent.

The plan was proposed last month by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere and won unanimous endorsement from the board.

To carry out the cost-cutting program, the plan calls for reopening the 1972-73 budget to reconsider levels of funding for Hall of Justice security, War-on Poverty programs and the children's treatment center at Marin Juvenile Hall.

All positions not filled with regular, full-time employees will be subject to board review on Tuesday with an eye toward cutting those positions department heads cannot rejustify.

Funds budgeted in June for services and supplies will be reviewed at the same time. County Administrator John F. Barrows has recommended an across-the-board cut of about $244,000.

The plan also calls for meeting with leaders of private industry to study new efficiency methods and various training programs for employees.

In soliciting the help of department heads, chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. proposed yesterday a committee be formed to figure out details of the cost-reduction plan.

The committee, to be made up of two supervisors, six department heads, the county administrator and personnel officer, will report directly to the board.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste told the gathering of about 50 county officials he hoped they would embrace the program in much the way Betty L. Presley, county welfare director, accepted it when she wrote:

The plan is "to get the most mileage out of every nickel and where possible, more mileage on less nickels."

"Are you going to cave in under (political) pressure from little groups. . . when we come in with a program (to cut expenditure and services)?" asked county Librarian Bruce D. Bajema.

(Bajema was overruled by supervisors during June budget hearings when he proposed to close the small Tamalpais Valley branch. A group of local residents had protested the proposal.)

Arrigoni answered that the board would have to back such cost-cutting proposals but added there had to be a political balance to any board action.

The board also was jabbed by Ray W. Foreaker Jr., director of public works, who said much of his time is spent "putting out small fires" which are shuffled to him by supervisors trying to help a constituent.

He said some problems would have to wait their turn and asked the board to go along with his department in setting priorities.

"To be frank," he told the board, "I'm asking you to give us more authority" so there will be time to deal with departmental administration.

Three Cars Required For Arrest

Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, arrested Thursday on suspicion of drunken driving, not only refused to take roadside sobriety tests but it took three California Highway Patrol cars to halt his speeding auto on Highway 101, the Independent-Journal was told yesterday.

As a result of his refusal to take the tests, according to the highway patrol, Maloney's license will be suspended for six months unless he can convince the state Department of Motor Vehicles otherwise.

Although Keith Chapman, information officer for the patrol in Corte Madera, told the I-J yesterday that Maloney was "very cooperative" and had been given the standard sobriety tests, he later said that the 39-year-old county legal officer had failed to complete a urinalysis test and had refused to take two other tests measuring alcohol in the blood.

A full report of the arrest was suppressed uncustomarily by patrol officers, but the Independent-Journal was told by sources that Maloney's car first was seen traveling at a high rate of speed by a tow truck driver near Tiburon and forcing other vehicles out of its way.

A patrol squad car with red light flashing fell in behind Maloney's car at Alto Hill, but the car continued northbound. When the siren failed to stop the car, the officer called in two other CHP units, according to the sources.

The three patrol cars finally hemmed in Maloney's vehicle and stopped it near the Lucas Valley road exit.

Maloney is to appear Dec. 21 in Marin Municipal Court.

John Scali Named To U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John A. Scali, a former newsman who acted as an unofficial intermediary between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, will be the next U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, administration officials say.

The officials said Friday that President Nixon will nominate Scali, 54, to succeed George Bush, the present U.N. envoy, whom Nixon has chosen to be the new national chairman of the Republican Party.

Since 1970, Scali has been a special consultant to the President for press relations.

On Oct. 26, 1962, at the height of the Cuban missile crisis, Scali, then with ABC, was eating a baloney sandwich at the State Department when he received a call from Aleksander F. Fomin, of the Soviet Embassy, who urgently wanted to see him.

They met at a restaurant. Fomin asked Scali if the United States would settle the missile crisis on a series of terms, including dismantlement and removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Scali took this overture to the State Department and then relayed a reply, written out by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and approved by Kennedy, back to Fomin who relayed it to the Soviet leadership.

In order to preserve diplomatic secrecy, Scali did not report his own, biggest story.

Weather Causes Death Of Robins

"The north wind doth blow
And we shall have snow,
And what will the robin do
the, poor thing?"
-Nursery rhyme, anon.

A low pressure system brought light rain and warmer weather to Marin and Southern Sonoma today, but the milder temperatures came too late for 16 robins and a snake.

The dead robins were delivered to the Marin County Humane Society yesterday, frozen to death by recent sub-freezing weather. Madelon Tormanen, humane society education director, said the birds apparently ate too many intoxicating pyracantha berries — the only food available during the cold snap — got drunk from the berries, couldn't fly and froze.

The snake apparently could not burrow into the frozen ground and was unable to survive the icy temperatures.

But the cold spell, which has killed vegatation throughout the two counties and caused food problems for other birds and wild animals, is apparently over, according to the National Weather Service.

The weatherman predicts steadily rising temperatures in the 40s and 50s today and tonight, with 50-degree weather expected for tomorrow.

Rain is forecast for today and tonight, with skies turning to partly cloudy tomorrow.

The warming trend was reflected in area temperatures which hovered near 40 in most places.

Sausalito reported a high of 40 degrees and a low of 34, while Novato had the lowest temperatures, 29 and 38. Other temperatures were: Woodacre, 37 and 33; Belvedere, 40 and 32; San Anselmo, 40 and 35. Fairfax had a low of 35 degrees and San Rafael registered an overnight low of 34 and a high yesterday of 39.

San Rafael's temperature at noon today was 41, about five degrees higher than yesterday at the same time, with .12 of an inch of rain.

The rest of the county also had light showers yesterday and during the night, ranging from .15 of an inch in Woodacre to .07 in Sausalito and San Anselmo.

The entire Bay Area had similar weather, with brief showers and rising thermometers. The cold snap caused a natural gas shortage in San Francisco, where 211 major buildings had to begin using oil for heating when Pacific Gas and Electric Co. cut off their gas supply.

It also has brought about icing of PG&E transmission lines, breaking two of them in Northern California, triggering an intermittent blinking of lights in the Bay region and other areas, according to the company.

A company spokesman said the condition will persist until the ice begins to melt. The spokesman said trouble at PG&E's Vallejo plant has aggravated the condition.

Truman Hanging On After Restful Night

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman, troubled by failing kidneys and a weak heart, spent a "quiet, restful night" aided by medication. Doctors said today the former president was still semiconscious and in "very serious" condition.

"Mr. Truman's kidney output still is unsatisfactory, but not decreasing," Research Hospital spokesman John Dreves said. "Mr. Truman's cardiac situation remains unchanged."

Dreves said the 88-year-old former president "had a quiet, restful night with medication. His vital signs are remaining stable."

Dreves said the statement did not imply either that doctors were optimistic or that Truman's condition had improved.

"His overall condition remains very serious," he said.

At 9 a.m. EST doctors said the former president's pulse was 80, respiration was 20, blood pressure was 128 over 56 and his temperature was 98.6.

Dr. Wallace H. Graham, Truman's personal physician, said the former chief executive was listed in "very serious" condition, a slight drop due to the kidney disease and an increased fluctuation of his heart.

Graham said Truman would be kept on the "very serious"—rather than critical list—as long as his vital life signs, pulse, respiration and temperature remained within normal limits.

Ambassador to U.N.

John Scali Named To U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John A. Scali, a former newsman who acted as an unofficial intermediary between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, will be the next U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, administration officials say.

The officials said Friday that President Nixon will nominate Scali, 54, to succeed George Bush, the present U.N. envoy, whom Nixon has chosen to be the new national chairman of the Republican Party.

Since 1970, Scali has been a special consultant to the President for press relations.

On Oct. 26, 1962, at the height of the Cuban missile crisis, Scali, then with ABC, was eating a baloney sandwich at the State Department when he received a call from Aleksander F. Fomin, of the Soviet Embassy, who urgently wanted to see him.

They met at a restaurant. Fomin asked Scali if the United States would settle the missile crisis on a series of terms, including dismantlement and removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Scali took this overture to the State Department and then relayed a reply, written out by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and approved by Kennedy, back to Fomin who relayed it to the Soviet leadership.

In order to preserve diplomatic secrecy, Scali did not report his own, biggest story.

Weather Causes Death Of Robins

"The north wind doth blow
And we shall have snow,
And what will the robin do
the, poor thing?"
-Nursery rhyme, anon.

A low pressure system brought light rain and warmer weather to Marin and Southern Sonoma today, but the milder temperatures came too late for 16 robins and a snake.

The dead robins were delivered to the Marin County Humane Society yesterday, frozen to death by recent sub-freezing weather. Madelon Tormanen, humane society education director, said the birds apparently ate too many intoxicating pyracantha berries — the only food available during the cold snap — got drunk from the berries, couldn't fly and froze.

The snake apparently could not burrow into the frozen ground and was unable to survive the icy temperatures.

But the cold spell, which has killed vegatation throughout the two counties and caused food problems for other birds and wild animals, is apparently over, according to the National Weather Service.

The weatherman predicts steadily rising temperatures in the 40s and 50s today and tonight, with 50-degree weather expected for tomorrow.

Rain is forecast for today and tonight, with skies turning to partly cloudy tomorrow.

The warming trend was reflected in area temperatures which hovered near 40 in most places.

Sausalito reported a high of 40 degrees and a low of 34, while Novato had the lowest temperatures, 29 and 38. Other temperatures were: Woodacre, 37 and 33; Belvedere, 40 and 32; San Anselmo, 40 and 35. Fairfax had a low of 35 degrees and San Rafael registered an overnight low of 34 and a high yesterday of 39.

San Rafael's temperature at noon today was 41, about five degrees higher than yesterday at the same time, with .12 of an inch of rain.

The rest of the county also had light showers yesterday and during the night, ranging from .15 of an inch in Woodacre to .07 in Sausalito and San Anselmo.

The entire Bay Area had similar weather, with brief showers and rising thermometers. The cold snap caused a natural gas shortage in San Francisco, where 211 major buildings had to begin using oil for heating when Pacific Gas and Electric Co. cut off their gas supply.

It also has brought about icing of PG&E transmission lines, breaking two of them in Northern California, triggering an intermittent blinking of lights in the Bay region and other areas, according to the company.

A company spokesman said the condition will persist until the ice begins to melt. The spokesman said trouble at PG&E's Vallejo plant has aggravated the condition.

Truman Hanging On After Restful Night

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman, troubled by failing kidneys and a weak heart, spent a "quiet, restful night" aided by medication. Doctors said today the former president was still semiconscious and in "very serious" condition.

"Mr. Truman's kidney output still is unsatisfactory, but not decreasing," Research Hospital spokesman John Dreves said. "Mr. Truman's cardiac situation remains unchanged."

Dreves said the 88-year-old former president "had a quiet, restful night with medication. His vital signs are remaining stable."

Dreves said the statement did not imply either that doctors were optimistic or that Truman's condition had improved.

"His overall condition remains very serious," he said.

At 9 a.m. EST doctors said the former president's pulse was 80, respiration was 20, blood pressure was 128 over 56 and his temperature was 98.6.

Dr. Wallace H. Graham, Truman's personal physician, said the former chief executive was listed in "very serious" condition, a slight drop due to the kidney disease and an increased fluctuation of his heart.

Graham said Truman would be kept on the "very serious"—rather than critical list—as long as his vital life signs, pulse, respiration and temperature remained within normal limits.

Lynch's Visit

DUBLIN (UPI) — Premier Jack Lynch's visit to the United States next month will be primarily aimed at halting the flow of American dollars to the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), political sources said today.

No date for Lynch's visit was given in the official announcement Friday, but government sources said it would come in the first half of January.

Officially, Lynch's trip will be to boost the republic's image as a base for manufacturing industry, particularly with her admission to the European Economic Community January 1.

Seven Arrested

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — A magistrate Friday ordered seven Americans arrested after two raids turned up nine tons of marijuana in their possession to go on trial Jan. 4 on charges of conspiring to export and traffic in the drug.

The raid on the 42-foot cabin cruiser, Sea Lion, registered in Dennis, Mass., and the 74-foot shrimp boat Lady Christine was carried out by U.S. Coast Guard and Jamaican vessels with the cooperation of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics.

POW Letters

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Folk singer Joan Baez and three other pacifists left for Hanoi today, carrying about 500 letters to prisoners of war from their families in the United States.

The four boarded a Soviet Aeroflot airliner which stopped in Vientiane en route from Moscow and said they expected to stay in Hanoi about one week.

The group said it was going to Hanoi at the invitation of the North Vietnamese government but did not know what sort of schedule was planned for them. Miss Baez said she had not even known all the members of the group before starting the trip.

Troubled Ship

SAINT JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI) — A tugboat battled through the storm-tossed Atlantic today towing a West German ship in danger of being capsized by eight 150-ton locomotives loose in the hold.

A Canadian Forces Labrador helicopter braved the storm's 50-mile an hour winds Friday to plucked 12 crewmen from the Rumba's decks.

The six other crewmen aboard the 341-foot container ship were picked up by the tug Smith-Lloyd shortly after they abandoned ship in a lifeboat.

A spokesman for the Air and Sea Rescue Center in Halifax, N.S., said today the tugboat and the crippled vessel were making slow progress in the heavy seas. He said there were 30-foot waves and 50-mile an hour winds in the area.

No Deterrent

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government of Canada, where capital punishment was suspended five years ago for all but a very few crimes, published a study Friday which said the death penalty does not prevent murder.

The study, prepared by criminologist Ezzat Abdel Fattah, said the country's homicide rate was 1.5 per 100,000 population in 1966 and 1.9 in 1967. In 1968, it again was 1.9, stayed at that level until 1970, then reached 2.3 in 1971.

However, Fattah said, "The increase in criminal homicide is a part of a general increase in criminal violence and it can be safely stated that this increase would have taken place anyway even if the death penalty had not been suspended."

Seven Are Wounded In Belfast Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and wounded seven persons in three separate incidents today in Belfast streets, the latest in a series of shootings which killed three persons Friday, one of them a policeman delivering a Chrismas present to a little girl.

The shooting victims included the 16-year-old brother of a leading Protestant militant. Police said Andrew Agnew, brother of Ulster Vanguard movement leader Frazer Agnew, was shot in the face from a passing car on the same street where just 24 hours earlier, two men on a motorcycle killed a 16-year-old Catholic youth. All those shot today were walking in the street when shot, police said.

Police said the death toll Friday made it one of the bloodiest days in months of violence in Northern Ireland. The deaths raised the toll in 3½ years of strife to 664.

One of the victims Friday was constable George Chambers, a 44-year-old policeman who was shot in an ambush by five gunmen minutes after he delivered a Mickey Mouse wristwatch and other gifts to a little girl injured in a road accident several days ago.

The other victims Friday were a militiaman and a Roman Catholic youth. All were shot.

Chambers was slain and two fellow policemen wounded in Lurgan, 20 miles from Belfast, while the militiaman died in Armagh, 35 miles from Belfast, and James Reynolds, 16, died in northern Belfast.

Police said Chambers was shot a few hours before he planned to take his wife out to celebrate their 22nd wedding anniversary. He was wearing his police uniform when gunmen opened fire on him and the other two policemen in a police vehicle.

The little girl remembered their visit vididly.

"They told me to have a happy Christmas and asked me if I had written to Santa Claus," said Linda Hughes, who was injured when struck by a police car several days ago. "Then one of them wound up my watch and put it on my wrist. We all had a listen to hear it ticking."

In Armagh, three gunmen pumped 12 bullets into Frederick Greeves, 40, as he left work. He was a member of the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR), a part-time force supporting British troops in Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, two men on a motorcycle shot and killed Reynolds as he stood on a street corner.

Police said Reynolds was the latest victim of a wave of reprisal killings among the majority Protestant and minority Catholic communities in the province. More than 100 persons from both communities have died in religious assassinations this year.

A CAPITALIST IN RUSSIA?

BANGKOK (UPI) — The way the hotel manager tells it, the leader of a Russian circus troupe saved the strangest part of his act for last.

Chukiet Travachanapong said that when a maid started cleaning a room occupied by the Russian after the group checked out to go home, she discovered a bulky package underneath a mattress.

The package was a money belt stuffed with about $50,000 in $100 bills, Chukiet said.

The belt and its contents were rushed to the airport in time to reach the Russian, identified only as "Emenyanov." He already had discovered the loss and telephoned the hotel in what Chukiet said was a state of panic.

First Methadone Clinics Licensed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration in a special ruling has licensed the first doctors and clinics treating heroin addicts with the synthetic narcotic methadone.

"It is not in the public interest either to withhold the drug from the market until it has been proved safe and effective under all conditions of use, or to grant full approval for unrestricted distribution, prescription, dispensing or administration of methadone," the FDA said Friday.

Methadone will be available only to hospital pharmacies and approved maintenance programs for heroin addicts with the exception of some rural areas where it will be available at drug stores.

Red Gunners Blast Airbase Again

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners fired 20 Soviet-made rockets at the huge Bien Hoa airbase outside Saigon today in the third consecutive day of such assaults on strategic targets around the capital.

Meanwhile, U.S. warplanes continued to hammer Communist targets in both the north and south.

Military spokesmen said, there were no casualties on the base, but said two villagers died when some of the rockets veered off target and landed in three nearby hamlets. There were three separate attacks over an eight-hour period.

One runway on the base 14 miles outside of Saigon was closed briefly after one of the 100-pound, 122mm rockets landed on it, spokesmen said. They reported no other damage.

Military sources said many of the aircraft and armored vehicles rushed by the United States into South Vietnam to beat a possible cease-fire deadline are stored at Bien Hao.

Bien Hoa also houses about 1,000 U.S. Marine pilots and technicians.

In the air war, formations of U.S. B52s rained more bombs on tanks Communist forces were reported moving south above and along the border dividing North and South Vietnam.

The latest bombing raids followed a record 16 strikes by B52s into North Vietnam and two other strikes into the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). Those raids, military sources said, were intended to block movement of Soviet-made armor into South Vietnam.

The latest air raids, spokesmen said, saw two B52 formations strike along Highway 101 northwest of the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi and six other formations hammer suspected supply points around Dong Hoi. Three other waves of the B52s hit inside the DMZ and 13 waves bombed targets inside South Vietnam.

In the ground war, military spokesmen said government paratroops clashed twice with Communist forces near Quang Tri City. The government said its troops killed 63 North Vietnamese while three paratroopers were wounded.

Communist attacks in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today totalled 53, the lowest mark since Dec. 2. there were 52 on that date.

Guerrilla Mortar Barrage Fails To Close Israel's Syrian Border

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli authorities kept the border with Syria open today despite a mortar barrage Friday by guerrillas firing across the frontier at targets in the occupied Golan Heights. A military spokesman said the situation was calm.

Israeli troops patroling the bleak stretches of the Jordanian border near Eilat, far to the south of the Golan Heights, killed an Arab described by the military command as an infiltrator from Jordan.

The incident Friday marked the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan into Israel in more than a year.

The military command said it was keeping the heights open to tourists and civilian traffic despite the latest round of shelling. The command said it caused no casualties or damage.

The heights usually are closed to all but authorized personnel after any bombardment. "All is quiet now," a spokesman said.

The command said the bombardment consisted of 12 rounds of mortar fire. It said the guerrillas disappeared after leaving behind three mines and two home made bazookas.

The incident was the first on the heights since Nov. 26, when a single bazooka round was fired from Syrian territory following a 30-minute Syrian shelling the previous day.

A command communique said a patrol found a guerrilla three miles north of Israel's Red Sea port and killed him as he tried to flee. The troops suffered no casualties, it said.

Military records showed it was the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan since July 15, 1971, when troops killed six guerrillas who fired rockets into Petah Tikva, a town near Tel Aviv. A seventh man escaped into Jordan.

Since then, the guerrillas have confined most of their operations against Israel to Lebanon and Syria, often trying to use the hilly Israeli-Lebanese frontier as an infiltration route.

An explosive charge went off outside an employment office 40 miles southwest of the Golan Heights in the west bank town of Nablus, but the command said it caused no casualties or damage.

Joint Docking Device Tested

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and American engineers have made the first tests of a docking mechanism to be used in the joint space mission planned for the last half of 1975.

Representatives from the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration and from the Soviet space center carried out the tests on scale models, a joint statement reported today.

Guerrilla Mortar Barrage Fails To Close Israel's Syrian Border

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli authorities kept the border with Syria open today despite a mortar barrage Friday by guerrillas firing across the frontier at targets in the occupied Golan Heights. A military spokesman said the situation was calm.

Israeli troops patroling the bleak stretches of the Jordanian border near Eilat, far to the south of the Golan Heights, killed an Arab described by the military command as an infiltrator from Jordan.

The incident Friday marked the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan into Israel in more than a year.

The military command said it was keeping the heights open to tourists and civilian traffic despite the latest round of shelling. The command said it caused no casualties or damage.

The heights usually are closed to all but authorized personnel after any bombardment. "All is quiet now," a spokesman said.

The command said the bombardment consisted of 12 rounds of mortar fire. It said the guerrillas disappeared after leaving behind three mines and two home made bazookas.

The incident was the first on the heights since Nov. 26, when a single bazooka round was fired from Syrian territory following a 30-minute Syrian shelling the previous day.

A command communique said a patrol found a guerrilla three miles north of Israel's Red Sea port and killed him as he tried to flee. The troops suffered no casualties, it said.

Military records showed it was the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan since July 15, 1971, when troops killed six guerrillas who fired rockets into Petah Tikva, a town near Tel Aviv. A seventh man escaped into Jordan.

Since then, the guerrillas have confined most of their operations against Israel to Lebanon and Syria, often trying to use the hilly Israeli-Lebanese frontier as an infiltration route.

An explosive charge went off outside an employment office 40 miles southwest of the Golan Heights in the west bank town of Nablus, but the command said it caused no casualties or damage.

Joint Docking Device Tested

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and American engineers have made the first tests of a docking mechanism to be used in the joint space mission planned for the last half of 1975.

Representatives from the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration and from the Soviet space center carried out the tests on scale models, a joint statement reported today.

Hamilton Site Is Studied For Coast Guard Housing

The Coast Guard is eyeing about 20 acres of vacant land at Hamilton Air Force Base as a possible future housing site.

Nothing is definite. but the Coast Guard is" just interested." CWO Milton Duby of the Coast Guard public information office in San Francisco said yesterday.

Fifty-five acres at the south end of the base near Capehart Housing and 15 acres at Hamilton School are not being used by the Air Force.

Under presidential order, the Air Force must list all land holdings not fully in use. The property then is offered to other services and governmental agencies, Maj. Douglas K. Rhodes, chief of information at Hamilton, explained.

The Coast Guard. which now houses men assigned to the immediate San Francisco area at Treasure Island and is building housing for West Marin personnel at Point Reyes Station. has expressed interest in about 20 of the 55 acres near Capehart Housing. Duby said no final decision has been made.

Rhodes said the department of health. education and welfare, meanwhile, is eyeing the Hamilton School site, but a spokesman at the general services administration said this probably was just a "holding action" by the department.

The school site is under long-term lease to the Novato Unified School District, according to dist. Supt. James G. Bunker.

Bunker siad enrollment in the three schools serving military families — Hamilton, Meadow Park and Pacheco — has dropped. Students from the three schools possibly will be combined into two, pending a further look at enrollment next year, he said.

Of the three schools, Pacheco, operating at half capacity, probably would first be considered for closing, Bunker said.

Renewed Hospital Pact Is Endorsed By Auditor

A renewed contract between the county and Marin Hospital District for use of the Marin Community Mental Health Center has been endorsed by county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell, who originally questioned the document.

Mitchell. in recommending approval by the board of supervisors this Tuesday. noted about $3.000 was trimmed from the original $86.000 contract during negotiations with the hospital district.

He originally had questioned the document since the rental price seemed high for the building, which is owned by the hospital but was built with federal, state and county money.

Mitchell criticized the county administrator's office and the department of health care services for not having reviewed the document with his office before submitting it to the board last month.

"Had the administrator and the department of health care services touched bases with this office," he wrote, "it would have avoided a last-minute inquiry which was also to the detriment of the hospital district (delay of payments, etc.)"

Judge Closes Courtroom In Stack Accident Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Superior Court judge banned spectators from his courtroom Friday during opening arguments in the trial of $1 million in lawsuits involving the wife of television actor Robert Stack.

Judge Oscar Kistle, at the request of attorneys, banned spectators because they had been continually entering and leaving the courtroom in effort to see Stack. Mrs. Stack was not present at the proceedings.

Mrs. Stack is being sued for $750,000 by singer Art Lund. whose wife was killed in an auto crash near Sacramento Oct. 15, 1969.

In addition, Mrs. Stack and another passenger in the vehicle are suing Ford Motor Co. and Hertz Corp. for $250,000 for injuries suffered .

Mrs. Stack was the driver of a rented station wagon which went out of control and struck a concrete abutment after veering off a road near Sacramento Metropolitan Airport.

Three Die In Crash Of Plane

DETROIT (UPI) — A twin-engine Lear jet lost atltitude on takeoff from Metropolitan Airport Friday and crashed into a gasoline tank. killing three men.

A worker standing atop the tank toppled to the ground in the crash and was killed. Also killed were the pilot and copilot. employes of Zantop Air Lines. a freight carrier. They were the only occupants of the plane.

Burning pieces of the wreckage were spewed over a half-mile area and the bodies of the crewmen were hurled about one-quarter mile from the crash site. Some of the wreckage flew onto the six-lane Interstate 94 freeway, but no vehicles were reported hit.

The fennec is a small fox with very large ears. It lives in the desert.

Bride Convicted Of Manslaughter

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UPI) — The justice of the peace pronounced them man and wife and the jury pronounced the bride guilty—of manslaughter in the shooting death of her bridegroom's rival.

Georgiane Baylor, 54, said "I do" to Henry Owens, 58, Friday in the women's quarters of the Webster County Jail while the jury deliberated her fate one floor above.

Mrs. Owens was tried on murder charges in the death of Sam Boutchee, 44, who she said also wanted to marry her.

She testified that he attacked her with a knife when she told him she planned to marry Owens and she shot him in self defense.

160 Safe After Jet Emergency

MIAMI (UPI) — The tires of the Boeing 747 jumbo jet "exploded with a roar that sounded like thunder" during an emergency landing Friday, but the brakes held and the plane lurched to a safe stop at Miami International Airport.

The Northeast Airlines jet carrying 160 persons ran into a flock of birds shortly after take-off on a nonstop flight to Chicago

The pilot, Capt. William Burnett, 57, of Minneapolis, asked for immediate clearance to make an emergency landing and after circling the airport to dump excees fuel from his tanks, made his approach on the rain-slick west runway.

Airport authorities said the nose landing gear appeared to collapse after one or more of the landing tires apparently blew out. The plane then skidded off the runway in a shower of sparks and its nose collapsed into the soft dirt.

Four passengers received minor injuries when they and the others aboard were evacuated from the plane by sliding down emergency exit chutes.

Miami business executive Hugh McLoone said he was just pulling out of a Cuban refugee receiving station at the west end of the airport in his car "when I saw the whole thing unfold before me.

"The jet went skidding off the end of the runway and the tires exploded with a roar that sounded like thunder," McLoone said. "Then the nose dropped down.

"When the plane stopped, the people started piling out in the emergency chutes."

The plane remained mired in the soft earth at the end of runway 27-left today while investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration continued their investigation of the incident.

Board Views $1 Million In New Bridge Equipment

New communications and toll equipment costing more than $1 million was recommended for purchase yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors

Most of the money. $637.420, would go toward modernization and expansion of the radio network for district vehicles. with microwave stations planned atop high points in Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco. The remainder would include $300,000 to replace failing devices that count vehicles through the toll gates and $80,000 to replace equally fallible communications links between the toll sergeant's office and the toll takers

The district's radio consultant Herbert M. Watson of Lafayette, estimated the new radio network will cost $71.903 a year to operate. Initial costs would be less if the system relied on leased telephone lines instead of on microwave transmitters. but the annual cost would be about $18,000 more. he said.

More to the fiscal point, district officials noted, was that the federal government probably will pay for two-thirds of the initial cost, while the district must pay all of the annual operating cost.

The radio network for the first time will link the district's bus fleet with dispatchers Bus transit Mgr. H. Donald White said this will permit more efficient use of the coaches to meet changes in traffic and peak loads.

The microwave stations will be atop Mount Tamalpais, San Rafael or Pedro Hill, Big Rock Mountain, Sonoma Mountain, the bridge and the Bank of America in San Francisco.

The building and operating committee reluctantly recommended the system to the full district board despite its fears that Watson's estimates may prove too low The board will consider the committee's recommendations at 10 a.m. next Thursday in toll plaza offices

The committee also recommended leasing 700 automatic vehicle identifiers from Litton Industries for $1,860 a month. The devices are being tested for possible use by commuters to allow monthly billing The devices signal the district's computer upon passing through the toll gates

The committee withheld action on a staff proposal to sell 147 surplus light fixtures from the span. Bulbs for them no longer are manufactured, but the staff suggested they might find popular use in gardens.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini jokingly suggested they would look good in bedrooms if fitted with candles. San Francisco Supervisor John Molinari retorted that "I always knew you were weird, Bettini."

The staff was asked to determine how to sell them.

Heliport Switch Pondered

The Marin County Aviation commission has agreed to investigate the possibility of relocating the Marin County Heliport at Richardson Bay to a more central location

Chairman William W Schwarzer said today the commission heard a preliminary report at its meeting Tuesday and will continue to study the relocation

He said SFO Helicopter. the sole operator at the Heliport. would like to move into the Larkspur-San Rafael area if a site can be found

Schwarzer said one possible location is the proposed Larkspur ferry terminal to be located at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur.

However. the Golden Gate Briege District must approve any use at the terminal. he said Plans for the ferry terminal make mention of a heliport site

Schwarzer said he hoped the county could lease air space and landing rights when a site is found and amortize any cost through a rental agreement with SFO Helicopter.

In other action. the commission reelected Schwarzer as chairman and named Richard P Nave as vice chairman

Novato Council Will View Plan

The Novato City Council will have a special meeting on the proposed new Novato general plan at 8 p.m. Monday at the community house.

Councilmen decided at the close of the fifth public hearing on the plan Tuesday night to have a meeting for council discussion Monday.

Mayor F. Wayne Sartain has pushed for adoption of the plan before the end of the year, but that appears unlikely since any revisions by the council must be referred back to the planning commission for comment before adoption

Boeing To Train Chinese On 707

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — M re than 100 technicians from the People's Republic of China will start ground training early next year at the Boeing Co.

A spokesman said Friday that the Chinese would be trained to service and fly the 10 Boeing 707 jet transports ordered by China at a cost of $125 million. Delivery is to begin the middle of next year and be completed by the spring of 1974.

Novato Flood Board Delays Budget Action

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has postponed a decision on a 1973-74 budget which could boost the tax rate from 14.5 cents to $1 per $100 assessed valuation.

Faced with four possible budgets, depending upon which project is undertaken along Novato Creek, directors Thursday night postponed a budget decision until Jan. 18, according to Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineers.

The district budget is submitted to the Marin County Department of Public Works and then to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which makes the final decision.

Budgets for the four potential projects are $1,181,060 for the joint local-federal project by the Army Corps of Engineers, $1,481,060 for an interim dredging program and $731,060 for either leaving the creeks in a natural state or having a modified local-federal project.

Directors also mentioned the possibility of financing a project by a bond issue, but no amount was specified, Murphy said.

The board adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18 at the Novato branch library.

Evans Exempted —To Get Promotion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apollo Astronaut Ronald Evans will receive his Navy promotion from commander to captain despite President Nixon's order freezing government promotions, the Pentagon said today.

Spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim said an exemption had been granted specifically for Evans, now returning to earth with two other Apollo 17 astronauts

Cooper Hoax Fatal To Newspaper

SEATTLE (AP) — The man the government said was duped by two Bremerton area men, one who posed as the skyjacker known as D. B. Cooper, has testified the hoax has led to the demise of his Los Angeles newspaper.

Karl Fleming, a former Newsweek Magazine contributing editor, broke down in federal court here Thursday when asked during cross examination if he would be running any more stories on Cooper.

"There will be no further issues of this paper whatever," Fleming answered.

He said in an interview with the Seattle Post-Intelligencer later that Max Palevsky, backer of the newspaper, "L.A.," had withdrawn his financial support of the publication.

Palevsky also has been called to testify in the trial of Donald Murphy and William Lewis, charged in a federal grand jury indictment of defrauding Fleming of $45,000 in exchange for an interview with Cooper.

Cooper is the name used by a man who hijacked a Northwest Airlines 727 jetliner on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, and then parachuted from the craft after collecting $200,000 in ransom from the airline at Seattle.

During earlier testimony in the four-day-old trial, Fleming said he was approached by two men who promised him an exclusive interview with Cooper in return for $45,000.

Fleming, then a contributing editor for Newsweek, said the magazine killed the story because of the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes hoax.

Palevsky, largest single stockholder in the Xerox Corp., testified that he had given $30,000 to Fleming to pay for the interview.

A series of stories based on the interviews were run in L.A. last October. However, the publication noted that the government had charged the interviews were a hoax.

The defense already has stipulated that Murphy had posed as Cooper.

In earlier testimony Thursday, an FBI expert testified that three $20 bills given to Fleming during one of the interviews were not part of the ransom money.

Four Candidates For Barbier Seat

Four candidates have applied for the San Rafael Fire Commission seat left vacant by the death of Harry A. Barbier, City Mgr. James H. McCown said yesterday.

The four are John Adams, Henry Hewelcke, Richard Sadler and Richard Meihling.

McCown said the council will fill the vacancy by Jan. 2. Persons interested in applying should contact city hall, he said

'Consumer Affairs' Program Endorsed

The Marin County Human Rights Commission has endorsed creation of a new "consumer affairs" program on a trial basis.

According to Executive Director Gerald J. Hood, the pilot project is designed to work with local businessmen to iron out consumer complaints.

Hood said many complaints filed with his office during the last year leaned toward consumer problems and not infringements on human rights.

He said the new program, which must be approved by the county board of supervisors, was protested by consumer advocate Silvia Segal, formerly of Sausalito, who said a separate county department should be created to handle the new program.

The commission, which met over dinner Thursday night at Sabella's Restuarant in Mill Valley, also recommended that a new position of human rights coordinator be created within the department to handle special projects.

Not attending last night's session was Commissioner Edward W. Colthurst, who boycotted the meeting, charging dinner meetings discourage public attendance.

Chairman Ernest J. Gray responded to Colthurst's charge saying such meetings are necessary "so that we can communicate with each other and get to better know and understand one another . . ."

Student On Tam Panel Not First

When a student representative was seated on the Tamalpais High School District board on Wednesday, it was not the first time in Marin County, as the Tam students claimed.

For the San Rafael Board of Education has had not one, but two, student members since October 1970.

Currently serving as student members are Robin Bacci from San Rafael High School and Todd Gulick from Terra Linda High School.

Elected by fellow students, the pair sit as full members of the board, and their advisory votes are recorded in the minutes

Asst. Supt. Wayne Boone said the students, as have their predecessors, take part in board discussions and emphatically give their views.

Terra Linda High School principal Frank Stocking said students feel they are participating in district management in a purposeful manner, and they're not afraid to disagree with trustees.

San Rafael High School principal Peter Palches said the district appreciates getting student points of view directly, and it helps students realize the work involved in being a public official.

Future Eyed Of Water Subgroup

The environmental advisory subcommittee of Improvement District A will meet with directors of the Marin Municipal Water District to discuss the subgroup's future on Jan. 11 at 8 p.m. at the district offices

The subcommittee was formed more than a year ago by the water district board to advise on the environmental impact of a proposed $28 million consolidated waste treatment system for central and southeast Marin

One of the committee's members, David Greenlee, manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, resigned from the group early this month, charging it has overstepped the bound of its responsibility.

Greenlee said he objected to the subcommittee's recommendation that a major regional treatment plant be constructed so as to reclaim all its sewage when it opens late in 1975.

Saying that the subcommittee shouldn't attempt to make policy decisions for the water district, Greenlee claimed that some subcommittee members from organizations like Marin Alternative and Marin Conservation League have attempted to involve it in affairs "that are none of our business"

District A manager John T Schulte said the meeting will discuss the subcommittee's composition, and whether it really reflects the desires of the general public When it was formed more a year ago, 25 members were appointed, but Schulte said attendance has dwindled to 10 or 12.

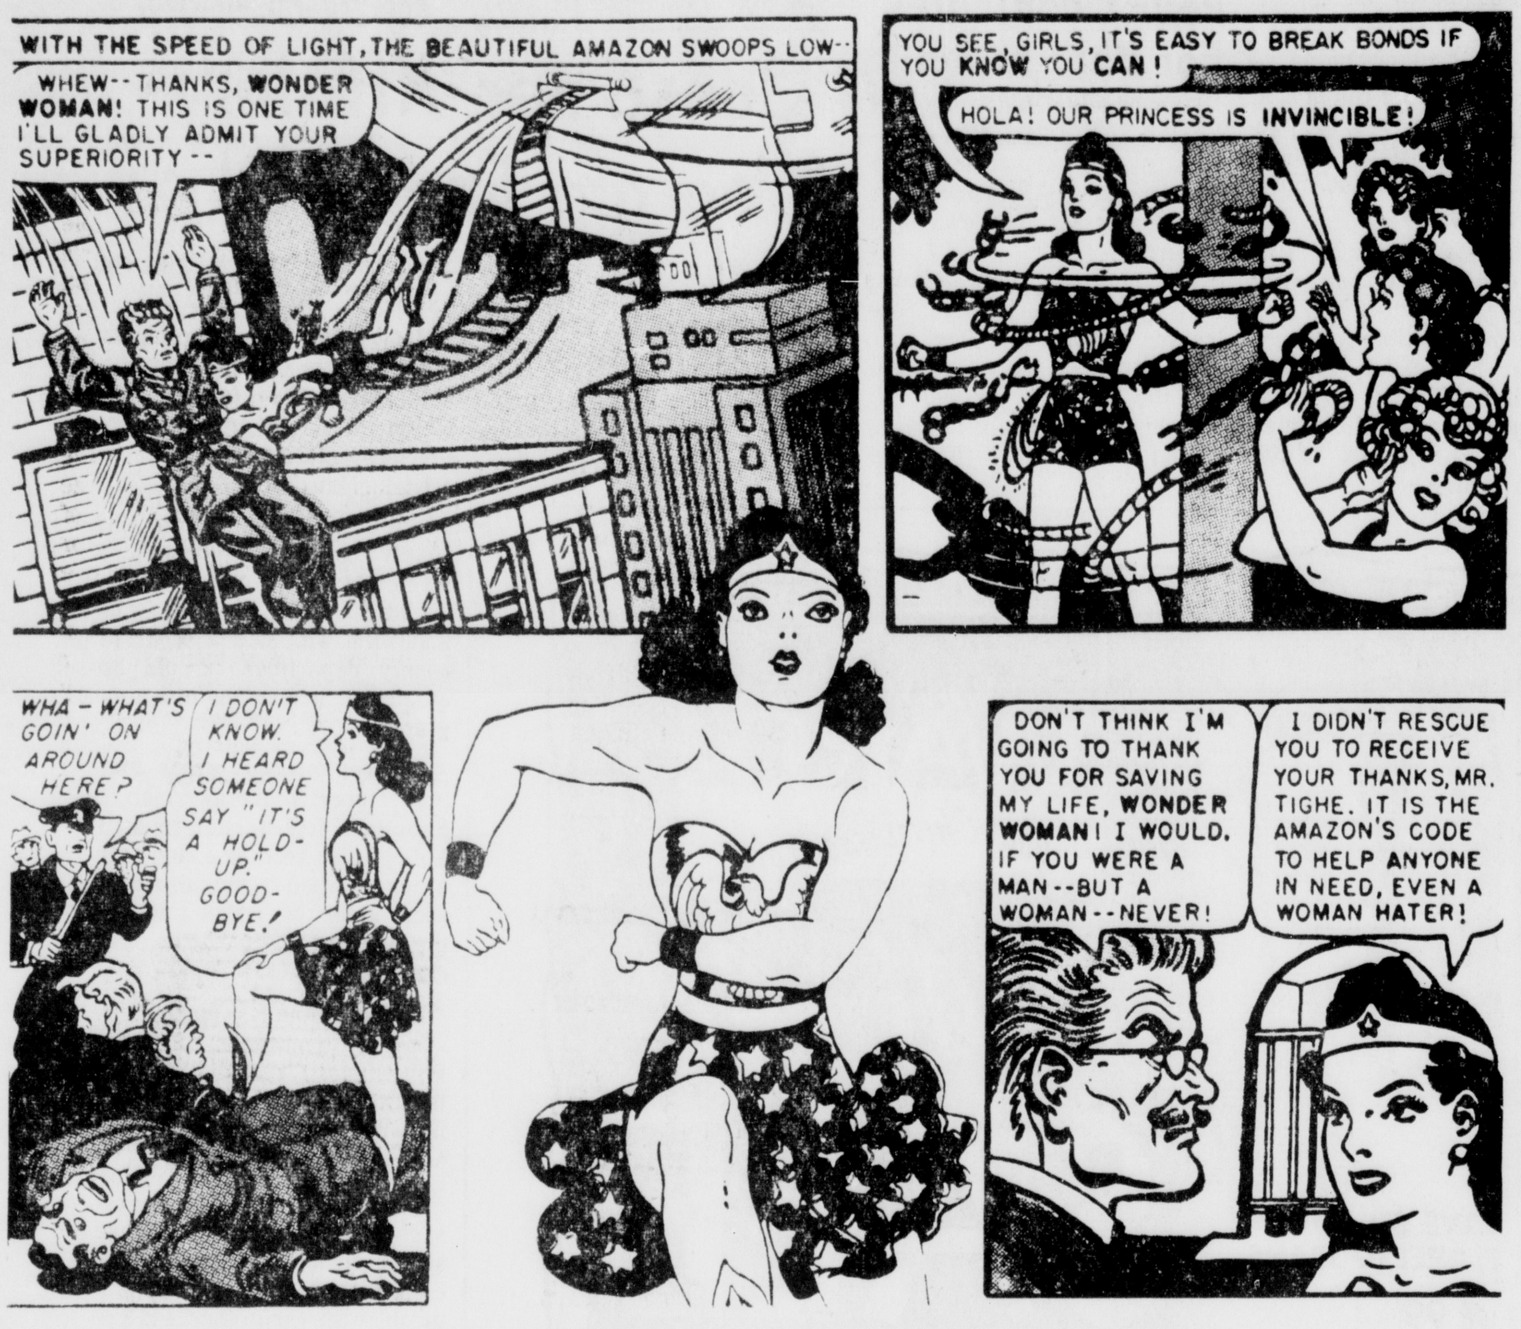
Marin Women



WITH THE SPEED OF LIGHT, THE BEAUTIFUL AMAZON SWOOPS LOW--
WHEW--THANKS, WONDER WOMAN! THIS IS ONE TIME I'LL GLADLY ADMIT YOUR SUPERIORITY--
YOU SEE, GIRLS, IT'S EASY TO BREAK BONDS IF YOU KNOW YOU CAN!
HOLA! OUR PRINCESS IS INVINCIBLE!
WHA-WHAT'S GOIN' ON AROUND HERE?
I DON'T KNOW. I HEARD SOMEONE SAY "IT'S A HOLD-UP." GOOD-BYE!
DON'T THINK I'M GOING TO THANK YOU FOR SAVING MY LIFE, WONDER WOMAN! I WOULD. IF YOU WERE A MAN--BUT A WOMAN--NEVER!
I DIDN'T RESCUE YOU TO RECEIVE YOUR THANKS, MR. TIGHE. IT IS THE AMAZON'S CODE TO HELP ANYONE IN NEED, EVEN A WOMAN HATER!

ONCE AGAIN in a world torn by hatreds and wars of men appears Wonder Woman, to whom problems and feats of men are child's play. A collection in book form is being issued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, and its producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized values of today's feminists — self-reliance and mutual support among women, respect for life and disdain for violence as a way to solve conflicts.

Two Plan Wedding In June

A June wedding is being planned for next year by Marilyn Claire McNamara of Stockton and Jackson Emil Dennis of Terra Linda.

The couple's engagement was announced by Mr. and Mrs. William McNamara of Corte Madera, Marilyn's parents. She is the sister of Bill McNamara of Sausalito and the granddaughter of Mrs. Clara Hubkins of San Francisco.

Now employed with Loyal Protective Life Insurance Co. in Stockton, Marilyn is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin.

Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson E. Dennis of Terra Linda and the brother of Robert and James Dennis. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dennis of Gridley and Mrs. Estella Beatty of Chico.

He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and is a senior at the University of the Pacific.

Feminist Leader Sets Marin Talk

Feminist Gloria Steinem, founder and editor of the magazine MS., will speak in Marin on Jan. 17.

Ms. Steinem and Margaret Sloan, also on the magazine staff and a leading member of the Women Mobilized for Change group based in Chicago, will speak on "Sexism and Racism" in an 8 p.m. program at the College of Marin gymnasium in Kentfield.

GLORIA STEINEM
To speak in Marin

Ms. Steinem has been contributing editor and political columnist for New York Magazine and her work has been published in magazines and newspapers in America and Europe. She is presently a member of the New York Advisory board of the National Organization for Women.

Ms. Sloan has been active in the liberation movement of oppressed people for 10 years and was an organizer of the Congress of Racial Equality in Chicago at the age of 14. She is a contributor and associate editor of Ms. magazine.

Tickets for the program will be sold after Jan. 2 at the College of Marin box office from 1 to 4 p.m. and through Women on the Move at Redwood High School box office from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays.

SHERRY SCHOOLING
February vows set

Engagement For Sherry Schooling

Sherry Louise Schooling's engagement to Delphus Dello Hert III has been announced by her parents, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Schooling of Novato.

Sherry is the sister of Cynthia Lynn and Jennifer Jan Schooling of Novato and the granddaughter of Oscar Sundberg of Livermore.

She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is employed with Linda Vista Convalescent Hospital in San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dello Hert Jr. of Pla Vada and the brother of Lori Lynn and Michael Hert. Mr. and Mrs. Dello Hert of Indianapolis, Ind., are his grandparents.

He was graduated from Tahoe Truckee High School in Truckee and is employed with Sears store in San Rafael.

The couple will be married Feb. 17 at Resurrection Lutheran Church in Terra Linda.

ON THE AGENDA

Business, Professional Women Honor Two Long-Time Members

Two members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin County were given surprise honors this week as the club marked its 40th anniversary.

The only charter member, Letha Jenkins, was presented an honorary life membership award by the club. Mrs. Jenkins, retired Ross School principal and teacher, served as the club president in 1948 and has been an active member of the scholarship committee.

Also honored was Elsie P. Mazzini, long-time club member and a past president. She was given the Woman of Achievement Award for 1972 and certificate of appreciation for her continuing contribution to the club.

The awards were Tuesday at the Meadows in Terra Linda, when 17 past presidents of the club were also introduced.

THE OPENING of the musical film "1776" at the Northgate Theater in Terra Linda will be a gala occasion benefitting the the Marin Mental Health Association and presented by MMH Auxiliary. The opening night Wednesday will begin with the serving of champagne in the lobby at 7:30 p.m. and snacks will be available for the children. The film will be shown at 8 p.m.

Barbara Burke of Mill Valley is chairman for the opening and Mrs. Lawrence Guadagni of San Rafael is ticket chairman. The committee urges families to attend together.

NOVATO HIGH School choral group under the direction of John Anders will present a program at the Novato Newcomers Club luncheon at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio on Wednesday. This is the third year the choral group will perform at the Newcomers' Christmas luncheon.

A social hour will be held at 11 a.m., followed by luncheon at noon. Members will bring canned goods for a needy family in Novato.

Reservations chairmen are Mmes. Dick Dutton, Michael Lapham, Edward Lertora, George Jones, Emile Patrick and Bernard Giorgi.

THE JUNIOR Class of St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma will sponsor a house tour and organ recital tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. The recital of French and German music of the 17th Century will be played by Richard Cushman at St. John's Episcopal Church in Petaluma. The recital will begin at 4 p.m.

The homes of Dr. John Bihn, Manuel Gonsalves, James McCaffrey, Victor Day, R. C. Redway and Mrs. Lind Fromhagan will be on display from 1 to 4 p.m.

Refreshments will be served in Clark Memorial Hall behind the Episcopal Church after the recital.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Timmerman of Novato.

Suzi is the sister of James Sasse of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Harkey of Novato. Mrs. Sadie D'Ambrogio of Novato is her great grandmother.

The future bride is a graduate of San Rafael High School and is assistant manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken shop in San Rafael.

Rick is the brother of Mrs. Kenneth Haney of San Rafael and Mrs. David Elliot of Modesto, and Mrs. Myrtle Jeffries of Madison, Wis., is his grandmother.

Also a graduate of San Rafael High School, he is employed by Fairfax Lumber Co. in Fairfax.

The couple is planning to be married next summer.

Cerebral Palsy Treatment Goal

NEW YORK (UPI) — The general treatment goal for the individual with cerebral palsy is to help him function as optimally as he can within the limits of his basic handicap.

While it may be impossible to alter the extent of his motor incoordination, it is possible to train him to get the "most out of what he has," according to health authorities familiar with the problem. Cerebral palsy is the general term applied to a group of permanently disabling symptoms resulting from damage to the developing brain. The damage may occur before, during or after birth.

Wonder Woman Makes Comeback

Wonder Woman is back — courageous but compassionate, non-violent, as lovely as Aphrodite, as wise as Athena, with the speed of Mercury and the strength of Hercules.

Wonder Woman comics of the '40s by psychologist William Moulton Marston have been collected and reissued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, Inc. as a new book, with introduction by Gloria Steinem and an interpretive essay on the Amazon legacy by psychologist Dr. Phyllis Chesler.

In the course of her adventures Wonder Woman upheld the ideals that feminists project today, Gloria Steinem explains in her introduction.

"Here was a heroic person who might conquer with force but only a force that was tempered by love and justice. She converted her enemies more often than not. . .She was brave, beautiful and explicitly out to change a world torn by the hatreds and wars of men," Ms. Steinem writes.

The book's producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized many of the values that feminists try to uphold today — strength and self-reliance for women, sisterhood and mutual support among women, peacefulness and respect for life and a belief that violence is not the way to solve conflicts.

The original Wonder Woman comics are being produced in book form in cooperation with Ms. Magazine and Warner Books.

Yule Cards Started With Nature Motifs

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —Their creators probably thought little about ecology when they made the early Christmas cards, but they used nature motifs liberally.

Both flowers and animals were favorites for cards as early as the 1860s when families exchanged greetings before the Christmas card became a universal custom.

They were called "album" cards and great-grandma pasted quantities of them in her album. These were decorated with colored pictures of flowers, birds, butterflies, landscapes and seascapes.

The big push toward today's phenomenal card business (3.5 billion cards sent this Christmas and New Year's alone) came from Louis Prang, often called the father of the American Christmas card.

IN THE 1860s, Prang, a German immigrant, was turning out art reproductions and album cards from his print shop in Boston.

Then came the day in 1874 when a novel idea was presented him.

According to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, one account has it that the suggestion came from a woman employe in Boston. Another says it was original with the wife of his London agent.

Whichever woman deserves the credit, Prang was quick to see the possibilities of increased business if he printed only a "Merry Christmas" on small floral-decorated cards.

He experimented with his British customers first, for it was in England where the world's first Christmas card appeared in 1843. In 1875, Prang tried the cards on the American public.

Within five years, he was turning out five million cards a year and employed 300 people.

"To my mind," wrote Edward Everett Hale in 1889, "the most interesting place in Boston is Prang's printing house..."

HALE WENT on to describe the processes by which a picture was run through the press from eight to as many as 17 times, each time receiving an added shade of color.

Original sample books of the old Prang firm are considered valuable today and sought after by various libraries. The card publishers association says two outstanding collections are with the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, Mass., and the Fine Arts Department of the Boston Public Library.

When the association recently moved its New York headquarters from Rockefeller Center to the Pan-Am Building, it uncovered dozens of rare cards mounted on panels.

Association director Harry J. Cooper says the cards are typical of those of the Victorian era but he has not determined whether any are Prang designs.

The collection, however, includes cards decorated with Prang's favorite flower motif — Killarney roses.

The Family Income

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — An average family in Taipei earned about $178 a month in the first half of 1972, an increase of about $40 over 1969, according to city government statistics reported by the Central News Agency of China.

Many Persons Lose Hearing

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of every 10 persons in the United States has some degree of earing loss. That comes out to 20 million.

According to the National Health Survey, there are about 8.5 million persons who consider their hearing loss serious.

Health educators say the increasing age of the American population probably is the greatest single factor in the increased incidence of hearing loss. Changes connected with aging can hurt hearing.

German Unveils New Line

By ALYCE MCLAUGHLIN

Fashion elegance, it seems, will no longer be synonymous only with the pacesetters of Italy and France, now that Germany's most sought after fashion designer Uli Richter has unveiled his fabulous collection of originals.

Richter, Germany's most successful designer, enjoys an international reputation on par with the best of Europe.

His casually elegant and youthful spring and summer fashions were previewed at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel and sponsored by Lufthansa German Airlines.

His fashions pulsate with a vibrance brought about only when grace, elegance, and style are combined with an array of paradise prints, polka dots, plaids, siripes, abstracts, and bright flowers strewn over wide bands of silk.

RICHTER MAKES his creations one fluid motion after another. His designs have soft, swinging lines, while long skirts have playful pleats with backless tops. The batwing sleeve is featured while jackets are often bell shaped, as well as back flared coats with fitted fronts.

He emphasizes color in his fashions, going from warm gleaming pinks, vivid jades, Spanish greens and electric blues, to natural tones of carmel and caramel to complement the warm brown tones of summer tans.

The highlight of his collection, though, is his tribute to the American Wild West, where jeans are used in a playful mixture of western plaids in cotton and wool voile, carrying such names as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "The Girl From Texas."

ULI RICHTER does about 400 creations a year, all complete with their own accessories, also designed by him.

The House of Uli Richter is the pinnacle of fashion in Germany, and is well on its way to becoming the "in way for American women to look."

Teen Allowances Hit By Inflation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation is taking a healthy chunk of teen-agers' allowances but, with business looking brighter, allowances are easier to collect, says the Rand Youth Poll.

Parents are still heavy borrowers from their children, according to Rand, which said 32 per cent of the teen-agers surveyed said their parents put the bite on them when the need arises.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Parties The Name Of Holidays Game

By MOLLY MARIN

Holiday entertainment continues in Marin with news of parties and visitors coming to spend the holidays.

EIGHTY FRIENDS from throughout the Bay Area will gather for cocktails and a buffet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Tiburon tonight. Sharing the duties as hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilhite of Tiburon.

The Williamses, who have been in New York a year, planned the evening to renew acquaintances.

WORD OF HER mother's surprise visit has brightened the holidays for Mrs. Laurence Kraus of Corinthian Island. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Freedheim of Shaker Heights, Ohio, is expected the week before Christmas, and Mrs. Kraus has arranged luncheons with friends for her.

AN OPEN house for 40 neighbors and friends is planned by Mr. and Mrs. James V. Mealey of Tiburon on Friday evening. Their son, Richard Borgmann, will be home from Tulane University for the party.

MARIN MEMBERS of American Conservatory Theater are baking cookies for ACT's Christmas party for senior citizens at the Geary Theater in San Francisco on Monday.

Musicians and actors will present different acts and other ACT members will act as hostesses including Mmes. Edward McCrum and Adolph Mueller.

Chariman of the party is Mrs. Joseph Barton of Ross.

AN INTIMATE dinner party tomorrow night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Johnson in San Rafael will be attended by Messrs. and Mmes. Fielding Reese, Edsel Yarling, S.P. Spiliotis and Peter Meyer, all of San Rafael.

THREE HUNDRED friends of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Martin received invitations to an annual Christmas open house at their San Rafael home next Saturday, evening.

The evening is planned on a staggered schedule at the large home carpeted in red.

Guest of honor will be Mrs. Doris Gagnebin, who grew up with Mrs. Martin in Fresno.

A "YULE SPIRITS" party for 100 friends from all over the Bay Area will be held at the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wyckoff tomorrow.

A NEIGHBORHOOD party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Speckmann of Mill Valley on Friday with Christmas cheer served from 5 p.m.

ONE HUNDRED friends from Marin and San Francisco will come to an open house tomorrow from 4 to 7 p.m. at the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller.

Working Women Like One Store

NEW YORK (UPI)—Of women who hold full time jobs, 67 per cent usually frequent one particular supermarket, according to a Bureau of Advertising report.

This compares with 56 per cent of the stay-at-home women who usually go to one particular supermarket.

Costs Will Increase On College Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The costs of a college education have increased steadily since World War II and are likely to continue to rise in the years ahead.

A recent survey predicts cost of a year at a coeducational college will likely be $3,065 in 1980, compared with 1972's average cost of $2,000. By the year 2000 that cost could be as high as $6735.

Cooper Hoax Fatal To Newspaper

SEATTLE (AP) — The man the government said was duped by two Bremerton area men, one who posed as the skyjacker known as D. B. Cooper, has testified the hoax has led to the demise of his Los Angeles newspaper.

Karl Fleming, a former Newsweek Magazine contributing editor, broke down in federal court here Thursday when asked during cross examination if he would be running any more stories on Cooper.

"There will be no further issues of this paper whatever," Fleming answered.

He said in an interview with the Seattle Post-Intelligencer later that Max Palevsky, backer of the newspaper, "L.A.," had withdrawn his financial support of the publication.

Palevsky also has been called to testify in the trial of Donald Murphy and William Lewis, charged in a federal grand jury indictment of defrauding Fleming of $45,000 in exchange for an interview with Cooper.

Cooper is the name used by a man who hijacked a Northwest Airlines 727 jetliner on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, and then parachuted from the craft after collecting $200,000 in ransom from the airline at Seattle.

During earlier testimony in the four-day-old trial, Fleming said he was approached by two men who promised him an exclusive interview with Cooper in return for $45,000.

Fleming, then a contributing editor for Newsweek, said the magazine killed the story because of the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes hoax.

Palevsky, largest single stockholder in the Xerox Corp., testified that he had given $30,000 to Fleming to pay for the interview.

A series of stories based on the interviews were run in L.A. last October. However, the publication noted that the government had charged the interviews were a hoax.

The defense already has stipulated that Murphy had posed as Cooper.

In earlier testimony Thursday, an FBI expert testified that three $20 bills given to Fleming during one of the interviews were not part of the ransom money.

Four Candidates For Barbier Seat

Four candidates have applied for the San Rafael Fire Commission seat left vacant by the death of Harry A. Barbier, City Mgr. James H. McCown said yesterday.

The four are John Adams, Henry Hewelcke, Richard Sadler and Richard Meihling.

McCown said the council will fill the vacancy by Jan. 2. Persons interested in applying should contact city hall, he said

'Consumer Affairs' Program Endorsed

The Marin County Human Rights Commission has endorsed creation of a new "consumer affairs" program on a trial basis.

According to Executive Director Gerald J. Hood, the pilot project is designed to work with local businessmen to iron out consumer complaints.

Hood said many complaints filed with his office during the last year leaned toward consumer problems and not infringements on human rights.

He said the new program, which must be approved by the county board of supervisors, was protested by consumer advocate Silvia Segal, formerly of Sausalito, who said a separate county department should be created to handle the new program.

The commission, which met over dinner Thursday night at Sabella's Restuarant in Mill Valley, also recommended that a new position of human rights coordinator be created within the department to handle special projects.

Not attending last night's session was Commissioner Edward W. Colthurst, who boycotted the meeting, charging dinner meetings discourage public attendance.

Chairman Ernest J. Gray responded to Colthurst's charge saying such meetings are necessary "so that we can communicate with each other and get to better know and understand one another . . ."

Student On Tam Panel Not First

When a student representative was seated on the Tamalpais High School District board on Wednesday, it was not the first time in Marin County, as the Tam students claimed.

For the San Rafael Board of Education has had not one, but two, student members since October 1970.

Currently serving as student members are Robin Bacci from San Rafael High School and Todd Gulick from Terra Linda High School.

Elected by fellow students, the pair sit as full members of the board, and their advisory votes are recorded in the minutes

Asst. Supt. Wayne Boone said the students, as have their predecessors, take part in board discussions and emphatically give their views.

Terra Linda High School principal Frank Stocking said students feel they are participating in district management in a purposeful manner, and they're not afraid to disagree with trustees.

San Rafael High School principal Peter Palches said the district appreciates getting student points of view directly, and it helps students realize the work involved in being a public official.

Future Eyed Of Water Subgroup

The environmental advisory subcommittee of Improvement District A will meet with directors of the Marin Municipal Water District to discuss the subgroup's future on Jan. 11 at 8 p.m. at the district offices

The subcommittee was formed more than a year ago by the water district board to advise on the environmental impact of a proposed $28 million consolidated waste treatment system for central and southeast Marin

One of the committee's members, David Greenlee, manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, resigned from the group early this month, charging it has overstepped the bound of its responsibility.

Greenlee said he objected to the subcommittee's recommendation that a major regional treatment plant be constructed so as to reclaim all its sewage when it opens late in 1975.

Saying that the subcommittee shouldn't attempt to make policy decisions for the water district, Greenlee claimed that some subcommittee members from organizations like Marin Alternative and Marin Conservation League have attempted to involve it in affairs "that are none of our business"

District A manager John T Schulte said the meeting will discuss the subcommittee's composition, and whether it really reflects the desires of the general public When it was formed more a year ago, 25 members were appointed, but Schulte said attendance has dwindled to 10 or 12.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

She's Sure 'Vegetable' Viet Veteran Not Totally Hopeless

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I've been working as a nurses' aide in a convalescent home. Most of the patients are elderly, but then there's Joe! He's 23.

Joe was injured in Vietnam when he was 21. He had three major brain operations. The doctors say he has the mentality of a six-month-old baby. He can't understand or communicate, although a radio plays all day to keep him quiet. He's classified as a "vegetable," thus put away in a rest home, without therapy, because (I'm told) it's cheaper.

Yet I'm sure — and so is the orderly who works with him — that Joe could eventually learn some kind of communication. With enough loving care, the part of his brain left might be trained to take over — just as a six-month-old child gradually develops. He already cries when he's hungry or uncomfortable.

I'm writing this because I'm sure there are other Joes who have given their very lives for their country but because they're classified as "hopeless' they're farmed out in minimum-care homes to die. If the government can spend millions on arms to kill people, it shouldn't desert even one poor "Joe" if there's a tiny chance that therapy might help to bring him back. Doesn't he deserve maximum care and intensive treatment in the best veterans' hospital? He didn't ask to have half his brain shot away!

I know there isn't anything you can do personally, Helen and Sue, but maybe if you print my letter someone in high command will read it and a few Joes may be remembered again. — LARI

DEAR LARI:

We'll not only print your letter but send several copies to people in high command. Let's hope someone will hear, and Joe can have another chance. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

You asked for letters on the positive side of family life. May I share with you and your readers the following note enclosed in our anniversary card, along with a pair of Broadway theater tickets:

WHAT ARE "GOOD" PARENTS

Good parents are the ones who spend their extra money on their children, and at the same time tell them not to spend any of their allowances on them.

They are the ones who drive you to places out of the way, acting as though it's no trouble and, at the same time, tell you it's unnecessary to go out of your way for them.

They're the ones who smile at your petty problems, while listening, and try to make you see they're not the end of the world. Sometimes you think they "just don't understand" — but they do.

They are the ones who restrict you from certain activities "for your own good," but little do you realize at the time it is for your own good.

This was written by our daughter when she was 16. I'd like to add my thoughts on — WHAT IS A "GOOD" DAUGHTER?

She's thoughtful and loving to those around her, but doesn't complain if they are inadvertently thoughtless of her.

She adds music and laughter wherever she goes and is a delight to have around, even though many times you wish she'd turn down the stereo or play the piano a bit softer — or lose her radio.

She does favors for her brothers, even though they act like teenage boys — which is more conducive to mayhem than kindness.

After the thrill of getting her driving license has worn off, she'll still offer to hop in the car and drive to the store for items you've forgotten.

She has often accepted our judgment about certain restrictions, without an argument, and later been able to say, "You were right."

The list is endless, but mainly she thinks of us as people, not merely parents. And we are very — LUCKY

LUCKY:

I think everyone is lucky in your family — and it isn't just "luck!" Congratulations! — SUE

DEAR READERS:

Sudden thought: Why don't all you people who appreciate your family members but haven't said so in a long time, write little notes like the above and pin them on the Christmas tree? They might be the nicest gifts received this year — and so inexpensive! — HELEN

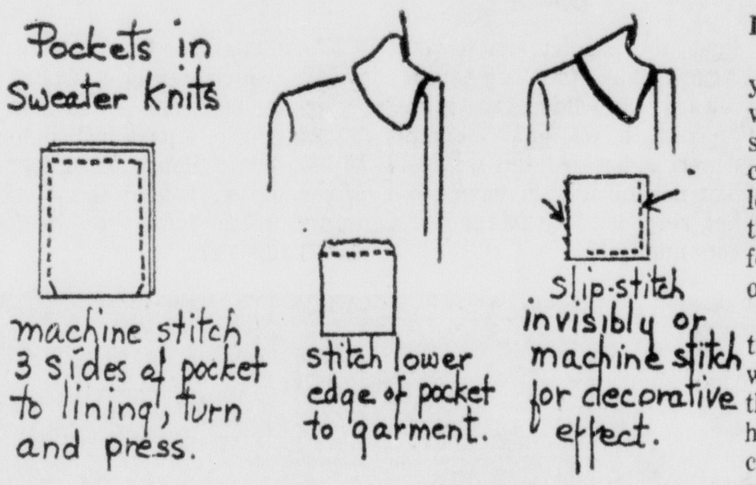
SEW SIMPLE

Patch Pockets The Easy Way

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)



Pockets in Sweater knits
machine stitch 3 sides of pocket to lining, turn and press.
stitch lower edge of pocket to garment.
slip-stitch invisibly or machine stitch for decorative effect.

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there a simple way to make pockets for those sweater knit shirts? I want the patch pocket look, but I find it so very difficult to get my pockets straight and even.

MRS. S.D.

DEAR MRS. S.D.,

Try this method. I think you will find it "sew simple" and have good results every time.

Use a lightweight woven underlining and cut it the same size as your pocket. Machine stitch around the two sides and the top. Angle your machine stitching in slightly at the end that isn't stitched, making the lower end slightly narrower.

Grade seams, clip excess from corners and turn the pocket right side out. Press edges flat. Place pocket right side down with lower seam allowance over the line for your finished pocket. Machine stitch across lower end only on the seam allowance. Next, flip the pocket up, pin and slip stitch permanently to your sweater. If you prefer machine stitching instead of hand stitching, this can also be done. This is a real time saver, and it works easily and well.

MRS. EDGAR Etzold, McPherson, Kan., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"Invariably, pattern instructions suggest stitching the darts as the first step in constructing a dress or blouse. Since this is the one area where an adjustment is often necessary but cannot be determined until the garment is in the final stage of completion, I have learned that by basting the darts instead of sewing them, it is much simpler to change. If no adjustment is needed, it is also very simple to complete the final stitching from the basting stitch as a final step."

Another tip on knits to add to the columns I hope you have saved so you can breeze through your next knit project.

If your knit is the squiggly kind that just squirms around when you try to stitch darts and the zipper, your worries are over. Just purchase a roll of hair setting tape (a thin paper, the kind you paste right over pin curls) and apply it right next to your machine stitching line. This will stabilize the knit, your sewing machine will ride over the paper and avoid pushing the knit out of shape.

If you understand this correctly, you will not stitch through this paper, but instead, right next to it. It is equally simple to remove when the stitching is completed. It can actually be used more than once effectively.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am a working woman with a limited clothing allowance. I find several good wool dresses in my closet, all with short sleeves. This doesn't seem to be the look for this year. Is there any way I can update these dresses and still get some wear out of them?

CLARE L.

DEAR CLARE,

Yes, with very little effort, you can change your simple wool dresses to this year's styles. I would suggest you change them to the jumper look. This requires removing the sleeves, adding a finished fold-over braid to the armholes, or a bias facing.

There are so many attractive trims available today with the wool look. Try to add some of these to the neckline, belt or hemline. This will give a more casual look to your jumpers and make them look more professional. Now you can wear them with the matte jersey body shirts, or any kind blouse you prefer. Nothing could be newer and more fun to make.

Susan Davis Will Wed John Youino

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Davis of San Anselmo have announced the engagement of their daughter, Susan Gwen Davis, to John Michael Youino of San Rafael.

ONCE AGAIN in a world torn by hatreds and wars of men appears Wonder Woman, to whom problems and feats of men are child's play. A collection in book form is being issued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, and its producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized values of today's feminists — self-reliance and mutual support among women, respect for life and disdain for violence as a way to solve conflicts.

ON THE AGENDA

Business, Professional Women Honor Two Long-Time Members

Two members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin County were given surprise honors this week as the club marked its 40th anniversary.

The only charter member, Letha Jenkins, was presented an honorary life membership award by the club. Mrs. Jenkins, retired Ross School principal and teacher, served as the club president in 1948 and has been an active member of the scholarship committee.

Also honored was Elsie P. Mazzini, long-time club member and a past president. She was given the Woman of Achievement Award for 1972 and certificate of appreciation for her continuing contribution to the club.

The awards were Tuesday at the Meadows in Terra Linda, when 17 past presidents of the club were also introduced.

THE OPENING of the musical film "1776" at the Northgate Theater in Terra Linda *will be a gala occasion benefit*ting the the Marin Mental Health Association and presented by MMH Auxiliary. The opening night Wednesday will begin with the serving of champagne in the lobby at 7:30 p.m. and snacks will be available for the children. The film will be shown at 8 p.m.

Barbara Burke of Mill Valley is chairman for the opening and Mrs. Lawrence Guadagni of San Rafael is ticket chairman. The committee urges families to attend together.

NOVATO HIGH School choral group under the direction of John Anders will present a program at the Novato Newcomers Club luncheon at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio on Wednesday. This is the third year the choral group will perform at the Newcomers' Christmas luncheon.

A social hour will be held at 11 a.m., followed by luncheon at noon. Members will bring canned goods for a needy family in Novato.

Reservations chairmen are Mmes. Dick Dutton, Michael Lapham, Edward Lertora, George Jones, Emile Patrick and Bernard Giorgi.

THE JUNIOR Class of St. Vincent's High School in Petaluma will sponsor a house tour and organ recital tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. The recital of French and German music of the 17th Century will be played by Richard Cushman at St. John's Episcopal Church in Petaluma. The recital will begin at 4 p.m.

The homes of Dr. John Bihn, Manuel Gonsalves, James McCaffrey, Victor Day, R. C. Redway and Mrs. Lind Fromhagan will be on display from 1 to 4 p.m.

Refreshments will be served in Clark Memorial Hall behind the Episcopal Church after the recital.

SUZETTE SASSE
To be wed

A Summer Wedding Is Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Paul William Sasse of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter Suzette (Suzi) Sasse to Richard Leonard Timmerman of Novato.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Timmerman of Novato.

Suzi is the sister of James Sasse of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Harkey of Novato. Mrs. Sadie D'Ambrogio of Novato is her great grandmother.

The future bride is a graduate of San Rafael High School and is assistant manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken shop in San Rafael.

Rick is the brother of Mrs. Kenneth Haney of San Rafael and Mrs. David Elliot of Modesto, and Mrs. Myrtle Jeffries of Madison, Wis., is his grandmother.

Also a graduate of San Rafael High School, he is employed by Fairfax Lumber Co. in Fairfax.

The couple is planning to be married next summer.

Cerebral Palsy Treatment Goal

NEW YORK (UPI) — The general treatment goal for the individual with cerebral palsy is to help him function as optimally as he can within the limits of his basic handicap.

While it may be impossible to alter the extent of his motor incoordination, it is possible to train him to get the "most out of what he has," according to health authorities familiar with the problem. Cerebral palsy is the general term applied to a group of permanently disabling symptoms resulting from damage to the developing brain. The damage may occur before, during or after birth.

Wonder Woman Makes Comeback

Wonder Woman is back — courageous but compassionate, non-violent, as lovely as Aphrodite, as wise as Athena, with the speed of Mercury and the strength of Hercules.

Wonder Woman comics of the '40s by psychologist William Moulton Marston have been collected and reissued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, Inc. as a new book, with introduction by Gloria Steinem and an interpretive essay on the Amazon legacy by psychologist Dr. Phyllis Chesler.

In the course of her adventures Wonder Woman upheld the ideals that feminists project today, Gloria Steinem explains in her introduction.

"Here was a heroic person who might conquer with force but only a force that was tempered by love and justice. She converted her enemies more often than not. . .She was brave, beautiful and explicitly out to change a world torn by the hatreds and wars of men," Ms. Steinem writes.

The book's producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized many of the values that feminists try to uphold today — strength and self-reliance for women, sisterhood and mutual support among women, peacefulness and respect for life and a belief that violence is not the way to solve conflicts.

The original Wonder Woman comics are being produced in book form in cooperation with Ms. Magazine and Warner Books.

Yule Cards Started With Nature Motifs

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —Their creators probably thought little about ecology when they made the early Christmas cards, but they used nature motifs liberally.

Both flowers and animals were favorites for cards as early as the 1860s when families exchanged greetings before the Christmas card became a universal custom.

They were called "album" cards and great-grandma pasted quantities of them in her album. These were decorated with colored pictures of flowers, birds, butterflies, landscapes and seascapes.

The big push toward today's phenomenal card business (3.5 billion cards sent this Christmas and New Year's alone) came from Louis Prang, often called the father of the American Christmas card.

IN THE 1860s, Prang, a German immigrant, was turning out art reproductions and album cards from his print shop in Boston.

Then came the day in 1874 when a novel idea was presented him.

According to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, one account has it that the suggestion came from a woman employe in Boston. Another says it was original with the wife of his London agent.

Whichever woman deserves the credit, Prang was quick to see the possibilities of increased business if he printed only a "Merry Christmas" on small floral-decorated cards.

He experimented with his British customers first, for it was in England where the world's first Christmas card appeared in 1843. In 1875, Prang tried the cards on the American public.

Within five years, he was turning out five million cards a year and employed 300 people.

"To my mind," wrote Edward Everett Hale in 1889, "the most interesting place in Boston is Prang's printing house..."

HALE WENT on to describe the processes by which a picture was run through the press from eight to as many as 17 times, each time receiving an added shade of color.

Original sample books of the old Prang firm are considered valuable today and sought after by various libraries. The card publishers association says two outstanding collections are with the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, Mass., and the Fine Arts Department of the Boston Public Library.

When the association recently moved its New York headquarters from Rockefeller Center to the Pan-Am Building, it uncovered dozens of rare cards mounted on panels.

Association director Harry J. Cooper says the cards are typical of those of the Victorian era but he has not determined whether any are Prang designs.

The collection, however, includes cards decorated with Prang's favorite flower motif — Killarney roses.

The Family Income

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — An average family in Taipei earned about $178 a month in the first half of 1972, an increase of about $40 over 1969, according to city government statistics reported by the Central News Agency of China.

Many Persons Lose Hearing

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of every 10 persons in the United States has some degree of earing loss. That comes out to 20 million.

According to the National Health Survey, there are about 8.5 million persons who consider their hearing loss serious.

Health educators say the increasing age of the American population probably is the greatest single factor in the increased incidence of hearing loss. Changes connected with aging can hurt hearing.

He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and is a senior at the University of the Pacific.

German Unveils New Line

By ALYCE MCLAUGHLIN

Fashion elegance, it seems, will no longer be synonymous only with the pacesetters of Italy and France, now that Germany's most sought after fashion designer Uli Richter has unveiled his fabulous collection of originals.

Richter, Germany's most successful designer, enjoys an international reputation on par with the best of Europe.

His casually elegant and youthful spring and summer fashions were previewed at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel and sponsored by Lufthansa German Airlines.

His fashions pulsate with a vibrance brought about only when grace, elegance, and style are combined with an array of paradise prints, polka dots, plaids, stripes, abstracts, and bright flowers strewn over wide bands of silk.

RICHTER MAKES his creations one fluid motion after another. His designs have soft, swinging lines, while long skirts have playful pleats with backless tops. The batwing sleeve is featured while jackets are often bell shaped, as well as back flared coats with fitted fronts.

He emphasizes color in his fashions, going from warm gleaming pinks, vivid jades, Spanish greens and electric blues, to natural tones of carmel and caramel to complement the warm brown tones of summer tans.

The highlight of his collection, though, is his tribute to the American Wild West, where jeans are used in a playful mixture of western plaids in cotton and wool voile, carrying such names as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "The Girl From Texas."

ULI RICHTER does about 400 creations a year, all complete with their own accessories, also designed by him.

The House of Uli Richter is the pinnacle of fashion in Germany, and is well on its way to becoming the "in way for American women to look."

Teen Allowances Hit By Inflation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation is taking a healthy chunk of teen-agers' allowances but, with business looking brighter, allowances are easier to collect, says the Rand Youth Poll.

Parents are still heavy borrowers from their children, according to Rand, which said 32 per cent of the teen-agers surveyed said their parents put the bite on them when the need arises.

Feminist Leader Sets Marin Talk

Feminist Gloria Steinem, founder and editor of the magazine MS., will speak in Marin on Jan. 17.

Ms. Steinem and Margaret Sloan, also on the magazine staff and a leading member of the Women Mobilized for Change group based in Chicago, will speak on "Sexism and Racism" in an 8 p.m. program at the College of Marin gymnasium in Kentfield.

GLORIA STEINEM
To speak in Marin

Ms. Steinem has been contributing editor and political columnist for New York Magazine and her work has been published in magazines and newspapers in America and Europe. She is presently a member of the New York Advisory board of the National Organization for Women.

Ms. Sloan has been active in the liberation movement of oppressed people for 10 years and was an organizer of the Congress of Racial Equality in Chicago at the age of 14. She is a contributor and associate editor of Ms. magazine.

Tickets for the program will be sold after Jan. 2 at the College of Marin box office from 1 to 4 p.m. and through Women on the Move at Redwood High School box office from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Parties The Name Of Holidays Game

By MOLLY MARIN

Holiday entertainment continues in Marin with news of parties and visitors coming to spend the holidays.

EIGHTY FRIENDS from throughout the Bay Area will gather for cocktails and a buffet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Tiburon tonight. Sharing the duties as hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilhite of Tiburon.

The Williamses, who have been in New York a year, planned the evening to renew acquaintances.

WORD OF HER mother's surprise visit has brightened the holidays for Mrs. Laurence Kraus of Corinthian Island. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Freedheim of Shaker Heights, Ohio, is expected the week before Christmas, and Mrs. Kraus has arranged luncheons with friends for her.

AN OPEN house for 40 neighbors and friends is planned by Mr. and Mrs. James V. Mealey of Tiburon on Friday evening. Their son, Richard Borgmann, will be home from Tulane University for the party.

MARIN MEMBERS of American Conservatory Theater are baking cookies for ACT's Christmas party for senior citizens at the Geary Theater in San Francisco on Monday.

Musicians and actors will present different acts and other ACT members will act as hostesses including Mmes. Edward McCrum and Adolph Mueller.

Chariman of the party is Mrs. Joseph Barton of Ross.

ONE HUNDRED friends from Marin and San Francisco will come to an open house tomorrow from 4 to 7 p.m. at the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller.

SHERRY SCHOOLING
February vows set

Engagement For Sherry Schooling

Sherry Louise Schooling's engagement to Delphus Dello Hert III has been announced by her parents, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Schooling of Novato.

Sherry is the sister of Cynthia Lynn and Jennifer Jan Schooling of Novato and the granddaughter of Oscar Sundberg of Livermore.

She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is employed with Linda Vista Convalescent Hospital in San Rafael.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dello Hert Jr. of Pla Vada and the brother of Lori Lynn and Michael Hert. Mr. and Mrs. Dello Hert of Indianapolis, Ind., are his grandparents.

He was graduated from Tahoe Truckee High School in Truckee and is employed with Sears store in San Rafael.

The couple will be married Feb. 17 at Resurrection Lutheran Church in Terra Linda.

Working Women Like One Store

NEW YORK (UPI)—Of women who hold full time jobs, 67 per cent usually frequent one particular supermarket, according to a Bureau of Advertising report.

This compares with 56 per cent of the stay-at-home women who usually go to one particular supermarket.

Costs Will Increase On College Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The costs of a college education have increased steadily since World War II and are likely to continue to rise in the years ahead.

A recent survey predicts cost of a year at a coeducational college will likely be $3,065 in 1980, compared with 1972's average cost of $2,000. By the year 2000 that cost could be as high as $6735.

Agnew Lights Nation's Yule Tree

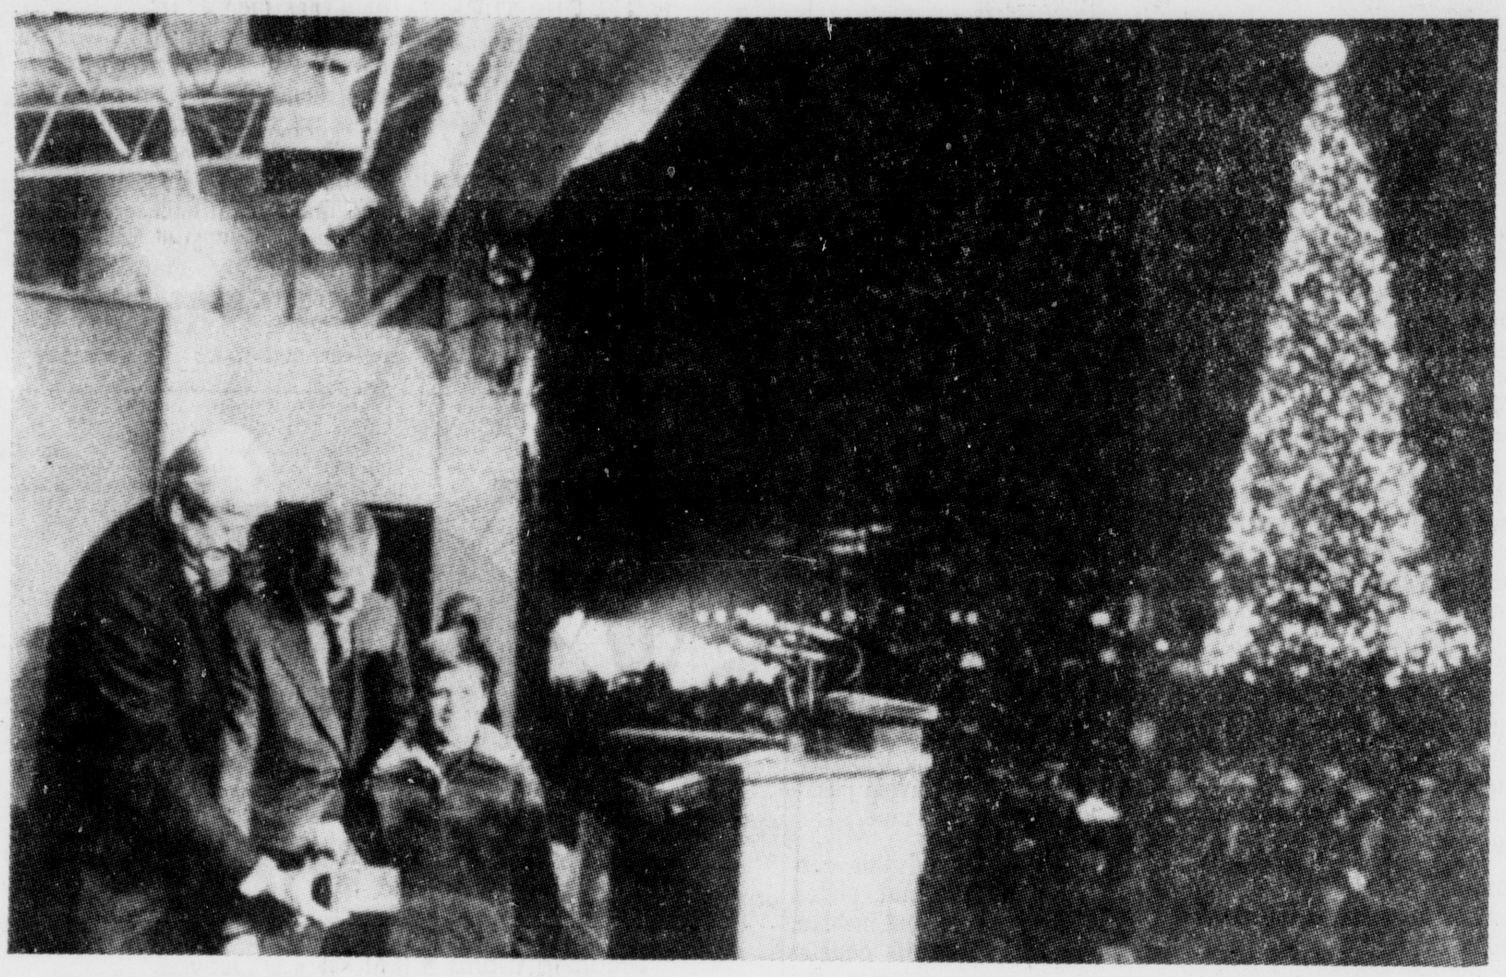
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, braving a cold drizzle and ignoring a small group of antiwar activists, officially lit the 70-foot national Christmas tree Friday.

Before throwing the switch to light the Englemann spruce, Agnew said "the long journey toward worldwide peace is now nearer to its goal because America has led the way and has not turned its back from her responsibility in the world community."

The annual tree-lighting ceremony, which opens a 10-day "Pageant of Peace," was held on the ellipse, a park just south of the White House. President Nixon earlier held a reception in the White House for about 1,000 supporters.

Agnew told the crowd watching the ceremonies that U.S. prisoners of war in Southeast Asia were in the prayers of all Americans.

"As we pray for these men and the other Americans who have suffered the adversities of war," he said, "we can be grateful that because of their sacrifices and American's steadfastness, the promise of peace burns brighter this Christmas than during any we have known in recent years."



NATIONAL TREE — Vice President Spiro Agnew and Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton (left) looked on last night as Eric Watt, 10, of Camp Springs, Md., threw the switch to light the national Christmas tree in ceremonies on the ellipse behind the White House. The tree is a 70-foot, 100-year-old Engelmann spruce and is a gift from the people of Wyoming.

As Agnew was speaking, antiwar protesters circulated petitions calling on Nixon to sign the nine-point peace agreement with North Vietnam and sang "peace" carols.

At the White House reception, Nixon, with his wife Pat and daughter Julie Eisenhower, greeted 500 couples who supported his re-election. "I want to say thank you," Nixon told guest after guest as he stood in a receiving line.

The gathering culminated a series of receptions given by the Nixon's this week in honor of what the White House calls their "new majority" political supporters.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the reception guests came "from all walks of life."

REWARD

the board to revamp the county hearing procedure so minor items, such as land division and use permit appeals, are not heard by both the planning commission and board of supervisors.

"There are just too many minor items coming up on the agendas," he said, adding it eats up staff time to have employees waiting for an item to be heard.

"Have some hearings stop at the planning commission level or bypass the commission and come directly to the board. That would save one hearing at least," he said.

Both von Gundell and Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, proposed more use of part-time employees to replace permanent employees.

Von Gundell said part-time employees would be both less expensive (no fringe benefits) and more efficient since they wouldn't be in the 8-to-5 workday routine. He added that some of his regular employees would probably prefer working part-time.

Others addressing the board included County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel, who said state law dictated the operation of his office; Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez and County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini, who said tax returns this year will produce $100,000 over the revenue estimates in their budgets; Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, who said his department was already in the process of "streamlining."

Also, Police-Community Relations Director Bella Aaron, who called for more departmental autonomy, and Public Defender Harold J. Truett, who urged careful study of law enforcement needs.

Supervisors Louis H. Baar and Michael Wornum were absent from yesterday's meeting.

A special session of the Marin Transit District board, made up of supervisors and two city councilmen, was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum.

The meeting, slated to consider a special bus contract with Marin Transit Systems of Marin City, will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. during the board of supervisors' meeting.

Astronauts Ready For Trip Home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — America — the spaceship and the nation — bids farewell today to the moon and an era.

Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt were set to fire the command ship's main rocket engine at 6:31 p.m. EST to break the orbital grasp of lunar gravity for the last time and begin the 68-hour trip home.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga was standing by in the South Pacific to retrieve the last men of Apollo and their priceless 249-pound treasure of moon specimens Tuesday afternoon.

During their last few swings around the moon, the spaceborne observers spotted a mysterious patch of rusty-hued craters near the southwestern rim of the Sea of Serenity. This is west of the Taurus-Littrow Valley where Cernan and Schmitt lived for three days.

"Man, we're starting to see an orange moon now," Cernan shouted as the spacecraft America swept 75 miles above the moon's front face.

As it did, instruments in the spacecraft searched for hot spots on the lunar surface which might indicate volcanic activity or rich deposits of radioactive material. They measured the extremely thin lunar atmosphere and probed with radar waves one mile into the moon to map subsurface structure and detect underground water or mineral deposits if they exist.

Scientists and engineers have been unanimous so far in their praise of the three astronauts and their space machinery.

Flight Director Neil Hutchinson said Friday that Apollo 17 would complete the orbital surveillance today "with an incredible record of accomplishment."

"I suspect we've come out with, by and large, just about 100 per cent on everything," he said.

Still ahead is a spacewalk Evans will perform 200,000 miles above Earth Sunday to retrieve a mile and a half of film from the two mapping cameras.

Evans orbited the moon alone in relative obscurity while Cernan and Schmitt were exploring the surface Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two of eight explosive charges the two explorers left behind on the lunar surface exploded on schedule late Friday and the television camera the astronauts used showed one blast as a sharp white flash.

The detonations sent vibrations ringing through the upper lunar crust to be recorded by seismometers for study by geophysicists. The seismic signals will tell something about subsurface makeup.

The reports from orbit of orange-stained craters tied in with the discovery Wednesday of orange soil on the rim of a small, deep crater at the Apollo 17 landing site. Scientists believe that crater was an extinct volcanic vent and the orange material was minerals oxidized by the escape of water vapor associated with the volcano.

Schmitt said the orange depressions in the Sea of Serenity looked as if meteoroids had punched through the gray lunar soil and excavated orange and red-brown material from below. In addition, he said, there was a rimless depression with colored debris streaming down its walls.

"My goodness, there's another crater we'll have to look at," said Schmitt, the first professional geologist to go to the moon.

Cernan assured fascinated geologists back at the mission control center in Houston that they weren't seeing things.

"Just so you're fully aware we're not ... getting color blind up here, this last one Jack was talking about was not even subtle. It had that orange-brown hue to it without any question at all."

The mission closed America's lunar exploration program for many years. Dr. William R. Muehlberger, an Apollo geologist, said he was glad it was coming to an end so he would have some time to analyze the immense amount of data returned by six lunar landings.

"We have an invaluable chance over the next 10 years to study and analyze this incredible wealth of data and find out what we really know about the moon and find out what we want to ask when we start sending rockets and men there again," he said.

Tree Pruner Is Awarded $2 Million In Accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Brooklyn tree pruner paralyzed from the waist down when a high voltage cable fell on him was awarded $2,175,000 Friday.

Edward Miner, 27, is now a paraplegic confined to a wheelchair as a result of the injuries he suffered Aug. 15, 1969, while working for the Floral Park Landscaping Co. of Floral Park, N.Y. The wire was part of the Long Island Lighting Co. (LILCo.) system.

Miner's attorney, Jacob Fuchsberg, said the lighting company was negligent for failing to insulate its high voltage lines.

"The reason utilities do not insulate their lines is because they put money above public safety," Fuchsberg said.

LILCo. contended that all high voltage lines throughout the country are uninsulated and that its lines conform to industry standards.

It awarded Miner $2 million for his injuries and $175,000 to his wife, Linda, 22, for the loss of her husband's services. The Miners have two children, ages 4 and 5.

In a cross complaint, the jury decided Miner's employer was 5 per cent negligent for not asking the utility to shut off the current in the area where he was working. The landscape company was ordered to pay about $108,000.

OBITUARIES

ALMA SCHAFER

Alma M. Schafer of San Rafael, who had lived in Marin since 1904, died yesterday after collapsing at her home at 205 Greenfield Avenue.

Miss Schafer, 83, was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. She had a history of heart disease, according to Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Miss Schafer was the last survivor of her family. Her father, Philip, and one of her brothers, Philip Jr., worked for Sloan's furniture store in San Francisco, making furniture for a total of about 75 years.

Two sisters and another brother, none of whom ever married, preceded her in death.

Miss Schafer worked as secretary for a plumbing firm in San Francisco before retiring many years ago.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael.

Funeral will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

DR. HAMREN

Memorial service for Dr. John M. Hamren, 48, of Lucas Valley, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Treasure Island Naval Station chapel.

Dr. Hamren died Thursday when his car crashed into a tree near Brentwood in Contra Costa County and caught fire.

He was a psychiatrist who practiced in Vallejo.

Dr. Hamren was born in New Jersey and had lived in California 23 years. The family home is at 13 Zephyr Court.

He was a commander in the Naval Reserve and was a member of the American Psychiatric Association and the Vallejo Medical Society. He also had belonged to Alpha Omega Alpha.

He is survived by his wife, Joan; two sons, Jonathan M. and Jeffrey S. Hamren, and his sister, Jill Willey of Palo Alto. He was the son of Friendly S. Lucas, also of Palo Alto.

The family prefers memorial contributions to Sunny Hills in San Anselmo.

BLANCA MEJIA

Blanca Luz Mejia, 69, of 301 San Sebastian Way, Novato, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She was born and reared in Guatemala, coming to the U.S. 22 years ago and working as a milliner in San Francisco until she retired four years ago. She had lived in Novato since last April.

Survivors are a daughter, Thelma Olgiati of Novato; two brothers, Jose M. Mejia and Humberto Mejia; two sisters, Carmen Mejia and Trinidad Guerra, all of Guatemala, and a grandchild.

Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato. Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Novato. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

CHARLES GERBIC

Private Mass of the Resurrection has been held at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax for Charles C. Gerbic of San Anselmo, who was killed Nov. 28 in a jetliner crash in Moscow.

Gerbic, 40, was manager of the engineering development section of Grove Valve and Regulator Co., an Emeryville-based firm. He was on his way from Russia to Japan on business.

Gerbic was born in San Francisco but lived most of his life in Marin. He was a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the University of Nevada.

He was a member of the Marin Chapter of Professional Engineers, American Chemical Society, American Welding Society and the California Metal Trades Association.

Gerbic is survived by his wife, Carole Miron Gerbic of the family home at 15 Caletta Avenue; three children, Charles, David and Jeffrey Gerbic, also of the family home; his grandmother, Mrs. Marie Hansen of San Francisco; a brother, Leo Gerbic, and two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Slivka and Mrs. Beryl Mauk.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

E. E. ANDERSON

Ernest Eugene Anderson, retired welder who lived in Woodacre, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was 70.

Anderson was born in Kansas and had lived in California since 1942. He and his family had lived at 110 Redwood Drive for 22 years.

Anderson had his own welding business in San Rafael until he retired about four years ago.

He was a member of the Eagles lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Nellie M. Anderson; three sons, Donald E. and Andrew Gary Anderson, both of Woodacre, and Roger G. Anderson of San Rafael, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

The family prefers contributions to charity.

ROBERT BARNETT ROTHSCHILD JR.

Funeral for Robert Barnett Rothschild Jr., whose construction firm built the $5.5 million administration wing of the Marin Civic Center, was held yesterday in Palo Alto.

Rothschild, 65, of Atherton, died Thursday in a Palo Alto hospital after a short illness. He was head of Rothschild-Raffin Inc., general contractors.

He was born in Berkeley and graduated from San Francisco's Lick-Wilmerding School, and the University of California at Berkeley. In 1944 Rothschild and Edward Haas formed the firm of Haas and Rothschild. In 1951 the firm of Rothschild-Raffin Inc. was formed.

Rothschild is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; two sons, Peter Alan Rothschild of San Francisco and Robert B. Rothschil III of Menlo Park; a brother, August Rothschild of San Francisco, and three grandchildren.

She's Sure 'Vegetable' Viet Veteran Not Totally Hopeless

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I've been working as a nurses' aide in a convalescent home. Most of the patients are elderly, but then there's Joe! He's 23.

Joe was injured in Vietnam when he was 21. He had three major brain operations. The doctors say he has the mentality of a six-month-old baby. He can't understand or communicate, although a radio plays all day to keep him quiet. He's classified as a "vegetable," thus put away in a rest home, without therapy, because (I'm told) it's cheaper.

Yet I'm sure — and so is the orderly who works with him — that Joe could eventually learn some kind of communication. With enough loving care, the part of his brain left might be trained to take over — just as a six-month-old child gradually develops. He already cries when he's hungry or uncomfortable.

I'm writing this because I'm sure there are other Joes who have given their very lives for their country but because they're classified as "hopeless' they're farmed out in minimum-care homes to die. If the government can spend millions on arms to kill people, it shouldn't desert even one poor "Joe" if there's a tiny chance that therapy might help to bring him back. Doesn't he deserve maximum care and intensive treatment in the best veterans' hospital? He didn't ask to have half his brain shot away!

I know there isn't anything you can do personally, Helen and Sue, but maybe if you print my letter someone in high command will read it and a few Joes may be remembered again. — LARI

DEAR LARI:

We'll not only print your letter but send several copies to people in high command. Let's hope someone will hear, and Joe can have another chance. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

You asked for letters on the positive side of family life. May I share with you and your readers the following note enclosed in our anniversary card, along with a pair of Broadway theater tickets:

WHAT ARE "GOOD" PARENTS

Good parents are the ones who spend their extra money on their children, and at the same time tell them not to spend any of their allowances on them.

They are the ones who drive you to places out of the way, acting as though it's no trouble and, at the same time, tell you it's unnecessary to go out of your way for them.

They're the ones who smile at your petty problems, while listening, and try to make you see they're not the end of the world. Sometimes you think they "just don't understand" — but they do.

They are the ones who restrict you from certain activities "for your own good," but little do you realize at the time it is for your own good.

This was written by our daughter when she was 16. I'd like to add my thoughts on — WHAT IS A "GOOD" DAUGHTER?

She's thoughtful and loving to those around her, but doesn't complain if they are inadvertently thoughtless of her.

She adds music and laughter wherever she goes and is a delight to have around, even though many times you wish she'd turn down the stereo or play the piano a bit softer — or lose her radio.

She does favors for her brothers, even though they act like teenage boys — which is more conducive to mayhem than kindness.

After the thrill of getting her driving license has worn off, she'll still offer to hop in the car and drive to the store for items you've forgotten.

She has often accepted our judgment about certain restrictions, without an argument, and later been able to say, "You were right."

The list is endless, but mainly she thinks of us as people, not merely parents. And we are very — LUCKY

LUCKY:

I think everyone is lucky in your family — and it isn't just "luck!" Congratulations! — SUE

DEAR READERS:

Sudden thought: Why don't all you people who appreciate your family members but haven't said so in a long time, write little notes like the above and pin them on the Christmas tree? They might be the nicest gifts received this year — and so inexpensive! — HELEN

SEW SIMPLE

Patch Pockets The Easy Way

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there a simple way to make pockets for those sweater knit shirts? I want the patch pocket look, but I find it so very difficult to get my pockets straight and even.

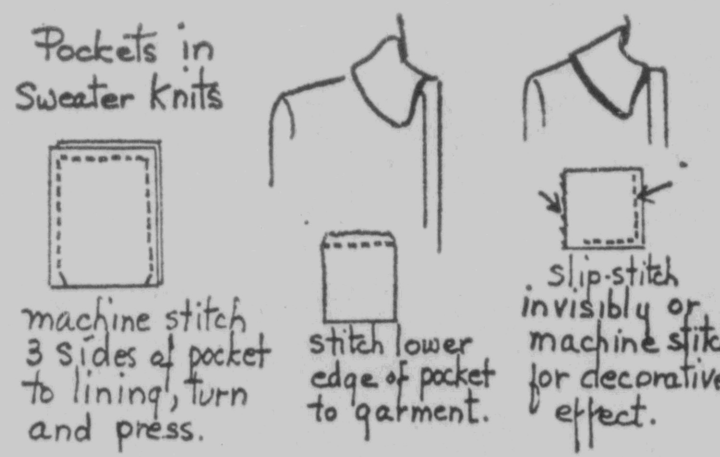
MRS. S.D.

DEAR MRS. S.D.,

Try this method. I think you will find it "sew simple" and have good results every time.

Use a lightweight woven underlining and cut it the same size as your pocket. Machine stitch around the two sides and the top. Angle your machine stitching in slightly at the end that isn't stitched, making the lower end slightly narrower.

Grade seams, clip excess from corners and turn the pocket right side out. Press edges flat. Place pocket right side down with lower seam allowance over the line for your finished pocket. Machine stitch across lower end only on the seam allowance. Next, flip the pocket up, pin and slip stitch permanently to your sweater. If you prefer machine stitching instead of hand stitching, this can also be done. This is a real time saver, and it works easily and well.



Pockets in Sweater Knits
machine stitch 3 sides of pocket to lining, turn and press.
stitch lower edge of pocket to garment.
slip-stitch invisibly or machine stitch for decorative effect.

MRS. EDGAR Etzold, McPherson, Kan., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"Invariably, pattern instructions suggest stitching the darts as the first step in constructing a dress or blouse. Since this is the one area where an adjustment is often necessary but cannot be determined until the garment is in the final stage of completion, I have learned that by basting the darts instead of sewing them, it is much simpler to change. If no adjustment is needed, it is also very simple to complete the final stitching from the basting stitch as a final step."

Another tip on knits to add to the columns I hope you have saved so you can breeze through your next knit project.

If your knit is the squiggly kind that just squirms around when you try to stitch darts and the zipper, your worries are over. Just purchase a roll of hair setting tape (a thin paper, the kind you paste right over pin curls) and apply it right next to your machine stitching line. This will stabilize the knit, your sewing machine will ride over the paper and avoid pushing the knit out of shape.

If you understand this correctly, you will not stitch through this paper, but instead, right next to it. It is equally simple to remove when the stitching is completed. It can actually be used more than once effectively.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am a working woman with a limited clothing allowance. I find several good wool dresses in my closet, all with short sleeves. This doesn't seem to be the look for this year. Is there any way I can update these dresses and still get some wear out of them?

CLARE L.

DEAR CLARE,

Yes, with very little effort, you can change your simple wool dresses to this year's styles. I would suggest you change them to the jumper look. This requires removing the sleeves, adding a finished fold-over braid to the armholes, or a bias facing.

There are so many attractive trims available today with the wool look. Try to add some of these to the neckline, belt or hemline. This will give a more casual look to your jumpers and make them look more professional. Now you can wear them with the matte jersey body shirts, or any kind blouse you prefer. Nothing could be newer and more fun to make.

Susan Davis Will Wed John Youino

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Davis of San Anselmo have announced the engagement of their daughter, Susan Gwen Davis, to John Michael Youino of San Rafael.

Susan is the sister of Robert, Scott and Kevin Davis of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Arthur R. Davis of Danville and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Offen of Tonopah, Nev.

She is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and San Francisco School of Fashion Design.

John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Youino of San Rafael. He is the brother of Mrs. Larry Amos, Mrs. Daniel Burns and Joan and Donna Youino. Mrs. Ann Youino of San Pablo is his grandmother.

John was graduated from San Rafael High School and is employed by Annex Motors in San Rafael.

The couple have set a June 9 wedding date next year.

Agnew Lights Nation's Yule Tree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, braving a cold drizzle and ignoring a small group of antiwar activists, officially lit the 70-foot national Christmas tree Friday.

Before throwing the switch to light the Englemann spruce, Agnew said "the long journey toward worldwide peace is now nearer to its goal because America has led the way and has not turned its back from her responsibility in the world community."

The annual tree-lighting ceremony, which opens a 10-day "Pageant of Peace," was held on the ellipse, a park just south of the White House. President Nixon earlier held a reception in the White House for about 1,000 supporters.

Agnew told the crowd watching the ceremonies that U.S. prisoners of war in Southeast Asia were in the prayers of all Americans.

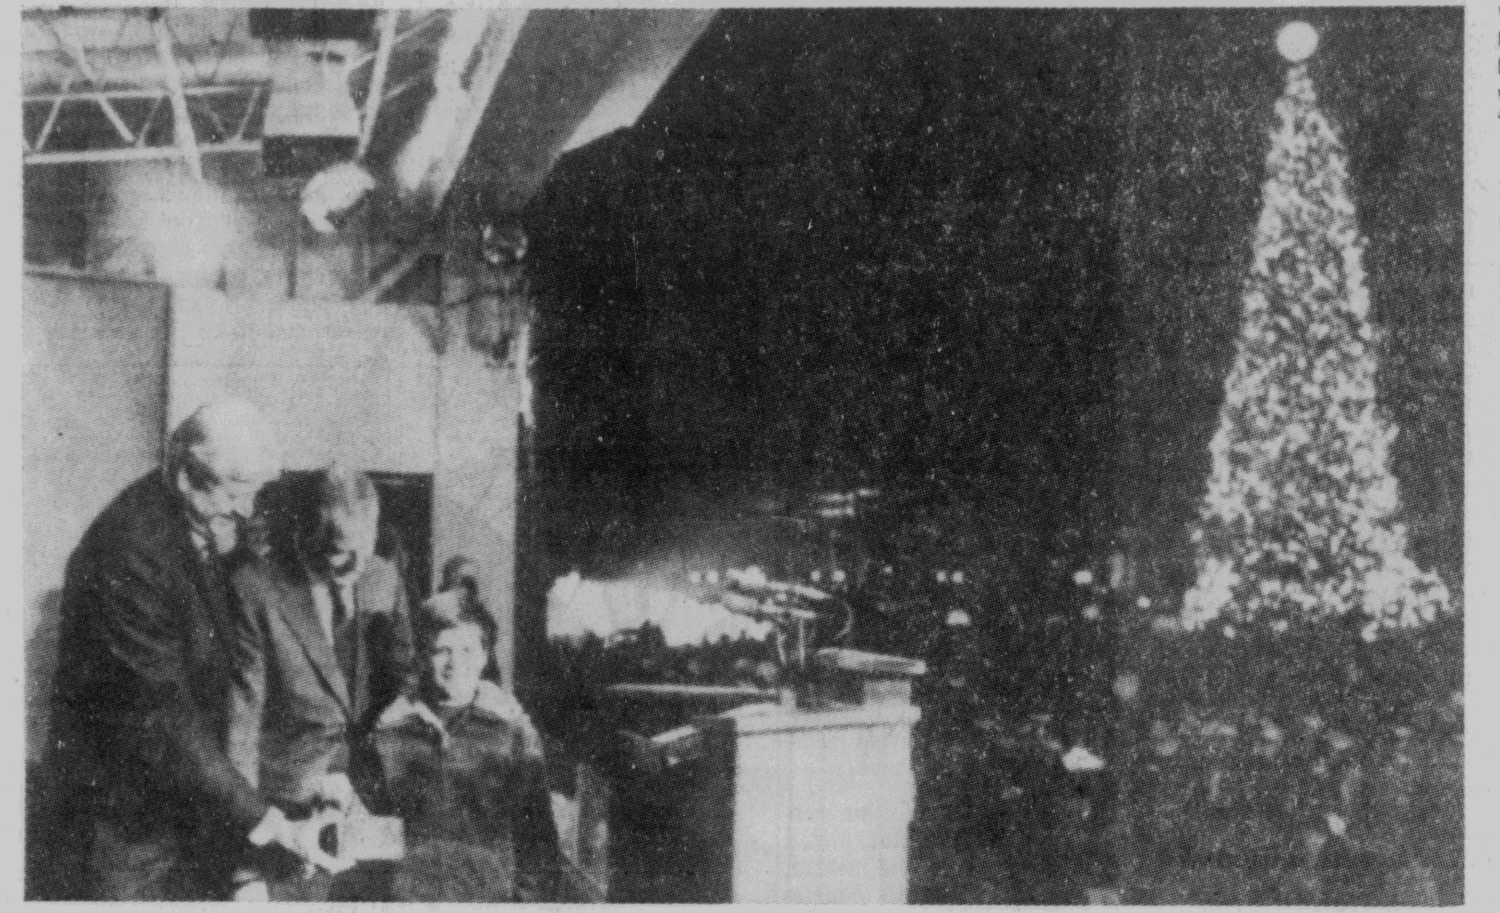
"As we pray for these men and the other Americans who have suffered the adversities of war," he said, "we can be grateful that because of their sacrifices and American's steadfastness, the promise of peace burns brighter this Christmas than during any we have known in recent years."

As Agnew was speaking, antiwar protesters circulated petitions calling on Nixon to sign the nine-point peace agreement with North Vietnam and sang "peace" carols.

At the White House reception, Nixon, with his wife Pat and daughter Julie Eisenhower, greeted 500 couples who supported his re-election. "I want to say thank you," Nixon told guest after guest as he stood in a receiving line.

The gathering culminated a series of receptions given by the Nixon's this week in honor of what the White House calls their "new majority" political supporters.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the reception guests came "from all walks of life."



NATIONAL TREE — Vice President Spiro Agnew and Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton (left) looked on last night as Eric Watt, 10, of Camp Springs, Md., threw the switch to light the national Christmas tree in ceremonies on the ellipse behind the White House. The tree is a 70-foot, 100-year-old Engelmann spruce and is a gift from the people of Wyoming.

Astronauts Ready For Trip Home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — America — the spaceship and the nation — bids farewell today to the moon and an era.

Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt were set to fire the command ship's main rocket engine at 6:31 p.m. EST to break the orbital grasp of lunar gravity for the last time and begin the 68-hour trip home.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga was standing by in the South Pacific to retrieve the last men of Apollo and their priceless 249-pound treasure of moon specimens Tuesday afternoon.

During their last few swings around the moon, the spaceborne observers spotted a mysterious patch of rusty-hued craters near the southwestern rim of the Sea of Serenity. This is west of the Taurus-Littrow Valley where Cernan and Schmitt lived for three days.

"Man, we're starting to see an orange moon now," Cernan shouted as the spacecraft America swept 75 miles above the moon's front face.

As it did, instruments in the spacecraft searched for hot spots on the lunar surface which might indicate volcanic activity or rich deposits of radioactive material. They measured the extremely thin lunar atmosphere and probed with radar waves one mile into the moon to map subsurface structure and detect underground water or mineral deposits if they exist.

Scientists and engineers have been unanimous so far in their praise of the three astronauts and their space machinery.

Flight Director Neil Hutchinson said Friday that Apollo 17 would complete the orbital surveillance today "with an incredible record of accomplishment."

"I suspect we've come out with, by and large, just about 100 per cent on everything," he said.

Still ahead is a spacewalk Evans will perform 200,000 miles above Earth Sunday to retrieve a mile and a half of film from the two mapping cameras.

Evans orbited the moon alone in relative obscurity while Cernan and Schmitt were exploring the surface Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two of eight explosive charges the two explorers left behind on the lunar surface exploded on schedule late Friday and the television camera the astronauts used showed one blast as a sharp white flash.

The detonations sent vibrations ringing through the upper lunar crust to be recorded by seismometers for study by geophysicists. The seismic signals will tell something about subsurface makeup.

The reports from orbit of orange-stained craters tied in with the discovery Wednesday of orange soil on the rim of a small, deep crater at the Apollo 17 landing site. Scientists believe that crater was an extinct volcanic vent and the orange material was minerals oxidized by the escape of water vapor associated with the volcano.

Schmitt said the orange depressions in the Sea of Serenity looked as if meteoroids had punched through the gray lunar soil and excavated orange and red-brown material from below. In addition, he said, there was a rimless depression with colored debris streaming down its walls.

"My goodness, there's another crater we'll have to look at," said Schmitt, the first professional geologist to go to the moon.

Cernan assured fascinated geologists back at the mission control center in Houston that they weren't seeing things.

"Just so you're fully aware we're not ... getting color blind up here, this last one Jack was talking about was not even subtle. It had that orange-brown hue to it without any question at all."

The mission closed America's lunar exploration program for many years. Dr. William R. Muehlberger, an Apollo geologist, said he was glad it was coming to an end so he would have some time to analyze the immense amount of data returned by six lunar landings.

"We have an invaluable chance over the next 10 years to study and analyze this incredible wealth of data and find out what we really know about the moon and find out what we want to ask when we start sending rockets and men there again," he said.

Tree Pruner Is Awarded $2 Million In Accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Brooklyn tree pruner paralyzed from the waist down when a high voltage cable fell on him was awarded $2,175,000 Friday.

Edward Miner, 27, is now a paraplegic confined to a wheelchair as a result of the injuries he suffered Aug. 15, 1969, while working for the Floral Park Landscaping Co. of Floral Park, N.Y. The wire was part of the Long Island Lighting Co. (LILCo.) system.

Miner's attorney, Jacob Fuchsberg, said the lighting company was negligent for failing to insulate its high voltage lines.

"The reason utilities do not insulate their lines is because they put money above public safety," Fuchsberg said.

LILCo. contended that all high voltage lines throughout the country are uninsulated and that its lines conform to industry standards.

It awarded Miner $2 million for his injuries and $175,000 to his wife, Linda, 22, for the loss of her husband's services. The Miners have two children, ages 4 and 5.

In a cross complaint, the jury decided Miner's employer was 5 per cent negligent for not asking the utility to shut off the current in the area where he was working. The landscape company was ordered to pay about $108,000.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

TODAY:

2:15 a.m., Fairfax — Blaze at Russell Greenfield residence gutted bedroom; caused by waterbed heater left on when waterbed drained; no estimate of damage.

7:25 a.m., Forest Knolls — Fire in attic at Dan Giddings home, 60 Rasaca Avenue; caused by faulty wiring; $100 damage to attic.

8:51 a.m., Alto — Report of smoke at Betty L. Presley residence, 126 Lomita Drive; found to be smoking fan belt in furnace.

the board to revamp the county hearing procedure so minor items, such as land division and use permit appeals, are not heard by both the planning commission and board of supervisors.

"There are just too many minor items coming up on the agendas," he said, adding it eats up staff time to have employees waiting for an item to be heard.

"Have some hearings stop at the planning commission level or bypass the commission and come directly to the board. That would save one hearing at least," he said.

Both von Gundell and Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, proposed more use of part-time employees to replace permanent employees.

Von Gundell said part-time employees would be both less expensive (no fringe benefits) and more efficient since they wouldn't be in the 8-to-5 workday routine. He added that some of his regular employees would probably prefer working part-time.

Others addressing the board included County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel, who said state law dictated the operation of his office; Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez and County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini, who said tax returns this year will produce $100,000 over the revenue estimates in their budgets; Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, who said his department was already in the process of "streamlining."

Also, Police-Community Relations Director Bella Aaron, who called for more departmental autonomy, and Public Defender Harold J. Truett, who urged careful study of law enforcement needs.

Supervisors Louis H. Baar and Michael Wornum were absent from yesterday's meeting.

A special session of the Marin Transit District board, made up of supervisors and two city councilmen, was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum.

The meeting, slated to consider a special bus contract with Marin Transit Systems of Marin City, will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. during the board of supervisors' meeting.

OBITUARIES

ALMA SCHAFER

Alma M. Schafer of San Rafael, who had lived in Marin since 1904, died yesterday after collapsing at her home at 205 Greenfield Avenue.

Miss Schafer, 83, was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. She had a history of heart disease, according to Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Miss Schafer was the last survivor of her family. Her father, Philip, and one of her brothers, Philip Jr., worked for Sloan's furniture store in San Francisco, making furniture for a total of about 75 years.

Two sisters and another brother, none of whom ever married, preceded her in death.

Miss Schafer worked as secretary for a plumbing firm in San Francisco before retiring many years ago.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael.

Funeral will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

DR. HAMREN

Memorial service for Dr. John M. Hamren, 48, of Lucas Valley, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Treasure Island Naval Station chapel.

Dr. Hamren died Thursday when his car crashed into a tree near Brentwood in Contra Costa County and caught fire.

He was a psychiatrist who practiced in Vallejo.

Dr. Hamren was born in New Jersey and had lived in California 23 years. The family home is at 13 Zephyr Court.

He was a commander in the Naval Reserve and was a member of the American Psychiatric Association and the Vallejo Medical Society. He also had belonged to Alpha Omega Alpha.

He is survived by his wife, Joan; two sons, Jonathan M. and Jeffrey S. Hamren, and his sister, Jill Willey of Palo Alto. He was the son of Friendly S. Lucas, also of Palo Alto.

The family prefers memorial contributions to Sunny Hills in San Anselmo.

BLANCA MEJIA

Blanca Luz Mejia, 69, of 301 San Sebastian Way, Novato, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She was born and reared in Guatemala, coming to the U.S. 22 years ago and working as a milliner in San Francisco until she retired four years ago. She had lived in Novato since last April.

Survivors are a daughter, Thelma Olgiati of Novato; two brothers, Jose M. Mejia and Humberto Mejia; two sisters, Carmen Mejia and Trinidad Guerra, all of Guatemala, and a grandchild.

Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato. Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Novato. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

CHARLES GERBIC

Private Mass of the Resurrection has been held at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax for Charles C. Gerbic of San Anselmo, who was killed Nov. 28 in a jetliner crash in Moscow.

Gerbic, 40, was manager of the engineering development section of Grove Valve and Regulator Co., an Emeryville-based firm. He was on his way from Russia to Japan on business.

Gerbic was born in San Francisco but lived most of his life in Marin. He was a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the University of Nevada.

He was a member of the Marin Chapter of Professional Engineers, American Chemical Society, American Welding Society and the California Metal Trades Association.

Gerbic is survived by his wife, Carole Miron Gerbic of the family home at 15 Caletta Avenue; three children, Charles, David and Jeffrey Gerbic, also of the family home; his grandmother, Mrs. Marie Hansen of San Francisco; a brother, Leo Gerbic, and two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Slivka and Mrs. Beryl Mauk.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

E. E. ANDERSON

Ernest Eugene Anderson, retired welder who lived in Woodacre, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was 70.

Anderson was born in Kansas and had lived in California since 1942. He and his family had lived at 110 Redwood Drive for 22 years.

Anderson had his own welding business in San Rafael until he retired about four years ago.

He was a member of the Eagles lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Nellie M. Anderson; three sons, Donald E. and Andrew Gary Anderson, both of Woodacre, and Roger G. Anderson of San Rafael, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

The family prefers contributions to charity.

ROBERT BARNETT ROTHSCHILD JR.

Funeral for Robert Barnett Rothschild Jr., whose construction firm built the $5.5 million administration wing of the Marin Civic Center, was held yesterday in Palo Alto.

Rothschild, 65, of Atherton, died Thursday in a Palo Alto hospital after a short illness. He was head of Rothschild-Raffin Inc., general contractors.

He was born in Berkeley and graduated from San Francisco's Lick-Wilmerding School, and the University of California at Berkeley. In 1944 Rothschild and Edward Haas formed the firm of Haas and Rothschild. In 1951 the firm of Rothschild-Raffin Inc. was formed.

Rothschild is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; two sons, Peter Alan Rothschild of San Francisco and Robert B. Rothschil III of Menlo Park; a brother, August Rothschild of San Francisco, and three grandchildren.

✓REDUCED $1000—3 BDRM., 2 BATH—$43,950

Reduced $1000 for quick sale to coincide with appraiser's evaluation of $43,950, and that's good motivation to invite your offers for this immaculately kept home. Heavy shag carpeting throughout plus 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, breakfast room, and modern electric kitchen. Plenty of room for a large swimming pool in the fenced backyard. Submit offer and move in immediately in time to enjoy the Christmas holidays here. EVES: HENRY HICKS — 897-2210.

★NEW LISTING—3 BDRM., 2 BATH—$44,500

It's a new home with step-down family & dining room, new carpet and drapes, modern electric kitchen, completely insulated, brick patio, oak trees, and a pool site. And you'll enjoy the interior of this 3 bedroom home featuring family room, dining room, breakfast room, 2 baths, fireplace. Priced below replacement value. EVES: JOHN MARTINS — 479-1079.

✓✓11 ROOMS—6 BDRMS., 3 BATHS—$73,500

And we are certain that it can not be duplicated today for less than the listed price; however the contractor-owner is a reasonable man and will consider all offers — even the ridiculous ones! Rather than trying to find the appropriate superlatives to describe this custom built home, why not pick up the phone and call one of our competent sales staff members and come take a look? You'll do yourself and your family a favor. EVES: HENRY HICKS — 897-2210.

CHRISTMAS COMES TO COMMUTERLAND

Six-year-old David Giannini, a first grade student at San Rafael's Coleman School, intently pours a lot of concentration into his work decorating the Sausalito ferry for Christmas. He and his classmates worked for months to create decorations for the ferry, and spent several hours yesterday putting them up as the vessel went about its way between Sausalito and San Francisco. The decorations will be up through the holidays. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Repairmen Busy On BART Cars

OAKLAND (UPI) — The $1 billion San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit system (BART) is having so many problems that it's keeping the repairmen busy.

BART General Manager B. R. Stokes said Friday that of the more than 90 sleek, aluminum cars delivered for passenger service only a third have been put into use.

Stokes said he had told Rohr Industries Inc., Chula Vista, the car manufacturers, of the "litany" of defects that included problems with air conditioning, disc brakes, sticky doors, erratic lights, short circuits and other equipment failures.

The system's repair shops were working as fast as possible to keep cars in repair for use on the side of the bay where BART has already begun operations.

Bikers Encounter Pleasant People

By LANCE CARDEN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The same hospitality that once greeted the man on horseback now awaits the cross-country bicyclist.

Like the traditional man in the saddle, he is constantly at the mercy of the elements, and his progress is always affected by the terrain he covers. Although relatively self-sufficient, he also is sometimes dependent on assistance from the farmers, shopkeepers, and housewives he meets along the road.

For instance, on our first night out among the scrubby sagebrush of the eastern Oregon desert there was a sudden thunderstorm. Taken by surprise, with tents in our saddlebags, my partner and I packed up and hit the road.

We were soaked to the skin by the time we reached shelter (a gas station a few miles away), and Tim had nothing dry to wear.

However, we were not only welcomed into the dilapidated station, but when the storm let up, Tim rode off in a dry, if ill-fitting pair of jeans.

"He has more jeans than he knows what to do with," said the wife of the station owner as she gave Tim the jeans, and her husband — shy and embarrassed — pretended not to notice.

The bicyclist can travel about twice as far in a day as a man on a horse. Some racers average well over 100 miles. The average bicyclist, however, is capable of only about 50 miles daily. The man on horseback, by comparison, can expect to average about 25 miles.

The cyclist's cuisine is frequently limited by the size of his saddlebags, which are strapped onto a special carrier above the rear wheel of the bike.

He does not have to graze or feed his mount, but the bike must be carefully watched — as bicycle thieves now are more plentiful than horse thieves.

In Idaho, we asked an old man sitting outside a small house if we could camp on his land. He said he thought we could, and showed us a suitable place. No sooner had we set up camp, however, than the old man was back.

"I've run into some opposition," he said. "The man living in the trailer back there" (pointing to a trailer near the house) "thinks you're going to bother his dogs and keep us up all night."

At that moment a chunky bull of a man appeared at the trailer door and began to walk toward us slowly and deliberately.

"I'll tell ya what," he said, "go on round the bend in the road till ya get to where you see a footbridge across the creek to the right. The land there don't belong to nobody."

Following his advice, we bedded down across the stream from the road. We were just about to turn in when a red pickup stopped beside the footbridge and four figures emerged: a man, two youngish women, and a child. A powerful voice boomed across the stream.

"You all bedded down OK?"

"It's that big guy," whispered Tim.

"The girls fixed ya some sandwiches . . . thought maybe ya missed your supper."

The child, a boy, crossed the bridge with a large shopping bag hugged to his chest.

"Thank you very much," said Tim. "We've had some dinner already . . . Maybe you'd like to share this?"

"There's some milk and ice water there for you in the morning," came the reply, ignoring Tim's invitation to cross the bridge. "It's real cow's milk."

The boy handed me the heavy bag. I thanked him and watched him step cautiously back across the bridge.

"We'll return these jars in the morning," I said.

"Don't bother. Keep on down this dirt road two miles and you'll be back on the highway."

Silence stretched itself across the stream. The two women and boy started walking toward the truck, but the man stood his ground — as though unsure what to say to a pair of tramps on bicycles.

Finally, returning to the pickup, where the boy sat perched on someone's lap, he turned around and shouted back.

"Good luck!"

Do you harbor a secret desire to spend a few weeks in the saddle? Try the feel of a 10-speed with 40 pounds of baggage behind you and the freedom of the highway ahead. You can expect a warm response.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

A Guilty Person Is Own Hangman

It is said that every guilty person is his own hangman. Often the guilty person will do some odd, illogical thing and end up convicting himself.

The police arrested Ralph and Perry three months after Diana, a narcotics addict, was murdered. The evidence against both was weak and circumstantial. In fact, the police considered dropping the charges a few days after their arrest because the evidence was so weak.

But before they could be turned loose, the two tried to escape from jail. They were captured just moments before a clean getaway. At the trial of the two defendants, the jury heard about their escape attempt. Defense attorneys objected, but the jury was allowed to hear of the escape. Both were convicted largely because of the evidence of the abortive escape attempt.

The defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment and they appealed. Their attorneys said it was an error to bring in the evidence of the escape. The defendants lost again.

"Evidence of flight is an inference of consciousness of guilt, and constitutes an implied admission." Flight tends to connect the accused with the commission of the offense. If the defendant knows he is suspected of commiting a crime, and he flees, he brings guilt upon himself.

This is true too where the accused person tries to conceal his identity or to hide. This is also legal evidence pointing to a consciousness of guilt.

In another case Fred Freebee was arrested and questioned about a crime. Fred talked freely but denied he knew anything about the crime. His alibi: he was out of town. He gave details as to his whereabouts and even gave a hotel registration card.

The police checked out the alibi and it turned out to be false. The evidence was produced in court and he was convicted. The false alibi was motivated by fear of detection. It is circumstantial evidence of guilt.

The same happens when the accused tries to "buy" a witness or juror, or attempts to suppress evidence against him. Sending a letter to the complaining witness to "take it easy" or to send him a threat not to testify is circumstantail evidence of guilt.

Jaycees Told To Change Name

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce must change its name.

The San Francisco group has pulled out of both the national and state chambers.

U.S. District Judge Charles B. Renfrew issued a permanent order Friday declaring that the San Francisco group was infringing on the national group's trademark by continued use of the name.

End Of Program Brings Study Time

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — A space agency geologist says the end of the Apollo program will give scientists time to study the wealth of data collected in its six lunar landings and to develop questions they need answered the next time man goes to the moon.

Dr. William R. Muehlberger said Friday scientists would like more moon flights. But since there will be no more for many years, he said, scientists should take advantage of the hiatus to study the material they already have.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Dec. 16, the 351st day of 1972 with 15 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

English playwright and factor, Noel Coward, was born Dec. 16, 1899.

On this day in history:

In 1773, American patriots disguised as Indians boarded a British ship in Boston Harbor and hurled the contents of 342 chests of tea into the water. The demonstration, protesting the British tax on tea, is inscribed in history as "The Boston Tea Party."

In 1916, Gregory Rasputin, called the "Mad Monk" of Russia, was lured to a palace in Petrogad and murdered by poisoning. He was said to have wielded powerful and strange influence over the Russian Czar and Czarina — Nicholas and Alexandra.

In 1944, the "Battle of the Bulge" erupted as German forces launched a great counter-offensive in the Ardennes Forest in Belgium as World War II drew toward a close.

In 1960, two airliners collided over New York Harbor, crashed to the earth, and killed 131 persons.

A thought for the day: Irish novelist George Moore said, "The wrong way always seems the more reasonable."

Paternity Suit Payment Ruled

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ordered a Bolinas attorney to pay $125 a month toward the support of the 2-year-old daughter of a Marin public defender.

In his order, Judge Joseph G. Wilson said attorney Paul D. Kayfetz accepted the child as his and ruled the young girl a legitimate child.

Deputy Pubic Defender Gaile O'Connor had filed suit earlier this week asking for the order on behalf of her daughter, Sharon.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Residents of Backwoods Town Suffer From Urban Pressures

In the September issue of Medical Opinion, Skip Rozin tells of changes that have occurred among the patients of Dr. Lundy Adams. Jeremiah, Ky., is hillbilly country with its feuds, moonshine whisky, and mining interests. Dr. Adams is 59 and has lived there all his life, except while attending college and medical school. In his opinion, the mountain people have changed during the past 25 years and are now plagued with the same pressures as urbanites in Chicago, New York, or Los Angeles.

BEFORE 1932, the mountain people were independent, self-reliant and poor, but wouldn't take a penny from anyone — under any circumstances. All this changed when the government began to interfere with their lives.

It started with work programs on the proverty gangs. The people got a few dollars and were issued free commodities. This led to "relief" as we now know it. When a man was laid off, he no longer looked for another job, but left his wife and children so they could get on welfare. This tended to disrupt family life.

THE CHILDREN were allowed to do as they wished and the parents didn't seem to care. As permissiveness increased, so did behavior problems in schools. Drinking and drug abuse were followed by promiscuity, vandalism, and murder. Malnutrition was the result of improper supervision of diets.

According to Dr. Adams, as soon as life was made easier, complaints of aniety, lack of sleep, and severe depression became more common. Appetites began to suffer and more and more children became anemic. "Bills are not paid but every house has a new Ford and color TV . . . none of which is paid for."

SEVENTY FIVE out of every 100 patients need some kind of psychiatric care. Suicides are up. Dr. Adams is seeing more people with peptic ulcers and other gastrointestinal complaints. "Just like Chicago and New York."

Jeremiah has not changed much aside from the price paid for a century of coal mining — the stripped off mountains, caved in hills, and occasional muddy stream. Its economy is gone, even though many of the hills are green and quiet and full of game.

PARASITE INFECTION

N.O. writes: What is the best treatment fo a parasitical infection?

REPLY

There are many different parasites that plague man and the treatment must be tailored to "fit the worm." Alcopara and Mintezol are used for hookworms, whereas piperazine citrate may be prescribed for large roundworms. Pinworms respond to pyrvinium pamoate or the piperazine salts. Quinacrine hydrochloride is used to eliminate tapeworms.

DEPRESSION CAUSE

C. N. writes: Does hardening of the arteries cause mental depression?

REPLY

Yes, but psychological and emotional reasons are a thousand times more likely possibilities.

BURN TREATMENT

Mrs. D. S. writes: If a woman burns her hands severely at the stove, what is the best first aid measure before the doctor arrives?

REPLY

Put the hands in cold or ice water.

Texas Boosts Limit On Oil Production

By PHILIP W. McKINSEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Without fanfare, the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates production from that state's oil wells, has moved its limit on how much oil can be pumped out of the ground up to 100 per cent of an oil field's maximum efficient production.

Demand for petroleum products has finally overwhelmed any need for the commission to restrict production through its pro-rationing programs. Notes a recent Dallas Federal Reserve Bank study: "Without a drastic change in price conditions or import policies, there is little likelihood that the commission will again be called on to limit the output from fields in the state because of insufficient markets."

It was the end of an era of sorts, and it renders moot an argument among economists whether the pro-rationing system has boosted oil prices over the years. The system received prominent mention on the list of structural problems seen contributing to inflation that was compiled by the Council of Economic Advisers early in the Nixon administration.

Dr. Hendrik Houthakker, then a member of the CEA, infuriated a number of oil-state congressmen and senators with his caustic remarks about the system and its inflationary consequences.

The commission had held production below capacity for more than a quarter of a century, though not just as a prop to prices. Slower rates of production often can result in more oil being recovered from a field, which in turn means more tax revenues for the state.

"In the early days of the Texas fields, conservation was difficult," the bank study recalls. "In the absence of production controls, producers pumped oil as fast as they could, regardless of the future of the field. Producers owning only part of a field could not be kept from draining off their neighbors' reserves. As a result, even though prices were low, the drive was to deliver oil before the price — or the reservoir — fell even farther."

Oil was produced in those days even though there were no buyers on occasion. "In the heat of cutthroat competition in early Texas fields, oil was withdrawn at damaging rates — often faster than companies could transport, refine, or even store the oil," it continues. "Earthen dams were often used to hold crude, wasting oil, polluting water, and creating fire hazards."

When crude prices fell to 10 cents a barrel during the depression years, martial law had to be declared to keep peace among various producers looking for buyers. It led directly to the pro-rationing scheme.

Producers still will not be free to pump out the oil at just any rate. The commission sets the barrels-per-day, called maximum efficient production, for each established field, which is the limit at which wells can be produced without damaging the field and lowering the ultimate total recovery of oil. The state is interested in this, in part, because its various taxes on oil production are tied to the amount of oil produced.

The state wants slower production for higher total oil recovery and thus a higher total tax take. This is an issue in the pending development of Alaska's North Slope oil field and probably will lead to construction of a gas pipeline from the North Slope through Canada to tha lower 4: states.

To insure maximum recovery of oil, Alaska prohibits the flaring, or open burning, of gas that comes out along with the oil. The producers must pump it back into the ground to maintain pressure in the oil reservoir, which helps push the oil out of the ground, or find a market for it.

Texas also restricts the flaring of natural gas, which may be more of a problem for producers there now whose fields are not tied to a pipeline network. When production levels were lower, the bank says, "pro-rationing took care of most problems of conserving natural gas."

The Texas situation and the 100 per cent allowable serve to underline the growing shortage of oil reserves within the United States relative to ever rising demand.

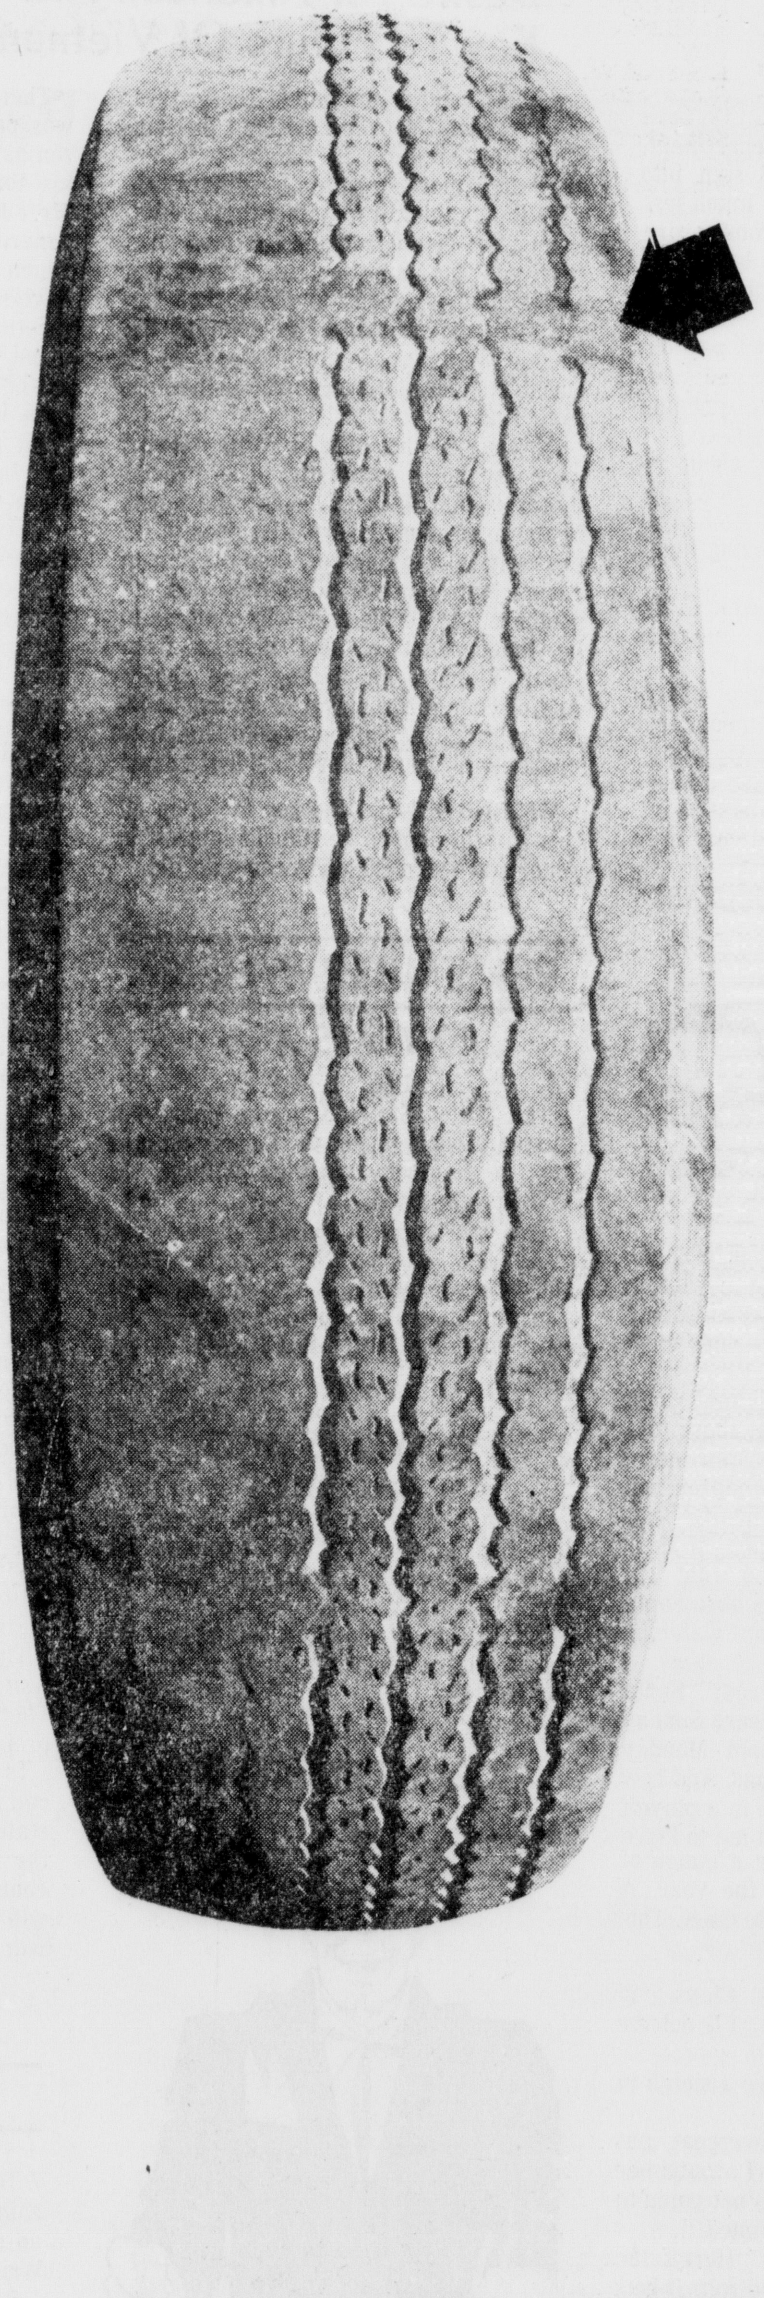
TWO SECONDS TO LIVE, or SLICK TIRES ON WET ROADS



When you're driving on slick tires on a wet road you're in a menacingly dangerous condition that greatly reduces the control you have of your car.

When slick tires meet road water they hydroplane, the same way a waterski scoots across the water's surface. When you attempt to change lanes or make a turn and these conditions prevail, you may feel that sickening moment when you are not in control and your car is taking you to your death.

Your tires don't have to be baby-skin smooth, either. The arrow on the tire to the left shows the dangerous, tread-wear bar that might be the last warning you get that your tires should be replaced.

Reduce the danger of driving on wet roads by having enough tread on your tires to grip a wet road and by traveling at reduced speeds. Drive easily, don't make any sharp turns or abrupt stops, or accelerate too rapidly. Follow these tips and you will greatly increase your control, when you need it most.

California Vehicle Code: Section 34500 -

(b) No person shall use on a highway a pneumatic tire when the tire is so worn that less than one thirty-second (1/32) of an inch tread depth remains in any two adjacent grooves at any location on the tire.

CHRISTMAS COMES TO COMMUTERLAND

Six-year-old David Giannini, a first grade student at San Rafael's Coleman School, intently pours a lot of concentration into his work decorating the Sausalito ferry for Christmas. He and his classmates worked for months to create decorations for the ferry, and spent several hours yesterday putting them up as the vessel went about its way between Sausalito and San Francisco. The decorations will be up through the holidays. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Repairmen Busy On BART Cars

OAKLAND (UPI) — The $1 billion San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit system (BART) is having so many problems that it's keeping the repairmen busy.

BART General Manager B. R. Stokes said Friday that of the more than 90 sleek, aluminum cars delivered for passenger service only a third have been put into use.

Stokes said he had told Rohr Industries Inc., Chula Vista, the car manufacturers, of the "litany" of defects that included problems with air conditioning, disc brakes, sticky doors, erratic lights, short circuits and other equipment failures.

The system's repair shops were working as fast as possible to keep cars in repair for use on the side of the bay where BART has already begun operations.

The same hospitality that once greeted the man on horseback now awaits the cross-country bicyclist.

Like the traditional man in the saddle, he is constantly at the mercy of the elements, and his progress is always affected by the terrain he covers. Although relatively self-sufficient, he also is sometimes dependent on assistance from the farmers, shopkeepers, and housewives he meets along the road.

For instance, on our first night out among the scrubby sagebrush of the eastern Oregon desert there was a sudden thunderstorm. Taken by surprise, with tents in our saddlebags, my partner and I packed up and hit the road.

We were soaked to the skin by the time we reached shelter (a gas station a few miles away), and Tim had nothing dry to wear.

However, we were not only welcomed into the dilapidated station, but when the storm let up, Tim rode off in a dry, if ill-fitting pair of jeans.

"He has more jeans than he knows what to do with," said the wife of the station owner as she gave Tim the jeans, and her husband — shy and embarrassed — pretended not to notice.

The bicyclist can travel about twice as far in a day as a man on a horse. Some racers average well over 100 miles. The average bicyclist, however, is capable of only about 50 miles daily. The man on horseback, by comparison, can expect to average about 25 miles.

The cyclist's cuisine is frequently limited by the size of his saddlebags, which are strapped onto a special carrier above the rear wheel of the bike.

He does not have to graze or feed his mount, but the bike must be carefully watched — as bicycle thieves now are more plentiful than horse thieves.

In Idaho, we asked an old man sitting outside a small house if we could camp on his land. He said he thought we could, and showed us a suitable place. No sooner had we set up camp, however, than the old man was back.

"I've run into some opposition," he said. "The man living in the trailer back there" (pointing to a trailer near the house) "thinks you're going to bother his dogs and keep us up all night."

At that moment a chunky bull of a man appeared at the trailer door and began to walk toward us slowly and deliberately.

"I'll tell ya what," he said, "go on round the bend in the road till ya get to where you see a footbridge across the creek to the right. The land there don't belong to nobody."

Following his advice, we bedded down across the stream from the road. We were just about to turn in when a red pickup stopped beside the footbridge and four figures emerged: a man, two youngish women, and a child. A powerful voice boomed across the stream.

"You all bedded down OK?"

"It's that big guy," whispered Tim.

"The girls fixed ya some sandwiches . . . thought maybe ya missed your supper."

The child, a boy, crossed the bridge with a large shopping bag hugged to his chest.

"Thank you very much," said Tim. "We've had some dinner already . . . Maybe you'd like to share this?"

"There's some milk and ice water there for you in the morning," came the reply, ignoring Tim's invitation to cross the bridge. "It's real cow's milk."

The boy handed me the heavy bag. I thanked him and watched him step cautiously back across the bridge.

"We'll return these jars in the morning," I said.

"Don't bother. Keep on down this dirt road two miles and you'll be back on the highway."

Silence stretched itself across the stream. The two women and boy started walking toward the truck, but the man stood his ground — as though unsure what to say to a pair of tramps on bicycles.

Finally, returning to the pickup, where the boy sat perched on someone's lap, he turned around and shouted back.

"Good luck!"

Do you harbor a secret desire to spend a few weeks in the saddle? Try the feel of a 10-speed with 40 pounds of baggage behind you and the freedom of the highway ahead. You can expect a warm response.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

A Guilty Person Is Own Hangman

It is said that every guilty person is his own hangman. Often the guilty person will do some odd, illogical thing and end up convicting himself.

The police arrested Ralph and Perry three months after Diana, a narcotics addict, was murdered. The evidence against both was weak and circumstantial. In fact, the police considered dropping the charges a few days after their arrest because the evidence was so weak.

But before they could be turned loose, the two tried to escape from jail. They were captured just moments before a clean getaway. At the trial of the two defendants, the jury heard about their escape attempt. Defense attorneys objected, but the jury was allowed to hear of the escape. Both were convicted largely because of the evidence of the abortive escape attempt.

The defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment and they appealed. Their attorneys said it was an error to bring in the evidence of the escape. The defendants lost again.

"Evidence of flight is an inference of consciousness of guilt, and constitutes an implied admission." Flight tends to connect the accused with the commission of the offense. If the defendant knows he is suspected of commiting a crime, and he flees, he brings guilt upon himself.

This is true too where the accused person tries to conceal his identity or to hide. This is also legal evidence pointing to a consciousness of guilt.

In another case Fred Freebee was arrested and questioned about a crime. Fred talked freely but denied he knew anything about the crime. His alibi: he was out of town. He gave details as to his whereabouts and even gave a hotel registration card.

The police checked out the alibi and it turned out to be false. The evidence was produced in court and he was convicted. The false alibi was motivated by fear of detection. It is circumstantial evidence of guilt.

The same happens when the accused tries to "buy" a witness or juror, or attempts to suppress evidence against him. Sending a letter to the complaining witness to "take it easy" or to send him a threat not to testify is circumstantail evidence of guilt.

Jaycees Told To Change Name

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce must change its name.

The San Francisco group has pulled out of both the national and state chambers.

U.S. District Judge Charles B. Renfrew issued a permanent order Friday declaring that the San Francisco group was infringing on the national group's trademark by continued use of the name.

End Of Program Brings Study Time

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — A space agency geologist says the end of the Apollo program will give scientists time to study the wealth of data collected in its six lunar landings and to develop questions they need answered the next time man goes to the moon.

Dr. William R. Muehlberger said Friday scientists would like more moon flights. But since there will be no more for many years, he said, scientists should take advantage of the hiatus to study the material they already have.

Paternity Suit Payment Ruled

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ordered a Bolinas attorney to pay $125 a month toward the support of the 2-year-old daughter of a Marin public defender.

In his order, Judge Joseph G. Wilson said attorney Paul D. Kayfetz accepted the child as his and ruled the young girl a legitimate child.

Deputy Pubic Defender Gaile O'Connor had filed suit earlier this week asking for the order on behalf of her daughter, Sharon.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Residents of Backwoods Town Suffer From Urban Pressures

In the September issue of Medical Opinion, Skip Rozin tells of changes that have occurred among the patients of Dr. Lundy Adams. Jeremiah, Ky., is hillbilly country with its feuds, moonshine whisky, and mining interests. Dr. Adams is 59 and has lived there all his life, except while attending college and medical school. In his opinion, the mountain people have changed during the past 25 years and are now plagued with the same pressures as urbanites in Chicago, New York, or Los Angeles.

BEFORE 1932, the mountain people were independent, self-reliant and poor, but wouldn't take a penny from anyone — under any circumstances. All this changed when the government began to interfere with their lives.

It started with work programs on the proverty gangs. The people got a few dollars and were issued free commodities. This led to "relief" as we now know it. When a man was laid off, he no longer looked for another job, but left his wife and children so they could get on welfare. This tended to disrupt family life.

THE CHILDREN were allowed to do as they wished and the parents didn't seem to care. As permissiveness increased, so did behavior problems in schools. Drinking and drug abuse were followed by promiscuity, vandalism, and murder. Malnutrition was the result of improper supervision of diets.

According to Dr. Adams, as soon as life was made easier, complaints of aniety, lack of sleep, and severe depression became more common. Appetites began to suffer and more and more children became anemic. "Bills are not paid but every house has a new Ford and color TV . . . none of which is paid for."

SEVENTY FIVE out of every 100 patients need some kind of psychiatric care. Suicides are up. Dr. Adams is seeing more people with peptic ulcers and other gastrointestinal complaints. "Just like Chicago and New York."

Jeremiah has not changed much aside from the price paid for a century of coal mining — the stripped off mountains, caved in hills, and occasional muddy stream. Its economy is gone, even though many of the hills are green and quiet and full of game.

There are many different parasites that plague man and the treatment must be tailored to "fit the worm." Texas Boosts Limit On Oil Production

By PHILIP W. McKINSEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Without fanfare, the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates production from that state's oil wells, has moved its limit on how much oil can be pumped out of the ground up to 100 per cent of an oil field's maximum efficient production.

Demand for petroleum products has finally overwhelmed any need for the commission to restrict production through its pro-rationing programs. Notes a recent Dallas Federal Reserve Bank study: "Without a drastic change in price conditions or import policies, there is little likelihood that the commission will again be called on to limit the output from fields in the state because of insufficient markets."

It was the end of an era of sorts, and it renders moot an argument among economists whether the pro-rationing system has boosted oil prices over the years. The system received prominent mention on the list of structural problems seen contributing to inflation that was compiled by the Council of Economic Advisers early in the Nixon administration.

Dr. Hendrik Houthakker, then a member of the CEA, infuriated a number of oil-state congressmen and senators with his caustic remarks about the system and its inflationary consequences.

The commission had held production below capacity for more than a quarter of a century, thoug. not just as a prop to prices. Slower rates of production often can result in more oil being recovered from a field, which in turn means more tax revenues for the state.

"In the early days of the Texas fields, conservation was difficult," the bank study recalls. "In the absence of production controls, producers pumped oil as fast as they could, regardless of the future of the field. Producers owning only part of a field could not be kept from draining off their neighbors' reserves. As a result, even though prices were low, the drive was to deliver oil before the price — or the reservoir — fell even farther."

Oil was produced in those days even though there were no buyers on occasion. "In the heat of cutthroat competition in early Texas fields, oil was withdrawn at damaging rates — often faster than companies could transport, refine, or even store the oil," it continues.

"Earthen dams were often used to hold crude, wasting oil, polluting water, and creating fire hazards."

When crude prices fell to 10 cents a barrel during the depression years, martial law had to be declared to keep peace among various producers looking for pipelines. It led directly to the pro-rationing scheme.

Producers still will not be free to pump out the oil at just any rate. The commission sets the barrels-per-day, called maximum efficient production, for each established field, which is the limit at which wells can be produced without damaging the field and lowering the ultimate total recovery of oil. The state is interested in this, in part, because its various taxes on oil production are tied to the amount of oil produced.

The state wants slower production for higher total oil recovery and thus a higher total tax take. This is an issue in the pending development of Alaska's North Slope oil field and probably will lead to construction of a gas pipeline from the North Slope through Canada to the lower 48 states.

To insure maximum recovery of oil, Alaska prohibits the flaring, or open burning, of gas that comes out along with the oil. The producers must pump it back into the ground to maintain pressure in the oil reservoir, which helps push the oil out of the ground, or find a market for it.

Texas also restricts the flaring of natural gas, which may be more of a problem for producers there now whose fields are not tied to a pipeline network. When production levels were lower, the bank says, "pro-rationing took care of most problems of conserving natural gas."

The Texas situation and the 100 per cent allowable serve to underline the growing shortage of oil reserves within the United States relative to ever rising demand.

MARC Needs Our Help At Christmas

WE SHOULD BE doing more — much more — to help the mentally retarded among us.

For at least 15 years a handful of dedicated volunteers have struggled valiantly under the name of MARC (Marin Aid to Retarded Children) to improve the lot of mentally retarded children and adults in Marin. Many have been helped over the years. But MARC has never had the resources to help ALL who need it.

In this joyous Christmas season more of us should give thought to helping MARC provide help to those who need it.

The National Association for Retarded Children calculates there are about six million retarded men, women and children in the United States. Among our Marin population of 225,000, we must have nearly 7,000 mentally retarded.

MARC is justifiably proud of its programs which help a few dozen. If we all shared MARC workers' anguish at their inability to help the rest of the 7,000, perhaps we would be motivated to provide more support for MARC and others in the field.

THERE WAS A time when mentally retarded children and adults were hidden in shame. Fortunately, our society has begun to mature and now, more and more, we are facing up to the problem.

This change in attitude led to the founding of MARC here in Marin.

Now we know that mental retardation is not hereditary. We know it is caused mostly by illness, accident or birth defect. Recent research indicates that sometimes mental retardation is more apparent than real — the result of educational deprivation and other cultural and environmental factors.

Researchers also have learned about "PKU", a metabolic disorder which causes mental retardation and which can be treated by a special diet to prevent brain damage.

We know that mentally retarded children and adults can be helped, sometimes dramatically, by special education and special training.

The National Association for Retarded Children has concluded that 25 out of every 30 retarded persons can hold productive jobs if they are given proper training and education. Most can become partly or completely self-supporting.

The national association sponsors research programs to prevent retardation. Common measles, the childhood disease, is a villain. Four million children get measles in the U.S. each year. Five hundred die from measles encephalitis (brain inflammation) and measles pneumonia. Some have permanent brain damage, causing retardation in some but not all cases.

Measles vaccination could bring all this to a sudden stop. Every child between the age of nine months and 12 years should be vaccinated against measles. But 12 million American youngsters in this age group have not yet been vaccinated.

We hope Marin parents are more concerned about the welfare of their children; but it is possible that 10,000 or more children in Marin still do not yet have measles protection.

Measles can be stamped out, just as polio was virtually ended a few years ago. The end of measles will bring a sharp reduction in mental retardation.

If you are a parent whose children have not yet been immunized against measles, you cannot give your children a more valuable Christmas present than measles vaccination.

MARC IS, of course, not the only source of help for the retarded in Marin. The county schools office operates special education programs and provides special training.

Cedars Development School in Ross and Forest Meadows Development Center in San Rafael are especially oriented to the needs of the retarded. Over the years, few federal grants have helped locally, and the State Department of Social Welfare has participated.

MARC has received on-again off-again support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The Marin Deputy Sheriffs' Association has been one of the heaviest contributors of financial support.

LARC, the Ladies Auxiliary of MARC, has provided invaluable assistance.

Last spring MARC received a couple of private grants totalling nearly $50,000 which made possible the employment of the first full-time executive director.

AID TO THE retarded is moving ahead now on three fronts. Marin House provides a kind of half-way house between the protective shelter of home and complete independence for young retarded women preparing to become independent and self-supporting.

The Big R Respite Home in Novato provides developmental care for retarded children for short periods for their parents to take a brief break from the rigors of rearing retarded children.

Marin Enterprises is a MARC-backed effort to establish a landscape contracting business employing only mentally retarded workers. Some of the mentally retarded young men involved initially have made spectacular progress toward becoming self-supporting and independent.

MARC and the other programs aimed at helping the mentally retarded in Marin ARE accomplishing great things. But too many of the nearly 7,000 who need our help are not yet getting it.

May we not forget this when the Christmas spirit of giving is at work within us and when we contemplate New Year's resolutions.

Graham Interview Honest And Accurate

I wish to express my profound gratitude to you for allowing the publication of the article on Palestine written by Pat Angle. Her interview with Dr. Finlay M. Merchants' Advertising Sometimes Misleads

In regard to your article in last week's paper about shopping in Marin County. I went to a store directly after reading of a sale in one of your advertisements, only to learn that the item "was not in stock" or "not available at this time." In which case, I was told I would be given a rain check for a future, unspecified purchase.

I don't believe merchants should advertise unless they are sure that the goods are available. Plus — there are a few down-right dishonest business practices, such as not stating "one to a customer" in an advertisement, and later being told in the store itself.

Perhaps these are several more reasons why people don't like shopping in Marin.

Further Medications In Water Suggested

Now that we have changed from merely purifying our water to medicating it, I propose a campaign to add to the water the following:

1. Hair growing medication or nutriment to help keep and grow the receding hair on my son-in-law's receding pate.
2. Arthritis medication for my marvelous mother of 90 years.
3. Wart deterrent for my daughter and me who suffer several warts.
4. Nail medication to strengthen my easily-broken nails.
5. Indigestion medication to help everyone to swallow today's idiocies such as polluting our water by popular vote.

I realize these additives will all be voted down soundly the first time they are presented. The second time however, we will have gained some adherents and it will be a closer vote. The third time 'round we will have gained doctor's approval and publicity will have done its work. . .and it will pass!

Some of us won't like it as we have already too much hair (lip, arms) or do not suffer from arthritis, or like our nails short, or enjoy experimenting with warts or indigestion remedies. But what is best for the few has become best for all! Abide by it!. . .

Don't Get Relaxed Over That Tax Shift

We now have a "tax-shift" enactment, which Governor Reagan will sign into law. I'm sure the Governor is much less happy with this act, a compromise sine qua non, than he professes to be.

Using only the analyses published in the newspapers, it seems that some of us will save on property taxes but pay out most of the savings in income and sales taxes. This is inevitable if state spending is not reduced, so is to be expected.

There has been much said about increasing state aid to schools. How? By using part or all of a current state budget surplus; by using revenue sharing funds from the federal government.

The state budget surplus, even if the accounting is correct, is a one-time bonanza. What about next year?

Federal revenue sharing is a will-o'-the-wisp at best, both as to amount and as to its continued existence. Moreover, it is just money taken from the taxpayer's other pocket. What about next year?

Let's not get all relaxed and cozy over the great tax shift.

If Feminine Santa Calls, Blame The Washington Redskins

WASHINGTON — Santa Claus was sitting in front of his television set on Christmas Eve watching the Redskin-Green Bay Packers playoff game when Mrs. Claus came in.

"Are you going to sit there all day watching that idiotic football game?"

"Will you get out of here and leave me alone?" Santa Claus said.

"But you've got to go to work. The sleigh is piled high with toys and the reindeer are getting very impatient."

"LISTEN, THIS playoff means a lot to me. If the reindeer are cold, they can come in and watch the game with me."

"How can you behave that way? Children all over the world are waiting for you to come down their chimneys tonight. You'll never make it if you don't start now," Mrs. Claus said.

Santa opened another can of beer. "For heaven's sake, woman, can't I relax for a few hours withour your yakking at me?"

"If you don't deliver those toys, they're going to find a new Santa Claus and you're going to be out of a job."

Santa took a swallow. "How did I know they were going to have a playoff game on Christmas Eve? Answer me that! If I had known it, I would have made my deliveries yesterday."

"Yesterday was not Christmas Eve!" Mrs. Claus screamed. "Look at you sitting there in your undershirt, swilling beer, with your fat stomach sticking out! You certainly have the holiday spirit."

"THERE GOES Larry Brown!" Santa yelled. "A 12-yard gain. Now there's a football playr."

"You're not even listening to me. Will you get dressed and get on that stupid sled and go to work?"

"Not until the game is over," Santa said. "I can work any day, but how often do the Redskins get into a playoff game? Do you have any more potato chips to go with this beer?"

"Don't you understand Christmas won't be Christmas if you don't get those toys ditributed? Just think — tomorrow morning millions and millions of children will come downstairs with their hearts beating fast, excitement glistening in their eyes, knees trembling — and what will they find? Nothing. Why? Because Santa Claus was sitting on his fat butt watching a football game."

"That's easy for you to say," Santa said. "But I've been sitting here Sunday after Sunday, not to mention Monday nights, rooting for the Redskins. And now that they've made it and are in a playoff for the Super Bowl, you want me to leave them in the lurch to deliver a bunch of toys on the coldest day of the year. A man has to have priorities. Be quiet. This could be a crucial play."

"ALL RIGHT," said Mrs. Claus, "if you won't leave the TV set, I'll deliver the toys."

"But you don't like to drive a sleigh in icy weather."

Mrs. Claus threw on an overcoat, put on boots, and wrapped a scarf around her head. "It doesn't matter. I'm not going to have those children disappointed."

"Okay," Santa shrugged. "Here's the list. Be careful going over Detroit. It gets very smoggy this time of the year."

Mrs. Claus grabbed the list, stomped out and slammed the door. Santa passed a beer to one of his elves. "Women sure get mad when they see a man enjoying himself. Ho! Ho! Ho!"

Cabinet Reshuffle Leaves Nixon's Landscape Unchanged

WASHINGTON — With the dust kicked up by the re-shuffle slowly settling, the Nixon landscape is curiously unchanged. It is the same only more so.

The admonition of former Gen. John N. Mitchell early in the Nixon presidency, "Watch what we do and not what we say," has a special force. The intention, as solemnly proclaimed, was to spread responsibility in the exercise of power. The end result is very likely to be a greater concentration of decision-making authority in the palace guard in the White House.

First rate men have been assigned to posts where the learning process is long and difficult. Elliot L. Richardson is a prime example. He goes from the vast domain of Health, Education and Welfare to the infinitely greater complexities of the Defense Department.

THE MILITARY TEAM in the Pentagon, with whom President Nixon has long had a close relationship, remains intact with one important addition. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. was jumped over 228 generals who outranked him — 46 lieutenant generals and 182 more senior major generals, to be named vice chief of staff of the Army. This says a lot about the stock pile of generals out of the Vietnam War. As Henry A. Kissinger's able right-hand, Haig has had a close relationship with the President and he can be expected to continue in that relationship.

Whatever else one might say about Melvin Laird, he went to the Pentagon with a broad background of knowledge about military spending through his position on the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense Expenditures. Richardson is the new boy in a very tough school and it will take all his proven capacities to gain mastery over the hierarchy of powerful men who have devoted much time and ingenuity to circumventing the civilians — in theory their superiors.

Inspired reports have it that Richardson will be the front man spending a good bit of his time testifying before Congress while the old boys run the school as before. Other reports which Richardson stoutly denies have him choosing "liberal" types for his team as a challenge to the military.

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce is a conspicuous example of how controls from the power center are likely to be tightened rather than dispersed. In the past more often than not an honorific reward for deserving party faithful, it was given new life by Peter G. Peterson. Coming from the White House and the Council on International Economic Policy, he carried through highly successful negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Rather unceremoniously pushed aside, he is being replaced by a newcomer, Frederick B. Dent, a South Carolina textile manufacturer with the proper hallmarks of St. Paul's School, Yale, and rewards in the family business. Dent led the successful fight for quotas on textile imports. While Japan fought the quota limitations the Japanese economy was strong enough to absorb the loss.

The real losers were the smaller Asian nations that, as a first step in industrial development, had gone in for textiles. It may be merely a coincidence that in certain of these nations dictatorial pwoers have been asserted over the economy.

Dent may not be a protectionist, with the textile quota drive merely a reflex action of manufacturers — and organized labor — convinced they were being undercut by coolie wages in the Far East. But he will have to prove himself in a post in which foreign trade has an increasing importance.

BORN IN KEARNEY, Neb., where his father ran a restaurant, Peterson rose from an executive post in a big advertising agency to become chairman of the board of Bell and Howell, the camera company that has had a meteoric growth. It was from this same firm that Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois jumped into politics in Chicago.

Percy, outstanding in the liberal-moderate wing of his party, has been talked about as a nominee in 1976 despite his insistence that no such though has crossed his mind. Peterson thought in a sense Percy's protege. His dismissal is bound to be interpreted as a cut at the moderates who look with something less than enthusiasm on Spiro Agnew as the inevitable Nixon successor.

Desire For American Aid Key To Future Of Vietnam

Among veteran diplomats these days, the argument is over how long the non-Communist regime in Saigon will last after the American military withdrawal.

Optimists think it may last three years. One or two give it a chance for long-term survival. The majority, insofar as our research goes, seem to think that two years is the probable life span of the present regime, to be followed by a decisive slide into the control of the men from Hanoi.

Of course, the official White House view is more optimistic. The official theory is that if Hanoi honors the terms of the agreement Henry Kissinger is (at this writing) working out, then the Saigon regime can survive indefinitely and the southern part of Vietnam will continue to be independent of and distinct from North Vietnam for a long time ahead. And of course a survival of an independent regime in Saigon would mean a "peace with honor" for President Nixon.

WE SUBMIT that the key factor in all this will turn out to be Hanoi's interest in American technical and economic aid.

There is to be an aid program. That was promised long ago by Lyndon Johnson as bait for a settlement of the war on his terms. Hanoi turned it down when Mr. Johnson made the offer. But an American aid program is part of the deal which Mr. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho have worked out in their series of secret meetings.

But how important is that aid program in the eyes, and economic plans, of the men in control in Hanoi? What do they want most: control of Saigon, indeed of all Indo-China, or economic recovery from the ravages of war?

If recovery is what they want, and if they have been touched by the same desires which are obvious in these days in the leadership in Russia and in Russia's eastern European clients, then they may be deeply influenced in the years ahead by the American aid program.

ALL THROUGH the Communist world in Europe there is a new and vigorous reaching out for the technical skills of the West. Events of recent years have made it plain to the leaders that they cannot afford indefinitely to feed their people on austerity. They want a share in a better life. They want more housing, clothes, motor cars, electric refrigerators, and all the other paraphernalia of the affluent society. They have had puritanical self-denial. Now they want goodies. And their leaders are negotiating with the West for ways and means of providing the goodies. That is why there is a detente now and what detente is all about.

But does this urge yet touch the thinking of men in Hanoi? Who knows the answer? Perhaps Hanoi itself doesn't yet know it. Perhaps it will only discover how much it wants outside help when it begins to taste it. And perhaps then Moscow or Peking or both will decide to offer the aid which otherwise would have come from the United States or Japan.

IT COMES DOWN to the kind of leverage Washington will have in Hanoi when the last American soldier has left South Vietnam and the last American prisoner has been released from North Vietnam.

There will be leverage if Hanoi wants American aid and is willing to take it. There will be no leverage if Hanoi prefers austerity and doctrinal purity.

In other words, no one in Washington can surely calculate now what will be the state of affairs in Saigon two years after the withdrawal. There will be some continuing leverage if Hanoi wants and will accept continuing American aid. But will it?

Back in Dec. 17, 1903, air transportation was much safer because the plane couldn't fly as far as Cuba.

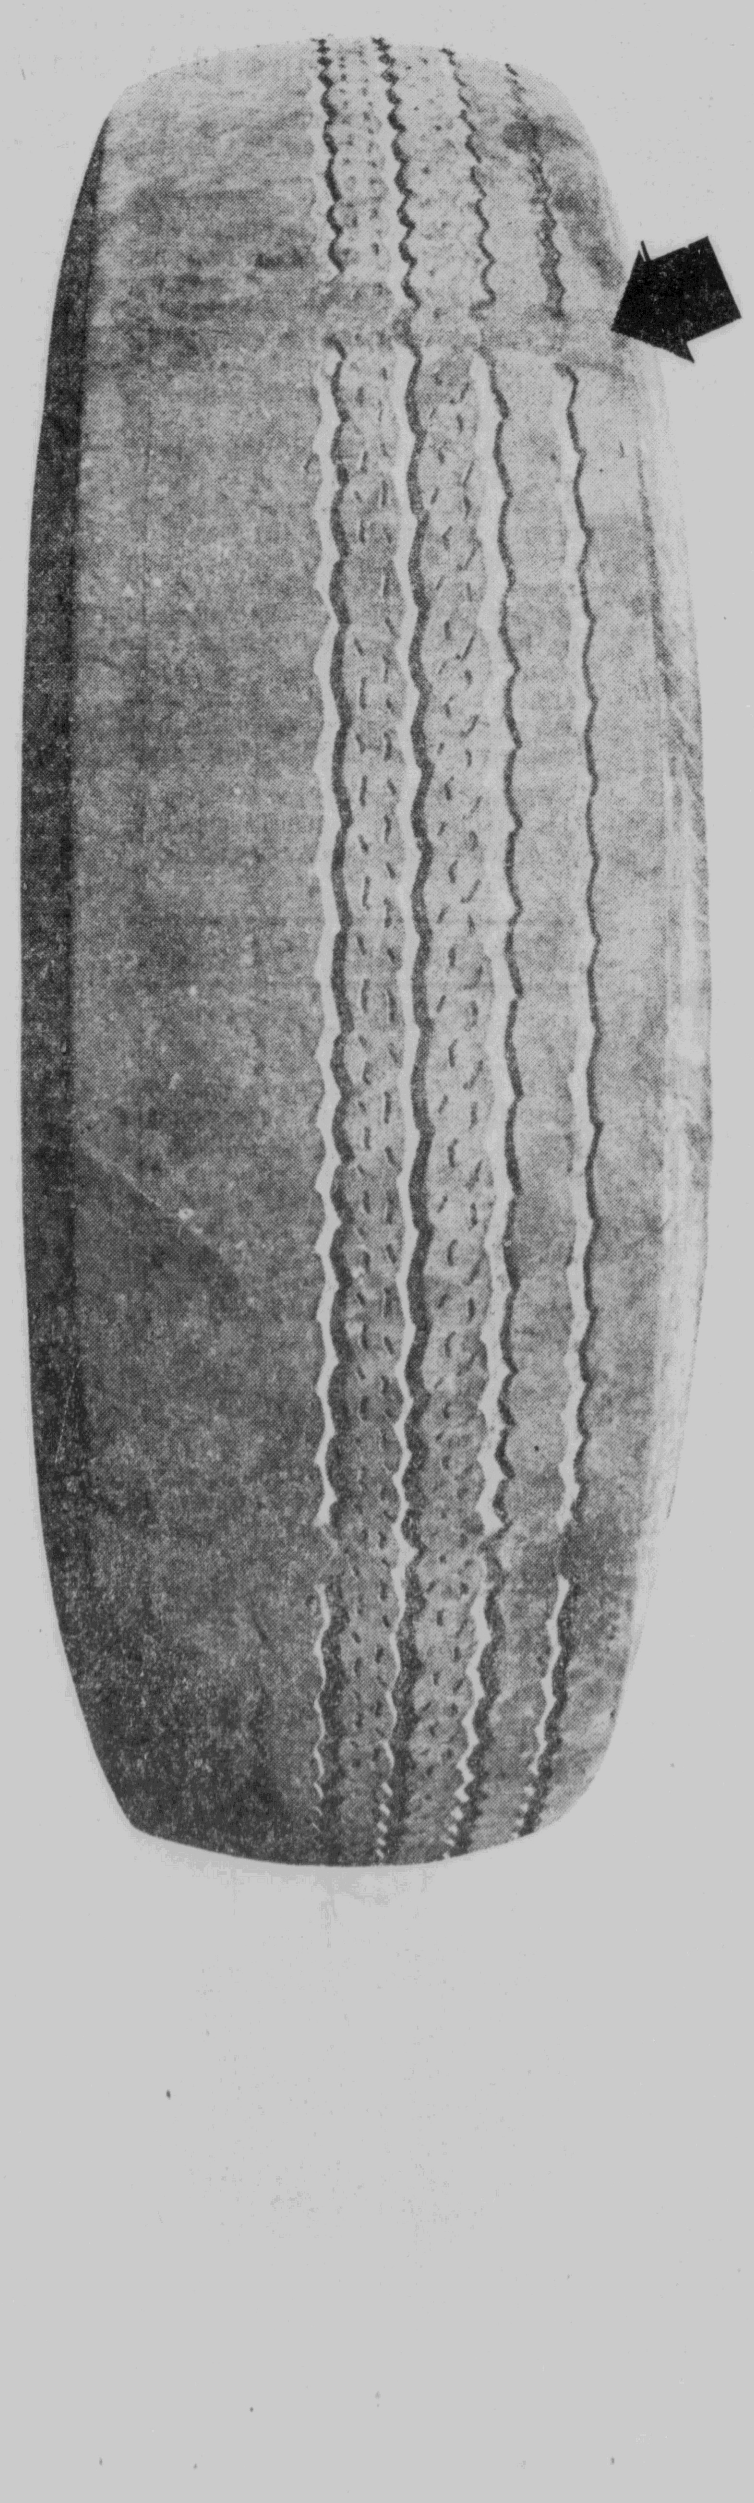
TWO SECONDS TO LIVE, or SLICK TIRES ON WET ROADS



When you're driving on slick tires on a wet road you're in a menacingly dangerous condition that greatly reduces the control you have of your car.

When slick tires meet road water they hydroplane, the same way a waterski scoots across the water's surface. When you attempt to change lanes or make a turn and these conditions prevail, you may feel that sickening moment when you are not in control and your car is taking you to your death.

Your tires don't have to be baby-skin smooth, either. The arrow on the tire to the left shows the dangerous, tread-wear bar that might be the last warning you get that your tires should be replaced.

Reduce the danger of driving on wet roads by having enough tread on your tires to grip a wet road and by traveling at reduced speeds. Drive easily, don't make any sharp turns or abrupt stops, or accelerate too rapidly. Follow these tips and you will greatly increase your control, when you need it most.

Actions In The Irish Republic Show Change From Other Days

By PETER C. STUART
The Christian Science Monitor

"Home rule Rome rule."

Gaudy Irish tricolors.

Graffiti on the walls of Northern Ireland recall simpler days.

Changes now afoot in the neighborhing Irish Republic leave the old, pat inscriptions looking a trifle dated.

The republic — once the heroine of Ulster's Roman Catholic republicans, and the hobgoblin of Protestant loyalists — within just the past two months has:

Arrested Sean MacStiofain, alleged chief of staff of the militant "provisional" wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, and introduced sweeping new legislation to help convict other suspected IRA members.

Closed the Dublin headquarters of the "provisional" IRA's Sinn Fein (political arm).

Successfully prosecuted large numbers of purported terrorists in new, nonjury courts (104 convictions among 139 persons charged so far), chiefly under recently toughened firearms and explosives regulations.

Scheduled a referendum later this month to delete from its constitution the Roman Catholic Church's "special position."

Heard Prime Minister Jack Lynch caution against premature withdrawal of British troops from Ulster, and admit that "immediate unity in Ireland is not a real prospect."

No one, including Lynch, expects these initiatives to drive Britons, Ulstermen, and Irishmen into each other's arms.

The republic, for a start, still stubbornly claims jurisdiction over "the whole island of Ireland." And it bans divorce and birth-control devices, while spending only one-half as much money per capita on social services (education, housing, health, income supplements) as does Northern Ireland.

But government and diplomatic sources here agree that the conciliatory moves in Dublin may stimulate a reexamination of old attitudes — both in London and Ulster.

"The next fortnight is going to be interesting," a Conservative member of the British Parliament who recently visited Northern Ireland, said privately. "Now each individual in Ulster must decide for himself what he wants."

The old reflex allegiance, or hatred, toward the Irish Republic, he explained, may be fading.

The moderation of their (southern) Dublin "ally" may prove particularly painful for the outnumbered Ulster republicans.

"The minority in the North may feel upset," concedes an Irish Embassy official in London. But the Lynch government decided to risk their support, he said, because "subversion within the Irish State itself must come foremost."

He calls the IRA crackdown "entirely a home-front operation."

Even so, it inevitably sends diplomatic ripples churning across the Irish Sea to Britain.

Relations between Britain and its former Irish territory, often stormy, are suddenly becoming almost placid. Dublin had recalled its ambassador during the first three months of this year, but in the past three months the two prime ministers have met twice.

After the most recent session here British Prime Minister Edward Heath cheerily reported the highest level of agreement ever.

The improving relations are traced to Dublin's initiatives — and to the apparent mutual respect developing between the two men.

Heath's government, for its part, now concedes that the Irish Republic has a legitimate interest in Ulster's future. "A settlement," its latest discussion paper states, "must . . . recognize Northern Ireland's position within Ireland as a whole."

It's also dawning upon both governments that they will become partners — economically, at least — in the European Common Market next month. But security repercussions may be more immediate. Pressure on the IRA from their onetime sanctuary in the Republic is expected by Northern Ireland officials to shift terrorism from cities into the more remote countryside along the border.

War Of Words Is Mounting Between Moscow And Peking

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A reported Sino-Soviet border clash recently comes against the background of a mounting war of words between Moscow and Peking.

The escalation of rhetoric could be merely the result of the fact that at this time of year the United Nations brings the two adversaries into open clash. Or it could reflect a worsening of relations, with the Peking border talks in grave difficulty.

Some diplomatic observers also suggest that as China has moved to improve relations with the United States and Japan it has stepped up its verbal assault on the Soviet Union as a tactic in its broad strategy to forestall Soviet penetration of Asia while the U.S. influence wanes there.

In any event, amid the propaganda polemics, comes a Soviet report of an incident along the Central Asian border in which five Soviet soldiers and several native shepherds allegedly were killed. The confidential report was leaked to western diplomats in Moscow and because it is a leak — neither the Soviet leaders nor the Soviet press has mentioned it publicly —it may or may not reflect reality.

A Chinese foreign ministry spokesman has denied the report as malicious fabrication and slander.

According to the Soviet account, a contingent of Chinese crossed the border late in November at a mountain pass between the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan and the Chinese province of Sinkiang. One of the Chinese (and there is no indication they were soldiers) reportedly was captured in the fighting with Soviet border guards.

U.S. analysts say there are no signs of an upsurge of activity along the 4,000-mile Sino-Soviet frontier. This fall the Russians added three more divisions to the 46 already stationed there, but this is seen as part of a continuing steady buildup and not an indication of heightened tensions.

Hence the reported clash, and this is the first reported since 1969, could be merely an isolated incident.

One thing seems clear. The border talks, while they go on, are at an impasse and are not moving toward an agreement.

With respect to the dispute in the East, the Chinese maintain that the border along the Amur-Ussuri rivers should be recognized, in accordance with international law, as running along the main navigational channel. But the 19th-century treaties under which Russia acquired this area placed the border on the Chinese bank of the river and so the Soviets claim the whole river.

Peking says these treaties were "unequal," and the Russians, if they want to treat the Chinese as equals, must recognize them as such. It would seem to be an extremely complex problem because both sides can make a rational case.

Despite the sharpening of rhetoric, Sino-Soviet relations on a state-to-state basis have remained fairly steady. Trade has been climbing between the two countries as Moscow has supplied its former ally with airliners, helicopters, and air-related equipment.

But, significantly, the Russians have been indicating in private that they now are having to consider whether what they supply Peking has strategic value or not.

Little New In Hijack Accord

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The imminent Cuba-United States hijacking agreement, or something very like it, could have been concluded three years ago — had Washington wanted it.

That is the view of informed Latin Americans who say that proposals put forward by Cuba in 1969 are essentially the same as today's draft.

For some time already, Cuba has been meting out severe jail terms to some skyjackers. And as far back as 1970, Havana began quietly returning a number of skyjackers to the United States.

Both Washington and Havana have more reason for wanting an accord today than they did in 1969, but in the Latin American view, the current negotiations now under way in Havana are leading to an agreement or some sort of understanding very similar to the 1969 Cuban proposals.

The Cuban proposals were outlined by its United Nations ambassador, Ricardo Alarcon Quesada, in the course of a wide-ranging speech Oct. 8, 1969. They also were aired by Havana Radio and other Cuban media at the time.

Cuba said any agreement on skyjacking must also deal with the hijacking of ships as well as airplanes and with other violations governing traffic between Cuba and the United States.

Latin American sources note there has been a steady flow of ship hijackings by Cubans wanting to go to the United States. Moreover, just before Alarcon spoke to the UN in 1969, a Cuban Air Force lieutenant seized a Cuban MIG-17 and flew it to Florida, where he was granted asylum.

The Cuban proposals in 1969 did not win favor with the United States at the time.

Man's Picture Of Moon Jumps Sharply Into Focus

By JACK WAUGH
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HOUSTON, Tex. — It had seemed all quiet on the moon's face. Apollo 16 had left a new network of instruments there. And lunar scientists listened intently from earth, but not much was stirring.

Suddenly, one day this fall, it happened. A huge impact shook the moon. The shock waves began to reach seismographs on the other side. Lunar scientists raced for their earphones. The moon had been hit on its far side — the dark side. It was just what scientists had hoped would happen. They had waited a long time.

They knew it might tell them the answer to a key lunar question. What was the center of the moon like? Seismometers left on the near side by Apollo astronauts had the data. Everybody waited.

Three weeks ago the news filtered out: A molten core! To the lunar scientists it was like a shot heard 'round the world.

Suddenly a major piece of the lunar puzzle fell into place. And this month as Apollo 17 astronauts walked on the moon for man's last time, perhaps in this century, the story of what really has happened to the moon down through almost measureless time, has jumped into focus.

There still are hundreds of missing pieces in the lunar puzzle. Astronauts have yet to bring back rocks younger than three and one-fifth billion years or older than four and one-fifth billion years. But from that relatively small sliver of time — one billion years — lunar scientists can piece together a tentative picture of how the moon got that way. And this is what it looks like:

The moon was born about four and one-half billion years ago. Just how, nobody still knows for sure. The surface of the moon was hot from accretion, of incoming matter so hot that it melted or partly melted for 100 miles from the surface downward.

At the same time, we now know there was a molten core within, a great iron-rich magna chamber, which was probably acting as a dynamo to give the moon a mightier-than-we-once suspected magnetic field.

Between four and one-half and four billion years ago, a molten material at the lunar surface cooled and hardened into a crust about 40 miles deep. At about the same time, before four billion years ago, the moon, as lunar geophysist Robin Brett of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) puts it, "was being zapped by meteorites from space."

For half a billion years it took a titanic pelting by meteorites, some of them as big as the state of Rhode Island. About four billion years ago, the bombardment stopped. All fell quiet. Suddenly the moon was left in pock-marked silence, massive gouges in it as wide as 600 miles across.

Then, the molten action from within began to take over. For half a billion years, molten material began to fill in the empty basins to form the great seas or mares, as the inquisitive Galileo, gazing on the wonder from earth, was later to call them.

After that, about three billion years ago, the moon fell into almost total inactivity. There was some cinder cone-making and some minor shakings, all small —less than three on the Richter scale — as earthquakes go. But the moon lay still, ghostly, remote, beaten, and silent.

The lunar unknowns are still more than scientists sometime care to think about. Nobody can explain how the moon got there in the first place. Most lunar scientists can only nod in sad agreement with Dr. Harold Urey, who says, "It is far easier to explain the moon's nonexistence than it is to explian its existence."

None of the three major theories of lunar origin makes sense. And lunar scientists are all resigned to the possibility they may never know how it all started. The only thing they can be confident of, because the rocks tell them, is what has happened since then.

The moon couldn't have been part of earth that split away, as one theory holds, because the rocks on moon and earth are totally different. Nor could earth and moon have been twins, shaped simultaneously from the same primordial stuff, as another theory holds —for the same reason. And it is difficult for lunar scientists to believe that the moon was made over here and the earth over there and that the two came together and the moon was captured. Nine times out of ten, in that situation, the moon would have crashed into the earth instead of orbiting it.

But the origin aside, lunar scientists can hardly believe they know as much about what has happened since, as they now do. Three and a half years ago, before Apollo, they had a rough idea what the moon's surface was like. They knew something of its soil mechanics from the earlier unmanned missions. They knew there was some magnetic material on the moon, but had no idea the magnetic field was as powerful as it is. And they had pinned down the moon's approximate bulk density close enough.

Beyond that they knew little. They didn't even know, as the Apollos have since told them, that the moon has a core, a mantle and a crust — just like earth. News like that might bring a blank stare from the man on an earth street. But to a lunar scientist, that is man biting dog, the biggest news of 1972 — or any year.

CRUCIAL QUESTIONS IGNORED?

In Meeting Energy Crisis

By LICIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Environmentalists are concerned that federal regulatory officials may be skipping past some crucial questions in their rush to meet America's rising energy demands.

Of particular concern is the rapid development of nuclear power plants. Currently 26 are operating, accounting for a mere 2 per cent of the nation's electricity supply. However, that percentage share is expected to edge up to 30 by the end of the decade and the number of plants to reach 900 by 1990.

Environmentalists concede that the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), the agency charged with licensing both the construction and operation of such facilities, is asking tougher questions of industry than ever before.

In the critics' view, however, the agency, charged with the promotion of nuclear power as well as its regulation, proceeds always on the basic premise that the licenses will be granted once federal standards are met, simply because the existing energy crisis demands it.

"This is such a critical time," observes Anthony Z. Roisman, a partner in the environmental public interest law firm of Berlin, Roisman, and Kessler. "If all these plants get licensed, and built, ever stopping them would be very difficult. By then we would be so dependent on nuclear power that a rational, objective decision would be out of the question."

The AEC, in this lawyer's view, should be carefully examining other power source alternatives, the possibility of curbing energy demands rather than rushing to meet them, the adequacy of existing federal safety standards, and the cost and reliability factors of a substantial nuclear power investment.

The latter factors alone, says Roisman, should induce the AEC to encourage the building of prototypes and to insist that industry perfect its designs before any more licenses are granted.

Problems in this area have recently brought a number of industry executives to the side of environmentalists in urging caution rather than an unthinking plunge forward for the sake of progress.

Just a few days ago, for instance, the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company announced that it was temporarily cancelling plans to build a $700-million nuclear power plant along the Bush River in Maryland's Harford County because of financing difficulties, changing regulatory rules, and environmentalist objections.

Similarly, a few days before that, at the Atomic Industrial Forum's 1972 international conference in Washington, Louis H. Roddis Jr., president of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, told participants that nuclear power plants were proving to be substantially less reliable than originally predicted and that unless designs were vastly improved a backoff might be well advised.

Noting that many of the "glorious promises" about nuclear energy benefits have not materialized, Roddis specifically mentioned the cost in time and money of the failure of a cooling pipe last spring at his company's Indian Point Number One plant. From start to finish the repair involved $1 million, seven months and 700 men (because of radiation exposure dangers) where a comparable breakdown in a fossil fuel plant would have involved only a fraction of that investment.

The difficulties are such that even the AEC, though firmly committed to a forward thrust in nuclear power development, is showing signs of a slightly more relaxed stance on the speed. In a recent speech at the Atomic Industrial Forum here, AEC Commissioner William O. Doub concluded by admonishing both industry and government to "take it a little easy" and "learn to pace yourselves."

While Congress gave the AEC temporary licensing power early last summer through October, 1973, to meet what it regarded as critical energy shortages, environmentalists insist the legislation involves no significant shortcuts for industry and point out that only the Vermont Yankee reactor has been granted such a license.

That reactor experienced a fire and has been shut down, a factor environmentalists argue may well ward off other utilities from hurriedly filing similar applications and the AEC from granting them. Says Roisman: "I give the utilities credit — they're not environmentalists but they all want reliability."

Under pressure from such varied sources as environmentalists, Congress, and the National Academy of Sciences, the AEC has involved itself in extensive research and public hearings on various aspects of nuclear reactor safety. Critics argue, however, there still are significant gaps between theory and practice and in some cases a vacuum in theory itself.

One such area is waste disposal. The AEC has now scheduled a public hearing on this question for next Feb. 1. But in Roisman's view, the agency will be "dancing on the periphery of the issue" by discussing what to do with the waste rather than facing the basic question of whether they want it at all.

The AEC has developed various proposals for the treatment of nuclear power plant waste according to the toxicity of the product, but critics contend that, at best, the solutions are only interim. High-level liquid waste with a high radioactivity concentration, for instance, is now frequently solidified and stored underground in steel-lined concrete tanks.

But given the decay potential of man-made materials, the possibilities of accidental leakage, and the long life of some nuclear waste products (Plutonium-239, for instance, takes 50 years to decay to a harmless level) long-term solutions still are needed.

Another area of top concern to those urging a slowdown in nuclear development is the safety feature required in plants of Emergency Core Cooling Systems (ECCS).

This safeguard, required by the commission, is an emergency arrangement to cool the zirconium alloy which surrounds the reactor core in the event of a mishap. There is disagreement even among AEC experts as to how adequate the current ECCS standard is. In hearings set up to last about two months but now stretching out to about a year's time, the AEC and others have been debating the subject at Bethesda, Md. It now appears slightly more stringent standards will be forthcoming.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon said hail and farewell this week to America's manned flights to the moon in the 20th Century.

Nixon's remarks came shortly after the last of the Apollo series lunar module "Challenger" left the surface of the moon for its rendezvous with the command ship "America".

"This may be the last time in this century that men will walk on the moon," the President said.

"But," Nixon added, "space exploration will continue, the benefits of space exploration will continue and there will be new dreams to pursue based on what we have learned."

Challenger docked with America in a 71-mile-high orbit around the moon.

On Saturday evening the three astronauts will fire the main engine aboard America to break away from lunar gravity and head back to Earth.

The men, Eugene A. Cernan and Harrison H. Schmitt, who explored the moons surface; and Ronald E. Evans, who commanded the America, are scheduled to splash down in the South Pacific Tuesday.

The return of Apollo 17 to earth will end the $25 billion project that landed 12 Americans on the moon. The United States has current no plans to return.

MARC Needs Our Help At Christmas

WE SHOULD BE doing more — much more — to help the mentally retarded among us.

For at least 15 years a handful of dedicated volunteers have struggled valiantly under the name of MARC (Marin Aid to Retarded Children) to improve the lot of mentally retarded children and adults in Marin. Many have been helped over the years. But MARC has never had the resources to help ALL who need it.

In this joyous Christmas season more of us should give thought to helping MARC provide help to those who need it.

The National Association for Retarded Children calculates there are about six million retarded men, women and children in the United States. Among our Marin population of 225,000, we must have nearly 7,000 mentally retarded.

MARC is justifiably proud of its programs which help a few dozen. If we all shared MARC workers' anguish at their inability to help the rest of the 7,000, perhaps we would be motivated to provide more support for MARC and others in the field.

THERE WAS A time when mentally retarded children and adults were hidden in shame. Fortunately, our society has begun to mature and now, more and more, we are facing up to the problem.

This change in attitude led to the founding of MARC here in Marin.

Now we know that mental retardation is not hereditary. We know it is caused mostly by illness, accident or birth defect. Recent research indicates that sometimes mental retardation is more apparent than real — the result of educational deprivation and other cultural and environmental factors.

Researchers also have learned about "PKU", a metabolic disorder which causes mental retardation and which can be treated by a special diet to prevent brain damage.

We know that mentally retarded children and adults can be helped, sometimes dramatically, by special education and special training.

The National Association for Retarded Children has concluded that 25 out of every 30 retarded persons can hold productive jobs if they are given proper training and education. Most can become partly or completely self-supporting.

The national association sponsors research programs to prevent retardation. Common measles, the childhood disease, is a villain. Four million children get measles in the U.S. each year. Five hundred die from measles encephalitis (brain inflammation) and measles pneumonia. Some have permanent brain damage, causing retardation in some but not all cases.

Measles vaccination could bring all this to a sudden stop. Every child between the age of nine months and 12 years should be vaccinated against measles. But 12 million American youngsters in this age group have not yet been vaccinated.

We hope Marin parents are more concerned about the welfare of their children; but it is possible that 10,000 or more children in Marin still do not yet have measles protection.

Measles can be stamped out, just as polio was virtually ended a few years ago. The end of measles will bring a sharp reduction in mental retardation.

If you are a parent whose children have not yet been immunized against measles, you cannot give your children a more valuable Christmas present than measles vaccination.

MARC IS, of course, not the only source of help for the retarded in Marin. The county schools office operates special education programs and provides special training.

Cedars Development School in Ross and Forest Meadows Development Center in San Rafael are especially oriented to the needs of the retarded. Over the years, few federal grants have helped locally, and the State Department of Social Welfare has participated.

MARC has received on-again off-again support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The Marin Deputy Sheriffs' Association has been one of the heaviest contributors of financial support.

LARC, the Ladies Auxiliary of MARC, has provided invaluable assistance.

Last spring MARC received a couple of private grants totalling nearly $50,000 which made possible the employment of the first full-time executive director.

AID TO THE retarded is moving ahead now on three fronts. Marin House provides a kind of half-way house between the protective shelter of home and complete independence for young retarded women preparing to become independent and self-supporting.

The Big R Respite Home in Novato provides developmental care for retarded children for short periods for their parents to take a brief break from the rigors of rearing retarded children.

Marin Enterprises is a MARC-backed effort to establish a landscape contracting business employing only mentally retarded workers. Some of the mentally retarded young men involved initially have made spectacular progress toward becoming self-supporting and independent.

MARC and the other programs aimed at helping the mentally retarded in Marin ARE accomplishing great things. But too many of the nearly 7,000 who need our help are not yet getting it.

May we not forget this when the Christmas spirit of giving is at work within us and when we contemplate New Year's resolutions.

Graham Interview Honest And Accurate

I wish to express my profound gratitude to you for allowing the publication of the article on Palestine written by Pat Angle. Her interview with Dr. Finlay M. Graham is without doubt the most honest, most accurate piece of journalism that I have read about Palestine. I have been in the United States for more than 24 years. Throughout these times, the U.S. press have been biased, distorted, malicious and grossly unjust to us. . .

Merchants' Advertising Sometimes Misleads

In regard to your article in last week's paper about shopping in Marin County. I went to a store directly after reading of a sale in one of your advertisements, only to learn that the item "was not in stock" or "not available at this time." In which case, I was told I would be given a rain check for a future, unspecified purchase.

I don't believe merchants should advertise unless they are sure that the goods are available. Plus — there are a few down-right dishonest business practices, such as not stating "one to a customer" in an advertisement, and later being told in the store itself.

Perhaps these are several more reasons why people don't like shopping in Marin.

Further Medications In Water Suggested

Now that we have changed from merely purifying our water to medicating it, I propose a campaign to add to the water the following:

1. Hair growing medication or nutriment to help keep and grow the receding hair on my son-in-law's receding pate.
2. Arthritis medication for my marvelous mother of 90 years.
3. Wart deterrent for my daughter and me who suffer several warts.
4. Nail medication to strengthen my easily-broken nails.
5. Indigestion medication to help everyone to swallow today's idiocies such as polluting our water by popular vote.

I realize these additives will all be voted down soundly the first time they are presented. The second time however, we will have gained some adherents and it will be a closer vote. The third time 'round we will have gained doctor's approval and publicity will have done its work. . .and it will pass!

Some of us won't like it as we have already too much hair (lip, arms) or do not suffer from arthritis, or like our nails short, or enjoy experimenting with warts or indigestion remedies. But what is best for the few has become best for all! Abide by it!. . .

Don't Get Relaxed Over That Tax Shift

We now have a "tax-shift" enactment, which Governor Reagan will sign into law. I'm sure the Governor is much less happy with this act, a compromise sine qua non, than he professes to be.

Using only the analyses published in the newspapers, it seems that some of us will save on property taxes but pay out most of the savings in income and sales taxes. This is inevitable if state spending is not reduced, so is to be expected.

There has been much said about increasing state aid to schools. How? By using part or all of a current state budget surplus; by using revenue sharing funds from the federal government.

The state budget surplus, even if the accounting is correct, is a one-time bonanza. What about next year?

Federal revenue sharing is a will-o'-the-wisp at best, both as to amount and as to its continued existence. Moreover, it is just money taken from the taxpayer's other pocket. What about next year?

Let's not get all relaxed and cozy over the great tax shift.

If Feminine Santa Calls, Blame The Washington Redskins

WASHINGTON — Santa Claus was sitting in front of his television set on Christmas Eve watching the Redskin-Green Bay Packers playoff game when Mrs. Claus came in.

"Are you going to sit there all day watching that idiotic football game?"

"Will you get out of here and leave me alone?" Santa Claus said.

"But you've got to go to work. The sleigh is piled high with toys and the reindeer are getting very impatient."

"LISTEN, THIS playoff means a lot to me. If the reindeer are cold, they can come in and watch the game with me."

"How can you behave that way? Children all over the world are waiting for you to come down their chimneys tonight. You'll never make it if you don't start now," Mrs. Claus said.

Santa opened another can of beer. "For heaven's sake, woman, can't I relax for a few hours withour your yakking at me?"

"If you don't deliver those toys, they're going to find a new Santa Claus and you're going to be out of a job."

Santa took a swallow. "How did I know they were going to have a playoff game on Christmas Eve? Answer me that! If I had known it, I would have made my deliveries yesterday."

"Yesterday was not Christmas Eve!" Mrs. Claus screamed. "Look at you sitting there in your undershirt, swilling beer, with your fat stomach sticking out! You certainly have the holiday spirit."

"THERE GOES Larry Brown!" Santa yelled. "A 12-yard gain. Now there's a football playr."

"You're not even listening to me. Will you get dressed and get on that stupid sled and go to work?"

"Not until the game is over," Santa said. "I can work any day, but how often do the Redskins get into a playoff game? Do you have any more potato chips to go with this beer?"

"Don't you understand Christmas won't be Christmas if you don't get those toys ditributed? Just think — tomorrow morning millions and millions of children will come downstairs with their hearts beating fast, excitement glistening in their eyes, knees trembling — and what will they find? Nothing. Why? Because Santa Claus was sitting on his fat butt watching a football game."

"That's easy for you to say," Santa said. "But I've been sitting here Sunday after Sunday, not to mention Monday nights, rooting for the Redskins. And now that they've made it and are in a playoff for the Super Bowl, you want me to leave them in the lurch to deliver a bunch of toys on the coldest day of the year. A man has to have priorities. Be quiet. This could be a crucial play."

"ALL RIGHT," said Mrs. Claus, "if you won't leave the TV set, I'll deliver the toys."

"But you don't like to drive a sleigh in icy weather."

Mrs. Claus threw on an overcoat, put on boots, and wrapped a scarf around her head. "It doesn't matter. I'm not going to have those children disappointed."

"Okay," Santa shrugged. "Here's the list. Be careful going over Detroit. It gets very smoggy this time of the year."

Mrs. Claus grabbed the list, stomped out and slammed the door. Santa passed a beer to one of his elves. "Women sure get mad when they see a man enjoying himself. Ho! Ho! Ho!"

Cabinet Reshuffle Leaves Nixon's Landscape Unchanged

WASHINGTON — With the dust kicked up by the re-shuffle slowly settling, the Nixon landscape is curiously unchanged. It is the same only more so.

The admonition of former Gen. John N. Mitchell early in the Nixon presidency, "Watch what we do and not what we say," has a special force. The intention, as solemnly proclaimed, was to spread responsibility in the exercise of power. The end result is very likely to be a greater concentration of decision-making authority in the palace guard in the White House.

First rate men have been assigned to posts where the learning process is long and difficult. Elliot L. Richardson is a prime example. He goes from the vast domain of Health, Education and Welfare to the infinitely greater complexities of the Defense Department.

THE MILITARY TEAM in the Pentagon, with whom President Nixon has long had a close relationship, remains intact with one important addition. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. was jumped over 228 generals who outranked him — 46 lieutenant generals and 182 more senior major generals, to be named vice chief of staff of the Army. This says a lot about the stock pile of generals out of the Vietnam War. As Henry A. Kissinger's able right-hand, Haig has had a close relationship with the President and he can be expected to continue in that relationship.

Whatever else one might say about Melvin Laird, he went to the Pentagon with a broad background of knowledge about military spending through his position on the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense Expenditures. Richardson is the new boy in a very tough school and it will take all his proven capacities to gain mastery over the hierarchy of powerful men who have devoted much time and ingenuity to circumventing the civilians — in theory their superiors.

Inspired reports have it that Richardson will be the front man spending a good bit of his time testifying before Congress while the old boys run the school as before. Other reports which Richardson stoutly denies have him choosing "liberal" types for his team as a challenge to the military.

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce is a conspicuous example of how controls from the power center are likely to be tightened rather than dispersed. In the past more often than not an honorific reward for deserving party faithful, it was given new life by Peter G. Peterson. Coming from the White House and the Council on International Economic Policy, he carried through highly successful negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Rather unceremoniously pushed aside, he is being replaced by a newcomer, Frederick B. Dent, a South Carolina textile manufacturer with the proper hallmarks of St. Paul's School, Yale, and rewards in the family business. Dent led the successful fight for quotas on textile imports. While Japan fought the quota limitations the Japanese economy was strong enough to absorb the loss.

The real losers were the smaller Asian nations that, as a first step in industrial development, had gone in for textiles. It may be merely a coincidence that in certain of these nations dictatorial pwoers have been asserted over the economy.

Dent may not be a protectionist, with the textile quota drive merely a reflex action of manufacturers — and organized labor — convinced they were being undercut by coolie wages in the Far East. But he will have to prove himself in a post in which foreign trade has an increasing importance.

BORN IN KEARNEY, Neb., where his father ran a restaurant, Peterson rose from an executive post in a big advertising agency to become chairman of the board of Bell and Howell, the camera company that has had a meteoric growth. It was from this same firm that Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois jumped into politics in Chicago.

Percy, outstanding in the liberal-moderate wing of his party, has been talked about as a nominee in 1976 despite his insistence that no such though has crossed his mind. Peterson thought in a sense Percy's protege. His dismissal is bound to be interpreted as a cut at the moderates who look with something less than enthusiasm on Spiro Agnew as the inevitable Nixon successor.

Desire For American Aid Key To Future Of Vietnam

Among veteran diplomats these days, the argument is over how long the non-Communist regime in Saigon will last after the American military withdrawal.

Optimists think it may last three years. One or two give it a chance for long-term survival. The majority, insofar as our research goes, seem to think that two years is the probable life span of the present regime, to be followed by a decisive slide into the control of the men from Hanoi.

Of course, the official White House view is more optimistic. The official theory is that if Hanoi honors the terms of the agreement Henry Kissinger is (at this writing) working out, then the Saigon regime can survive indefinitely and the southern part of Vietnam will continue to be independent of and distinct from North Vietnam for a long time ahead. And of course a survival of an independent regime in Saigon would mean a "peace with honor" for President Nixon.

WE SUBMIT that the key factor in all this will turn out to be Hanoi's interest in American technical and economic aid.

There is to be an aid program. That was promised long ago by Lyndon Johnson as bait for a settlement of the war on his terms. Hanoi turned it down when Mr. Johnson made the offer. But an American aid program is part of the deal which Mr. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho have worked out in their series of secret meetings.

But how important is that aid program in the eyes, and economic plans, of the men in control in Hanoi? What do they want most: control of Saigon, indeed of all Indo-China, or economic recovery from the ravages of war?

If recovery is what they want, and if they have been touched by the same desires which are obvious in these days in the leadership in Russia and in Russia's eastern European clients, then they may be deeply influenced in the years ahead by the American aid program.

ALL THROUGH the Communist world in Europe there is a new and vigorous reaching out for the technical skills of the West. Events of recent years have made it plain to the leaders that they cannot afford indefinitely to feed their people on austerity. They want a share in a better life. They want more housing, clothes, motor cars, electric refrigerators, and all the other paraphernalia of the affluent society. They have had puritanical self-denial. Now they want goodies. And their leaders are negotiating with the West for ways and means of providing the goodies. That is why there is a detente now and what detente is all about.

But does this urge yet touch the thinking of men in Hanoi? Who knows the answer? Perhaps Hanoi itself doesn't yet know it. Perhaps it will only discover how much it wants outside help when it begins to taste it. And perhaps then Moscow or Peking or both will decide to offer the aid which otherwise would have come from the United States or Japan.

IT COMES DOWN to the kind of leverage Washington will have in Hanoi when the last American soldier has left South Vietnam and the last American prisoner has been released from North Vietnam.

There will be leverage if Hanoi wants American aid and is willing to take it. There will be no leverage if Hanoi prefers austerity and doctrinal purity.

In other words, no one in Washington can surely calculate now what will be the state of affairs in Saigon two years after the withdrawal. There will be some continuing leverage if Hanoi wants and will accept continuing American aid. But will it?

Buyer Of Stolen Car Said Duped

A Marin Municipal Court judge has dismissed a felony car theft charge against 24-year-old Ralph Richard Umland of San Rafael, who apparently was duped into buying a stolen car for $50 because he can't read or write.

Judge Robert A. Smallman dismissed the charge after Umland told him he thought the man he gave the money to was signing over the pink slip when, in fact, the man gave him something else.

Umland was arrested by San Rafael police on Thanksgiving after they stopped his car for an apparent speeding violation on Fourth Street and found it had been stolen a month before.

Don't Waste Time Feeling Guilty In A Silly Slam Bid

Do you feel guilty when you bid a silly slam and then manage to bring it in? If it's any comfort, the same thing happens to all of the best players. The only difference is that they don't waste time feeling guilty — unless they muff a change to make the silly slam. The principle is illustrated today with a hand played a few weeks ago in the Chairty Fund session held continent-wide by the American Contract Bridge League.

1 ◇	2 ◇	3 ◇	4 ♣
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ◇

Opening lead — ◇ 4

A SILLY BID

The slam was a silly one to bid because South had no way of knowing that the dummy would have help in hearts. If North had two very low hearts instead of the 10-9, there would virtually no play for the slam.

Even the actual dummy would be useless for slam purposes if the six missing clubs failed to break 3-3; and the odds are almost 2 to 1 against the favorable club break.

WITH THE ACE

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, cashed the top clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. When both opponents followed suit, South was tempted to draw two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy. If this exhausted all of the missing trumps, declarer could cash dummy's two good clubs to discard low spades.

WOULD NOT WORK

The plan would not have worked since East actually had three trumps instead of precisely two. But one player at the national tournament knew better than to rely on a 2-2 trump break. East needed about 12 or 13 points in high cards for his opening bid, which left only about two or three points for West. But West needed more than those two or three high-card points for his raise to three diamonds, and a singleton in hearts was the most likely reason.

South therefore led a heart to the nine and returned a good club from dummy. East had to ruff, and South overruffed. South then led another low heart to dummy's ten, discarded a spade on dummy's last club and finally led a spade through the ace to make sure of a trick with the king of spades.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:
♠- J 5 3
♥- 10 9
♦- 9 6 2
♣- A 8 7 4 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Some experts would bid one no-trump, but most would pass. If partner opened with one spade, you would risk a raise to two spades since then your jack of spades would be worth a trifle more, and the doubleton in hearts would be an asset rather than a liability.

GRAFFITI IN IRELAND — Graffiti like this on a Londonderry building wall can fan old feuds in the Irish Republic, as well as in Northern Ireland.

Actions In The Irish Republic Show Change From Other Days

By PETER C. STUART
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

"Home rule Rome rule."

Gaudy Irish tricolors.

Graffiti on the walls of Northern Ireland recall simpler days.

Changes now afoot in the neighborhing Irish Republic leave the old, pat inscriptions looking a trifle dated.

The republic — once the heroine of Ulster's Roman Catholic republicans, and the hobgoblin of Protestant loyalists — within just the past two months has:

Arrested Sean MacStiofain, alleged chief of staff of the militant "provisional" wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, and introduced sweeping new legislation to help convict other suspected IRA members.

Closed the Dublin headquarters of the "provisional" IRA's Sinn Fein (political arm).

Successfully prosecuted large numbers of purported terrorists in new, nonjury courts (104 convictions among 139 persons charged so far), chiefly under recently toughened firearms and explosives regulations.

Scheduled a referendum later this month to delete from its constitution the Roman Catholic Church's "special position."

Heard Prime Minister Jack Lynch caution against premature withdrawal of British troops from Ulster, and admit that "immediate unity in Ireland is not a real prospect."

No one, including Lynch, expects these initiatives to drive Britons, Ulstermen, and Irishmen into each other's arms.

The republic, for a start, still stubbornly claims jurisdiction over "the whole island of Ireland." And it bans divorce and birth-control devices, while spending only one-half as much money per capita on social services (education, housing, health, income supplements) as does Northern Ireland.

But government and diplomatic sources here agree that the conciliatory moves in Dublin may stimulate a reexamination of old attitudes — both in London and Ulster.

"The next fortnight is going to be interesting," a Conservative member of the British Parliament who recently visited Northern Ireland, said privately. "Now each individual in Ulster must decide for himself what he wants."

The old reflex allegiance, or hatred, toward the Irish Republic, he explained, may be fading.

The moderation of their (southern) Dublin "ally" may prove particularly painful for the outnumbered Ulster republicans.

"The minority in the North may feel upset," concedes an Irish Embassy official in London. But the Lynch government decided to risk their support, he said, because "subversion within the Irish State itself must come foremost."

He calls the IRA crackdown "entirely a home-front operation."

Even so, it inevitably sends diplomatic ripples churning across the Irish Sea to Britain.

Relations between Britain and its former Irish territory, often stormy, are suddenly becoming almost placid. Dublin had recalled its ambassador during the first three months of this year, but in the past three months the two prime ministers have met twice.

After the most recent session here British Prime Minister Edward Heath cheerily reported the highest level of agreement ever.

The improving relations are traced to Dublin's initiatives — and to the apparent mutual respect developing between the two men.

Heath's government, for its part, now concedes that the Irish Republic has a legitimate interest in Ulster's future. "A settlement," its latest discussion paper states, "must . . . recognize Northern Ireland's position within Ireland as a whole."

It's also dawning upon both governments that they will become partners — economically, at least — in the European Common Market next month. But security repercussions may be more immediate. Pressure on the IRA from their onetime sanctuary in the Republic is expected by Northern Ireland officials to shift terrorism from cities into the more remote countryside along the border.

War Of Words Is Mounting Between Moscow And Peking

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A reported Sino-Soviet border clash recently comes against the background of a mounting war of words between Moscow and Peking.

The escalation of rhetoric could be merely the result of the fact that at this time of year the United Nations brings the two adversaries into open clash. Or it could reflect a worsening of relations, with the Peking border talks in grave difficulty.

Some diplomatic observers also suggest that as China has moved to improve relations with the United States and Japan it has stepped up its verbal assault on the Soviet Union as a tactic in its broad strategy to forestall Soviet penetration of Asia while the U.S. influence wanes there.

In any event, amid the propaganda polemics, comes a Soviet report of an incident along the Central Asian border in which five Soviet soldiers and several native shepherds allegedly were killed. The confidential report was leaked to western diplomats in Moscow and because it is a leak — neither the Soviet leaders nor the Soviet press has mentioned it publicly —it may or may not reflect reality.

A Chinese foreign ministry spokesman has denied the report as malicious fabrication and slander.

According to the Soviet account, a contingent of Chinese crossed the border late in November at a mountain pass between the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan and the Chinese province of Sinkiang. One of the Chinese (and there is no indication they were soldiers) reportedly was captured in the fighting with Soviet border guards.

U.S. analysts say there are no signs of an upsurge of activity along the 4,000-mile Sino-Soviet frontier. This fall the Russians added three more divisions to the 46 already stationed there, but this is seen as part of a continuing steady buildup and not an indication of heightened tensions.

Hence the reported clash, and this is the first reported since 1969, could be merely an isolated incident.

One thing seems clear. The border talks, while they go on, are at an impasse and are not moving toward an agreement.

With respect to the dispute in the East, the Chinese maintain that the border along the Amur-Ussuri rivers should be recognized, in accordance with international law, as running along the main navigational channel. But the 19th-century treaties under which Russia acquired this area placed the border on the Chinese bank of the river and so the Soviets claim the whole river.

Peking says these treaties were "unequal," and the Russians, if they want to treat the Chinese as equals, must recognize them as such. It would seem to be an extremely complex problem because both sides can make a rational case.

Despite the sharpening of rhetoric, Sino-Soviet relations on a state-to-state basis have remained fairly steady. Trade has been climbing between the two countries as Moscow has supplied its former ally with airliners, helicopters, and air-related equipment.

But, significantly, the Russians have been indicating in private that they now are having to consider whether what they supply Peking has strategic value or not.

The imminent Cuba-United States hijacking agreement, or something very like it, could have been concluded three years ago — had Washington wanted it.

That is the view of informed Latin Americans who say that proposals put forward by Cuba in 1969 are essentially the same as today's draft.

For some time already, Cuba has been meting out severe jail terms to some skyjackers. And as far back as 1970, Havana began quietly returning a number of skyjackers to the United States.

Both Washington and Havana have more reason for wanting an accord today than they did in 1969, but in the Latin American view, the current negotiations now under way in Havana are leading to an agreement or some sort of understanding very similar to the 1969 Cuban proposals.

The Cuban proposals were outlined by its United Nations ambassador, Ricardo Alarcon Quesada, in the course of a wide-ranging speech Oct. 8, 1969. They also were aired by Havana Radio and other Cuban media at the time.

Cuba said any agreement on skyjacking must also deal with the hijacking of ships as well as airplanes and with other violations governing traffic between Cuba and the United States.

Latin American sources note there has been a steady flow of ship hijackings by Cubans wanting to go to the United States. Moreover, just before Alarcon spoke to the UN in 1969, a Cuban Air Force lieutenant seized a Cuban MIG-17 and flew it to Florida, where he was granted asylum.

The Cuban proposals in 1969 did not win favor with the United States at the time.

Man's Picture Of Moon Jumps Sharply Into Focus

By JACK WAUGH
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HOUSTON, Tex. — It had seemed all quiet on the moon's face. Apollo 16 had left a new network of instruments there. And lunar scientists listened intently from earth, but not much was stirring.

Suddenly, one day this fall, it happened. A huge impact shook the moon. The shock waves began to reach seismographs on the other side. Lunar scientists raced for their earphones. The moon had been hit on its far side — the dark side. It was just what scientists had hoped would happen. They had waited a long time.

They knew it might tell them the answer to a key lunar question. What was the center of the moon like? Seismometers left on the near side by Apollo astronauts had the data. Everybody waited.

Three weeks ago the news filtered out: A molten core! To the lunar scientists it was like a shot heard 'round the world.

Suddenly a major piece of the lunar puzzle fell into place. And this month as Apollo 17 astronauts walked on the moon for man's last time, perhaps in this century, the story of what really has happened to the moon down through almost measureless time, has jumped into focus.

There still are hundreds of missing pieces in the lunar puzzle. Astronauts have yet to bring back rocks younger than three and one-fifth billion years or older than four and one-fifth billion years. But from that relatively small sliver of time — one billion years — lunar scientists can piece together a tentative picture of how the moon got that way. And this is what it looks like:

The moon was born about four and one-half billion years ago. Just how, nobody still knows for sure. The surface of the moon was hot from accretion, of incoming matter so hot that it melted or partly melted for 100 miles from the surface downward.

At the same time, we now know there was a molten core within, a great iron-rich magna chamber, which was probably acting as a dynamo to give the moon a mightier-than-we-once suspected magnetic field.

Between four and one-half and four billion years ago, a molten material at the lunar surface cooled and hardened into a crust about 40 miles deep. At about the same time, before four billion years ago, the moon, as lunar geophysist Robin Brett of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) puts it, "was being zapped by meteorites from space."

For half a billion years it took a titanic pelting by meteorites, some of them as big as the state of Rhode Island. About four billion years ago, the bombardment stopped. All fell quiet. Suddenly the moon was left in pock-marked silence, massive gouges in it as wide as 600 miles across.

Then, the molten action from within began to take over. For half a billion years, molten material began to fill in the empty basins to form the great seas or mares, as the inquisitive Galileo, gazing on the wonder from earth, was later to call them.

After that, about three billion years ago, the moon fell into almost total inactivity. There was some cinder cone-making and some minor shakings, all small —less than three on the Richter scale — as earthquakes go. But the moon lay still, ghostly, remote, beaten, and silent.

The lunar unknowns are still more than scientists sometime care to think about. Nobody can explain how the moon got there in the first place. Most lunar scientists can only nod in sad agreement with Dr. Harold Urey, who says, "It is far easier to explain the moon's non-existence than it is to explian its existence."

None of the three major theories of lunar origin makes sense. And lunar scientists are all resigned to the possibility they may never know how it all started. The only thing they can be confident of, because the rocks tell them, is what has happened since then.

The moon couldn't have been part of earth that split away, as one theory holds, because the rocks on moon and earth are totally different. Nor could earth and moon have been twins, shaped simultaneously from the same primordial stuff, as another theory holds —for the same reason. And it is difficult for lunar scientists to believe that the moon was made over here and the earth over there and that the two came together and the moon was captured. Nine times out of ten, in that situation, the moon would have crashed into the earth instead of orbiting it.

But the origin aside, lunar scientists can hardly believe they know as much about what has happened since, as they now do. Three and a half years ago, before Apollo, they had a rough idea what the moon's surface was like. They cnew something of its soil mechanics from the earlier unmanned missions. They knew there was some magnetic material on the moon, but had no idea the magnetic field was as powerful as it is. And they had pinned down the moon's approximate bulk density close enough.

Beyond that they knew little. They didn't even know, as the Apollos have since told them, that the moon has a core, a mantle and a crust — just like earth. News like that might bring a blank stare from the man on an earth street. But to a lunar scientist, that is man biting dog, the biggest news of 1972 — or any year.

CRUCIAL QUESTIONS IGNORED?

In Meeting Energy Crisis

By LICIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Environmentalists are concerned that federal regulatory officials may be skipping past some crucial questions in their rush to meet America's rising energy demands.

Of particular concern is the rapid development of nuclear power plants. Currently 26 are operating, accounting for a mere 2 per cent of the nation's electricity supply. However, that percentage share is expected to edge up to 30 by the end of the decade and the number of plants to reach 900 by 1990.

Environmentalists concede that the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), the agency charged with licensing both the construction and operation of such facilities, is asking tougher questions of industry than ever before.

In the critics' view, however, the agency, charged with the promotion of nuclear power as well as its regulation, proceeds always on the basic premise that the licenses will be granted once federal standards are met, simply because the existing energy crisis demands it.

"This is such a critical time," observes Anthony Z. Roisman, a partner in the environmental public interest law firm of Berlin, Roisman, and Kessler. "If all these plants get licensed, and built, ever stopping them would be very difficult. By then we would be so dependent on nuclear power that a rational, objective decision would be out of the question."

The AEC, in this lawyer's view, should be carefully examining other power source alternatives, the possibility of curbing energy demands rather than rushing to meet them, the adequacy of existing federal safety standards, and the cost and reliability factors of a substantial nuclear power investment.

The latter factors alone, says Roisman, should induce the AEC to encourage the building of prototypes and to insist that industry perfect its designs before any more licenses are granted.

Problems in this area have recently brought a number of industry executives to the side of environmentalists in urging caution rather than an unthinking plunge forward for the sake of progress.

Just a few days ago, for instance, the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company announced that it was temporarily cancelling plans to build a $700-million nuclear power plant along the Bush River in Maryland's Harford County because of financing difficulties, changing regulatory rules, and environmentalist objections.

Similarly, a few days before that, at the Atomic Industrial Forum's 1972 international conference in Washington, Louis H. Roddis Jr., president of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, told participants that nuclear power plants were proving to be substantially less reliable than originally predicted and that unless designs were vastly improved a backoff might be well advised.

Noting that many of the "glorious promises" about nuclear energy benefits have not materialized, Roddis specifically mentioned the cost in time and money of the failure of a cooling pipe last spring at his company's Indian Point Number One plant. From start to finish the repair involved $1 million, seven months and 700 men (because of radiation exposure dangers) where a comparable breakdown in a fossil fuel plant would have involved only a fraction of that investment.

The difficulties are such that even the AEC, though firmly committed to a forward thrust in nuclear power development, is showing signs of a slightly more relaxed stance on the speed. In a recent speech at the Atomic Industrial Forum here, AEC Commissioner William O. Doub concluded by admonishing both industry and government to "take it a little easy" and "learn to pace yourselves."

While Congress gave the AEC temporary licensing power early last summer through October, 1973, to meet what it regarded as critical energy shortages, environmentalists insist the legislation involves no significant shortcuts for industry and point out that only the Vermont Yankee reactor has been granted such a license.

That reactor experienced a fire and has been shut down, a factor environmentalists argue may well ward off other utilities from hurriedly filing similar applications and the AEC from granting them. Says Roisman: "I give the utilities credit — they're not environmentalists but they all want reliability."

Under pressure from such varied sources as environmentalists, Congress, and the National Academy of Sciences, the AEC has involved itself in extensive research and public hearings on various aspects of nuclear reactor safety. Critics argue, however, there still are significant gaps between theory and practice and in some cases a vacuum in theory itself.

One such area is waste disposal. The AEC has now scheduled a public hearing on this question for next Feb. 1. But in Roisman's view, the agency will be "dancing on the periphery of the issue" by discussing what to do with the waste rather than facing the basic question of whether they want it at all.

The AEC has developed various proposals for the treatment of nuclear power plant waste according to the toxicity of the product, but critics contend that, at best, the solutions are only interim. High-level liquid waste with a high radioactivity concentration, for instance, is now frequently solidified and stored underground in steel-lined concrete tanks.

But given the decay potential of man-made materials, the possibilities of accidental leakage, and the long life of some nuclear waste products (Plutonium-239, for instance, takes 50 years to decay to a harmless level) long-term solutions still are needed.

Another area of top concern to those urging a slowdown in nuclear development is the safety feature required in plants of Emergency Core Cooling Systems (ECCS).

This safeguard, required by the commission, is an emergency arrangement to cool the zirconium alloy which surrounds the reactor core in the event of a mishap. There is disagreement even among AEC experts as to how adequate the current ECCS standard is. In hearings set up to last about two months but now stretching out to about a year's time, the AEC and others have been debating the subject at Bethesda, Md. It now appears slightly more stringent standards will be forthcoming.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon said hail and farewell this week to America's manned flights to the moon in the 20th Century.

Nixon's remarks came shortly after the last of the Apollo series lunar module "Challenger" left the surface of the moon for its rendezvous with the command ship "America".

"This may be the last time in this century that men will walk on the moon," the President said.

"But," Nixon added, "space exploration will continue, the benefits of space exploration will continue and there will be new dreams to pursue based on what we have learned."

Challenger docked with America in a 71-mile-high orbit around the moon.

On Saturday evening the three astronauts will fire the main engine aboard America to break away from lunar gravity and head back to Earth.

The men, Eugene A. Cernan and Harrison H. Schmitt, who explored the moons surface; and Ronald E. Evans, who commanded the America, are scheduled to splash down in the South Pacific Tuesday.

The return of Apollo 17 to earth will end the $25 billion project that landed 12 Americans on the moon. The United States has current no plans to return.

Around The World Around The Clock

SAIGON: Communists stepped up attacks around Saigon with bombing of South Vietnam's largest ammunition dump, setting off 11 hours of explosions and a rocket assault on Bien Hos air base just outside the capital.

PARIS: North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, left Paris for Hanoi expressing optimism about a settlement ending the Vietnam War. Tho left Paris after 10 days of talks with chief U.S. negotiator Henry Kissinger, who returned to Washington for consultations with President Nixon.

BELFAST: A bomb killed a teen-age girl mailing invitations to her wedding and gunmen killed a man standing on a Belfast street corner, raising the Northern Ireland death toll over the past three years to 622.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.: Former President Harry S. Truman's condition deteriorated to "very serious" toward the end of the week although he was not placed on the critical list because "his vital signs remain fairly stable."

ASUNCTION, Paraguay: Former Argentine President Juan Peron turned down a presidential nomination which the military government forbade anyway and headed for his exile home in Spain. He indicated he would return to Buenos Aires in January.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER INTERLUDE

Anna Heins of Novato, as Beatrice, and Vanessa Witt of Mill Valley, as Ruth, have a moment of family closeness in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." Final performances of the play will be at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, 267 Buena Vista Avenue. The cast combines adult performers from throughout Marin County with young actors from Tamalpais High School drama classes. Director is Cynthia David, who has performed in the American Conservatory Theater and Marin Shakespeare Festival.

BOOED DIVA IS DEFINITE ABOUT VOICE

LONDON (UPI) — Diva Amy Shuard, booed by the audience at a performance of Puccini's opera "Turandot" in Naples, returned home Friday night clutching a bouquet of flowers—and some nasty suspicions.

"I still stick by my theory that all this was a put up job," she said of the booing.

"I was halfway through my performance when the stage lights dimmed. This was the signal for the booing and jeering to start from the gallery," she said. "I was staggered. Nothing like it has ever happened to me before during any of my performances."

Someone asked if it was perhaps possible her voice was not up to its usual high standard.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "I was singing superbly."

Big Spender Sought In Gem Thefts

ROME (UPI) — Police said they became suspicious when an airport employe who earned $254 a month purchased a luxury car, an apartment costing $45,760 and was negotiating the purchase of a speedboat.

Then, police said Friday, when they found a diamond at his home and evidence that he pawned six other diamonds, they thought they had solved the theft of diamonds worth $1.7 million from a mail pouch last summer at Leonardo da Vinci airport.

They arrested Mrs. Roberto Oronzo, 23, and said they were seeking her husband on charges of stealing the diamonds as they passed through Rome en route from Johannesburg to Hong Kong.

The theft was discovered in Hong Kong. Italian police began checking airport employes.

Oronzo's spending drew attention to him.

A search of his new home, police said, turned up a diamond worth $8,470 and evidence he pawned six more diamonds worth $1,690 each.

Oronzo apparently became suspicious he was under investigation, police said, and fled, possibly to South Africa.

Ship Disturbances Said Not Fully Racial Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of a House Armed Services subcommittee say racial conflict was not the only cause of recent disturbances aboard at least three Navy ships.

The subcommittee members also suggested that testimony showed military discipline to be better than they had expected, but improvement was needed.

The subcommittee met in private for three hours Friday. Members were questioned by newsmen after the session.

"There has been too much emphasis on the racial aspect," said Rep. W. C. Daniel, D-Va.

Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., said the fights between black and white crewmen were not as serious as first believed. "We found some areas, however, where discipline needs to be corrected," he said.

Hicks, the subcommittee chairman, Daniel and Rep. Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., took testimony Friday from Navy Secretary John W. Warner and Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of naval operations.

Hicks said testimony Monday from Assistant Defense Secretary Roger T. Kelley should complete the hearings. A report on the subcommittee findings will be worked up then, Hicks said.

Rep. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, set up the three-member panel to determine whether there was "too much permissiveness" in the Navy following racial fights aboard the carriers Kitty Hawk and Constellation and an oil tanker.

The subcommittee opened the hearings in San Diego where testimony was taken from crew members and relatives of crewmen involved in the fights.

Warner and Zumwalt, who has gained publicity for easing some long-standing Navy regulations, said nothing of substance to newsmen after the hearing.

"This committee is not out to hang Adm. Zumwalt," Hicks said. "In fact in some instances we will probably commend him."

Court Martials Open For 21 Black Sailors

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The court-martials of 21 black sailors began Friday at the Navy Law Center, two months after a race riot erupted aboard the war zone-bound aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk.

Testimony in the proceedings was not expected to be heard until late next week, or even the week after.

Four military jurors chosen to help preside over the court-martials were present during the first hearing, which was confined to preliminary defense motions. The only one of the defendants to present himself during Friday's hearing was Seaman Cleveland Mallory, 19, Pittsburgh.

NAACP attorneys said they intend to make a test case out of the special court-martial against Mallory, who is accused of rioting and assault.

One member of the sailors' civilian defense team challenged the authority of the Navy to court-martial the young black crewmen, but the Navy trial judge turned down the motion.

Mallory and 18 other Kitty Hawk sailors have been recommended for special court-martials for allegedly taking part in hand-to-hand combat with Marine guards Oct. 12-13 while the carrier steamed toward Vietnam. Forty-six sailors were hurt during the brawling.

Another of the crewman has been recommended for a more serious general court-martial and the matter will be brought up Wednesday. The 21st crewman has also been charged with rioting and may also be brought up on a general court-martial.

General Plan Policy Clarified

The proposed countywide general plan does not suggest that open space funds be allocated only to cities that have accepted its low and moderate-income housing policies, Marin County Planning Director Werner von Gundell said yesterday.

Von Gundell said statements that it does, contained in a parks and recreation department document and reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal, are incorrect.

He said the plan proposes that cities working for more low and moderate-income housing be given "priority" for such funds.

Museums To Pool Masterworks

PARIS (UPI) — Two of the greatest museums in the world are pooling their artistic assets, launching what one museum director called "a new epoch."

The museums are the Louvre in Paris and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, storehouses of masterworks ranging from the Mona Lisa to primitive arts of African tribes. The "Met" alone has more than 1 million art works and has the largest collection in the Western Hemisphere.

Culture Minister Jacques Duhamel announced the move Friday in the presence of Thomas P. Hoving, director of the Metropolitan, and Jean Chatelain, the head of all French national museums.

"The two museums are entering a new epoch," Hoving said, "an international epoch which will affect all the great museums in the world."

One aim is to make borrowing and lending of great works easier and less costly.

Another is to organize a series of special exhibits, starting in late 1973 in Paris with a showing of Medieval tapestries.

Hoving also announced his museum will return to France some of the parts of a portal from the Saint-Michel de Cuxa monastery which are now in New York.

'London Flu' Outbreaks Listed In Two Areas Of United States

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first major civilian outbreak of an influenza-like virus that may be the "London flu" has been reported in Baltimore, the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) said Friday.

Additionally, the CDC said Ft. Huachuca Army Base in Arizona had also reported an outbreak.

The CDC did not identify the virus in the Baltimore outbreak, but the city was listed as one of five major U.S. cities where a flu bug similar to the "London flu" had been isolated.

Emergency room visits at Baltimore hospitals were 30 to 40 per cent higher than expected, with the majority of the increase represented by respiratory disease.

The Arizona Army base reported 621 cases of influenza between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, representing an attack rate of 91.3 per 1,000 soldiers.

Laboratory tests revealed the influenza virus was similar to the A-England-42-72 strain, or London flu.

Victims reported classic flu symptons which lasted two to three days followed by malaise for an additional two to three days.

To date, most of the flu outbreaks in the country have been limited to military installations at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.; and at Lowry Air Force Base and Ent Air Force Base, both in Colorado.

The CDC also said last week that isolated cases of influenza closely resembling the London flu had been reported in Memphis, Tenn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Anchorage, Alaska, and Seattle, Wash.

A virus similar to the London flu bug was also isolated from patients with an influenza-like disease in a prison in New York City.

The World Health Orangization (WHO), said the CDC, has reported that an influenza outbreak started in November in Bulgaria with a virus similar to A-England-42-72. The WHO report said influenza appeared widespread in England, where 71 strains of flu, all similar to the London flu have been isolated.

50 Foreign Visitors Stranded In Oregon

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — Fifty foreign visitors found themselves stranded in Oregon Friday amid much confusion over their means of travel and who was paying for it.

The visitors—from England, Canada, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico and New Zealand—had been on what they thought was a chartered flight from London to Los Angeles.

They were a little surprised when the plane landed in Seattle, but assumed everything was all right when the tour broker convinced Continental Trailways that it was to bus the group to Los Angeles.

Then things got complicated. The tour broker disappeared and Continental Trailways halted the trip in Medford when it discovered the fare had not been paid.

Finally the director of overseas tours for Continental said the tour could continue to Los Angeles at the bus firm's expense.

Continental, meanwhile, was trying to contact London authorities to straighten out the mixup.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Waste Time Feeling Guilty In A Silly Slam Bid

Do you feel guilty when you bid a silly slam and then manage to bring it in? If it's any comfort, the same thing happens to all of the best players. The only difference is that they don't waste time feeling guilty — unless they muff a change to make the silly slam. The principle is illustrated today with a hand played a few weeks ago in the Chairty Fund session held continent-wide by the American Contract Bridge League.

A SILLY BID

The slam was a silly one to bid because South had no way of knowing that the dummy would have help in hearts. If North had two very low hearts instead of the 10-9, there would virtually no play for the slam.

Even the actual dummy would be useless for slam purposes if the six missing clubs failed to break 3-3; and the odds are almost 2 to 1 against the favorable club break.

WITH THE ACE

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, cashed the top clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. When both opponents followed suit, South was tempted to draw two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy. If this exhausted all of the missing trumps, declarer could cash dummy's two good clubs to discard low spades.

WOULD NOT WORK

The plan would not have worked since East actually had three trumps instead of precisely two. But one player at the national tournament knew better than to rely on a 2-2 trump break. East needed about 12 or 13 points in high cards for his opening bid, which left only about two or three points for West. But West needed more than those two or three high-card points for his raise to three diamonds, and a singleton in hearts was the most likely reason.

South therefore led a heart to the nine and returned a good club from dummy. East had to ruff, and South overruffed. South then led another low heart to dummy's ten, discarded a spade on dummy's last club and finally led a spade through the ace to make sure of a trick with the king of spades.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- J 5 3
♥- 10 9
♦- 9 6 2
♣- A 8 7 4 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Some experts would bid one no-trump, but most would pass. If partner opened with one spade, you would risk a raise to two spades since then your jack of spades would be worth a trifle more, and the doubleton in hearts would be an asset rather than a liability.

Buyer Of Stolen Car Said Duped

A Marin Municipal Court judge has dismissed a felony car theft charge against 24-year-old Ralph Richard Umland of San Rafael, who apparently was duped into buying a stolen car for $50 because he can't read or write.

Judge Robert A. Smallman dismissed the charge after Umland told him he thought the man he gave the money to was signing over the pink slip when, in fact, the man gave him something else.

Umland was arrested by San Rafael police on Thanksgiving after they stopped his car for an apparent speeding violation on Fourth Street and found it had been stolen a month before.

INSIDE THE SOVIET UNION

Religion A Key Challenge

By PAUL WOHL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Religion is posing a growing challenge for Russian leaders.

It appears, for instance, that while the appeal of Marxism-Leninism has been declining, religion has been attracting more and more young people.

The Kremlin is aware of Communism's declining influence. At high official levels it tries to engage in a dialogue with religious thinkers.

But in the country at large the mallet blows of administrative repression continue. In recent months many priests and lay writers of the Orthodox Church have been arrested, and bishops and even an archbishop (Archbishop Paul of Novosibirsk and Barnaul) have been demoted or retired without pension.

The Reform-Baptists, Pentocostals, and other sects are persecuted more harshly than ever; Roman Catholic parishes are harrassed; Jewish and Buddhist religious groups are hounded.

This judgment of the Russian religious scene is based on years of research by the London Center for the Study of Religion and Communism. The work of the center, under the leadership of Rev. Michael Bourdeaux, has commanded even the respect of Soviet officialdom.

Its quiet, unpolemical method, combined with the wealth and authenticity of its inside information, gleaned from the network of indirect contacts with a wide variety of religious groups in the U.S.S.R., has forced the Russians to take heed of its findings.

Besides the gowing influence of religion among young Russians, the center has found that underground, or samizdat, religious literature has spread in recent years.

Religious publications are the only ones that somehow are produced in printing and duplicating facilities. The most important ones are the Reform-Baptists' "Christian Press' and the journal of the Lithuanian Roman Catholic Church.

Nobody knows how it is done, but more and more, more readable bulletins of religious groups reach the West.

This flow of information would not be possible without the devoted collaboration of Russians outwardly in good standing with the regime.

Among the many authentic underground documents in the possession of Bourdeaux's study center is the original text of the petition of more than 17,000 Lithuanian Catholics addressed last January to Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev through the intermediary of the secretary-general of the United Nations.

From the accompanying notes of the Lithuanians, we know that the collection of signatures was stopped at a very early stage by the Russian KGB (security police). Otherwise many more signatures would have been gathered.

The more than 17,000 who were able to sign the document gave their full names and addresses and occasionally even their telephone numbers — an unprecedented sign of steadfast courage by men and women in defying the world's most powerful totalitarian regime.

As a whole, Communist attempts to infiltrate religious groups have been singularly unsuccessful.

Because the Kremlin has become aware of the world influence of religion, Bourdeaux's center has found, it has increasingly been trying to appease and mislead Westerners with religious pretense.

Quite recently, for example, a delegation of official Soviet religious leaders was due to tour the United States under the leadership of Metropolitan Nikodem, often referred to as the "foreign minister" of the Moscow patriarchate.

At the last minute, the mission to the West was postponed, reportedly because its leader was ill.

Metropolitan Nikodem, one of the three highest dignitaries of the Russian Orthodox Church, is characteristic of the kind of religious strawmen set up by the Kremlin.

Rather than completing his theological studies in one of Russia's few remaining seminaries, Metropolitan Nikodem acquired his religious degree through a correspondence course.

Once Metropolitan Nikodem had acquired a degree, he was sent by the patriarchate to the Russian Spiritual Institute (administered by the Russian Government) in Jerusalem, where he learned Hebrew and gained the polish and social and diplomatic skills that enabled him to cultivate relations, first with non-Russian Orthodox clergymen, and ultimately with the World Council of Churches.

A diplomat and a Communist propagandist, Metropolitan Nikodem has become an asset for the Kremlin. Yet even he may sometimes have to walk a tightrope to remain in the good graces of an increasingly nervous regime.

Whether the fairly young Metropolitan's physical indisposition was genuine is anybody's guess, but other Soviet religious missions, with or without the Metropolitan, are due sooner or later in the West.

Such religious missions are supposed to convey the impression that religion enjoys constitutional guarantees in the Soviet Union. The friendly reception the missions usually receive by those who wish to give the Russians the benefit of the doubt is used by the Kremlin for propaganda purposes at home and to undermine the support Western religionists try to give their colleagues in the USSR

Retiring Minister To Be Feted Tomorrow

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, who is retiring, will be honored following tomorrow's morning services.

Kent came to Marin in September 1963 to lead the newly-formed congregation. During his nine years, the church has expanded — moving into its new home.

The retiring pastor has served as moderator of the Presbytery of the Redwoods and chairman of the Marin Council of Churches. He has also been active in the Marin County chapter of the American Red Cross and Rotary International.

Following a trip to his native Holland after the Christmas holidays, he will retain his residence in Marin.

$50,000 Is Allocated For New Guinea Aid

NEW YORK (LC) — Lutheran World Relief has allocated $50,000 to help alleviate widespread famine conditions in the wake of frost, drought, and bush fires in the highlands area of Papua, New Guinea.

According to reports received here by the LWR's board of directors, about 130,000 people are starving as a result of severe frosts in the Southern and Western Highlands which have wiped out thousands of acres of sweet potatoes, the staple food of Highlanders. To make matters worse, the areas are also suffering a prolonged drought, and fire has destroyed 200 houses.

Lutheran Group Reelects President

NEW YORK (LC) — Dr. Luverne Rieke, law professor at the University of Washington in Seattle, has been re-elected president of the USA National Committee of the Lutheran World Federation.

A layman of the American Lutheran Church, Dr. Rieke will be serving his second term as head of the USA committee.

Call For Volunteers For The Philippines

I-J Special Report

MONROVIA — A call for young, mature Christian volunteers to serve in the Philippines for 10 months has been issued by Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of World Vision International.

The volunteers will be part of 25 five-man teams who will pave the way and follow-up two evangelistic crusades set for the Philippines in November 1973 and April 1974.

Mobile Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — A church-mobile, a converted bus with all features of a conventional church — even to the steeple on top, was devised by Rev. Robert Dunlop, the only Baptist minister in County Kildare, Ireland, because he could not get to all the people who wanted to attend his church.

Hispanic Lutherans Form Organization

NEW YORK (LC) — A permanent National Hispanic Lutheran Assembly was organized at a three-day meeting here attended by 40 Hispanic Lutheran pastors and laymen from 14 states and Puerto Rico. Also participating were 17 Spanish-speaking non-Hispanos.

Elected chairman of a 12-member board of directors, composed of laymen and pastors, was Dr. Victor M. Rodriguez of San Juan, Puerto Rico, president of the Caribbean Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Other officers named were the Rev. Ruben Dario Colon, pastor of Resurrection Lutheran Church, Bronx, N. Y., vice chairman; Carlos Segovia of Chicago, a layman of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, secretary, and Rev. Jose G. Puerto, an LCMS pastor attached to Christ Lutheran Church (LCA) in West New York, N.J., treasurer.

A Declaration of Purpose adopted by the Assembly listed the following objectives:

1. developing a communication system among Hispano-American Lutherans; 2. sensitizing Lutherans to the needs of Hispanic American congregations and communities and the need to develop new approaches to ministry; 3. developing ministry expertise through special curricula in Lutheran seminaries and other training institutions; 4. recruitment and scholarships for future Hispano-Lutheran pastors, 5. development of lay ministries, and 6. producing original Hispanic Christian literature.

The Assembly devoted an evening to exploring the theme "Conscientizacion Christiana." In a brief paper, Rev. Roberto Navarro, an ALC pastor serving with the Texas Conference of Churches, stressed the need for increasing sensitivity to the Hispanic cultural reality in America.

There are 120 Lutheran congregations in the U.S. and Puerto Rico that use the Spanish language in their ministry. The nation's Hispanic American population is estimated at 10 to 12 million.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER INTERLUDE

Anna Heins of Novato, as Beatrice, and Vanessa Witt of Mill Valley, as Ruth, have a moment of family closeness in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." Final performances of the play will be at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, 267 Buena Vista Avenue. The cast combines adult performers from throughout Marin County with young actors from Tamalpais High School drama classes. Director is Cynthia David, who has performed in the American Conservatory Theater and Marin Shakespeare Festival.

BOOED DIVA IS DEFINITE ABOUT VOICE

LONDON (UPI) — Diva Amy Shuard, booed by the audience at a performance of Puccini's opera "Turandot" in Naples, returned home Friday night clutching a bouquet of flowers—and some nasty suspicions.

"I still stick by my theory that all this was a put up job," she said of the booing.

"I was halfway through my performance when the stage lights dimmed. This was the signal for the booing and jeering to start from the gallery," she said. "I was staggered. Nothing like it has ever happened to me before during any of my performances."

Someone asked if it was perhaps possible her voice was not up to its usual high standard.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "I was singing superbly."

Ship Disturbances Said Not Fully Racial Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of a House Armed Services subcommittee say racial conflict was not the only cause of recent disturbances aboard at least three Navy ships.

The subcommittee members also suggested that testimony showed military discipline to be better than they had expected, but improvement was needed.

The subcommittee met in private for three hours Friday. Members were questioned by newsmen after the session.

"There has been too much emphasis on the racial aspect," said Rep. W. C. Daniel, D-Va.

Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., said the fights between black and white crewmen were not as serious as first believed. "We found some areas, however, where discipline needs to be corrected," he said.

Hicks, the subcommittee chairman, Daniel and Rep. Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., took testimony Friday from Navy Secretary John W. Warner and Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of naval operations.

Hicks said testimony Monday from Assistant Defense Secretary Roger T. Kelley should complete the hearings. A report on the subcommittee findings will be worked up then, Hicks said.

Rep. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, set up the three-member panel to determine whether there was "too much permissiveness" in the Navy following racial fights aboard the carriers Kitty Hawk and Constellation and an oil tanker.

The subcommittee opened the hearings in San Diego where testimony was taken from crew members and relatives of crewmen involved in the fights.

Warner and Zumwalt, who has gained publicity for easing some long-standing Navy regulations, said nothing of substance to newsmen after the hearing.

"This committee is not out to hang Adm. Zumwalt," Hicks said. "In fact in some instances we will probably commend him."

Court Martials Open For 21 Black Sailors

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The court-martials of 21 black sailors began Friday at the Navy Law Center, two months after a race riot erupted aboard the war zone-bound aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk.

Testimony in the proceedings was not expected to be heard until late next week, or even the week after.

Four military jurors chosen to help preside over the court-martials were present during the first hearing, which was confined to preliminary defense motions. The only one of the defendants to present himself during Friday's hearing was Seaman Cleveland Mallory, 19, Pittsburgh.

NAACP attorneys said they intend to make a test case out of the special court-martial against Mallory, who is accused of rioting and assault.

One member of the sailors' civilian defense team challenged the authority of the Navy to court-martial the young black crewmen, but the Navy trial judge turned down the motion.

Mallory and 18 other Kitty Hawk sailors have been recommended for special court-martials for allegedly taking part in hand-to-hand combat with Marine guards Oct. 12-13 while the carrier steamed toward Vietnam. Forty-six sailors were hurt during the brawling.

Another of the crewman has been recommended for a more serious general court-martial and the matter will be brought up Wednesday. The 21st crewman has also been charged with rioting and may also be brought up on a general court-martial.

General Plan Policy Clarified

The proposed countywide general plan does not suggest that open space funds be allocated only to cities that have accepted its low and moderate-income housing policies, Marin County Planning Director Werner von Gundell said yesterday.

Von Gundell said statements that it does, contained in a parks and recreation department document and reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal, are incorrect.

He said the plan proposes that cities working for more low and moderate-income housing be given "priority" for such funds.

Big Spender Sought In Gem Thefts

ROME (UPI) — Police said they became suspicious when an airport employe who earned $254 a month purchased a luxury car, an apartment costing $45,760 and was negotiating the purchase of a speedboat.

Then, police said Friday, when they found a diamond at his home and evidence that he pawned six other diamonds, they thought they had solved the theft of diamonds worth $1.7 million from a mail pouch last summer at Leonardo da Vinci airport.

They arrested Mrs. Roberto Oronzo, 23, and said they were seeking her husband on charges of stealing the diamonds as they passed through Rome en route from Johannesburg to Hong Kong.

The theft was discovered in Hong Kong. Italian police began checking airport employes.

Oronzo's spending drew attention to him.

A search of his new home, police said, turned up a diamond worth $8,470 and evidence he pawned six more diamonds worth $1,690 each.

Oronzo apparently became suspicious he was under investigation, police said, and fled, possibly to South Africa.

The Capuchin monkeys, common in South America, are sometimes called ring-tailed monkeys because they often carry their tails rolled into a tight coil.

Museums To Pool Masterworks

PARIS (UPI) — Two of the greatest museums in the world are pooling their artistic assets, launching what one museum director called "a new epoch."

The museums are the Louvre in Paris and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, storehouses of masterworks ranging from the Mona Lisa to primitive arts of African tribes. The "Met" alone has more than 1 million art works and has the largest collection in the Western Hemisphere.

Culture Minister Jacques Duhamel announced the move Friday in the presence of Thomas P. Hoving, director of the Metropolitan, and Jean Chatelain, the head of all French national museums.

"The two museums are entering a new epoch," Hoving said, "an international epoch which will affect all the great museums in the world."

One aim is to make borrowing and lending of great works easier and less costly.

Another is to organize a series of special exhibits, starting in late 1973 in Paris with a showing of Medieval tapestries.

Hoving also announced his museum will return to France some of the parts of a portal from the Saint-Michel de Cuxa monastery which are now in New York.

'London Flu' Outbreaks Listed In Two Areas Of United States

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first major civilian outbreak of an influenza-like virus that may be the "London flu" has been reported in Baltimore, the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) said Friday.

Additionally, the CDC said Ft. Huachuca Army Base in Arizona had also reported an outbreak.

The CDC did not identify the virus in the Baltimore outbreak, but the city was listed as one of five major U.S. cities where a flu bug similar to the "London flu" had been isolated.

Emergency room visits at Baltimore hospitals were 30 to 40 per cent higher than expected, with the majority of the increase represented by respiratory disease.

The Arizona Army base reported 621 cases of influenza between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, representing an attack rate of 91.3 per 1,000 soldiers.

Laboratory tests revealed the influenza virus was similar to the A-England-42-72 strain, or London flu.

Victims reported classic flu symptons which lasted two to three days followed by malaise for an additional two to three days.

To date, most of the flu outbreaks in the country have been limited to military installations at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.; and at Lowry Air Force Base and Ent Air Force Base, both in Colorado.

The CDC also said last week that isolated cases of influenza closely resembling the London flu had been reported in Memphis, Tenn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Anchorage, Alaska, and Seattle, Wash.

A virus similar to the London flu bug was also isolated from patients with an influenza-like disease in a prison in New York City.

The World Health Orangization (WHO), said the CDC, has reported that an influenza outbreak started in November in Bulgaria with a virus similar to A-England-42-72. The WHO report said influenza appeared widespread in England, where 71 strains of flu, all similar to the London flu have been isolated.

50 Foreign Visitors Stranded In Oregon

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — Fifty foreign visitors found themselves stranded in Oregon Friday amid much confusion over their means of travel and who was paying for it.

The visitors—from England, Canada, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico and New Zealand—had been on what they thought was a chartered flight from London to Los Angeles.

They were a little surprised when the plane landed in Seattle, but assumed everything was all right when the tour broker convinced Continental Trailways that it was to bus the group to Los Angeles.

Then things got complicated. The tour broker disappeared and Continental Trailways halted the trip in Medford when it discovered the fare had not been paid.

Finally the director of overseas tours for Continental said the tour could continue to Los Angeles at the bus firm's expense.

Continental, meanwhile, was trying to contact London authorities to straighten out the mixup.

Basketball Tourney: Tars Host Foothill Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Demonstrating two different kinds of patience, College of Marin and Foothill College of Los Altos won their semi-final games last night and will collide tonight at 9 o'clock for the championship of the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament.

The host Tars survived a tense and frustrating stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to eke out a 58-55 victory, while Foothill calmly ran through its testbook offensive patterns for an 83-60 triumph over defending champion Reedley.

Reedley will meet Ohlone for third place tonight at 7 o'clock, while Santa Rosa will play Solano of Suisun City for the consolation title at 5 p.m. Santa Rosa defeated Napa yesterday, 91-80, and Solano topped Sierra of Rocklin, 55-52.

Neither Marin (8-1) nor Ohlone (6-2) ever led by more than five points in the seesaw battle, but when the visiting Renegades achieved a 49-48 lead on a bank shot by forward Chuck Pierce with 8:48 left, they decided to make the one point stand up.

Ohlone held the ball for two minutes, then took a three-point lead on a layup by guard Dave Whaley. When Marin guard Len Smith cut the gap back to one with a jumper, Ohlone stalled nearly three minutes more before guard Mike Perry made two free throws for a 53-50 lead.

Marin center Neil Traub then scored on a hook shot with 3:41 left, and was fouled on the play. When he missed the free throw, forward Joe Casteel rebounded and tossed the ball to forward Wil Garner, who hit a jumper for a 54-53 lead. Garner later scored again after he and Traub forced a turnover at midcourt, giving Marin a 56-53 lead and the ball game.

Garner led Marin with 23 points while Casteel and Smith added 12 each. Smith did a fine defensive job on Ohlone's Pierce, holding him to two points in the second half and 12 for the game after Pierce had scored 31, 33 and 27 in his previous three outings. "Wore him like a shirt," said Tar assistant coach Jim Webster.

For only the second time in nine games, Marin was outrebounded, this time by a 35-28 margin. The Tars compensated by shooting 46 per cent (26 of 56) and restricting the Renegades to 41 per cent (24 of 58) from the floor — not much of a difference, but more than enough in a three-point ball game.

Marin's foe Foothill (6-2) drew praise from Tar head coach John Panagakis during its systematic destruction of Reedley (3-5). "They're very patient," he said. "They run their offense like a machine."

Foothill got 20 points from Scott McLean and 17 more from K.C. Jackson in its victory. The Owls made 27 of 35 free throws, while Reedley went to the line only 14 times, making 9.

Also contributing heavily to the attack were Mike Roman with 13 points and Gary Schaefer, a 6-9 center, with 10. Jackson had 10 rebounds.

Rick Bakker of Napa (0-8) scored 36 points, but it wasn't enough to bring the Chiefs their first victory of the season. Santa Rosa (5-3) responded with twin 18-point efforts from Rudy Navarro and Bill Healy and had five other scorers with eight or more points.

The victors shot a healthy 44 per cent from the floor on 38 of 86 attempts. They had nine more shots than Napa, and made six of them.

Solano (4-4) erected a 34-23 halftime lead, then had to struggle to hold back Sierra (2-6) by three points. Jim Hicks scored 18 points, Stan Foster and Kelly McWilliams 10 apiece and former San Rafael High School star Donnie Canfield 8 for the Falcons, who shot 45 per

Terra Linda Tips Piner

Terra Linda High School broke a four-game losing streak last night with a 51-41 nonleague basketball victory over Piner of Santa Rosa on the winners' court.

In other action involving Marin County teams, San Marin rallied to beat Vintage of Napa, 57-54; Redwood also rallied to top Lincoln of San Francisco, 60-50; San Rafael lost to Vallejo, 55-46; Tamalpais lost to San Mateo, 76-63; and Novato bowed to Santa Rosa, 73-61.

Terra Linda's press defense set the game's tempo against ball-control oriented Piner, according to Trojan coach Bob Corley. The harassed Prospectors attempted only 38 shots from the floor, and even though they shot 45 per cent to make 17 field goals, Terra Linda outscored them with 22 successes in 63 tries for 35 per cent.

The Trojans (4-5) were led by Mark Lowey's 17 points and Scott Logan's 15.

San Marin (6-2) outscored Vintage in the second half, 37-23, to overcome a 11-point halftime deficit against Vintage.

Mustang Hoza Wright scored 18 points and Fred Doar 13 in the second half to lead the late charges. Wright and Doar finished with 23, and 16 points respectively. Price (Skip) Starnes led in rebounds with 14, and Doar pulled down 10.

San Rafael's three-game winning streak came to an end with its loss to powerful Vallejo. The Bulldogs (5-3) sank eight free throws, but missed 14 to fall short of a major upset. Vallejo shot seven of 14 from the line.

Bulldog Byron Stewart scored 17 points and grabbed a game-leading 13 rebounds. Vallejo's Ricky Beavers scored 23.

Redwood evened its record at 4-4 in preparation for the tough Yuba City tournament next week by outscoring Lincoln in the fourth quarter, 21-10.

Warriors Trek To Baltimore

Combined AP & UPI

BALTIMORE — The Golden State Warriors will try to cap a successful road trip by defeating the Baltimore Bullets here tonight.

The Warriors won their third straight by trouncing Buffalo 123-95 Friday night. Golden State now is 2-1 on the current road tour.

Hot shooting in the third period erased Buffalo's 57-49 halftime lead as the Warriors outscored the Braves 42-10 in that stanza to go ahead 91-67.

Cazzie Russell and Jeff Mullins led the surge with Russell scoring 15 of his 23 game points in the third quarter and Mullins contributing 12 of his 27. Guard Fritz Williams, scoreless in the first half, tallied 20 points in the final two quarters for the Warriors.

The Braves shot out in front 18-4 in the game's first six minutes as even Rick Barry missed a free throw, his first miscue after 27 straight good ones for the Warriors.

The Warriors hit 63 per cent of their shots in the second half and took command of the backboards. Center Nate Thurmond led the team with 24 rebounds for the night.

Elmore Smith had 19 and Bob McAdoo 18 for the Braves.

The Warriors, now 19-10, come home for seven games after tonight's test. They even gained a game on mighty Los Angeles Friday as the Lakers lost 102-98 to Boston. The Warriors are now 5½ back of Los Angeles.

Coast Cage Teams In Good Evening's Work

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

While the West Coast's two best college basketball teams had the night off, the best of the rest of the West ran wild Friday in a big night of wins across the nation.

Washington, Oregon and the University of San Francisco kept unbeaten slates by winning impressively far from home while top 10 teams UCLA and Long Beach State were idle.

The Huskies, now 5-0, were especially impressive in roaring 102-68 at Wichita State with 13 different players in the scoring column.

The Ducks are now 4-0 after freshman Ron Lee's 19 points led them past Colorado State 73-68 in the first game of the University of Kentucky Invitational tourney. Oregon gets its toughest test tonight when it meets the nationally rated Wildcats in the final.

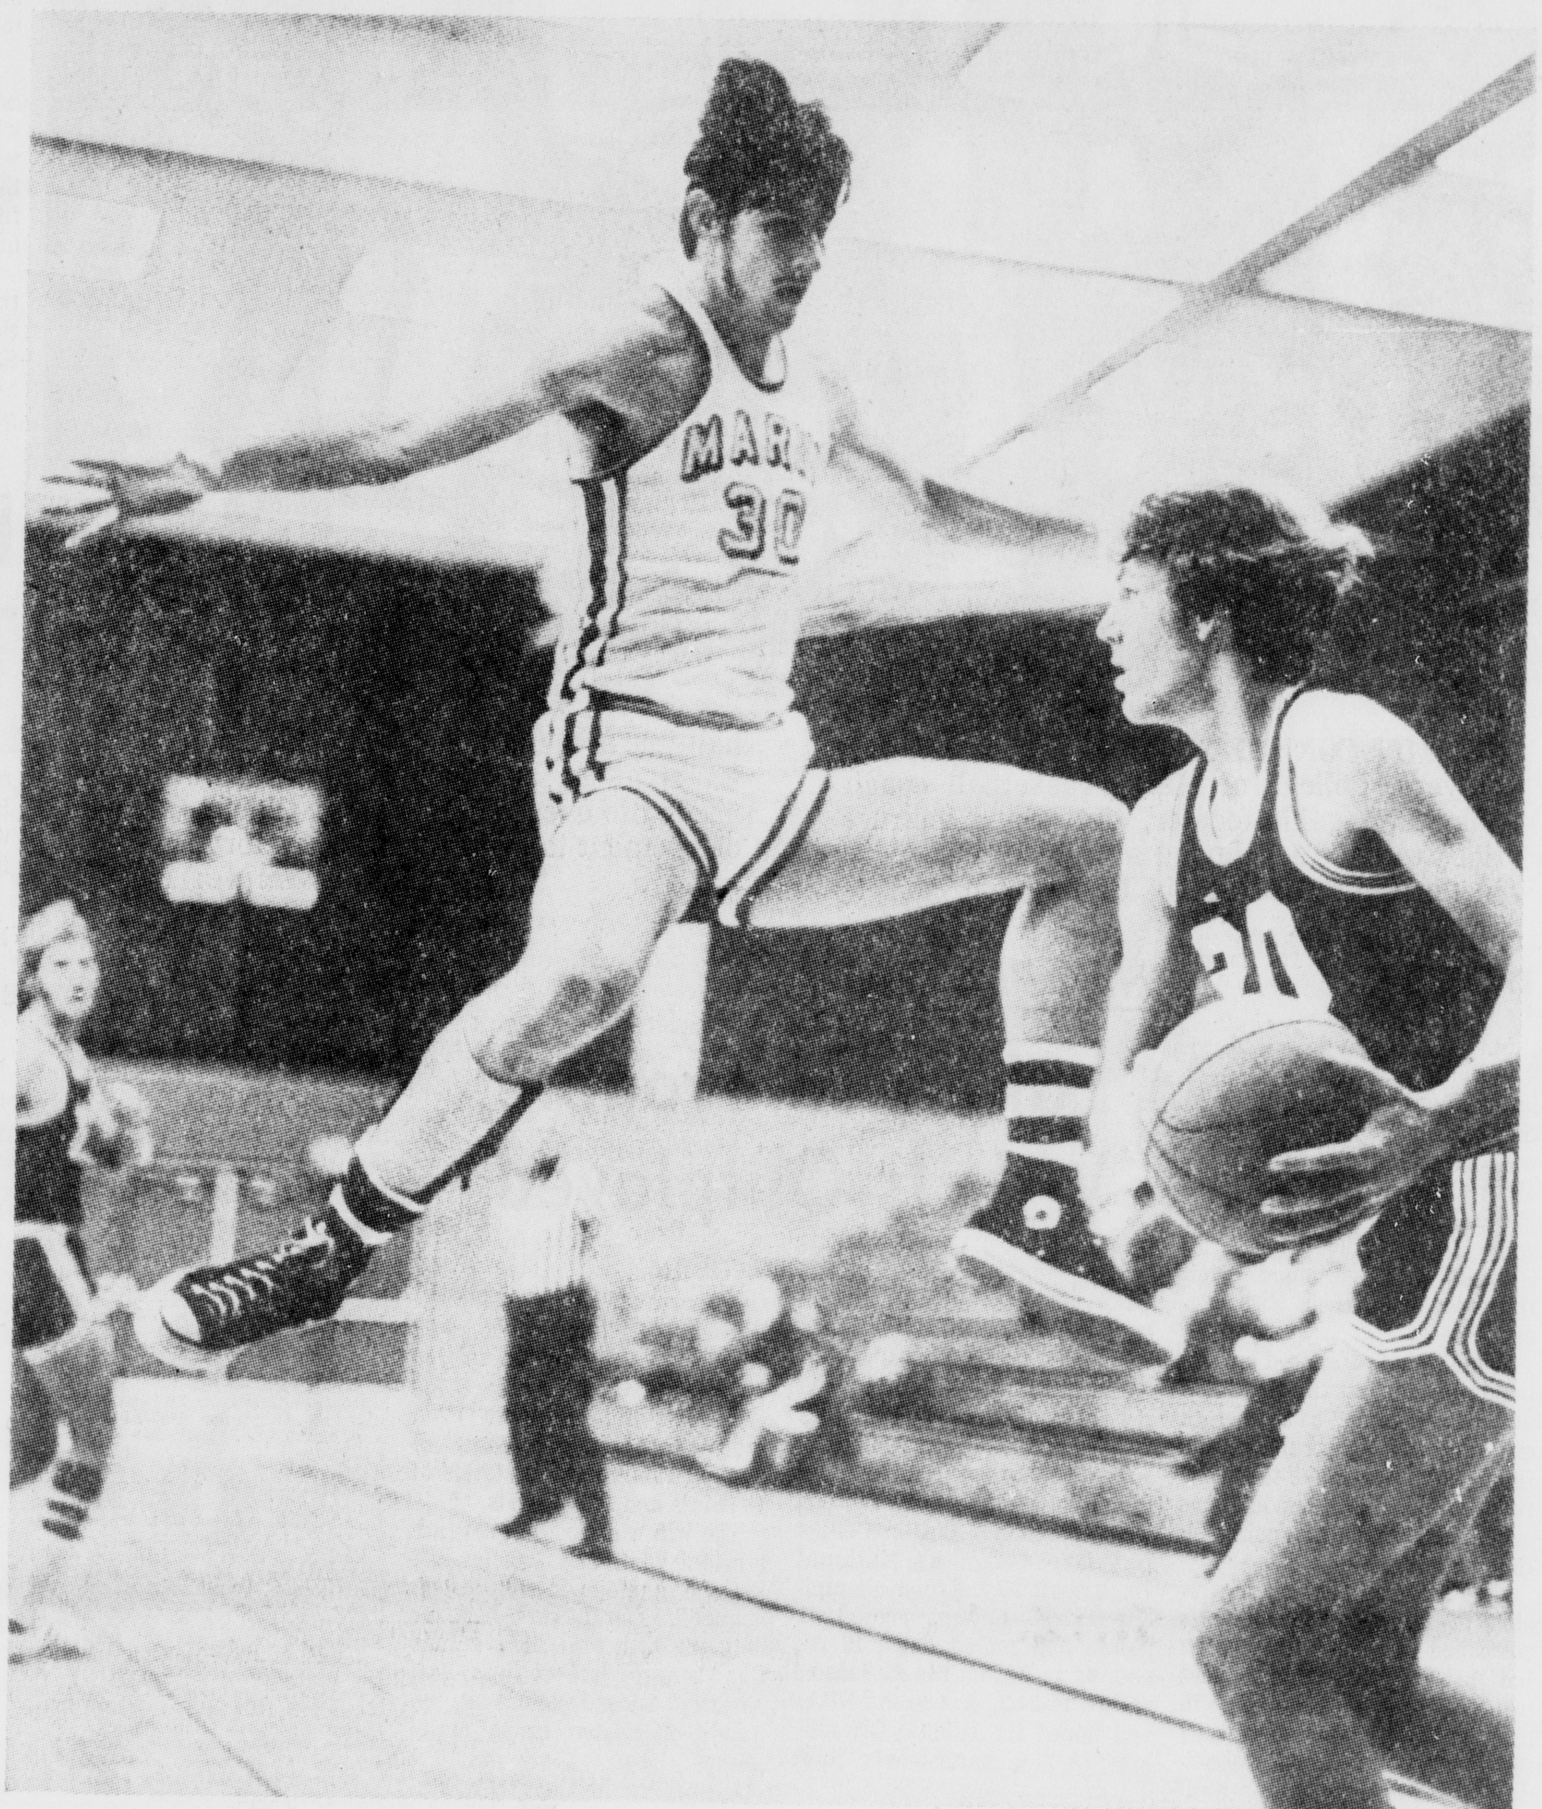
The Dons blasted Army 87-70 in the first round game at the Jayhawk Classic to run their record to 5-0. Mike Quick, Kevin Restani and Phil Smith combined for 55 points for the 18th-rated Dons, who battle host Kansas tonight. Guard John Boro, a Redwood High School graduate, added 10 points to the Don cause.

Santa Clara has lost a few, but joined in Friday's fun with an 80-76 stunner over the hosts at the Utah Classic.

In the Trojan Basketball Classic in Los Angeles, Purdue looked sharp taking Western Kentucky 91-75 and then USC, with freshman Bob Trowbridge and soph Gus Williams replacing suspended regular forwards Monroe Nash and Clint Chapman, took Auburn 73-66. The two young front-liners combined for 34 points.

With just about the whole Pacific Eight off to a remarkable start this season, the troubles are growing for Washington State. Montana flattened the Cougars 72-49 to drop the losers record to 1-4.

Other scores: Northridge State 61 Seattle Pacific 49, St. Martins 81 Pacific Lutheran 75, Cal Poly Pomona 76 Portland 60, Westminster 99 Western Montana 80, Arizona State 85 San Diego 59, Humboldt State 73 Oregon College 65, Chapman 62 U.S. International 55, Southern California College 79 Pomona Pitzer 59, San Diego State 86 Portland State 53, Cal Lutheran 87 Los Angeles Baptist 68, Grand Canyon 83 Western New Mexico 77, Chico State 86 La Verne 85.



LA BARRIER — College of Marin center Dana La Ferriere was in the air, everywhere on this play in the first half of the Tars' game with Ohlone College of Fremont last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield, forcing Ohlone's Jim Snyder to forget temporarily whatever plans he had for passing the ball. Marin won, 58-55.

Padres' Future Locale

NEW YORK (AP) — "A man," said Buzzie Bavasi, president of the San Diego Padres, "would have to be out of his mind to move from San Diego . . ."

Then, Bavasi added the key phrase.

". . . if he didn't have to."

The Padres, however, may have to and Bavasi buzzed through New York Friday amidst wide reports that his baseball team is about to move to Washington, D.C.

Bavasi stopped by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office while American League owners, unhappy that the National League is considering a move into Baltimore's backyard, held a quick meeting on the subject a few blocks away.

Bavasi missed connections with the commissioner and denied that he intended to talk to Kuhn about the possible transfer of the Padres. He had only stopped by to discuss some minor league matters with an aide of the commissioner's, he said.

But Bavasi didn't deny that the subject of Washington was on his mind.

"If such a move is made, it will have to be made quickly — next week or the week after at the latest," said Bavasi.

Baltimore is already having problems with attendance and installing a National League team that would put gate attractions like Bob Gibson, Hank Aaron, Tom Seaver and Steve Carlton 40 miles down the turnpike would hardly be a healthy situation for the Orioles.

The Padres have been burdened by the worst attendance in the National League in their four years at San Diego. They attracted a mere 644,272 last season.

Raiders, Chicago In Oakland Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 10 years, close out the 1972 regular season tomorrow against the Chicago Bears and about the only thing at stake is their latest five-game winning streak.

Since they locked up their fifth division title in the last six years two weeks ago, it has been hard for the Raiders to get motivated but they did just enough last Monday to beat the New York Jets and now a victory over the Bears, making their first start ever against Oakland, would give them a 10-3-1 record and momentum going into the American Football Conference playoffs.

"We're playing the Bears but we're getting ready for someone else," said center Jim Otto, the last of the original Raiders. "We have to build a tempo going into the playoffs."

OPPONENT

By sundown tomorrow the Raiders will know who they meet in the first round of the AFC post-season playoffs—the Pittsburgh Steelers or the Cleveland Browns. To be sure, the Raiders as individuals have discussed both contenders but for the record aren't saying who they prefer to meet.

"Once you get to the playoffs," said Otto, "it doesn't make much difference who you play or where. The big thing is to get to the playoffs. But first, we have to worry a little about the Bears. They are new to us and we know they are a physical club."

Guarding against injury is the Raiders' big worry Sunday since they go to the playoffs only six days later against the AFC Central champ—Pittsburgh or Cleveland.

FIRST GAME

Since they never have played the Bears the Raiders go into Sunday's game, before the usual sellout crowd of over 54,000, a bit apprehensive.

"Their cornerbacks are good but they like to sit and wait," said rookie wide receiver Mike Siani, who played against Chicago in a practice game preceding the All Star contest last August. "They've been beaten deep because of it."

BEARS

While the Raiders are thinking playoff the Bears have nowhere to go but to their respective homes after Sunday's game, the last one of the year for them. They come to Oakland with a 4-8-1 record but among their victims are the Browns, Vikings and Cardinals and they also held the Rams to a tie.

In quarterback Bobby Douglass the Bears have one good offensive weapon. He's the greatest running quarterback in NFL history with 841 yards and he also has completed 69 passes for another 1,193 yards. Douglass, in the most amazing statistic, has accounted for 17 of his team's meager 24 touchdowns, nine on passes and eight on runs, including a 57-yard gallop.

OBJECTIVES

The Raiders have several objectives in mind on a personal level.

At the moment, quarterback Daryle Lamonica ranks second in the AFC and would like to make it to No. 1 ahead of Earl Morrall of the Miami Dolphins; running back Marv Hubbard needs 41 more rushing yards to top the club mark of 1,099 held by Clem Daniels, and Fred Biletnikoff would like to repeat as the AFC's top receiver. He and Chip Myers of Cincinnati have 53 receptions each but Fred has more yards gained—759 to 742.

McASHAN CASE

School Supports Fulcher

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Tech Athletic Association backed up head football coach Bill Fulcher Friday in the continuing squabble over the fate of black quarterback Eddie McAshan.

In a session with newsmen, Tech President Joseph M. Pettit read a statement in support of Fulcher but refused to comment on charges of racial bias made by McAshan.

The Gainesville, Fla., senior, who holds 16 passing records for the Yellow Jackets, has been suspended from next Monday's Liberty Bowl game against Iowa State.

In a news conference Thursday night, McAshan said he had

Goliath finally won.

The tall Hayward High School Farmers turned back a valiant effort by the small but determined Drake High Pirates last night to take a 69-65 second round victory in the Rose City Invitational basketball Tournament at Cardinal Newman High in Santa Rosa.

The loss knocked the Pirates out of the running for the championship, and they play the loser of the Montgomery of Santa Rosa-Cardinal Newman game (results unavailable at press time) for third place tonight at 7:30 p.m. Hayward plays the winner for the title at 9:30 p.m.

In other tournament games involving Southern Sonoma and Marin County teams, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park beat St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 51-44, and Petaluma took a last second 45-44 victory over Marin Catholic.

Rancho Cotate and Petaluma were to play today at 4:30 p.m. for the consolation title. Marin Catholic was to play St. Patrick's at 3 p.m. today for seventh place.

Six-foot-seven center Paul Volasgis, 6-4 forward Ray Jackson and 6-3 guard Scott Paulsen led the Hayward victory against the Pirates, whose tallest player is 6-4 center John Channell.

Drake was in the contest until the last four minutes when it missed three straight lay-ups and made some critical turnovers. At this time, Hayward finally began to dominate both backboards and took a 63-51 lead.

"I think we should have won the ball game," Drake coach Pete Hayward commented. "We didn't play good defense and we committed too many turnovers. They're a better ball club, that's all."

Even with the tremendous height disadvantage, the Pirates more than held their own on the boards, especially in the early part of the game. They outrebounded the Farmers, 33-26, with most of them hauled in

Seals, Vancouver Face Off Tonight

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The California Seals will be attempting to rebound here tonight after falling apart against the Chicago Black Hawks last night in Oakland.

While the Seals skate against the host Vancouver Canucks tonight, Seals' coach Fred Glover may be recalling painful memories of last night's game.

What had been a close game fell apart Friday night when the Hawks exploded for five goals in the last period.

Last place California, which has lost their last seven games, led 2-0 in the first period on early scores by defenseman Rick Smith and left wing Joey Johnston.

But the Black Hawks came back with scores by J. P. Bordeleau and Lou Angotti and took the lead 4-2 in the second period with goals by Cliff Koroll and Jim Pappin. Then Johnston hit his second goal to cut the lead to 4-3.

Jerry Korab scored twice for Chicago in the third period and Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton and Bordeleau put in one each.

Hilliard Graves scored California's only third period hit.

Special Events Will Herald The Coming Of Christmas

Lessons and carols, special children's programs and Christmas cantatas will ring out through Marin and Southern Sonoma tomorrow as churches prepare for Christmas.

In Marin County one of the day's features will be the third annual ecumenical Christmas concert at St. Sebastian's Catholic Church in Greenbrae at 4 p.m.

Participating choirs will be Mill Valley's First Baptist Adult Choir, Mrs. Linda Moyer, conductor; Novato's Good Shepherd Lutheran Adult and Junior choirs, Dale Danley, conductor, and St. Sebastian's adult and youth choirs plus the church's brass choir with tympani, all conducted by Gary B. Walker.

Traditional as well as contemporary Christmas selections will be sung by the choirs, including "Adeste Fidelis."

Also a special Christmas folk cantata, Lewis Henry Horton's "An Appalachian Nativity", will be presented at 10 a.m. tomorrow by the Chapel Choir at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. Soloists will be Mary Dill, soprano, and Don Leogering, baritone. The cantata will be under direction of James Groves, organist-director. The public is invited.

INSIDE THE SOVIET UNION

Religion A Key Challenge

By PAUL WOHL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Religion is posing a growing challenge for Russian leaders.

It appears, for instance, that while the appeal of Marxism-Leninism has been declining, religion has been attracting more and more young people.

The Kremlin is aware of Communism's declining influence. At high official levels it tries to engage in a dialogue with religious thinkers.

But in the country at large the mallet blows of administrative repression continue. In recent months many priests and lay writers of the Orthodox Church have been arrested, and bishops and even an archbishop (Archbishop Paul of Novosibirsk and Barnaul) have been demoted or retired without pension.

The Reform-Baptists, Pentecostals, and other sects are persecuted more harshly than ever; Roman Catholic parishes are harrassed; Jewish and Buddhist religious groups are hounded.

This judgment of the Russian religious scene is based on years of research by the London Center for the Study of Religion and Communism. The work of the center, under the leadership of Rev. Michael Bourdeaux, has commanded even the respect of Soviet officialdom.

Its quiet, unpolemical method, combined with the wealth and authenticity of its inside information, gleaned from the network of indirect contacts with a wide variety of religious groups in the U.S.S.R., has forced the Russians to take heed of its findings.

Besides the gowing influence of religion among young Russians, the center has found that underground, or samizdat, religious literature has spread in recent years.

Religious publications are the only ones that somehow are produced in printing and duplicating facilities. The most important ones are the Reform-Baptists' "Christian Press' and the journal of the Lithuanian Roman Catholic Church.

Nobody knows how it is done, but more and more, more readable bulletins of religious groups reach the West.

This flow of information would not be possible without the devoted collaboration of Russians outwardly in good standing with the regime.

Among the many authentic underground documents in the possession of Bourdeaux's study center is the original text of the petition of more than 17,000 Lithuanian Catholics addressed last January to Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev through the intermediary of the secretary-general of the United Nations.

From the accompanying notes of the Lithuanians, we know that the collection of signatures was stopped at a very early stage by the Russian KGB (security police). Otherwise many more signatures would have been gathered.

The more than 17,000 who were able to sign the document gave their full names and addresses and occasionally even their telephone numbers — an unprecedented sign of steadfast courage by men and women in defying the world's most powerful totalitarian regime.

As a whole, Communist attempts to infiltrate religious groups have been singularly unsuccessful.

Because the Kremlin has become aware of the world influence of religion, Bourdeaux's center has found, it has increasingly been trying to appease and mislead Westerners with religious pretense.

Quite recently, for example, a delegation of official Soviet religious leaders was due to tour the United States under the leadership of Metropolitan Nikodem, often referred to as the "foreign minister" of the Moscow patriarchate.

At the last minute, the mission to the West was postponed, reportedly because its leader was ill.

Metropolitan Nikodem, one of the three highest dignitaries of the Russian Orthodox Church, is characteristic of the kind of religious strawmen set up by the Kremlin.

Rather than completing his theological studies in one of Russia's few remaining seminaries, Metropolitan Nikodem acquired his religious degree through a correspondence course.

Once Metropolitan Nikodem had acquired a degree, he was sent by the patriarchate to the Russian Spiritual Institute (administered by the Russian Government) in Jerusalem, where he learned Hebrew and gained the polish and social and diplomatic skills that enabled him to cultivate relations, first with non-Russian Orthodox clergymen, and ultimately with the World Council of Churches.

A diplomat and a Communist propagandist, Metropolitan Nikodem has become an asset for the Kremlin. Yet even he may sometimes have to walk a tightrope to remain in the good graces of an increasingly nervous regime.

Whether the fairly young Metropolitan's physical indisposition was genuine is anybody's guess, but other Soviet religious missions, with or without the Metropolitan, are due sooner or later in the West.

Such religious missions are supposed to convey the impression that religion enjoys constitutional guarantees in the Soviet Union. The friendly reception the missions usually receive by those who wish to give the Russians the benefit of the doubt is used by the Kremlin for propaganda purposes at home and to undermine the support Western religionists try to give their colleagues in the USSR.

Retiring Minister To Be Feted Tomorrow

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, who is retiring, will be honored following tomorrow's morning services.

Kent came to Marin in September 1963 to lead the newly-formed congregation. During his nine years, the church has expanded — moving into its new home.

The retiring pastor has served as moderator of the Presbytery of the Redwoods and chairman of the Marin Council of Churches. He has also been active in the Marin County chapter of the American Red Cross and Rotary International.

Following a trip to his native Holland after the Christmas holidays, he will retain his residence in Marin.

$50,000 Is Allocated For New Guinea Aid

NEW YORK (LC) — Lutheran World Relief has allocated $50,000 to help alleviate widespread famine conditions in the wake of frost, drought, and bush fires in the highlands area of Papua, New Guinea.

According to reports received here by the LWR's board of directors, about 130,000 people are starving as a result of severe frosts in the Southern and Western Highlands which have wiped out thousands of acres of sweet potatoes, the staple food of Highlanders. To make matters worse, the areas are also suffering a prolonged drought, and fire has destroyed 200 houses.

Lutheran Group Reelects President

NEW YORK (LC) — Dr. Luverne Rieke, law professor at the University of Washington in Seattle, has been re-elected president of the USA National Committee of the Lutheran World Federation.

A layman of the American Lutheran Church, Dr. Rieke will be serving his second term as head of the USA committee.

Call For Volunteers For The Philippines

I-J Special Report

MONROVIA — A call for young, mature Christian volunteers to serve in the Philippines for 10 months has been issued by Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of World Vision International.

The volunteers will be part of 25 five-man teams who will pave the way and follow-up two evangelistic crusades set for the Philippines in November 1973 and April 1974.

Mobile Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — A church-mobile, a converted bus with all features of a conventional church — even to the steeple on top, was devised by Rev. Robert Dunlop, the only Baptist minister in County Kildare, Ireland, because he could not get to all the people who wanted to attend his church.

Hispanic Lutherans Form Organization

NEW YORK (LC) — A permanent National Hispanic Lutheran Assembly was organized at a three-day meeting here attended by 40 Hispanic Lutheran pastors and laymen from 14 states and Puerto Rico. Also participating were 17 Spanish-speaking non-Hispanos.

Elected chairman of a 12-member board of directors, composed of laymen and pastors, was Dr. Victor M. Rodriguez of San Juan, Puerto Rico, president of the Caribbean Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Other officers named were the Rev. Ruben Dario Colon, pastor of Resurrection Lutheran Church, Bronx, N. Y., vice chairman; Carlos Segovia of Chicago, a layman of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, secretary, and Rev. Jose G. Puerto, an LCMS pastor attached to Christ Lutheran Church (LCA) in West New York, N.J., treasurer.

A Declaration of Purpose adopted by the Assembly listed the following objectives:

1. developing a communication system among Hispano-American Lutherans; 2. sensitizing Lutherans to the needs of Hispanic American congregations and communities and the need to develop new approaches to ministry; 3. developing ministry expertise through special curricula in Lutheran seminaries and other training institutions; 4. recruitment and scholarships for future Hispano-Lutheran pastors, 5. development of lay ministries, and 6. producing original Hispanic Christian literature.

The Assembly devoted an evening to exploring the theme "Conscientizacion Christiana." In a brief paper, Rev. Roberto Navarro, an ALC pastor serving with the Texas Conference of Churches, stressed the need for increasing sensitivity to the Hispanic cultural reality in America.

There are 120 Lutheran congregations in the U.S. and Puerto Rico that use the Spanish language in their ministry. The nation's Hispanic American population is estimated at 10 to 12 million.

Agase Returns To Purdue Grid

Combined AP & UPI

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Northwestern's Alex Agase, who played one season at Purdue during World War II and earned All-America status, is returning today to the Boilermakers as their head football coach.

Agase, 50, was named Friday night to replace Bob DeMoss, who resigned after three unsuccessful seasons, saying he wanted to devote more time to his family.

Agase spent nine years at the helm of the Northwestern Wildcats, seven of them losing seasons.

"The decision to leave Northwestern was tough," Agase told a news conference. "I debated the move in agony the last 11 days when I learned my friend, 'Demo', was leaving coaching. I hope I can do the job Purdue expects of me."

Although Agase's record at Northwestern was a losing one, 32-58-1, his 1970 and 1971 seasons were exceptions, finishing each time in second place in the Big Ten.

by Channell. "John did a great job," coach Hayward said.

Hayward, which shot a blistering 63 per cent from the field, was led in the scoring by Jackson with 20 points, and Paulsen with 19. Top scorers for Drake, which converted 42 per cent from the floor, were Channell with 19 and Eddie Joe Chavez with 13 points.

Petaluma had trouble with the press for the second night in a row, turning the ball over 11 times, but Steve Steady put in a pressure free throw with three seconds left to beat Marin Catholic.

The Trojans, who fell behind by seven at halftime, took over the lead at 30-28 with six minutes left in the third quarter on two Kirk Smartt free throws, and never trailed thereafter.

The Wildcats tied the score at 38, 40 and 42 all in the last two minutes on baskets by the Mahoney Brothers, Mike and Dan, but missed an easy basket that would have given them the game with 30 seconds remaining.

Rancho Cotate took control of the lead and the ball game in the third quarter and built up a 16 point lead with four minutes to play. The Cougars had trouble early against St. Patrick's, scoring only 14 points in the first half, but Marshall Brant, John Sorenson and Frank Garrett started hitting from outside to give them a 32-32 third quarter lead.

DALLAS — Southern Methodist University Friday hired Dave Smith of Oklahoma State as head football coach, replacing Hayden Fry, fired just before the season's final game. Salary figures were not disclosed.

Golf

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — American golf professional George Archer shared the lead with Australian Bob Tuohy today after the third round of the City of Auckland Golf Classic.

Both leaders carded 210s — three-under-par — over the first 54 holes and are three strokes ahead of 22-year-old Jack Newton of Australia who, along with Tuohy, shot a four-under-par 67 today.

Tennis

SAN FRANCISCO — British Motors announced the sponsorship of a second major Pro Tennis Tournament to be held Jan. 21-27 at the Los Angeles Forum.

The British Motors MG Tennis Championships will follow on the heels of a $25,000 San Francisco tournament which opens the national Virginia Slims tour.

San Francisco's six night event ends Saturday, Jan. 20. Opening round play for the Forum tournament begins Sunday Jan. 21 at 11 a.m.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — A simple handshake was good enough Friday to double the salary of Steve Carlton, the best pitcher in baseball last season. Of course, winning 27 games and the Cy Young Award didn't hurt either when the lanky left-hander talked contact with Phillies general manager Paul Owens.

"Steve and I shook hands and that's good enough for me," said Owens Friday. He said he expected Carlton to sign sometime after the first of the year. The verbal agreement they reached calls for a reported $150,000 a year, as compared with the $75,000 he received last year.

Carlton will be the highest paid player in Phillies' history.

Basketball

LOS ANGELES — UCLA basketball coach John Wooden won't be at Pauley Pavilion tonight when his no. 1-ranked Bruins return to action after a two-week layoff to face University of California at Santa Barbara.

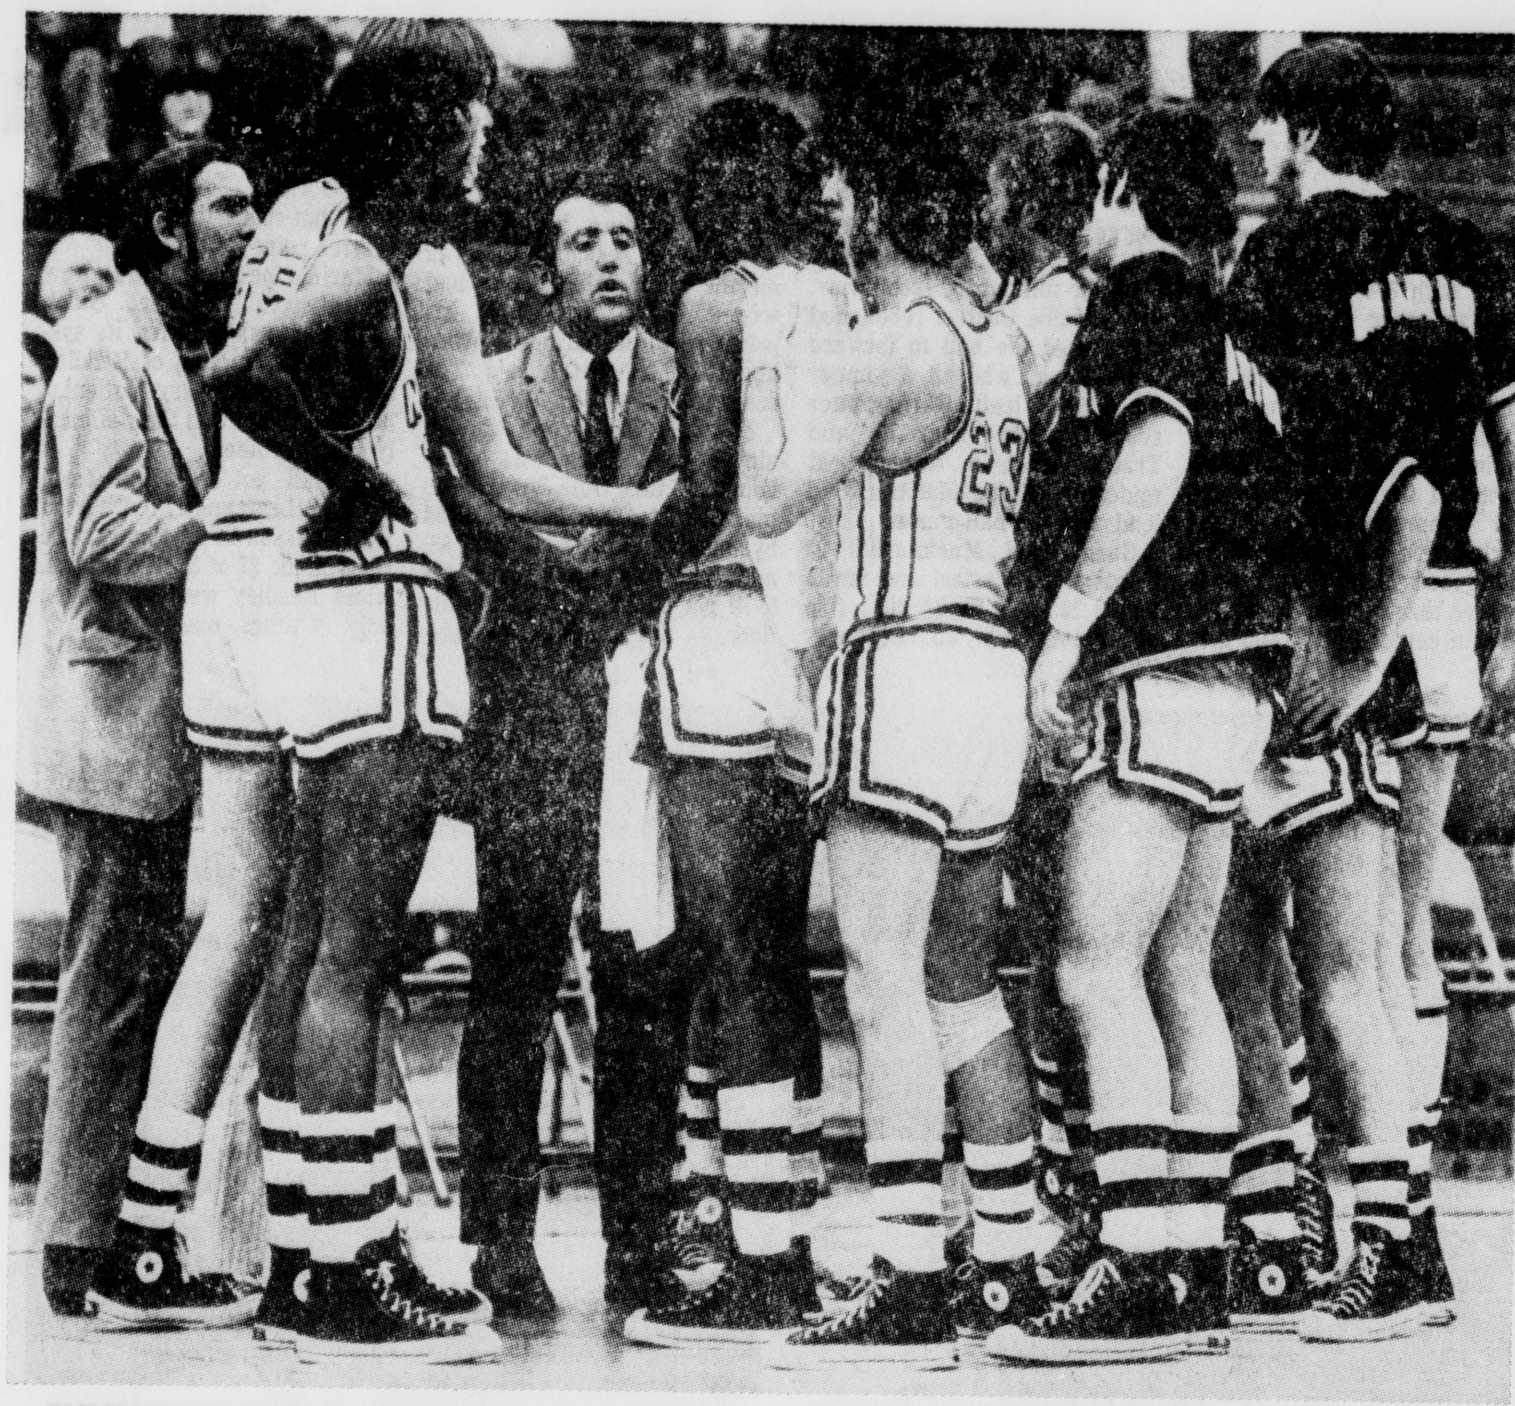
Wooden, 62, was taken to the hospital last Sunday night for what his doctors later reported as a mild heart condition. It will be the first game he has missed since becoming the coach at UCLA in 1948.

Assistant coach Gary Cunningham, 33, will fill in until Wooden's return. The Bruins' coach is expected to be released during the weekend.

Pamphlet On Boating Safety Is Released

The Department of Navigation and Ocean Development in Sacramento yesterday released the new boating safety pamphlet, "Safety Boating Hints for Northern California Coast."

This free pamphlet, covering boating situations from Point Reyes to the Oregon border, can be obtained by writing to the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development, 1416 Ninth Street, Room 1336, Sacramento, 95814.



SUMMIT CONFERENCE — Dwarfed by his players, College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis (center, tie) issued instructions to his Tars during a time-out last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield. All of Panagakis' strategy and his players' brawn was needed to overcome a stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to achieve a 58-55 victory.

tuted liberally, particularly in the second quarter when the winners only scored five points. Mike Conner of Redwood led game scorers with 17 points, while Darrell Elder came up with 10, and 13 rebounds. Neil Hennessy led assists with seven.

Tamalpais (3-6) scored only 30 points in the first three periods and was trailing, 53-30, before erupting for 33 points in the final quarter to make the score respectable. Guard David Jones scored all 21 of his points in that frantic stanza.

Tam's unbelievable succession of injuries and ailments continued as Kevin Murphy, the Indians' leading scorer the last two games, wrenched a knee in practice Thursday and missed the game. Coach Bernie Schneider expects him back next week.

been plagued by racial bias during his years at Georgia Tech.

Pettit said it was the opinion of the board of trustees of the athletic association that "Coach Fulcher acted in the best interests of not only the present football team but of the entire school and of its future overall athletic program," in suspending McAshan.

"We affirm that the manner in which Coach Fulcher reached his decision in this unfortunate occurence conforms to the highest ethics and ideals of his profession."

McAshan charged that Fulcher had promised he could play in the Liberty Bowl if he would make a public apology and that Fulcher reneged on that promise.

NBA PLAY

Lakers In Trouble; Wilt Is Outplayed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's not often Wilt Chamberlain is both outscored and outrebounded by the opposing center in the same game but when it does happen the Los Angeles Lakers are usually in trouble.

That was the case Friday night when young Dave Cowens led the red hot Boston Celtics past the defending National Basketball Association champions 102-98. Cowens scored 31 points and pulled down 19 rebounds as Boston ran its season record to 24-3, best in the NBA, and upped its Atlantic Division lead to 2 ½ games over New York.

Cowens tallied 29 of his points in the first three quarters but had to play it careful in the final session during most of which time he played with five personal fouls. The three-year veteran from Florida State did finally foul out with 43 seconds left to play but not before he let the officials know how he felt over the call. In addition to his sixth personal he also collected a technical foul which will leave him $50 lighter in his wallet.

Cowen's figures were even more impressive when matched against Chamberlain's totals of 18 points and 14 rebounds.

The win was Boston's seventh straight while Los Angeles had its six game winning streak snapped. The Lakers lost for only the fifth time in 30 games this season but it was Los Angeles' second defeat at the hands of Boston in as many games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee maintained its one game lead in the Midwest Division with a 98-82 decision over Cleveland while second place Chicago kept pace by beating New York 90-86, Golden State whipped Buffalo 129-95, Baltimore edged Houston 94-91, Kansas City-Omaha outlasted Detroit 140-132 in overtime and Portland nipped Seattle 96-95.

WHA Action: Hull Is Upstaged By Rookie

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Michael Plante, a rookie whom nearly no one had ever heard of before this year found himself in rather strange surroundings Friday night—stealing Bobby Hull's thunder.

Plante, who played last season with Drummondville in the Quebec Junior League, matched Hull with two goals as the lowly Philadelphia Blazers rose up to beat the western division-leading Winnipeg Jets 6-4. Plante who now has eight goals, five since he began playing on the line with John McKenzie and Michel Boudreau, scored what proved to be the game-winner in the third period. Hull, meanwhile has now scored 17 in 22 games for Winnipeg since being freed by the courts.

In the other World Hockey Association games, Cleveland defeated Quebec 6-3, Minnesota edged Houston 4-3 and Ottawa nipped Alberta 4-3.

Jack Stanfield's breakaway goal with seven minutes left snapped a 2-2 tie and gave Houston its win over Minnesota. Dunc McCallum and Murray Hall had the other two Aero goals.

Cleveland moved back into second place in the east as rookies Bill Horton and Ralph Hopiavuori tallied their first goals of the season to trigger the scoring. Ron Buchanan, the Crusaders' leading scorer, increased his total to 17 with a pair of goals.

Second period goals by Bob Leduc, Guy Trottier and Mike Boland keyed Ottawa over Alberta. Nationals' goalie Gilles Gratton proved the difference in the final minutes of play, stopping the Oilers' threat.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Teams Keep Eye On Scoreboard

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There may be quite a few National Football League players playing scoreboard this weekend.

Scoreboard is a game played in the final stretch of a season when your team is in contention and your major opposition is on the road. It consists in keeping one eye on what you're doing and one eye on the scoreboard to keep track of your rivals.

The game of scoreboard be taking place in San Diego where the Pittsburgh Steelers will be keeping a close eye on the New York Jets-Cleveland finale as they prepare to take on the Chargers.

If the Jets beat Cleveland, then Pittsburgh has its first title in 40 years of NFL play. Should the Browns win, Pittsburgh then must beat San Diego to earn the title. A Cleveland victory and a Steeler defeat would push the Browns into the conference title on the basis of best conference record (they split their head-to-head games) and Pittsburgh would then compete in the playoffs as the wild card or best runnerup team.

No playoff berth was on the line for today's other game but three league records could fall. Miami met Baltimore in its attempt to become the first NFL club to go unbeaten through a 14-game schedule. No NFL team has had an unbeaten regular season since 1942 when the Chicago Bears were 11-0 before bowing in the playoffs.

In other action Sunday, Buffalo is at Washington, Chicago at Oakland, Green Bay at New Orleans, the New York Giants at Dallas, Cincinnati at Houston, New England at Denver and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

Reds' Bench Vows To Play Next Year

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench proclaimed Friday he would be ready to play ball next year.

"No doubt about it," said Bench, attired in a bright red robe and a floppy blue denim hat with a flower in it.

"I consider myself a very lucky person," Bench told newsmen attending the first news conference since his lung surgery Monday.

Bench, who had a benign lesion removed from his right lung, was expected to be released from Christ Hospital possibly Monday. he said he was "feeling great" and that he had been confident from the outset that everything would be alright.

Doctors said Friday the lesion had been caused by a fungus infection in the lung.

"I'd be a liar if I didn't admit I had some doubts," Bench said. "I thought about what might happen if they found it was malignant and I worried about the possibility of them having them cut into me and find out that it wasn't necessary after all."

Bench said he had seen the x-rays taken before and after the operation.

The spot was discovered in September during a routine team examination. Bench continued to play out the season, playoffs and World Series,

MARIN BOWLING

San Rafael's Tauscher Gets 707 In Greenbrae

Mike Tauscher's 707 series at Greenbrae Lanes Tuesday night was the loudest sound recorded in an otherwise quiet week of Marin County bowling.

Tauscher of San Rafael parleyed games of 225, 258 and 224 in turning in Marin's top bowling achievement of the week. He was bowling in the Mixed Mates League.

In other county bowling endeavors, Bea Hoffmann ruled the roost at Country Club Bowl this week, registering a fine 666 series. The San Rafael bowler rolled games of 231, 204 and 231 last Friday night in Our Own Gang league.

A TOURNEY IS ON TAP Monday, 1 p.m. at Country Club Bowl. Some 30 entries are expected for this Christmas powder puff tournament entitled "Three-Six-Nine Throwout."

Competitors will bowl four games with the lowest score thrown out. Bowlers will be automatically credited with strikes on the third, sixth and ninth frames. Scoring is based on three-games, total pins with handicaps.

Entrants must pay a $3 entry fee at Country Club Bowl and have a listing in the Marin County average book or have a current average compiled over a 21-game period. The higher average will be used in determining the handicap.

LUCKY 13. Thirteen-year-old Tony Trowbridge served notice this week that he is, indeed, a bowler with potential. Bowling at Greenbrae Lanes last Saturday morning, he compiled a creditable 660-series. After rolling games of 266 and 227, observers felt a 700-series was within Trowbridge's grasp. However, he plummeted to a 167 in the final game, thus missing the goal by 40 pins.

Basketball Tourney: Tars Host Foothill Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Demonstrating two different kinds of patience, College of Marin and Foothill College of Los Altos won their semi-final games last night and will collide tonight at 9 o'clock for the championship of the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament.

The host Tars survived a tense and frustrating stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to eke out a 58-55 victory, while Foothill calmly ran through its testbook offensive patterns for an 83-60 triumph over defending champion Reedley.

Reedley will meet Ohlone for third place tonight at 7 o'clock, while Santa Rosa will play Solano of Suisun City for the consolation title at 5 p.m. Santa Rosa defeated Napa yesterday, 91-80, and Solano topped Sierra of Rocklin, 55-52.

Neither Marin (8-1) nor Ohlone (6-2) ever led by more than five points in the seesaw battle, but when the visiting Renegades achieved a 49-48 lead on a bank shot by forward Chuck Pierce with 8:48 left, they decided to make the one point stand up.

Ohlone held the ball for two minutes, then took a three-point lead on a layup by guard Dave Whaley. When Marin guard Len Smith cut the gap back to one with a jumper, Ohlone stalled nearly three minutes more before guard Mike Perry made two free throws for a 53-50 lead.

Marin center Neil Traub then scored on a hook shot with 3:41 left, and was fouled on the play. When he missed the free throw, forward Joe Casteel rebounded and tossed the ball to forward Wil Garner, who hit a jumper for a 54-53 lead. Garner later scored again after he and Traub forced a turnover at midcourt, giving Marin a 56-53 lead and the ball game.

Garner led Marin with 23 points while Casteel and Smith added 12 each. Smith did a fine defensive job on Ohlone's Pierce, holding him to two points in the second half and 12 for the game after Pierce had scored 31, 33 and 27 in his previous three outings. "Wore him like a shirt," said Tar assistant coach Jim Webster.

For only the second time in nine games, Marin was outrebounded, this time by a 35-28 margin. The Tars compensated by shooting 46 per cent (26 of 56) and restricting the Renegades to 41 per cent (24 of 58) from the floor — not much of a difference, but more than enough in a three-point ball game.

Marin's foe Foothill (6-2) drew praise from Tar head coach John Panagakis during its systematic destruction of Reedley (3-5). "They're very patient," he said. "They run their offense like a machine."

Foothill got 20 points from Scott McLean and 17 more from K.C. Jackson in its victory. The Owls made 27 of 35 free throws, while Reedley went to the line only 14 times, making 9.

Also contributing heavily to the attack were Mike Roman with 13 points and Gary Schaefer, a 6-9 center, with 10. Jackson had 10 rebounds.

Rick Bakker of Napa (0-8) scored 36 points, but it wasn't enough to bring the Chiefs their first victory of the season. Santa Rosa (5-3) responded with twin 18-point efforts from Rudy Navarro and Bill Healy and had five other scorers with eight or more points.

The victors shot a healthy 44 per cent from the floor on 38 of 86 attempts. They had nine more shots than Napa, and made six of them.

Solano (4-4) erected a 34-23 halftime lead, then had to struggle to hold back Sierra (2-6) by three points. Jim Hicks scored 18 points, Stan Foster and Kelly McWilliams 10 apiece and former San Rafael High School star Donnie Canfield 8 for the Falcons, who shot 45 per

Terra Linda High School broke a four-game losing streak last night with a 51-41 nonleague basketball victory over Piner of Santa Rosa on the winners' court.

In other action involving Marin County teams, San Marin rallied to beat Vintage of Napa, 57-54; Redwood also rallied to top Lincoln of San Francisco, 60-50; San Rafael lost to Vallejo, 55-46; Tamalpais lost to San Mateo, 76-63; and Novato bowed to Santa Rosa, 73-61.

Terra Linda's press defense set the game's tempo against ball-control oriented Piner, according to Trojan coach Bob Corley. The harassed Prospectors attempted only 38 shots from the floor, and even though they shot 45 per cent to make 17 field goals, Terra Linda outscored them with 22 successes in 63 tries for 35 per cent.

The Trojans (4-5) were led by Mark Lowey's 17 points and Scott Logan's 15.

San Marin (6-2) outscored Vintage in the second half, 37-23, to overcome a 11-point halftime deficit against Vintage.

Mustang Hoza Wright scored 18 points and Fred Doar 13 in the second half to lead the late charges. Wright and Doar finished with 23, and 16 points respectively. Price (Skip) Starnes led in rebounds with 14, and Doar pulled down 10.

San Rafael's three-game winning streak came to an end with its loss to powerful Vallejo. The Bulldogs (5-3) sank eight free throws, but missed 14 to fall short of a major upset. Vallejo shot seven of 14 from the line.

Bulldog Byron Stewart scored 17 points and grabbed a game-leading 13 rebounds. Vallejo's Ricky Beavers scored 23.

Redwood evened its record at 4-4 in preparation for the tough Yuba City tournament next week by outscoring Lincoln in the fourth quarter, 21-10.

Warriors Trek To Baltimore

Combined AP & UPI

BALTIMORE — The Golden State Warriors will try to cap a successful road trip by defeating the Baltimore Bullets here tonight.

The Warriors won their third straight by trouncing Buffalo 123-95 Friday night. Golden State now is 2-1 on the current road tour.

Hot shooting in the third period erased Buffalo's 57-49 halftime lead as the Warriors outscored the Braves 42-10 in that stanza to go ahead 91-67.

Cazzie Russell and Jeff Mullins led the surge with Russell scoring 15 of his 23 game points in the third quarter and Mullins contributing 12 of his 27. Guard Fritz Williams, scoreless in the first half, tallied 20 points in the final two quarters for the Warriors.

The Braves shot out in front 18-4 in the game's first six minutes as even Rick Barry missed a free throw, his first miscue after 27 straight good ones for the Warriors.

The Warriors hit 63 per cent of their shots in the second half and took command of the backboards. Center Nate Thurmond led the team with 24 rebounds for the night.

Elmore Smith had 19 and Bob McAdoo 18 for the Braves.

The Warriors, now 19-10, come home for seven games after tonight's test. They even gained a game on mighty Los Angeles Friday as the Lakers lost 102-98 to Boston. The Warriors are now 5½ back of Los Angeles.

Coast Cage Teams In Good Evening's Work

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

While the West Coast's two best college basketball teams had the night off, the best of the rest of the West ran wild Friday in a big night of wins across the nation.

Washington, Oregon and the University of San Francisco kept unbeaten slates by winning impressively far from home while top 10 teams UCLA and Long Beach State were idle.

The Huskies, now 5-0, were especially impressive in roaring 102-68 at Wichita State with 13 different players in the scoring column.

The Ducks are now 4-0 after freshman Ron Lee's 19 points led them past Colorado State 73-68 in the first game of the University of Kentucky Invitational tourney. Oregon gets its toughest test tonight when it meets the nationally rated Wildcats in the final.

The Dons blasted Army 87-70 in the first round game at the Jayhawk Classic to run their record to 5-0. Mike Quick, Kevin Restani and Phil Smith combined for 55 points for the 18th-rated Dons, who battle host Kansas tonight. Guard John Boro, a Redwood High School graduate, added 10 points to the Don cause.

Santa Clara has lost a few, but joined in Friday's fun with an 80-76 stunner over the hosts at the Utah Classic.

In the Trojan Basketball Classic in Los Angeles, Purdue looked sharp taking Western Kentucky 91-75 and then USC, with freshman Bob Trowbridge and soph Gus Williams replacing suspended regular forwards Monroe Nash and Clint Chapman, took Auburn 73-66. The two young front-liners combined for 34 points.

With just about the whole Pacific Eight off to a remarkable start this season, the troubles are growing for Washington State. Montana flattened the Cougars 72-49 to drop the losers record to 1-4.

Other scores: Northridge State 61 Seattle Pacific 49, St. Martins 81 Pacific Lutheran 75, Cal Poly Pomona 76 Portland 60, Westminster 99 Western Montana 80, Arizona State 85 San Diego 59, Humboldt State 73 Oregon College 65, Chapman 62 U.S. International 55, Southern California College 79 Pomona Pitzer 59, San Diego State 86 Portland State 53, Cal Lutheran 87 Los Angeles Baptist 68, Grand Canyon 83 Western New Mexico 77, Chico State 86 La Verne 85.

LA BARRIER — College of Marin center Dana La Ferriere was in the air, everywhere on this play in the first half of the Tars' game with Ohlone College of Fremont last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield, forcing Ohlone's Jim Snyder to forget temporarily whatever plans he had for passing the ball. Marin won, 58-55.

Padres' Future Locale

NEW YORK (AP) — "A man," said Buzzie Bavasi, president of the San Diego Padres, "would have to be out of his mind to move from San Diego . . ."

Then, Bavasi added the key phrase.

". . . if he didn't have to." The Padres, however, may have to and Bavasi buzzed through New York Friday amidst wide reports that his baseball team is about to move to Washington, D.C.

Bavasi stopped by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office while American League owners, unhappy that the National League is considering a move into Baltimore's backyard, held a quick meeting on the subject a few blocks away.

Bavasi missed connections with the commissioner and denied that he intended to talk to Kuhn about the possible transfer of the Padres. He had only stopped by to discuss some minor league matters with an aide of the commissioner's, he said.

But Bavasi didn't deny that the subject of Washington was on his mind.

"If such a move is made, it will have to be made quickly — next week or the week after at the latest," said Bavasi.

Baltimore is already having problems with attendance and installing a National League team that would put gate attractions like Bob Gibson, Hank Aaron, Tom Seaver and Steve Carlton 40 miles down the turnpike would hardly be a healthy situation for the Orioles.

The Padres have been burdened by the worst attendance in the National League in their four years at San Diego. They attracted a mere 644,272 last season.

Raiders, Chicago In Oakland Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 10 years, close out the 1972 regular season tomorrow against the Chicago Bears and about the only thing at stake is their latest five-game winning streak.

Since they locked up their fifth division title in the last six years two weeks ago, it has been hard for the Raiders to get motivated but they did just enough last Monday to beat the New York Jets and now a victory over the Bears, making their first start ever against Oakland, would give them a 10-3-1 record and momentum going into the American Football Conference playoffs.

"We're playing the Bears but we're getting ready for someone else," said center Jim Otto, the last of the original Raiders. "We have to build a tempo going into the playoffs."

OPPONENT

By sundown tomorrow the Raiders will know who they meet in the first round of the AFC post-season playoffs—the Pittsburgh Steelers or the Cleveland Browns. To be sure, the Raiders as individuals have discussed both contenders but for the record aren't saying who they prefer to meet.

"Once you get to the playoffs," said Otto, "it doesn't make much difference who you play or where. The big thing is to get to the playoffs. But first, we have to worry a little about the Bears. They are new to us and we know they are a physical club."

Guarding against injury is the Raiders' big worry Sunday since they go to the playoffs only six days later against the AFC Central champ—Pittsburgh or Cleveland.

FIRST GAME

Since they never have played the Bears the Raiders go into Sunday's game, before the usual sellout crowd of over 54,000, a bit apprehensive.

"Their cornerbacks are good but they like to sit and wait," said rookie wide receiver Mike Siani, who played against Chicago in a practice game preceding the All Star contest last August. "They've been beaten deep because of it."

BEARS

While the Raiders are thinking playoff the Bears have nowhere to go but to their respective homes after Sunday's game, the last one of the year for them. They come to Oakland with a 4-8-1 record but among their victims are the Browns, Vikings and Cardinals and they also held the Rams to a tie.

In quarterback Bobby Douglass the Bears have one good offensive weapon. He's the greatest running quarterback in NFL history with 841 yards and he also has completed 69 passes for another 1,193 yards. Douglass, in the most amazing statistic, has accounted for 17 of his team's meager 24 touchdowns, nine on passes and eight on runs, including a 57-yard gallop.

OBJECTIVES

The Raiders have several objectives in mind on a personal level.

At the moment, quarterback Daryle Lamonica ranks second in the AFC and would like to make it to No. 1 ahead of Earl Morrall of the Miami Dolphins; running back Marv Hubbard needs 41 more rushing yards to top the club mark of 1,099 held by Clem Daniels, and Fred Biletnikoff would like to repeat as the AFC's top receiver. He and Chip Myers of Cincinnati have 53 receptions each but Fred has more yards gained—759 to 742.

McASHAN CASE

School Supports Fulcher

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Tech Athletic Association backed up head football coach Bill Fulcher Friday in the continuing squabble over the fate of black quarterback Eddie McAshan.

In a session with newsmen, Tech President Joseph M. Pettit read a statement in support of Fulcher but refused to comment on charges of racial bias made by McAshan.

The Gainesville, Fla., senior, who holds 16 passing records for the Yellow Jackets, has been suspended from next Monday's Liberty Bowl game against Iowa State.

In a news conference Thursday night, McAshan said he had

Goliath finally won.

The tall Hayward High School Farmers turned back a valiant effort by the small but determined Drake High Pirates last night to take a 69-65 second round victory in the Rose City Invitational basketball Tournament at Cardinal Newman High in Santa Rosa.

The loss knocked the Pirates out of the running for the championship, and they play the loser of the Montgomery of Santa Rosa-Cardinal Newman game (results unavailable at press time) for third place tonight at 7:30 p.m. Hayward plays the winner for the title at 9:30 p.m.

In other tournament games involving Southern Sonoma and Marin County teams, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park beat St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 51-44, and Petaluma took a last second 45-44 victory over Marin Catholic.

Rancho Cotate and Petaluma were to play today at 4:30 p.m. for the consolation title. Marin Catholic was to play St. Patrick's at 3 p.m. today for seventh place.

Six-foot-seven center Paul Volasgis, 6-4 forward Ray Jackson and 6-3 guard Scott Paulsen led the Hayward victory against the Pirates, whose tallest player is 6-4 center John Channell.

Drake was in the contest until the last four minutes when it missed three straight lay-ups and made some critical turnovers. At this time, Hayward finally began to dominate both backboards and took a 63-51 lead.

"I think we should have won the ball game," Drake coach Pete Hayward commented. "We didn't play good defense and we committed too many turnovers. They're a better ball club, that's all."

Even with the tremendous height disadvantage, the Pirates more than held their own on the boards, especially in the early part of the game. They outrebounded the Farmers, 33-26, with most of them hauled in

Seals, Vancouver Face Off Tonight

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The California Seals will be attempting to rebound here tonight after falling apart against the Chicago Black Hawks last night in Oakland.

While the Seals skate against the host Vancouver Canucks tonight, Seals' coach Fred Glover may be recalling painful memories of last night's game.

What had been a close game fell apart Friday night when the Hawks exploded for five goals in the last period.

Last place California, which has lost their last seven games, led 2-0 in the first period on early scores by defenseman Rick Smith and left wing Joey Johnston.

But the Black Hawks came back with scores by J. P. Bordeleau and Lou Angotti and took the lead 4-2 in the second period with goals by Cliff Koroll and Jim Pappin. Then Johnston hit his second goal to cut the lead to 4-3.

Jerry Korab scored twice for Chicago in the third period and Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton and Bordeleau put in one each.

Hilliard Graves scored California's only third period hit.

ANTARCTIC GREETINGS

As human explorers from many nations again fan out from bases during Antarctic summer to probe that frozen area, they find the natives friendly for the most part. Emperor penguins above waddle over to greet visitors, cocking their heads and squawking among themselves and show very little alarm. A mother seal (left), a bit more cautious, bellows a warning not to touch her baby — but then she just eyes any intruder with gentle curiosity.

Casino Robber Sentenced For His Part In Crime

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Casino robber Larry Swinburg yesterday was ordered to serve five years probation and weekends in jail for four months for his role in the $178,500 robbery of Harrah's Lake Tahoe casino.

U.S. District Court judge Bruce Thompson also ordered Swinburg to make restitution of $1,220, his share of the holdup loot, within a two-year period.

Swinburg had pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge in connection with the Sept. 19 robbery and testified for the government in the trial of three other men.

Donald Rice, 35, Jack Cozad, 37, and Thomas Norman, 36, were convicted of conspiracy at a jury trail earlier this month. Rice was also convicted of interstate transportation of stolen property and Cozard and Norman of aiding and abetting.

Closed Council Session For Barbier Successor

The San Rafael City Council will meet in closed session at 7 p.m. Monday to consider filling the council seat held by the late Harry A. Barbier.

Councilmen failed to reach agreement on Barbier's successor two weeks ago when a vote produced a three-way split. Frontrunners in the eight-way race appear to be planning commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole, Dixie School District board president John A. Starkweather and county planning commission chairman Jack G. Nixon.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini has said he will call a special election to coincide with the expiration of Barbier's term in April if the council is unable to make the appointment on Monday.

The council in closed session also will consider a board of review recommendation upholding the firing of police officer James W. Jackson, who is accused of submitting pay vouchers for a training class he never attended.

The council in public session will consider an historic preservation ordinance drafted by Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan and consider the request of Marin Heritage, a preservation group, for funds to purchase the Dollar Mansion on Mission Avenue.

The council will also hear a report on financial matters from Councilman John A. Miskimen, consider a no-smoking policy during council meetings and hear a report on the timing of the city's sale of open space bonds.

$11,000 Damage To Detergent Plant At Prison

A fire which broke out yesterday in the storage section of the detergent plant at San Quentin Prison did more than $11,000 damage before the prison's firemen extinguished it.

Lee De Bord, prison information officer, said cause of the blaze, which started about 10:30 a.m., was not known.

The fire burned about $8,500 worth of boxes and did between $2,500 and $3,000 damage to the storage building.

The smoky blaze was mainly confined to stacks of boxes, DeBord said.

Detergents and cleansers are manufactured in the plant which are sold to tax-supported agencies.

Agase Returns To Purdue Grid

Combined AP & UPI

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Northwestern's Alex Agase, who played one season at Purdue during World War II and earned All-America status, is returning today to the Boilermakers as their head football coach.

Agase, 50, was named Friday night to replace Bob DeMoss, who resigned after three unsuccessful seasons, saying he wanted to devote more time to his family.

Agase spent nine years at the helm of the Northwestern Wildcats, seven of them losing seasons.

"The decision to leave Northwestern was tough," Agase told a news conference. "I debated the move in agony the last 11 days when I learned my friend, 'Demo', was leaving coaching. I hope I can do the job Purdue expects of me."

Although Agase's record at Northwestern was a losing one, 32-58-1, his 1970 and 1971 seasons were exceptions, finishing each time in second place in the Big Ten.

DALLAS — Southern Methodist University Friday hired Dave Smith of Oklahoma State as head football coach, replacing Hayden Fry, fired just before the season's final game. Salary figures were not disclosed.

Golf

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — American golf professional George Archer shared the lead with Australian Bob Tuohy today after the third round of the City of Auckland Golf Classic.

Both leaders carded 210s — three-under-par — over the first 54 holes and are three strokes ahead of 22-year-old Jack Newton of Australia who, along with Tuohy, shot a four-under-par 67 today.

Tennis

SAN FRANCISCO — British Motors announced the sponsorship of a second major Pro Tennis Tournament to be held Jan. 21-27 at the Los Angeles Forum.

The British Motors MG Tennis Championships will follow on the heels of a $25,000 San Francisco tournament which opens the national Virginia Slims tour.

San Francisco's six night event ends Saturday, Jan. 20. Opening round play for the Forum tournament begins Sunday Jan. 21 at 11 a.m.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — A simple handshake was good enough Friday to double the salary of Steve Carlton, the best pitcher in baseball last season. Of course, winning 27 games and the Cy Young Award didn't hurt either when the lanky left-hander talked contact with Phillies general manager Paul Owens.

"Steve and I shook hands and that's good enough for me," said Owens Friday. He said he expected Carlton to sign sometime after the first of the year. The verbal agreement they reached calls for a reported $150,000 a year, as compared with the $75,000 he received last year.

Carlton will be the highest paid player in Phillies' history.

Basketball

LOS ANGELES — UCLA basketball coach John Wooden won't be at Pauley Pavilion tonight when his no. 1-ranked Bruins return to action after a two-week layoff to face University of California at Santa Barbara.

Wooden, 62, was taken to the hospital last Sunday night for what his doctors later reported as a mild heart condition. It will be the first game he has missed since becoming the coach at UCLA in 1948.

Assistant coach Gary Cunningham, 33, will fill in until Wooden's return. The Bruins' coach is expected to be released during the weekend.

Hayward, which shot a blistering 63 per cent from the field, was led in the scoring by Jackson with 20 points, and Paulsen with 19. Top scorers for Drake, which converted 42 per cent from the floor, were Channell with 19 and Eddie Joe Chavez with 13 points.

Petaluma had trouble with the press for the second night in a row, turning the ball over 11 times, but Steve Steady put in a pressure free throw with three seconds left to beat Marin Catholic.

The Trojans, who fell behind by seven at halftime, took over the lead at 30-28 with six minutes left in the third quarter on two Kirk Smartt free throws, and never trailed thereafter.

The Wildcats tied the score at 38, 40 and 42 all in the last two minutes on baskets by the Mahoney Brothers, Mike and Dan, but missed an easy basket that would have given them the game with 30 seconds remaining.

Rancho Cotate took control of the lead and the ball game in the third quarter and built up a 16 point lead with four minutes to play. The Cougars had trouble early against St. Patrick's, scoring only 14 points in the first half, but Marshall Brant, John Sorenson and Frank Garrett started hitting from outside to give them a 32-32 third quarter lead.

SUMMIT CONFERENCE — Dwarfed by his players, College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis (center, tie) issued instructions to his Tars during a time-out last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield. All of Panagakis' strategy and his players' brawn was needed to overcome a stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to achieve a 58-55 victory.

tuted liberally, particularly in the second quarter when the winners only scored five points. Mike Conner of Redwood led game scorers with 17 points, while Darrell Elder came up with 10, and 13 rebounds. Neil Hennessy led assists with seven.

Tamalpais (3-6) scored only 30 points in the first three periods and was trailing, 53-30, before erupting for 33 points in the final quarter to make the score respectable. Guard David Jones scored all 21 of his points in that frantic stanza.

Tam's unbelievable succession of injuries and ailments continued as Kevin Murphy, the Indians' leading scorer the last two games, wrenched a knee in practice Thursday and missed the game. Coach Bernie Schneider expects him back next week.

been plagued by racial bias during his years at Georgia Tech.

Pettit said it was the opinion of the board of trustees of the athletic association that "Coach Fulcher acted in the best interests of not only the present football team but of the entire school and of its future overall athletic program," in suspending McAshan.

"We affirm that the manner in which Coach Fulcher reached his decision in this unfortunate occurence conforms to the highest ethics and ideals of his profession."

McAshan charged that Fulcher had promised he could play in the Liberty Bowl if he would make a public apology and that Fulcher reneged on that promise.

NBA PLAY

Lakers In Trouble; Wilt Is Outplayed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's not often Wilt Chamberlaih is both outscored and outrebounded by the opposing center in the same game but when it does happen the Los Angeles Lakers are usually in trouble.

That was the case Friday night when young Dave Cowens led the red hot Boston Celtics past the defending National Basketball Association champions 102-98. Cowens scored 31 points and pulled down 19 rebounds as Boston ran its season record to 24-3, best in the NBA, and upped its Atlantic Division lead to 2 ½ games over New York.

Cowens tallied 29 of his points in the first three quarters but had to play it careful in the final session during most of which time he played with five personal fouls. The three-year veteran from Florida State did finally foul out with 43 seconds left to play but not before he let the officials know how he felt over the call. In addition to his sixth personal he also collected a technical foul which will leave him $50 lighter in his wallet.

Cowen's figures were even more impressive when matched against Chamberlain's totals of 18 points and 14 rebounds.

The win was Boston's seventh straight while Los Angeles had its six game winning streak snapped. The Lakers lost for only the fifth time in 30 games this season but it was Los Angeles' second defeat at the hands of Boston in as many games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee maintained its one game lead in the Midwest Division with a 98-82 decision over Cleveland while second place Chicago kept pace by beating New York 90-86, Golden State whipped Buffalo 129-95, Baltimore edged Houston 94-91, Kansas City-Omaha outlasted Detroit 140-132 in overtime and Portland nipped Seattle 96-95.

WHA Action: Hull Is Upstaged By Rookie

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Michael Plante, a rookie whom nearly no one had ever heard of before this year found himself in rather strange surroundings Friday night—stealing Bobby Hull's thunder.

Plante, who played last season with Drummondville in the Quebec Junior League, matched Hull with two goals as the lowly Philadelphia Blazers rose up to beat the western division-leading Winnipeg Jets 6-4. Plante who now has eight goals, five since he began playing on the line with John McKenzie and Michel Boudreau, scored what proved to be the game-winner in the third period. Hull, meanwhile has now scored 17 in 22 games for Winnipeg since being freed by the courts.

In the other World Hockey Association games, Cleveland defeated Quebec 6-3, Minnesota edged Houston 4-3 and Ottawa nipped Alberta 4-3.

Jack Stanfield's breakaway goal with seven minutes left snapped a 2-2 tie and gave Houston its win over Minnesota. Dunc McCallum and Murray Hall had the other two Aero goals.

Cleveland moved back into second place in the east as rookies Bill Horton and Ralph Hopiavuori tallied their first goals of the season to trigger the scoring. Ron Buchanan, the Crusaders' leading scorer, increased his total to 17 with a pair of goals.

Second period goals by Bob Leduc, Guy Trottier and Mike Boland keyed Ottawa over Alberta. Nationals' goalie Gilles Gratton proved the difference in the final minutes of play, stopping the Oilers' threat.

Junior Varsity Cage

Dave Steele, Mike Farris and Eric Wheeler combined for 32 points, Farris had 11 rebounds and James White had five assists as San Rafael High School's junior varsity basketball team defeated host Vallejo yesterday, 54-42. Terra Linda's unbeaten J.V.s, meanwhile, got 38 points from Steve Johnson, Doug Carlisle and Jeff Creamer in downing visiting Piner of Santa Rosa, 69-47.

Teams Keep Eye On Scoreboard

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There may be quite a few National Football League players playing scoreboard this weekend.

Scoreboard is a game played in the final stretch of a season when your team is in contention and your major opposition is on the road. It consists in keeping one eye on what you're doing and one eye on the scoreboard to keep track of your rivals.

The game of scoreboard be taking place in San Diego where the Pittsburgh Steelers will be keeping a close eye on the New York Jets-Cleveland finale as they prepare to take on the Chargers.

If the Jets beat Cleveland, then Pittsburgh has its first title in 40 years of NFL play. Should the Browns win, Pittsburgh then must beat San Diego to earn the title. A Cleveland victory and a Steeler defeat would push the Browns into the conference title on the basis of best conference record (they split their head-to-head games) and Pittsburgh would then compete in the playoffs as the wild card or best runnerup team.

No playoff berth was on the line for today's other game but three league records could fall. Miami met Baltimore in its attempt to become the first NFL club to go unbeaten through a 14-game schedule. No NFL team has had an unbeaten regular season since 1942 when the Chicago Bears were 11-0 before bowing in the playoffs.

In other action Sunday, Buffalo is at Washington, Chicago at Oakland, Green Bay at New Orleans, the New York Giants at Dallas, Cincinnati at Houston, New England at Denver and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

Reds' Bench Vows To Play Next Year

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench proclaimed Friday he would be ready to play ball next year.

"No doubt about it," said Bench, attired in a bright red robe and a floppy blue denim hat with a flower in it.

"I consider myself a very lucky person," Bench told newsmen attending the first news conference since his lung surgery Monday.

Bench, who had a benign lesion removed from his right lung, was expected to be released from Christ Hospital possibly Monday. he said he was "feeling great" and that he had been confident from the outset that everything would be alright.

Doctors said Friday the lesion had been caused by a fungus infection in the lung.

"I'd be a liar if I didn't admit I had some doubts," Bench said. "I thought about what might happen if they found it was malignant and I worried about the possibility of them having them cut into me and find out that it wasn't necessary after all."

Bench said he had seen the x-rays taken before and after the operation.

The spot was discovered in September during a routine team examination. Bench continued to play out the season, playoffs and World Series,

MARIN BOWLING

San Rafael's Tauscher Gets 707 In Greenbrae

Mike Tauscher's 707 series at Greenbrae Lanes Tuesday night was the loudest sound recorded in an otherwise quiet week of Marin County bowling.

Tauscher of San Rafael parleyed games of 225, 258 and 224 in turning in Marin's top bowling achievement of the week. He was bowling in the Mixed Mates League.

In other county bowling endeavors, Bea Hoffmann ruled the roost at Country Club Bowl this week, registering a fine 666 series. The San Rafael bowler rolled games of 231, 204 and 231 last Friday night in Our Own Gang league.

A TOURNEY IS ON TAP Monday, 1 p.m. at Country Club Bowl. Some 30 entries are expected for this Christmas powder puff tournament entitled "Three-Six-Nine Throwout."

Competitors will bowl four games with the lowest score thrown out. Bowlers will be automatically credited with strikes on the third, sixth and ninth frames. Scoring is based on three-games, total pins with handicaps.

Entrants must pay a $3 entry fee at Country Club Bowl and have a listing in the Marin County average book or have a current average compiled over a 21-game period. The higher average will be used in determining the handicap.

LUCKY 13. Thirteen-year-old Tony Trowbridge served notice this week that he is, indeed, a bowler with potential. Bowling at Greenbrae Lanes last Saturday morning, he compiled a creditable 660-series. After rolling games of 266 and 227, observers felt a 700-series was within Trowbridge's grasp. However, he plummeted to a 167 in the final game, thus missing the goal by 40 pins.

THIS WEEK'S BUSINESS

Profit Taking Drops Prices On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Profit taking dropped prices this week on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said the pullback was normal following the market's steep climb of recent weeks and the usual year-end portfolio changes.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues fell 5.95 to 1,027.24. Monday's closing of 1,036.27 was an all-time high Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 0.60 to 118.26. The NYSE common stock index dropped 3.38 to 64.63.

The stock market was overdue for a correction, analysts said, and this week it began to slide, although there was little pressure to the selling, some of which was attributed to seasonal tax considerations. However, most analysts concluded, the stock market was "overbought and ready for the dip." The market remained sensitive to peace rumors as Wall Street saw a brief rally Friday based on peace hopes.

Of 1,975 issues traded this week, 1,211 declined, 586 advanced Turnover for the week totaled 87,039,040 shares compared with 93,499,771 shares the week before and 89,333,650 shares a year earlier.

The consolidation phase began Monday as investors ignored a White House announcement that President Nixon

ANTARCTIC GREETINGS

As human explorers from many nations again fan out from bases during Antarctic summer to probe that frozen area, they find the natives friendly for the most part. Emperor penguins above waddle over to greet visitors, cocking their heads and squawking among themselves and show very little alarm. A mother seal (left), a bit more cautious, bellows a warning not to touch her baby — but then she just eyes any intruder with gentle curiosity.

Casino Robber Sentenced For His Part In Crime

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Casino robber Larry Swinburg yesterday was ordered to serve five years probation and weekends in jail for four months for his role in the $178,500 robbery of Harrah's Lake Tahoe casino.

U.S. District Court judge Bruce Thompson also ordered Swinburg to make restitution of $1,220, his share of the holdup loot, within a two-year period.

Swinburg had pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge in connection with the Sept. 19 robbery and testified for the government in the trial of three other men.

Donald Rice, 35, Jack Cozad, 37, and Thomas Norman, 36, were convicted of conspiracy at a jury trail earlier this month. Rice was also convicted of interstate transportation of stolen property and Cozard and Norman of aiding and abetting.

Closed Council Session For Barbier Successor

The San Rafael City Council will meet in closed session at 7 p.m. Monday to consider filling the council seat held by the late Harry A. Barbier.

Councilmen failed to reach agreement on Barbier's successor two weeks ago when a vote produced a three-way split. Frontrunners in the eight-way race appear to be planning commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole, Dixie School District board president John A. Starkweather and county planning commission chairman Jack G. Nixon.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini has said he will call a special election to coincide with the expiration of Barbier's term in April if the council is unable to make the appointment on Monday.

The council in closed session also will consider a board of review recommendation upholding the firing of police officer James W. Jackson, who is accused of submitting pay vouchers for a training class he never attended.

The council in public session will consider an historic preservation ordinance drafted by Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan and consider the request of Marin Heritage, a preservation group, for funds to purchase the Dollar Mansion on Mission Avenue.

The council will also hear a report on financial matters from Councilman John A. Miskimen, consider a no-smoking policy during council meetings and hear a report on the timing of the city's sale of open space bonds.

$11,000 Damage To Detergent Plant At Prison

A fire which broke out yesterday in the storage section of the detergent plant at San Quentin Prison did more than $11,000 damage before the prison's firemen extinguished it.

Lee De Bord, prison information officer, said cause of the blaze, which started about 10:30 a.m., was not known.

The fire burned about $8,500 worth of boxes and did between $2,500 and $3,000 damage to the storage building.

The smoky blaze was mainly confined to stacks of boxes, DeBord said.

Detergents and cleansers are manufactured in the plant which are sold to tax-supported agencies.

Profit Taking Drops Prices On Market

would seek to extend wage and price controls beyond their scheduled April 30, expiration. Brokers said the market had been expecting the move.

The remainder of the week saw moderate profit taking chop prices. Analysts said there was some disappointment that a peace pact was yet to be signed in Paris. Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger returned to Washington, prompting one analyst to postulate, "a Kissinger correlation." As he noted, "When Henry's on his way to Washington the market drops, and when he's on his way to Paris, it rises."

On Friday, the profit taking was interrupted by a twenty-minute peace rally inspired by a French radio broadcast forecasting a cease-fire in 48 hours. The list backed off after White House denial of such a cease-fire.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue and rose ⅞ to 52 ⅜ on 934,400 shares. AT&T has seen a resurgence of investor interest following a long decline.

Gulf Oil was second, up ¼ at 26 ½ on 910,600 shares. Gulf was still actively traded following its 9,225,000 share secondary offering.

Pan American World Airways was third, off 1 ¼ at 9 ½ on 907,500 shares. The airline issue was rocked after a prospectus disclosed if the line failed to sell a $75 million convertible debenture issue, the company will have a financial squeeze in the 1973 second quarter. Adding to the company's woes was the possibility of a rate war on the North Atlantic routes.

Profit Taking Drops Prices On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Profit taking dropped prices this week on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said the pullback was normal following the market's steep climb of recent weeks and the usual year-end portfolio changes.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues fell 5.95 to 1,027.24. Monday's closing of 1,036.27 was an all-time high Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 0.60 to 118.26. The NYSE common stock index dropped 3.38 to 64.63.

The stock market was overdue for a correction, analysts said, and this week it began to slide, although there was little pressure to the selling, some of which was attributed to seasonal tax considerations. However, most analysts concluded, the stock market was "overbought and ready for the dip." The market remained sensitive to peace rumors as Wall Street saw a brief rally Friday based on peace hopes.

Of 1,975 issues traded this week, 1,211 declined, 586 advanced Turnover for the week totaled 87,039,040 shares compared with 93,499,771 shares the week before and 89,333,650 shares a year earlier.

The consolidation phase began Monday as investors ignored a White House announcement that President Nixon

Few Flaws In Replica Of 'Spirit'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The replica of the "Spirit of St. Louis" was the best one ever made, said the man who built the original.

But T. Claude Ryan watched with approval as Charles A. Lindbergh spotted a few tiny flaws.

"He picked out these little things," Ryan said in an interview Friday after his friend and fellow aviation pioneer, Lindbergh, had his first look at the model of the little plane he flew from here to St. Louis to New York and then alone across the Atlantic in 1927.

"The exact location of the compass was a little off. The spinner on the propeller was one that the airplane had originally been equipped with but had been replaced in New York, so the one that actually flew across the Atlantic was different. He spotted that right away."

Lindbergh was here for a meeting of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality. "He was the one who insisted that the committee take time off and come up to the aerospace museum," said Ryan with a smile.

In a corner of the museum Lindy found another treasure — the original M1 monoplane on which he trained for his flight.

"We found it in a barn on a ranch in Montana about a year ago and restored it," said Ryan, now nearly 75 but still active as board chairman of Teledyne Ryan.

"It was what attracted Lindbergh to our company. It's very similar to the Spirit of St. Louis but smaller. He liked the Ryan M1 and he spent quite a bit of time in San Diego flying one while the 'Spirit' was being built, to get accustomed because it was so similar.

"This was the grandmother, or father if you like, of the Spirit of St. Louis."

While Lindbergh was practicing in the M1 — a model later widely used for Pacific Coast mail flights-Ryan was hurriedly assembling the Spirit of St. Louis, named because Lindbergh's financial backers were from that city. It took 60 days.

"We had a fuselage already under way, Ryan recalled, "and a few parts which we could use.

"They wanted it all done so fast."

Owner Of Biggest Circus Is Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israel S. Feld, a Russian immigrant's son who rose from an itinerant snakeoil salesman to ownership of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus, died Friday after a heart attack. He was 62.

In partnership with his brother Irvin and Judge Roy Hofheinz of Houston, Feld bought the world's largest circus for $10 million in an elaborate ceremony in 1967 at the entrance to the Colosseum in Rome.

Deputies Spurn Lie Tests In Student Shooting Case

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Several deputies suspected in the killing of two Southern University students have refused to take lie detector tests.

The East Baton Rouge Parish sheriff says he will conduct an investigation aimed at finding who caused the Nov. 15 campus disturbance.

U.S. Attorney Douglas Gonzales said Friday an investigation by about 40 FBI agents was complete "as of today" and he expected a report from them soon.

He said the investigation, which involved the interrogation of every law officer present at the disturbance, had narrowed to include only six deputies, several of whom refused to take the test.

"The error is that the FBI has narrowed its investigation to one suspect—that is wrong," he said. "And it is also wrong that this one suspect is the only one that refused to take the test. I saw he isn't the only one, so you can conclude that others have also refused."

The state commission of inquiry reported Thursday that the shots that killed Denver A. Smith and Leonard D. Brown in front of the Southern administration building came from an area where six deputies were posted.

State Attorney General William Guste Jr., the commission's chairman, said it was his unofficial opinion that one of the deputies killed the two students during the demonstration.

Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff Al Amiss said finding out whether his men killed the youths was being left to the FBI and the attorney general.

"We're right now in the process of appointing a special task force to investigate the Southern University takeover, who did take over the administration building, also who intimidated the students on the campus from going to class," Amiss said. "Also, who burned the building, which is aggravated arson. I'm going to make a very intensive investigation and hope to make some arrests."

Gonzales said the FBI's report would be given to him and other federal officials and "the federal attorney general's office will then decide what to do."

Court Rules Cable Firm Can't Ignore Blackout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has ruled that cable television systems cannot carry a network sports program into an area that has been blacked out.

The commission decided that a regional sports blackout applies to all television, both network and cable.

The ruling Friday came in response to a request from WPTV, the Scripps-Howard Broadcasting Co. television station in West Palm Beach, Fla.

WPTV, a NBC affiliate, said the network telecast of today's Baltimore Colts-Miami Dolphins football game at Miami was blacked out in its region because of the contract between the National Football League and NBC.

But WPTV said that it had reason to believe a cable system was planning to televise today's game and the Dec. 24 American Football Conference playoff game at Miami into the West Palm Beach area.

The FCC said that the cable system could not carry the regular season game today or the AFC playoff game Dec. 24:

The FCC said the cable system was trying to make use of a technicality in a rule, which applied only when the network affiliate had an option to carry a program. No option for WPTV exists in the case of the Colts-Dolphins game or the playoff game, the FCC said.

Girl Auction Blasted By Women

LONDON (UPI) — Women journalists were angry today over plans by male colleagues to auction a shapely model at a Christmas press ball.

The women, members of an organization called Women in Media, assailed their own union, the National Union of Journalists, for sponsoring a "degrading auction" of a girl at a dance.

The women said the union, "which stands for equality for women," should not sponsor the Dec. 18 ball because it includes a "Win a Woman" contest.

"If they would like to take up the remaining tickets, we would be happy to provide a man for them to win," a union spokesman said.

Mrs. Sandra Brown, a Women in Media leader, said her group considers the auction idea degrading.

"Somebody I know was approached to be auctioned," Mrs. Brown said. "She refused point blank...It smacks very much of a cattle market."

Aviatrix Dead

LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Jessie "Chubbie" Pugh, a famed aviatrix and central figure in a sensational American murder trial of the 1930s, died today in a London hospital. She was 70.

THIS WEEK'S BUSINESS

would seek to extend wage and price controls beyond their scheduled April 30, expiration. Brokers said the market had been expecting the move.

The remainder of the week saw moderate profit taking chop prices. Analysts said there was some disappointment that a peace pact was yet to be signed in Paris. Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger returned to Washington, prompting one analyst to postulate, "a Kissinger correlation." As he noted, "When Henry's on his way to Washington the market drops, and when he's on his way to Paris, it rises."

On Friday, the profit taking was interrupted by a twenty-minute peace rally inspired by a French radio broadcast forecasting a cease-fire in 48 hours. The list backed off after White House denial of such a cease-fire.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue and rose ⅞ to 52 ⅜ on 934,400 shares. AT&T has seen a resurgence of investor interest following a long decline.

Gulf Oil was second, up ¼ at 26 ½ on 910,600 shares. Gulf was still actively traded following its 9,225,000 share secondary offering.

Pan American World Airways was third, off 1 ¼ at 9 ½ on 907,500 shares. The airline issue was rocked after a prospectus disclosed if the line failed to sell a $75 million convertible debenture issue, the company will have a financial squeeze in the 1973 second quarter. Adding to the company's woes was the possibility of a rate war on the North Atlantic routes.

U.N. Forms Unit On Environment

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations set up a 58-nation organization Friday to combat pollution and safeguard the earth's resources, then named Nairobi as its home base and appointed a Canadian expert on ecology to head it.

The U.N. General Assembly also placed East and West Germany—two of the most polluted nations in Europe—on the governing council of the new organization even though the two states are not yet full members of the United Nations.

The new organization, the first such U.N. group, will monitor and measure pollution, collect and exchange data on it and supervise global projects to combat the deterioration of the world's environment.

The choice of Nairobi as headquarters for the organization was unanimous and historical. It makes Nairobi the first headquarters for a U.N. organization outside the rich nations of Europe and North America.

Maurice F. Strong, a Canadian industrialist who served as secretary general of a world environment conference held last summer in Stockholm, won election as executive secretary of the new organization. He will earn $42,000 a year in a job which compares with such posts as director general of the U.N. World Health Organization (WHO) or the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

The new body was established as a result of the Stockholm conference, which proposed a U.N. organization to deal with monitoring and protecting the world's oceans, lands and atmosphere.

East Germany was barred from the Stockholm conference because it was not a member of the United Nations and as a result Soviet bloc nations boycotted the meeting.

But following the diplomatic breakthroughs leading to closer relations between the two Germanys and after East Germany achieved the same kind of observer status at the United Nations as West Germany, both German states won places on the new organization's governing council.

Other members elected to the governing council included the Soviet Union and four other members of the Eastern bloc, 16 black African states, 13 Middle and Far Eastern states, including China, 10 Latin American states and 12 Western bloc states, including the United States and Canada.

Jail Term Is Given To Arsonist

A 28-year-old man who set fire to his former home in Bolinas has been ordered to serve six months in jail by a Marin Superior Court judge.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed Charles K. Post, now of San Francisco, on probation for five years on the felony arson count.

Post was arrested Sept. 16 after a chase at 80 miles an hour through Petaluma, two hours after the 19th century home at 19 Brighton Avenue caught fire. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Post, now unemployed, had been a volunteer fireman and owner of Survival Health Foods in Bolinas.

A probation officer said he set the fire "in a desperate bid to secure assistance with his emotional distress" over the dissolution of his marriage.

The report noted he made no effort to conceal the crime.

Miller Wins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arnold E. Miller has defeated W. A. "Tony" Boyle for the presidency of the United Mine Workers (UMW), according to final unofficial votes released today by the Labor Department.

Doctor, Nurses Fined For Sale Of Illegal Drug

BERKELEY (UPI) — Dr. John A. Richardson, an Albany physician, and his two nurses, were found guilty yesterday on charges of dispensing Laetrile, a drug banned for use as a cancer cure.

Municipal Judge George Brunn gave Richardson a six-month suspended sentence, placed him on probation for three years and fined him $2,500.

Charlotte Anderson, one of the nurses, was given a 90-day suspended sentence and $250 fine. Margaret Grosch, another nurse, got a $600 fine and 90-day suspended sentence.

The physician conceded that he had sold Laetrile to undercover agents posing as cancer patients.

MacArthur's Plane To Be Restaurant

NIIGATA, Japan (UPI) — A Lockheed Constellation Starliner which once served as the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur's special plane flew into Niigata airport Friday—to become a restaurant.

Hiro Miyajima, 38, the new owner of the plane, said the aircraft restaurant would cost him about $454,000.

SACKED SANTAS

Fired from their Santa Claus jobs in a St. Paul, Minn., department store for telling children that Santa Claus does not bring guns are Bill Devine (left) and Darrell Baird, both 24. The two were sacked yesterday after the store issued a memo forbidding antigun statements. Both had told children who asked for guns that Santa Claus does not give them. A store spokesman said Devine and Baird were violating a store policy which states that Santas should not promise or refuse any particular gift to a child.

Mental Patient Doesn't Want To Leave Home Of 40 Years

WAUPUN, Wis. (UPI) — William Jensen, 87, will be able to stay in a mental hospital over the holidays. That, for him, is good news. But afterwards he will have to leave and he doesn't like it a bit.

Jensen has been a mental patient for 40 years and currently is an inmate of Central State Hospital.

A court ruled recently that Jensen was "not a proper subject" for confinement under Wisconsin's involuntary commitment law and ordered that he be released Friday.

The hospital's superintendent, Dr. Edward F. Schubert, Thursday night asked and obtained a two week extension of the order so that Jensen could spend Christmas with his friends in the hospital.

But after that, Schubert said, the hospital will have to let him go. He said neither he nor Jensen thinks much of the prospect.

"He takes a dim view of the whole release thing," Schubert said. "Mr. Jensen said he wants to stay at the hospital, but there's nothing I can do about it."

Schubert said he does not want to turn Jensen out into "the cold, dreary world."

"This bothers me very much that I'll have to let him go," he said. "But there's nothing I can do to keep him here. He's going to be pretty damn much on his own now.

"The one good thing is that at least he'll be here through Christmas."

Jensen, of Hanshaw, Wis., was first committed to a mental hospital in 1932, when the Oneida County Court ruled he was insane.

West German President Says Office Is No 'Token'

BONN (UPI) — German women are getting more actively involved in politics and are thinking and acting independently, the first women elected president of the West German parliament said Friday.

Annemarie Renger added in an interview with UPI that "I am for the emancipation of women because I am for the emancipation of the whole of society."

Mrs. Renger, who got into politics after World War II as secretary to Kurt Schumacher, chairman of the Social Democratic Party, won her way to the presidency of the Bundestag, the 496-member lower house of parliament when the deputies elected Nov. 19 convended Wednesday.

At 53, she is the first woman to win the post, the second highest in the republic, ranked only by the head of state.

Mrs. Renger brushed aside suggestions she was given the job as "a token woman," as a salve to the consciences of male parliamentarians for the fact that the new legislative body has only 30 female members, fewer than any of its predecessors.

Despite what appears to be their poor showing in the last election, Mrs. Renger said she is convinced women are becoming politically more emancipated and active.

"Women more and more vote politically, throwing off external influences such as that of their religious confession," Mrs. Renger said. "It used to be that many women whose husbands voted for us Social Democrats because of these external influences. If you are well enough backgrounded in German affairs, you will know what I mean."

Assistants said she meant that until recently such women followed the advice of their priests or pastors to vote for the Christian Democrats no matter what were the political issues.

"Now growing numbers of these same woman are voting for us Social Democrats," Mrs. Renger said.

But it must not be assumed that women automatically vote for women, she went on. However, she said analysis shows that women who managed to become candidates despite male dominance of the Social Democratic Party organization increased their polls this election more than did the men.

Mrs. Renger was widowed in 1944, when her first husband was killed in France. She entered parliament in 1953, after Schumacher died, making a name for herself in dealing with social legislation, and in European affairs. Seven years ago, she married a former Yugoslav diplomat who is now a businessman and German citizen.

Rock Tunes Draw Shad In Flocks

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Each winter the Gizzard shad, a fish common to Lake Erie, has been attracted to the warm water discharged at the Pennsylvania Electric Co. plant on Presque Isle Bay.

After a few days many of the fish die in the warmer water. The company decided to do something to discourage the winter influx of the fish.

Someone suggested that rock 'n roll music would probably frighten off the shad.

At considerable expense, the company built an experimental tank to contain the fish, then lowered speakers into the water to pipe in the music in the hope it would discourage the fish.

Thursday, company officials gathered for the great experiment. Someone pushed a button and rock 'n roll music blared under water inside the tank.

The music attracted more shad.

Now, the company is conducting a study to find out why shad like rock 'n roll music.

Lock Contract Session Set

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board will hold a special meeting Thursday prior to awarding contracts on construction of a tidal lock and dredging of the community lagoon.

Directors agreed Thursday night to go over details of bids before awarding contracts at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 28 at the Bel Marin Keys Community Center, according to Betty L. Zoeller, district secretary.

Last month, Duncan Harrelson Co. of Oakland submitted low bid of $689,400 for construction of the tidal lock, while Shellmaker Inc. of San Francisco, was low bidder on the dredging at $242,350.

Few Flaws In Replica Of 'Spirit'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The replica of the "Spirit of St. Louis" was the best one ever made, said the man who built the original.

But T. Claude Ryan watched with approval as Charles A. Lindbergh spotted a few tiny flaws.

"He picked out these little things," Ryan said in an interview Friday after his friend and fellow aviation pioneer, Lindbergh, had his first look at the model of the little plane he flew from here to St. Louis to New York and then alone across the Atlantic in 1927.

"The exact location of the compass was a little off. The spinner on the propeller was one that the airplane had originally been equipped with but had been replaced in New York, so the one that actually flew across the Atlantic was different. He spotted that right away."

Lindbergh was here for a meeting of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality. "He was the one who insisted that the committee take time off and come up to the aerospace museum," said Ryan with a smile.

In a corner of the museum Lindy found another treasure — the original M1 monoplane on which he trained for his flight.

"We found it in a barn on a ranch in Montana about a year ago and restored it," said Ryan, now nearly 75 but still active as board chairman of Teledyne Ryan.

"It was what attracted Lindbergh to our company. It's very similar to the Spirit of St. Louis but smaller. He liked the Ryan M1 and he spent quite a bit of time in San Diego flying one while the 'Spirit' was being built, to get accustomed because it was so similar.

"This was the grandmother, or father if you like, of the Spirit of St. Louis."

While Lindbergh was practicing in the M1 — a model later widely used for Pacific Coast mail flights-Ryan was hurriedly assembling the Spirit of St. Louis, named because Lindbergh's financial backers were from that city. It took 60 days.

"We had a fuselage already under way, Ryan recalled, "and a few parts which we could use.

"They wanted it all done so fast."

Owner Of Biggest Circus Is Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israel S. Feld, a Russian immigrant's son who rose from an itinerant snakeoil salesman to ownership of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus, died Friday after a heart attack. He was 62.

In partnership with his brother Irvin and Judge Roy Hofheinz of Houston, Feld bought the world's largest circus for $10 million in an elaborate ceremony in 1967 at the entrance to the Colosseum in Rome.

Deputies Spurn Lie Tests In Student Shooting Case

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Several deputies suspected in the killing of two Southern University students have refused to take lie detector tests.

The East Baton Rouge Parish sheriff says he will conduct an investigation aimed at finding who caused the Nov. 15 campus disturbance.

U.S. Attorney Douglas Gonzales said Friday an investigation by about 40 FBI agents was complete "as of today" and he expected a report from them soon.

He said the investigation, which involved the interrogation of every law officer present at the disturbance, had narrowed to include only six deputies, several of whom refused to take the test.

"The error is that the FBI has narrowed its investigation to one suspect—that is wrong," he said. "And it is also wrong that this one suspect is the only one that refused to take the test. I saw he isn't the only one, so you can conclude that others have also refused."

The state commission of inquiry reported Thursday that the shots that killed Denver A. Smith and Leonard D. Brown in front of the Southern administration building came from an area where six deputies were posted.

State Attorney General William Guste Jr., the commission's chairman, said it was his unofficial opinion that one of the deputies killed the two students during the demonstration.

Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff Al Amiss said finding out whether his men killed the youths was being left to the FBI and the attorney general.

"We're right now in the process of appointing a special task force to investigate the Southern University takeover, who did take over the administration building, also who intimidated the students on the campus from going to class," Amiss said. "Also, who burned the building, which is aggravated arson. I'm going to make a very intensive investigation and hope to make some arrests."

Gonzales said the FBI's report would be given to him and other federal officials and "the federal attorney general's office will then decide what to do."

Court Rules Cable Firm Can't Ignore Blackout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has ruled that cable television systems cannot carry a network sports program into an area that has been blacked out.

The commission decided that a regional sports blackout applies to all television, both network and cable.

The ruling Friday came in response to a request from WPTV, the Scripps-Howard Broadcasting Co. television station in West Palm Beach, Fla.

WPTV, a NBC affiliate, said the network telecast of today's Baltimore Colts-Miami Dolphins football game at Miami was blacked out in its region because of the contract between the National Football League and NBC.

But WPTV said that it had reason to believe a cable system was planning to televise today's game and the Dec. 24 American Football Conference playoff game at Miami into the West Palm Beach area.

The FCC said that the cable system could not carry the regular season game today or the AFC playoff game Dec. 24:

The FCC said the cable system was trying to make use of a technicality in a rule, which applied only when the network affiliate had an option to carry a program. No option for WPTV exists in the case of the Colts-Dolphins game or the playoff game, the FCC said.

Girl Auction Blasted By Women

LONDON (UPI) — Women journalists were angry today over plans by male colleagues to auction a shapely model at a Christmas press ball.

The women, members of an organization called Women in Media, assailed their own union, the National Union of Journalists, for sponsoring a "degrading auction" of a girl at a dance.

The women said the union, "which stands for equality for women," should not sponsor the Dec. 18 ball because it includes a "Win a Woman" contest.

"If they would like to take up the remaining tickets, we would be happy to provide a man for them to win," a union spokesman said.

Mrs. Sandra Brown, a Women in Media leader, said her group considers the auction idea degrading.

"Somebody I know was approached to be auctioned," Mrs. Brown said. "She refused point blank...It smacks very much of a cattle market."

Aviatrix Dead

Have the I-J delivered to the home of a special friend for less than a dime a copy. Isn't that a good example of imaginative gift-giving? It shows that you don't have to spend a bundle to let someone know you're thinking of them, not just on Christmas morning, but six days a week. They'll appreciate your gift each time they reach down on their doorstep and bring in this bright, well-written newspaper. It'll bring them the news of their neighborhood, of their town and of the whole world, edited with integrity and style.

The I-J will make a special welcome to a newcomer to Marin or to a serviceman or student far from home. Clip out the coupon below and send it in with your list of special friends. Share a friend with a friend this Christmas.

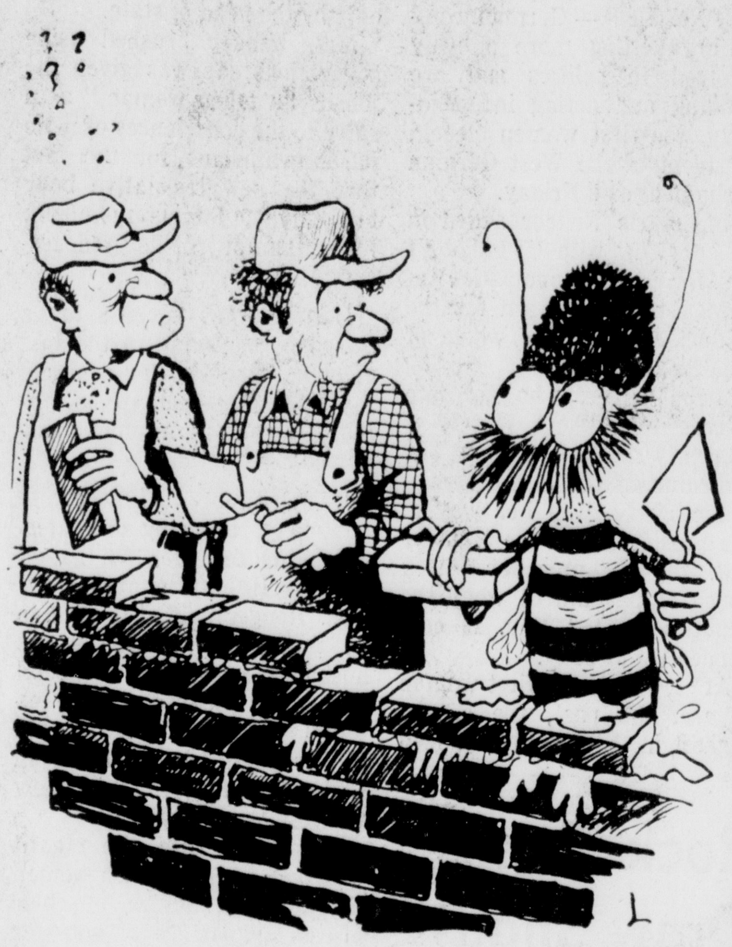
Despite Planning, New Embassy In Moscow Might Have Bugs



By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bugs? For years Russians in Washington, and Americans in Moscow, have assumed these devices were a fact of diplomatic life.

Now both sides have a chance to minimize electronic eavesdropping, since each is to build a brand-new embassy in the other's capital.

Americans know it will be difficult to exterminate bugs completely.

"The U.S. knows it's working in a bugged building (in Moscow), "says on State Department official, "and to think you can keep a building free of bugging in this day of sophistication is nonsense."

Nonetheless, one can assume the United States and the Soviet Union will do their utmost to keep out electronic listening devices when they build the new embassies.

Under a recently signed agreement on construction, each side has the right to do all the iterior work and to have unrestricted access to its building site — provisions that Washington, which wants to use American or West European laborers, insisted upon.

Both sides, if they choose, also can do the exterior facing and the final roofing work.

No one is fooling anyone, though. It is virtually impossible to eliminate eavesdropping by the "other side." Americans in Moscow — and no doubt Russians in Washington — have always worked on the assumption that no building is "safe" and therefore keep alert about what they say inside.

U.S. security officials are mum about the latest wiretapping techniques. But these days there are highly developed devices to monitor conversation, some so miniaturized that "drops and pickups" are a constant hazard. A Russian or East European visitor to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, for instance, can drop a small object in some hard-to-find nook and pick it up unobtrusively (he hopes) at some later date.

In any event, both sides are pleased that after years of wrangling an accord was signed — it is the 101st Soviet agreement since 1933 and the 43rd in the Nixon administration — and plans for the embassies can now take wing. The United States has hired the firms of Skidmore, Owings, & Merrill of San Francisco and Gruzen and Partners of New York to design the building. Their overall mandate is to come up with something that reflects American architectural trends and values.

This gives the United States an unusual opportunity to project the American image in a Communist society. Moscow watchers re hoping the building will turn out to be more of an eye-catcher than, say, the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw, which many critics term "unimaginative."

It is expected to be at least two years before ground is broken for the embassy. Besides the architectural plans, which must be cleared by the Russians to make sure they meet local building codes, Congress must appropriate the money.

Occupancy of the two embassies is to be simultaneous — bugs and all.

Witnesses Tell Strange Tales On Psychologists

NEW YORK (UPI) — A housewife testified that an unlicensed psychologist had sexual intercourse with her and her school-age daughter and the daughter "took pictures of us in bed together."

An attractive brunette said her therapist on New York's West Side "socked me in the breasts" and "banged my head on the floor." When she complained, she said the therapist told her, "I had a problem with healthy play."

A third young woman said that, in her second week of treatment, her mental health therapist "started fondling and caressing me. It had nothing to do with any kind of treatment." She stopped going to him after paying out $1,100 in three weeks, the woman said.

Those were among the witnesses testifying either in person or through tape at a public hearing Friday into the practices of unlicensed mental health therapists. The witnesses did not identify themselves at the hearing.

"Today in New York anyone, including incompetents, charlatans, criminals and mentally ill persons can and do hold themselves out as being able to minister to those seeking help for mental, emotional or behavioral disorders," said State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz as he opened the hearings.

His office, Lefkowitz said, has found "widespread abuses by these unregulated practitioners in the mental health field."

There is a "shockingly widespread pattern of sexual therapy," said Stephen Mindell, deputy head of Lefkowitz's Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection.

Are there people today who care about their fellow-men?

Read the I-J's four part series on modern Good Samaritans, starting Tuesday.

All around the world there are people who see a need and do something about it. They're ordinary people, but they show an extraordinary interest in others who need help. They're people who take time to care. Read this special holiday feature in the I-J.

U.N. Forms Unit On Environment

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations set up a 58-nation organization Friday to combat pollution and safeguard the earth's resources, then named Nairobi as its home base and appointed a Canadian expert on ecology to head it.

The U.N. General Assembly also placed East and West Germany—two of the most polluted nations in Europe—on the governing council of the new organization even though the two states are not yet full members of the United Nations.

The new organization, the first such U.N. group, will monitor and measure pollution, collect and exchange data on it and supervise global projects to combat the deterioration of the world's environment.

The choice of Nairobi as headquarters for the organization was unanimous and historical. It makes Nairobi the first headquarters for a U.N. organization outside the rich nations of Europe and North America.

Maurice F. Strong, a Canadian industrialist who served as secretary general of a world environment conference held last summer in Stockholm, won election as executive secretary of the new organization. He will earn $42,000 a year in a job which compares with such posts as director general of the U.N. World Health Organization (WHO) or the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

The new body was established as a result of the Stockholm conference, which proposed a U.N. organization to deal with monitoring and protecting the world's oceans, lands and atmosphere.

East Germany was barred from the Stockholm conference because it was not a member of the United Nations and as a result Soviet bloc nations boycotted the meeting.

But following the diplomatic breakthroughs leading to closer relations between the two Germanys and after East Germany achieved the same kind of observer status at the United Nations as West Germany, both German states won places on the new organization's governing council.

Other members elected to the governing council included the Soviet Union and four other members of the Eastern bloc, 16 black African states, 13 Middle and Far Eastern states, including China, 10 Latin American states and 12 Western bloc states, including the United States and Canada.

Jail Term Is Given To Arsonist

A 28-year-old man who set fire to his former home in Bolinas has been ordered to serve six months in jail by a Marin Superior Court judge.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed Charles K. Post, now of San Francisco, on probation for five years on the felony arson count.

Post was arrested Sept. 16 after a chase at 80 miles an hour through Petaluma, two hours after the 19th century home at 19 Brighton Avenue caught fire. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Post, now unemployed, had been a volunteer fireman and owner of Survival Health Foods in Bolinas.

A probation officer said he set the fire "in a desperate bid to secure assistance with his emotional distress" over the dissolution of his marriage.

The report noted he made no effort to conceal the crime.

Miller Wins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arnold E. Miller has defeated W. A. "Tony" Boyle for the presidency of the United Mine Workers (UMW), according to final unofficial votes released today by the Labor Department.

Doctor, Nurses Fined For Sale Of Illegal Drug

BERKELEY (UPI) — Dr. John A. Richardson, an Albany physician, and his two nurses, were found guilty yesterday on charges of dispensing Laetrile, a drug banned for use as a cancer cure.

Municipal Judge George Brunn gave Richardson a six-month suspended sentence, placed him on probation for three years and fined him $2,500.

Charlotte Anderson, one of the nurses, was given a 90-day suspended sentence and $250 fine. Margaret Grosch, another nurse, got a $600 fine and 90-day suspended sentence.

The physician conceded that he had sold Laetrile to undercover agents posing as cancer patients.

MacArthur's Plane To Be Restaurant

NIIGATA, Japan (UPI) — A Lockheed Constellation Starliner which once served as the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur's special plane flew into Niigata airport Friday—to become a restaurant.

Hiro Miyajima, 38, the new owner of the plane, said the aircraft restaurant would cost him about $454,000.

SACKED SANTAS

Fired from their Santa Claus jobs in a St. Paul, Minn., department store for telling children that Santa Claus does not bring guns are Bill Devine (left) and Darrell Baird, both 24. The two were sacked yesterday after the store issued a memo forbidding antigun statements. Both had told children who asked for guns that Santa Claus does not give them. A store spokesman said Devine and Baird were violating a store policy which states that Santas should not promise or refuse any particular gift to a child.

Mental Patient Doesn't Want To Leave Home Of 40 Years

WAUPUN, Wis. (UPI) — William Jensen, 87, will be able to stay in a mental hospital over the holidays. That, for him, is good news. But afterwards he will have to leave and he doesn't like it a bit.

Jensen has been a mental patient for 40 years and currently is an inmate of Central State Hospital.

A court ruled recently that Jensen was "not a proper subject" for confinement under Wisconsin's involuntary commitment law and ordered that he be released Friday.

The hospital's superintendent, Dr. Edward F. Schubert, Thursday night asked and obtained a two week extension of the order so that Jensen could spend Christmas with his friends in the hospital.

But after that, Schubert said, the hospital will have to let him go. He said neither he nor Jensen thinks much of the prospect.

"He takes a dim view of the whole release thing," Schubert said. "Mr. Jensen said he wants to stay at the hospital, but there's nothing I can do about it."

Schubert said he does not want to turn Jensen out into "the cold, dreary world."

"This bothers me very much that I'll have to let him go," he said. "But there's nothing I can do to keep him here. He's going to be pretty damn much on his own now.

"The one good thing is that at least he'll be here through Christmas."

Jensen, of Hanshaw, Wis., was first committed to a mental hospital in 1932, when the Oneida County Court ruled he was insane.

West German President Says Office Is No 'Token'

BONN (UPI) — German women are getting more actively involved in politics and are thinking and acting independently, the first women elected president of the West German parliament said Friday.

Annemarie Renger added in an interview with UPI that "I am for the emancipation of women because I am for the emancipation of the whole of society."

Mrs. Renger, who got into politics after World War II as secretary to Kurt Schumacher, chairman of the Social Democratic Party, won her way to the presidency of the Bundestag, the 496-member lower house of parliament when the deputies elected Nov. 19 convended Wednesday.

At 53, she is the first woman to win the post, the second highest in the republic, ranked only by the head of state.

Mrs. Renger brushed aside suggestions she was given the job as "a token woman," as a salve to the consciences of male parliamentarians for the fact that the new legislative body has only 30 female members, fewer than any of its predecessors.

Despite what appears to be their poor showing in the last election, Mrs. Renger said she is convinced women are becoming politically more emancipated and active.

"Women more and more vote politically, throwing off external influences such as that of their religious confession," Mrs. Renger said. "It used to be that many women whose husbands voted for us Social Democrats because of these external influences. If you are well enough backgrounded in German affairs, you will know what I mean."

Assistants said she meant that until recently such women followed the advice of their priests or pastors to vote for the Christian Democrats no matter what were the political issues.

"Now growing numbers of these same woman are voting for us Social Democrats," Mrs. Renger said.

But it must not be assumed that women automatically vote for women, she went on. However, she said analysis shows that women who managed to become candidates despite male dominance of the Social Democratic Party organization increased their polls this election more than did the men.

Mrs. Renger was widowed in 1944, when her first husband was killed in France. She entered parliament in 1953, after Schumacher died, making a name for herself in dealing with social legislation, and in European affairs. Seven years ago, she married a former Yugoslav diplomat who is now a businessman and German citizen.

Rock Tunes Draw Shad In Flocks

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Each winter the Gizzard shad, a fish common to Lake Erie, has been attracted to the warm water discharged at the Pennsylvania Electric Co. plant on Presque Isle Bay.

After a few days many of the fish die in the warmer water. The company decided to do something to discourage the winter influx of the fish.

Someone suggested that rock 'n roll music would probably frighten off the shad.

At considerable expense, the company built an experimental tank to contain the fish, then lowered speakers into the water to pipe in the music in the hope it would discourage the fish.

Thursday, company officials gathered for the great experiment. Someone pushed a button and rock 'n roll music blared under water inside the tank.

The music attracted more shad.

Now, the company is conducting a study to find out why shad like rock 'n roll music.

Lock Contract Session Set

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board will hold a special meeting Thursday prior to awarding contracts on construction of a tidal lock and dredging of the community lagoon.

Directors agreed Thursday night to go over details of bids before awarding contracts at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 28 at the Bel Marin Keys Community Center, according to Betty L. Zoeller, district secretary.

Last month, Duncan Harrelson Co. of Oakland submitted low bid of $689,400 for construction of the tidal lock, while Shellmaker Inc. of San Francisco, was low bidder on the dredging at $242,350.

Despite Planning, New Embassy In Moscow Might Have Bugs

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bugs? For years Russians in Washington, and Americans in Moscow, have assumed these devices were a fact of diplomatic life.

Now both sides have a chance to minimize electronic eavesdropping, since each is to build a brand-new embassy in the other's capital.

Americans know it will be difficult to exterminate bugs completely.

"The U.S. knows it's working in a bugged building (in Moscow), "says on State Department official, "and to think you can keep a building free of bugging in this day of sophistication is nonsense."

Nonetheless, one can assume the United States and the Soviet Union will do their utmost to keep out electronic listening devices when they build the new embassies.

Under a recently signed agreement on construction, each side has the right to do all the iterior work and to have unrestricted access to its building site — provisions that Washington, which wants to use American or West European laborers, insisted upon.

Both sides, if they choose, also can do the exterior facing and the final roofing work.

No one is fooling anyone, though. It is virtually impossible to eliminate eavesdropping by the "other side." Americans in Moscow — and no doubt Russians in Washington — have always worked on the assumption that no building is "safe" and therefore keep alert about what they say inside.

U.S. security officials are mum about the latest wiretapping techniques. But these days there are highly developed devices to monitor conversation, some so miniaturized that "drops and pickups" are a constant hazard. A Russian or East European visitor to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, for instance, can drop a small object in some hard-to-find nook and pick it up unobtrusively (he hopes) at some later date.

In any event, both sides are pleased that after years of wrangling an accord was signed — it is the 101st Soviet agreement since 1933 and the 43rd in the Nixon administration — and plans for the embassies can now take wing. The United States has hired the firms of Skidmore, Owings, & Merrill of San Francisco and Gruzen and Partners of New York to design the building. Their overall mandate is to come up with something that reflects American architectural trends and values.

This gives the United States an unusual opportunity to project the American image in a Communist society. Moscow watchers re hoping the building will turn out to be more of an eye-catcher than, say, the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw, which many critics term "unimaginative."

It is expected to be at least two years before ground is broken for the embassy. Besides the architectural plans, which must be cleared by the Russians to make sure they meet local building codes, Congress must appropriate the money.

Occupancy of the two embassies is to be simultaneous — bugs and all.

Witnesses Tell Strange Tales On Psychologists

NEW YORK (UPI) — A housewife testified that an unlicensed psychologist had sexual intercourse with her and her school-age daughter and the daughter "took pictures of us in bed together."

An attractive brunette said her therapist on New York's West Side "socked me in the breasts" and "banged my head on the floor." When she complained, she said the therapist told her, "I had a problem with healthy play."

A third young woman said that, in her second week of treatment, her mental health therapist "started fondling and caressing me. It had nothing to do with any kind of treatment." She stopped going to him after paying out $1,100 in three weeks, the woman said.

Those were among the witnesses testifying either in person or through tape at a public hearing Friday into the practices of unlicensed mental health therapists. The witnesses did not identify themselves at the hearing.

"Today in New York anyone, including incompetents, charlatans, criminals and mentally ill persons can and do hold themselves out as being able to minister to those seeking help for mental, emotional or behavioral disorders," said State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz as he opened the hearings.

His office, Lefkowitz said, has found "widespread abuses by these unregulated practitioners in the mental health field."

There is a "shockingly widespread pattern of sexual therapy," said Stephen Mindell, deputy head of Lefkowitz's Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection.

Are there people today who care about their fellow-men?

Read the I-J's four part series on modern Good Samaritans, starting Tuesday.

All around the world there are people who see a need and do something about it. They're ordinary people, but they show an extraordinary interest in others who need help. They're people who take time to care. Read this special holiday feature in the I-J.

Britain's Big TV Tycoon

By ALAN BUNCE

LONDON, England — The big man in British commercial TV may be short, bald and portly, but he does a dazzling Charleston at the drop of a hint.

He is Sir Lew Grade, once billed as "World's Champion Charleston Dancer," now head of the international show-business empire known in Britain as ATV.

The very model of a model tycoon, Sir Lew makes a six-or-seven-million-dollar commitment from a two-page presentation. It took him about 10 minutes to talk TV-resistant Tony Curtis into doing last season's "The Persuaders," seen in the United States on ABC.

VIEWERS OF "The Julie Andrews Hour" on the same network are probably unaware he is the man behind all that glitter and music. His company has also sent a barrage of syndicated shows into hundreds of American markets — most currently "The Protectors," with Robert Vaughn, "UFO," "The Adventurer," plus specials and summer replacements.

Later this season, Aemricans will be treated to a national theater production of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," with Laurence Olivier as James Tyrone. The Old Vic production will be taped and aired in the United States on ABC-TV.

Waving his giant cigar like a swagger stick, Sir Lew paints a startling picture of his "accidental" launching into the television game.

"ONE MORNING I got a phone call from a friend who says, "Lew, have you read the Times? I said, 'I'm an agent, what do I want to read the Times for?' He said, 'Well,

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Buddy Ebsen, who has given long and good service to films and television aside from his nine-season run in video's "The Beverly Hillbillies," will be back on the tube beginning Jan. 28 at 9:30 p.m. as star of an hour-long CBS dramatic series tentatively titled "Barnaby Cobb." He will play a veteran private investigator.

CPM Programs Inc. is placing in production in Los Angeles a weekly one-hour program for syndication titled "Black Omnibus," with noted actor James Earl Jones as host. The series will explore the involvement of blacks in many phases of American life.

ABC will bring to the air during 1973 a seven-part drama, "The Strauss Family," depicting the triumphs and tragedies of the father-son waltz kings of Vienna in the 19th century. The series, produced in London, begins with a 90-minute episode, followed by six that are an hour long. Eric Woofe plays the elder Strauss, and Stuart Wilson is the son. The London Symphony Orchestra provides the music.

Hallmark Cards, Inc., which so far has invested about 50 million dollars in its long-running "Hall of Fame" drama specials, plans to invest 60 million dollars more in the same area during the next decade, according to Donald J. Hall, president.

Britain's Big TV Tycoon

By ALAN BUNCE

LONDON, England — The big man in British commercial TV may be short, bald and portly, but he does a dazzling Charleston at the drop of a hint.

He is Sir Lew Grade, once billed as "World's Champion Charleston Dancer," now head of the international show-business empire known in Britain as ATV.

The very model of a model tycoon, Sir Lew makes a six-or-seven-million-dollar commitment from a two-page presentation. It took him about 10 minutes to talk TV-resistant Tony Curtis into doing last season's "The Persuaders," seen in the United States on ABC.

VIEWERS OF "The Julie Andrews Hour" on the same network are probably unaware he is the man behind all that glitter and music. His company has also sent a barrage of syndicated shows into hundreds of American markets — most currently "The Protectors," with Robert Vaughn, "UFO," "The Adventurer," plus specials and summer replacements.

Later this season, Aemricans will be treated to a national theater production of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," with Laurence Olivier as James Tyrone. The Old Vic production will be taped and aired in the United States on ABC-TV.

Waving his giant cigar like a swagger stick, Sir Lew paints a startling picture of his "accidental" launching into the television game.

"ONE MORNING I got a phone call from a friend who says, "Lew, have you read the Times? I said, 'I'm an agent, what do I want to read the Times for?' He said, 'Well,

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Buddy Ebsen, who has given long and good service to films and television aside from his nine-season run in video's "The Beverly Hillbillies," will be back on the tube beginning Jan. 28 at 9:30 p.m. as star of an hour-long CBS dramatic series tentatively titled "Barnaby Cobb." He will play a veteran private investigator.

CPM Programs Inc. is placing in production in Los Angeles a weekly one-hour program for syndication titled "Black Omnibus," with noted actor James Earl Jones as host. The series will explore the involvement of blacks in many phases of American life.

ABC will bring to the air during 1973 a seven-part drama, "The Strauss Family," depicting the triumphs and tragedies of the father-son waltz kings of Vienna in the 19th century. The series, produced in London, begins with a 90-minute episode, followed by six that are an hour long. Eric Woofe plays the elder Strauss, and Stuart Wilson is the son. The London Symphony Orchestra provides the music.

Hallmark Cards, Inc., which so far has invested about 50 million dollars in its long-running "Hall of Fame" drama specials, plans to invest 60 million dollars more in the same area during the next decade, according to Donald J. Hall, president.

Sir Lew Has Cracked The American Market

there's an advertisement for licenses for television.' . . .

"My associates and I put up a nominal capital of 500,000 pounds (1.3 million dollars).

"One day I meet a woman who says, 'I've got a great idea for a series called Robin Hood.' I said, 'That sounds interesting. How much will it cost?' She said, 'Thirty-nine episodes will cost 420,000 pounds' I said, 'Okay, you've got a deal. Go ahead.'

"A few weeks go by. She's making all the plans. Suddenly I thought, 'Perhaps I'd better call a board meeting and let them know what I've done with 420 out of 500 thousand pounds.' I mean, I'd had no experience of big business and they were the 10 most prominent people in this country."

SIR LEW IS all innocence as he describes, slyly, his tenderfoot status.

"So we had a board meeting at my agency office on Regency Street and I say, 'We're going to do a series called Robin Hood. 39 episodes.'"

Had he sold it? No, but he thought it was a great idea, he told the board.

"'Well, you must be raving mad,' they said. 'We've got 500,000 pounds and you spend 420,000 on this one thing?'

"The chairman said, 'Have you signed an agreement?' I said, 'No, but I've given my word.' Another member said, 'Once Lew has given his word, we have to go through with it.'"

IN THE END "Robin Hood" ran for five years. Meanwhile ATV, and a subsidiary called ITC, started putting out other series that became staples of the Anglo-American TV scene.

"The Saint," for example.

Originally all three American networks turned it down because they thought their viewers wouldn't watch action with a British accent. So it was sold directly to local stations and became a hit, even nudging out New York's long reigning movie champ "The Late Show." Eventually NBC commissioned a new season of "Saint's," creating the unusual situation of a network buying a series after syndication.

But prior to that, Sir Lew had to crack the tough American television market. He did it with "Danger Man" — known to Americans as "Secret Agent" — starring Patrick McGoohan.

How about recent charges that ATV programs are too permissive?

"We produce more programs than any other company," he explains, "And I have to take other contractors' programs where they have nude scenes. But I don't think you should go into a home where there may be children, or you might have friends who would be embarrassed."

Too much talk and too little action is what killed "The Persuaders" last season, Sir Lew says. "All of us, I think, overlooked the fact that what might be amusing dialogue here might not be in Des Moines or Cincinnati. The fact it was a tremendous hit everywhere else in the world is unfortunate."

THAT WAS THE trouble, he feels, with another famous flop of his — "Shirley's World," starring Shirley MacLaine.

"I see the first episode and she comes to the London office of an American magazine," he relates, "pays off the cab, goes upstairs, says 'I want to see so-and-so,' and the receptionist says, 'Well, you turn . . .'"

Bombs appear unlikely to stop the ATV empire, as it turns out everything from more National Theater productions to pedestrian syndicated stuff like "Department S," a British show just beginning to cath on in the United States.

NOTHING HELPS?
HYPNOSIS WILL!
L. Davis A.I.E.H. 388-7367

"Christmas?...Bah!"
Said Ebenezer Scrooge.

WAS HE HARD OF HEARING?

Chances are Ebenezer had a hearing loss, or he couldn't have talked that way about the jolliest holiday of the year!

Seriously, Christmas can be a sad day - if hearing loss makes you miss all the fun. You feel alone . . . left out of things . . . even when you're surrounded by the very people you love.

If you look forward to Christmas with misgivings rather than pleasure, call on Beltone for help! Take your first step towards clear, unstrained hearing today! It's easy. Simply come in, phone, or write for an electronic hearing test with a Beltone precision audiometer, given by an authorized Beltone hearing aid specialist. You decide whether you want it at our office or at home. No obligation, of course.

MAKE A SOUND like...

CHRISTMAS MORNING

syntha sound
by Baldwin

sounds like fun!

It's a home organ. It's an easy-to-play synthesizer. It's twice as much music for your money. It's . . .

Let us demonstrate.

Sir Lew Has Cracked The American Market

there's an advertisement for licenses for television.' . . .

"My associates and I put up a nominal capital of 500,000 pounds (1.3 million dollars).

"One day I meet a woman who says, 'I've got a great idea for a series called Robin Hood.' I said, 'That sounds interesting. How much will it cost?' She said, 'Thirty-nine episodes will cost 420,000 pounds' I said, 'Okay, you've got a deal. Go ahead.'

"A few weeks go by. She's making all the plans. Suddenly I thought, 'Perhaps I'd better call a board meeting and let them know what I've done with 420 out of 500 thousand pounds.' I mean, I'd had no experience of big business and they were the 10 most prominent people in this country."

SIR LEW IS all innocence as he describes, slyly, his tenderfoot status.

"So we had a board meeting at my agency office on Regency Street and I say, 'We're going to do a series called Robin Hood. 39 episodes.'"

Had he sold it? No, but he thought it was a great idea, he told the board.

"'Well, you must be raving mad,' they said. 'We've got 500,000 pounds and you spend 420,000 on this one thing?'

"The chairman said, 'Have you signed an agreement?' I said, 'No, but I've given my word.' Another member said, 'Once Lew has given his word, we have to go through with it.'"

IN THE END "Robin Hood" ran for five years. Meanwhile ATV, and a subsidiary called ITC, started putting out other series that became staples of the Anglo-American TV scene.

"The Saint," for example.

Originally all three American networks turned it down because they thought their viewers wouldn't watch action with a British accent. So it was sold directly to local stations and became a hit, even nudging out New York's long reigning movie champ "The Late Show." Eventually NBC commissioned a new season of "Saint's," creating the unusual situation of a network buying a series after syndication.

But prior to that, Sir Lew had to crack the tough American television market. He did it with "Danger Man" — known to Americans as "Secret Agent" — starring Patrick McGoohan.

How about recent charges that ATV programs are too permissive?

"We produce more programs than any other company," he explains, "And I have to take other contractors' programs where they have nude scenes. But I don't think you should go into a home where there may be children, or you might have friends who would be embarrassed."

Too much talk and too little action is what killed "The Persuaders" last season, Sir Lew says. "All of us, I think, overlooked the fact that what might be amusing dialogue here might not be in Des Moines or Cincinnati. The fact it was a tremendous hit everywhere else in the world is unfortunate:"

THAT WAS THE trouble, he feels, with another famous flop of his — "Shirley's World," starring Shirley MacLaine.

"I see the first episode and she comes to the London office of an American magazine," he relates, "pays off the cab, goes upstairs, says 'I want to see so-and-so,' and the receptionist says, 'Well, you turn . . .'"

Bombs appear unlikely to stop the ATV empire, as it turns out everything from more National Theater productions to pedestrian syndicated stuff like "Department S," a British show just beginning to cath on in the United States.

NOTHING HELPS?
HYPNOSIS WILL!
L. Davis A.I.E.H. 388-7367

"Christmas?...Bah!"
Said Ebenezer Scrooge.

WAS HE HARD OF HEARING?

Chances are Ebenezer had a hearing loss, or he couldn't have talked that way about the jolliest holiday of the year!

Seriously, Christmas can be a sad day - if hearing loss makes you miss all the fun. You feel alone . . . left out of things . . . even when you're surrounded by the very people you love.

If you look forward to Christmas with misgivings rather than pleasure, call on Beltone for help! Take your first step towards clear, unstrained hearing today! It's easy. Simply come in, phone, or write for an electronic hearing test with a Beltone precision audiometer, given by an authorized Beltone hearing aid specialist. You decide whether you want it at our office or at home. No obligation, of course.

A Master Of Pewter Making—

"Ale or beer tastes better when drunk from a pewter cup," insists Wayne Levie of Sausalito.

And Levie should know. A craftsman, he specializes in the production of the kind of pewter wares that have enjoyed the favor of people who like a combination of utility and beauty in their possessions.

THESE DECEMBER weekends Levie is making his point at the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Comic Annuel in San Francisco where he is exhibiting his goblets and chalices.

On the point of utility, Levie notes: "Pewter reacts very quickly to heat or cold. And it retains that heat or cold for long periods of time."

As for beauty, Levie lets his products speak for themselves. And apparently fair-goers, at Fezziwig's Warehouse that has been recreated next door to the San Francisco Produce Market, are favorably impressed. Levie's shop is one of the most popular spots at the fair which recreates the holiday period in the London of Charles Dickens' time. And these visitors agree that Levie's work fits in perfectly with the spirit of the fair.

LEVIE'S PEWTER drinking vessels on display have a textured surface, ornately carved stems and some have jade bead decorations, with the beads cut right in Levie's stall. The textured surface is achieved by special techniques in polishing.

"Ornamentation in Victorian times was — well, you might call it organic," says Levie. "Utensils were formed in the shapes of animals and flowers in the 19th Century, and we're going back to nature for our forms today. This particular trend in ornamentation really began in the 1880s with Art Nouveau."

Pewter craftsmen peaked in their popularity during the 18th Century when pewter cups and bowls were used quite commonly. (In the Renaissance it was royalty who drank their meade from pewter.)

BY VICTORIAN times pewter-makers were so established that their wares could almost be called mass-produced. They had "recipes" for the various alloys which produced different flexibilities or degrees of hardness.

Casting in Victorian times was done in brass dyes which were expensive, but allowed a great number of castings to be made from one mold.

Wayne Levie's own method of making pewter goblets involves casting in sand — a method he developed after long experimentation. He prefers casting in sand since this produces a unique one-of-a-kind goblet, each one having very slight variations.

"I work with pewter as an artist, not as a manufacturer," he says.

LEVIE NOW spends most of his time working with pewter — an alloy of tin and lead. He has taken arts courses and jewelry making at the College of Marin.

The Great Dickens Fair and Pickwick Comic Annual ends its 1972 holiday season run next Saturday. It is open Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sundays from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The fair is reached from Bayshore Freeway by taking the Army Street exits, then following the signs.

Special shuttle buses are running every half hour, starting at 10:30 a.m., from Union Square across from the St. Francis Hotel.

WAYNE LEVIE IS only one of more than 100 craftsmen featured at the fair in small shops and stalls along a replica of Old London's winding streets.

These artisans produce an array of decorations, ornaments, garments, figurines and toys, working with many different materials.

But for Wayne Levie there is no material more "satisfying and honest" than pewter.

That, he feels, is the very reason why it has stood the test of time. And now centuries after pewter dominated man's table, it still claims stout adherents by the many thousands.

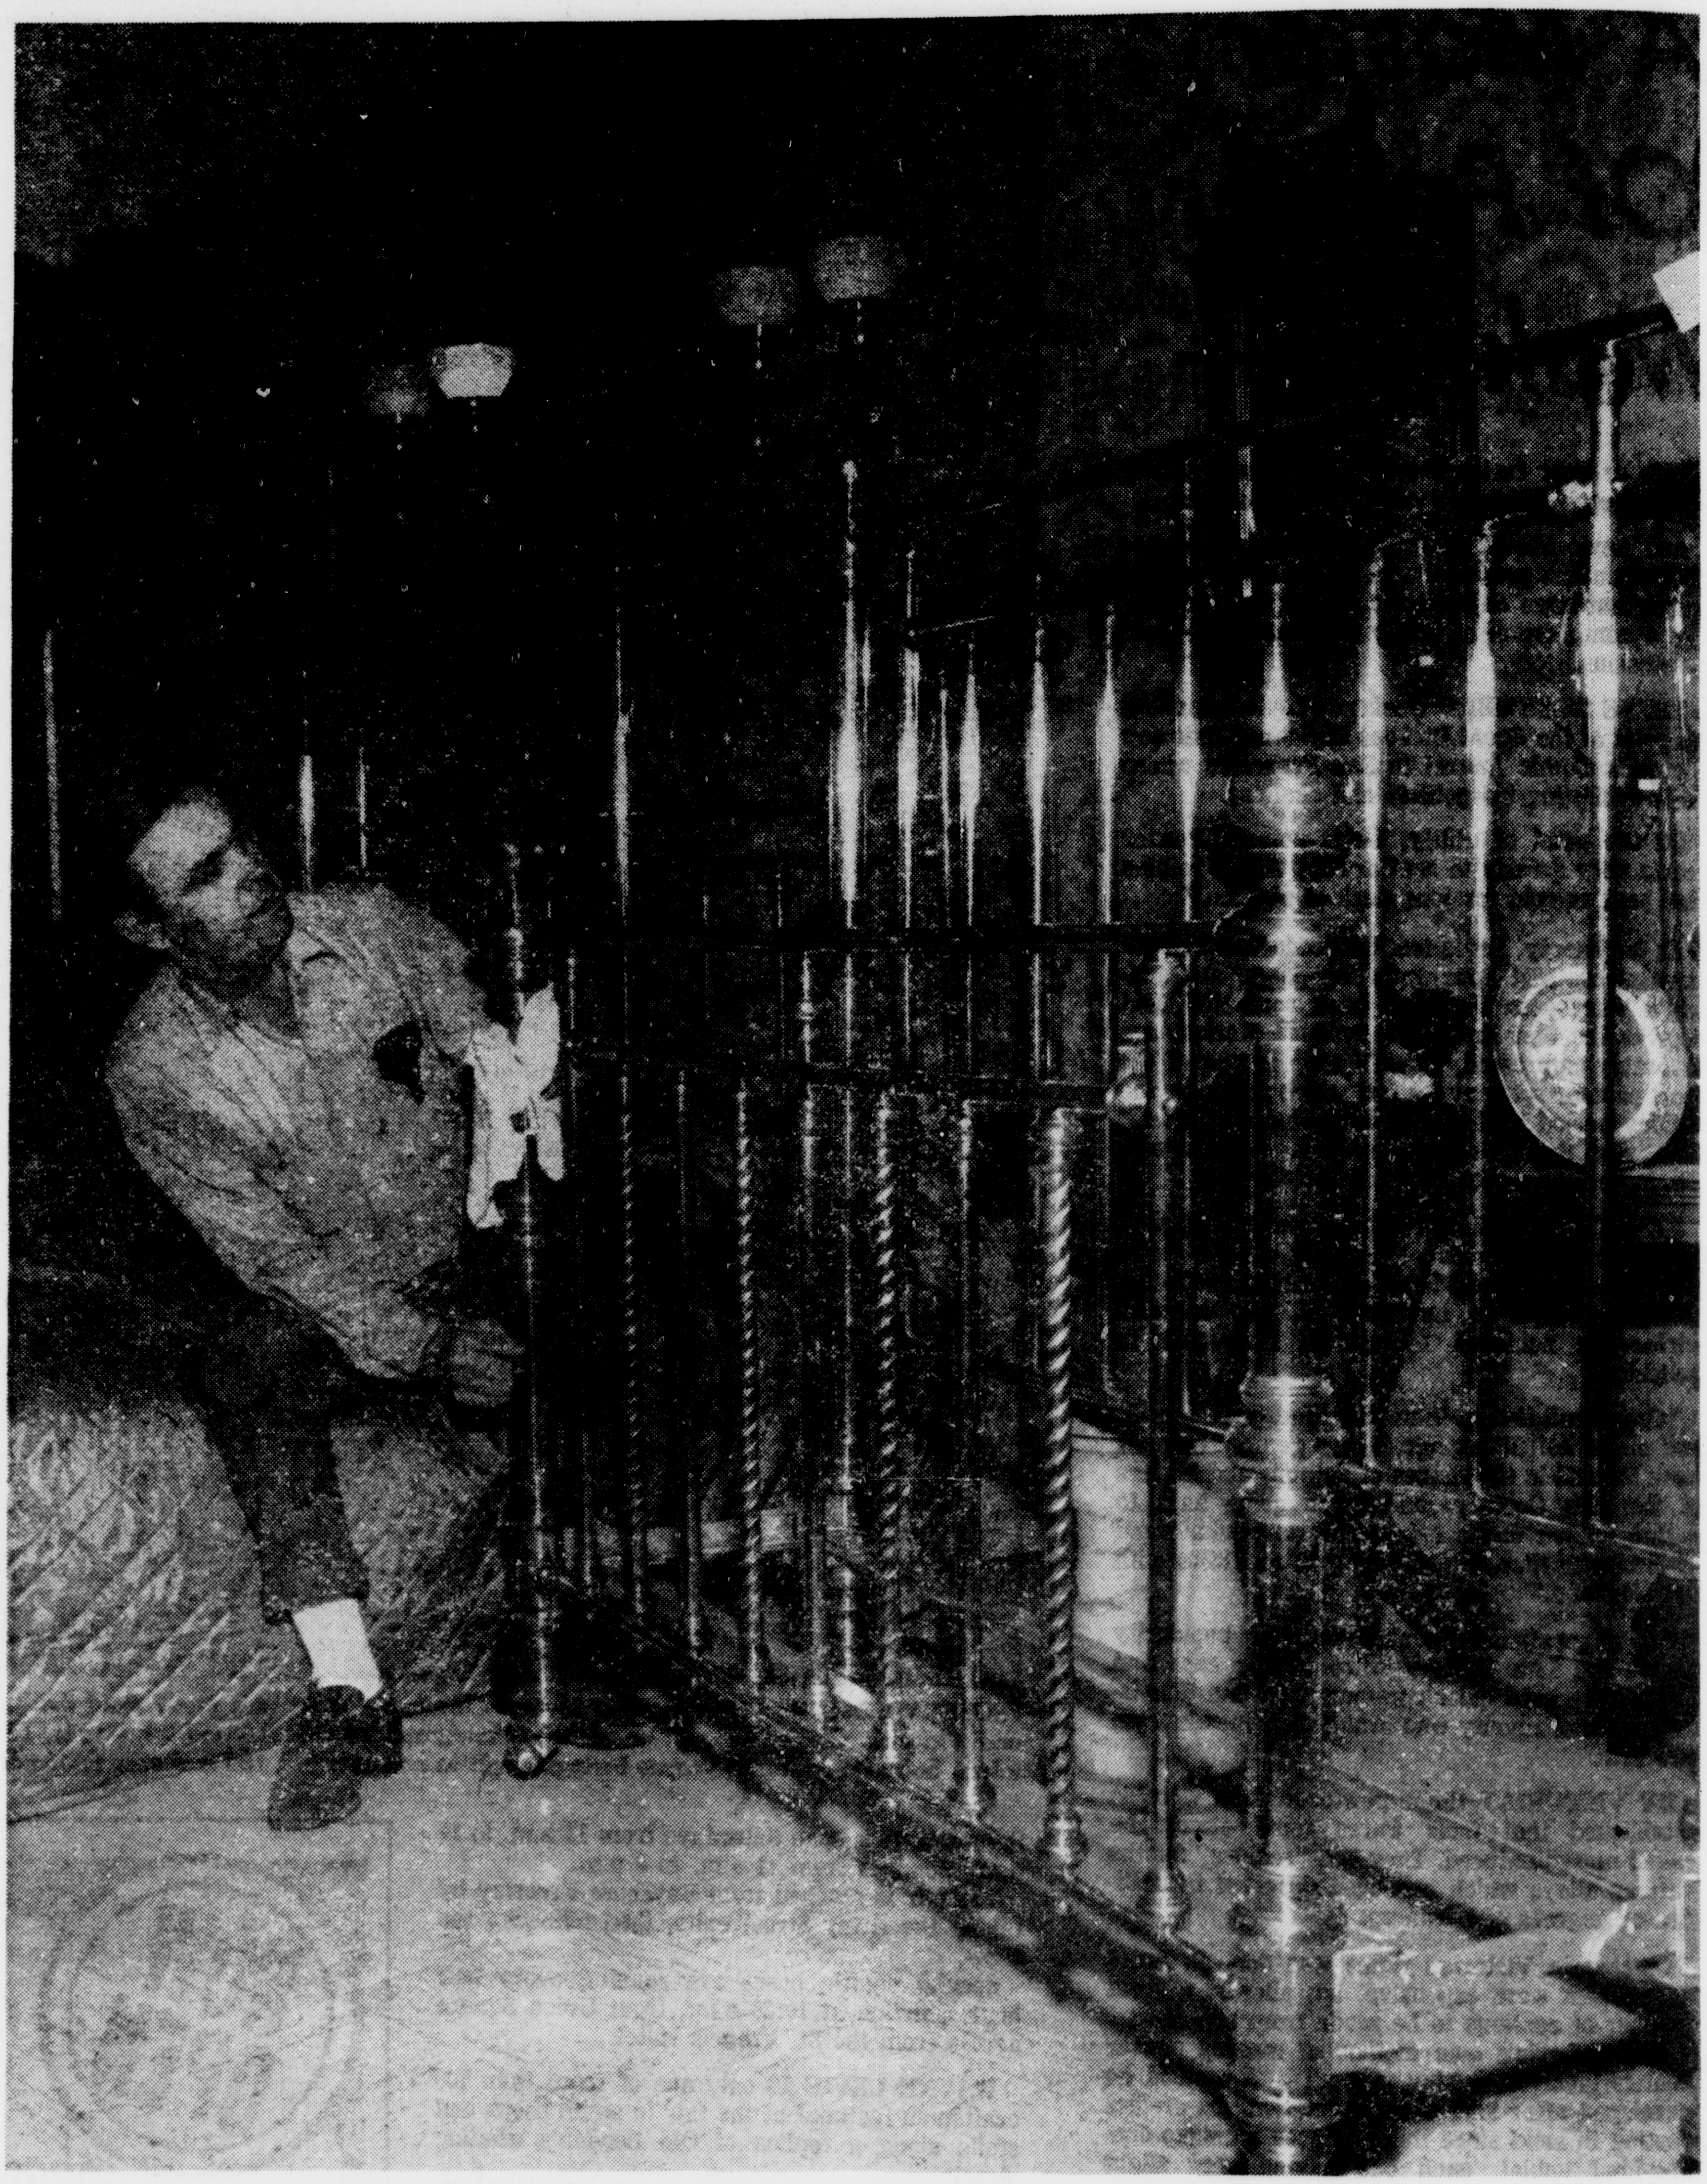
Beds Of Brass Are In Demand

Marinite Has Popular Product

By DON KEOWN



JAY RING OF Jay's House of Silver hit upon the idea of turning out replicas of the old antique brass beds. And in the first year of production, he has made and sold some 60 of these remembrances of a past era. The beds are handcrafted, headboards and footboards, or headboards alone, and come in three different models.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

A hot-selling item a few years back for Jay and Anna L. Ring among the antiques they were handling in their Jay's House of Silver and Brass on San Rafael's Fourth Street were the old brass beds.

"Once a year," says Jay Ring, "we would make a buying trip East to buy antiques. We always picked up 18 or 20 of the brass beds of the kind grandpa and grandma used to sleep on. And we never had any trouble selling them, once we got them back here."

However, the beds became harder and harder to find. And finally the source dried up completely.

"WE LOOKED then for bed parts, thinking we could assemble the beds ourselves," Ring continues. "But there just weren't any."

And still the Rings' customers back in Marin clamored for the brass beds they had come to associate with the House of Silver.

So Jay Ring decided to solve his problem by building his own replicas of the old brass beds.

Using one of the beds in his own home, Ring had molds made from its parts for headboards and footboards, "and we started making our own beds earlier this year."

SINCE THEN, Jay Ring has turned out 60 replicas of the antique beds, fully as beautiful as the originals themselves.

"The way we work it," says Ring, "is to take the order and a deposit, then start building the bed to suit the customer. In other words, it's a custom business."

And why is there this demand for these replicas of relics of the past?

"It's a fad," admits Ring. But, he is confident, it is not one that will pass soon.

"THERE ALWAYS has been and there always will be a strong feeling for things that touch the nostalgia within us," he explains. "People see these beds some place, perhaps in a movie or on TV, and they say: 'Why my grandmother used to have a bed like that!' Or 'My folks had one of those brass beds when I was a kid.' And they want one for themselves.

So confident is Jay Ring that the market for his brass beds will remain firm that he is negotiating a franchise set-up, with the first outlet due in San Francisco.

The only other place that Ring knows of on the West Coast that is producing the brass beds is located in Los Angeles "and they work with lamp parts."

RING USES brass that he buys in tubing in three or four different sizes direct from American Brass and Copper in Emeryville. The fittings, unavailable in the U.S., are made overseas.

Ring will put a good week's work into the handcrafting of one of his beds. The full brass bed, both headboard and footboard, comes in three models. The King Henry, a three poster that gives the impression of a pair of twin beds, side by side, sells for $595. The fancy Emperor sells for $675. And the even fancier Royal Queen for $875.

Ring and his helpers also make a headboard alone that can be attached to the modern Hollywood frame or bedstead.

"AND WE have made three headboards for waterbeds," he adds.

Jay Ring is the son of an Ohio sheet metalworker and as a youngster swore he would never himself become a metalworker — "I had dreams of being an airplane pilot."

But his father told him: "All right, but first you are going to learn my trade. Then whether you follow it or not is up to you."

And so Jay Ring went to work in his dad's sheet metal shop, hating it and determined it would never be his permanent occupation. "Mostly I helped install home heating and air conditioning systems," he says.

Young Ring put in four years with the Navy, most of it in the South Pacific.

"THE NAVY brought me to San Francisco in 1942," he re-

Beds Of Brass Are In Demand

Marinite Has Popular Product

By DON KEOWN

A hot-selling item a few years back for Jay and Anna L. Ring among the antiques they were handling in their Jay's House of Silver and Brass on San Rafael's Fourth Street were the old brass beds.

"Once a year," says Jay Ring, "we would make a buying trip East to buy antiques. We always picked up 18 or 20 of the brass beds of the kind grandpa and grandma used to sleep on. And we never had any trouble selling them, once we got them back here."

However, the beds became harder and harder to find. And finally the source dried up completely.

"WE LOOKED then for bed parts, thinking we could assemble the beds ourselves," Ring continues. "But there just weren't any."

And still the Rings' customers back in Marin clamored for the brass beds they had come to associate with the House of Silver.

So Jay Ring decided to solve his problem by building his own replicas of the old brass beds.

Using one of the beds in his own home, Ring had molds made from its parts for headboards and footboards, "and we started making our own beds earlier this year."

SINCE THEN, Jay Ring has turned out 60 replicas of the antique beds, fully as beautiful as the originals themselves.

"The way we work it," says Ring, "is to take the order and a deposit, then start building the bed to suit the customer. In other words, it's a custom business."

And why is there this demand for these replicas of relics of the past?

"It's a fad," admits Ring. But, he is confident, it is not one that will pass soon.

"THERE ALWAYS has been and there always will be a strong feeling for things that touch the nostalgia within us," he explains. "People see these beds some place, perhaps in a movie or on TV, and they say: 'Why my grandmother used to have a bed like that!' Or 'My folks had one of those brass beds when I was a kid.' And they want one for themselves.

So confident is Jay Ring that the market for his brass beds will remain firm that he is negotiating a franchise set-up, with the first outlet due in San Francisco.

The only other place that Ring knows of on the West Coast that is producing the brass beds is located in Los Angeles "and they work with lamp parts."

RING USES brass that he buys in tubing in three or four different sizes direct from American Brass and Copper in Emeryville. The fittings, unavailable in the U.S., are made overseas.

Ring will put a good week's work into the handcrafting of one of his beds. The full brass bed, both headboard and footboard, comes in three models. The King Henry, a three poster that gives the impression of a pair of twin beds, side by side, sells for $595. The fancy Emperor sells for $675. And the even fancier Royal Queen for $875.

Ring and his helpers also make a headboard alone that can be attached to the modern Hollywood frame or bedstead.

"AND WE have made three headboards for waterbeds," he adds.

Jay Ring is the son of an Ohio sheet metalworker and as a youngster swore he would never himself become a metalworker — "I had dreams of being an airplane pilot."

But his father told him: "All right, but first you are going to learn my trade. Then whether you follow it or not is up to you."

And so Jay Ring went to work in his dad's sheet metal shop, hating it and determined it would never be his permanent occupation. "Mostly I helped install home heating and air conditioning systems," he says.

Young Ring put in four years with the Navy, most of it in the South Pacific.

"THE NAVY brought me to San Francisco in 1942," he re-

JAY RING OF Jay's House of Silver hit upon the idea of turning out replicas of the old antique brass beds. And in the first year of production, he has made and sold some 60 of these remembrances of a past era. The beds are handcrafted, headboards and footboards, or headboards alone, and come in three different models.

ABOVE, JAY RING and employee Bill Saunders work in the shop at the rear of Jay's House of Silver on San Rafael's Fourth Street in assembling one of the brass beds they have built from brass tubing and from fittings that have to be imported from Europe. At right, James Ring is at work with the polishing wheel. And below, James checks some items being bathed in a cleaning tank. Once cleansed, they will go into another tank for the replating coat. James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ring, the owners of the business, does all its polishing and plating these days, as his father devotes much of his time to the crafting of his fast-selling brass beds.

lates, and immediately I told myself: 'Wow! This San Francisco Bay Area is the place for me. It's where I'm going to live when I get out of service.''

He got out of the military in 1946, stayed in the Bay Area, and went into the trade he had sworn he would never follow — sheet metalwork.

"And I've been working with metal now for 26 years," he smiles.

While working for sheet metal firms, Jay Ring also found time to help his brother-in-law, Ed Cary of Concord, with some plating and polishing of metal pieces.

THE RESULT was that Ring set up a small lathe and silvering tank in his own garage. "That," he says, "was where it all really began — in a two-car garage at 32 Glen Air, San Rafael, as a hobby."

Ring turned out silver and brass plated pieces for himself and for his firends.

"My wife was working at Fairchild, and I was working for Allen Heating of Corte Madera, when we decided to open a little shop on Fourth Street as a sort of a retirement project."

THE FIRST Jay's House of Silver was located at 1611 Fourth St., and was operated by Alice, pleased to get away from the exacting and confining work of helping to produce Fairchild's semiconductor diodes. Jay pitched in evenings and weekends.

The shop dealt in both antiques and replicas, and also repaired and replated prize pieces of Marinites — a silver spoon that had fallen into the garbage disposal and had been mangled, a marred pewter pitcher, etc.

Ring continued to work for Allen Heating until three years ago he "tore out" the meniscus cartilage of a right knee while moving a coil of steel.

IT WAS A serious injury, and the doctor told him he would have to change his trade. There would be no climbing, no crawling, no kneeling for Jay Ring.

Fortunately, Ring and his family had Jay's House of Silver to fall back on. But for a time, Jay wasn't able to pull his full weight there.

"I was off my feet for two years," he says. "I just had to sit in a chair." But son-in-law Ed Cary gave him a hand with the replating, the polishing and the other metal work. "I would just sit there and give him directions," Jay recalls. "For awhile it was pretty much touch and go. But we were determined to keep the business going. And with Ed's help, we pulled through."

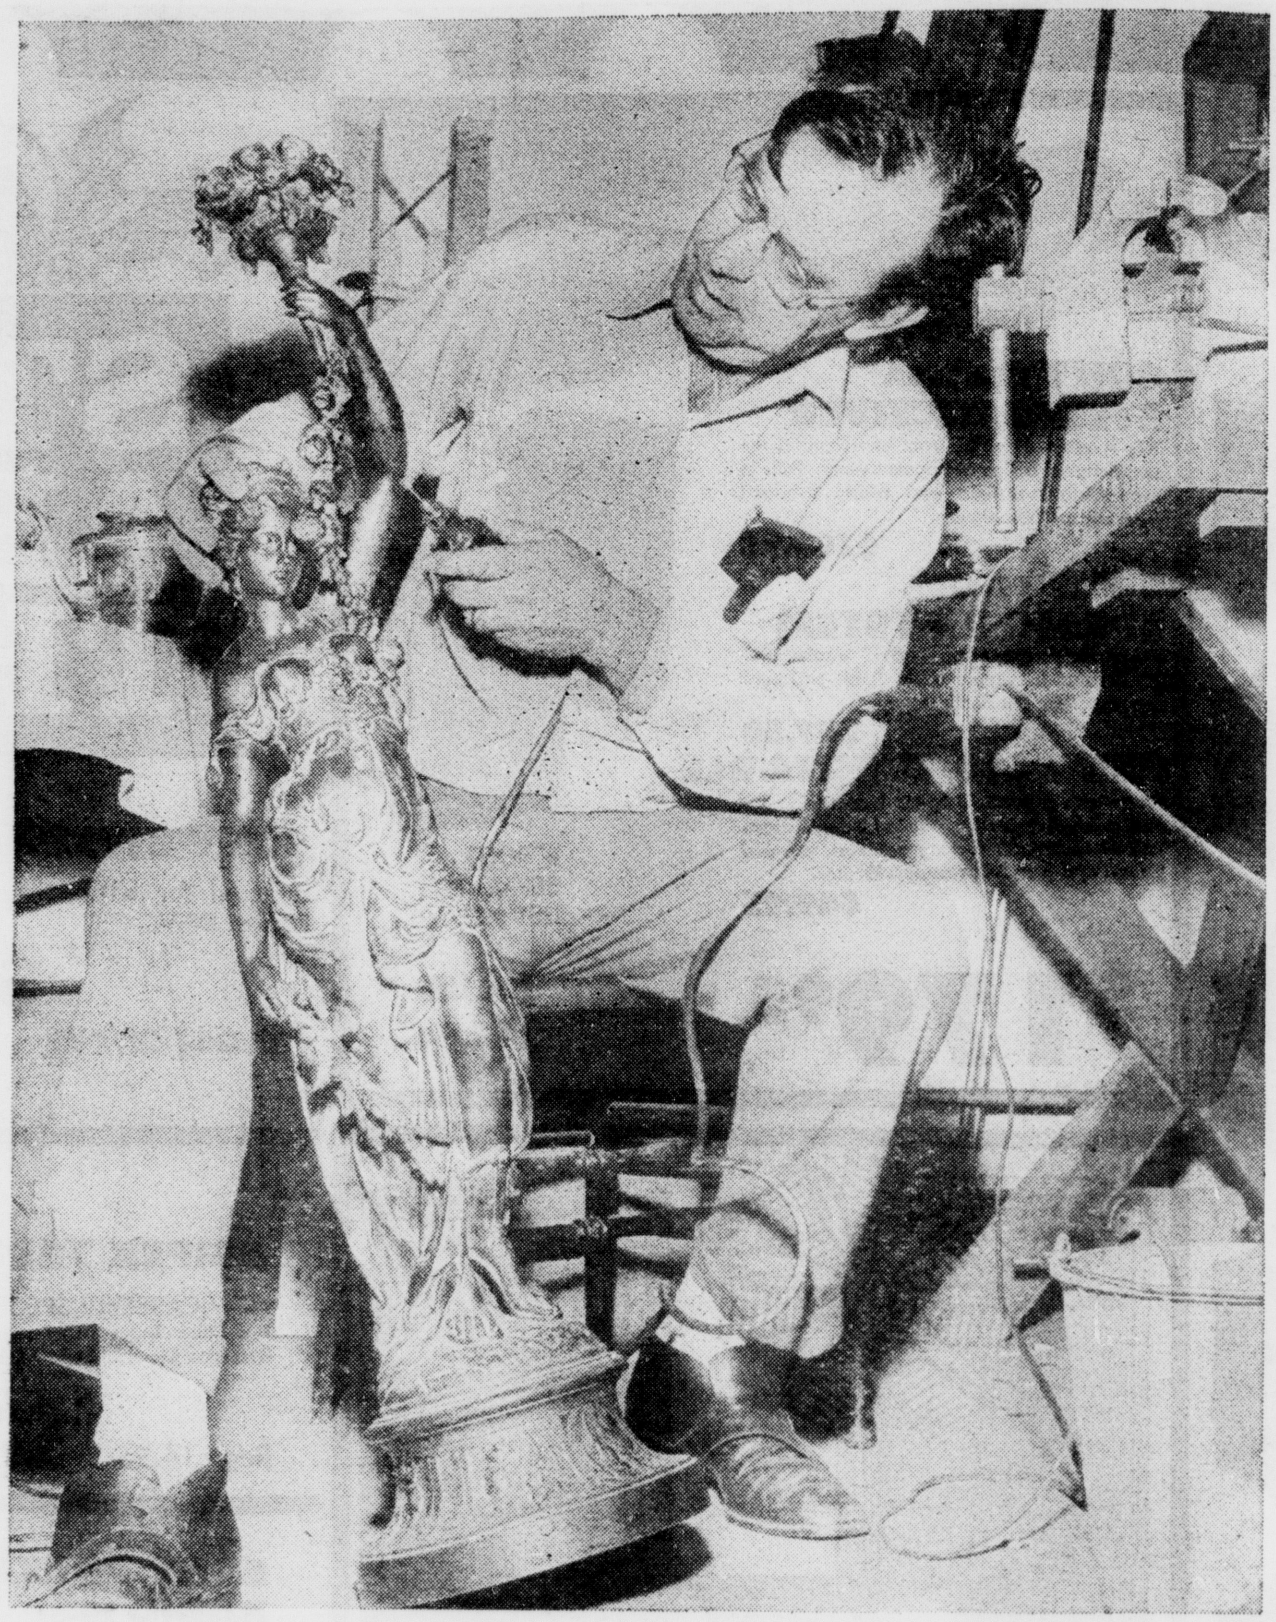
THE MOVEMENT of Ring's injured knee is still severely restricted, but he manages to work around that limitation, and now puts in a full day's work and better in his shop at the rear of the store now located at 1613 Fourth St. where Mrs. Ring still serves the customers up front.

Thanks partially to the popularity of the brass beds, the business has grown to the point where Ring is currently looking for larger premises and where he now has two helpers — presently Greg Yates and Bill Saunders — in addition to his son James who does all the plating and polishing these days.

He is teaching Yates the metal repair trade. "It's something you don't pick up in a day," Ring says. "After all, I've been at it 26 years."

BECAUSE OF his own experience, Jay Ring, while still confined to a chair, vowed that if his business did pull through, and if he were ever in a position to employ assistants, he would do at least part of his hiring through the California League for the Handicapped. And he has kept that pledge.

Two of his employees, past and present, have been employed through the League.



THE CRAFT OF repairing metal objects is a difficult one that Jay Ring is currently teaching Greg Yates, one of his helpers. Here he restores the broken arm of a statue that has graced a staircase. A serious knee injury now places some limitations on Silver's activities, but he puts in a full and busy day in his shop.

As for his own work, Ring says: "I can go at it the way I want at the pace I want. There are still a lot of things, such as climbing or kneeling, that I can't do. But what I do do is good therapy for the knee. And I can take care of the designing — now that's the most fun —, the assembling, the delivering, and a lot of other things."

IN THE JAY'S House of Silver — or, as he now calls the business, thanks to the brass bed "success story" — Jay's House of Silver and Brass shop, Ring and his co-workers also produce dorbells rung by the turning of a crank that are replicas of Scandinavian doorbells, and make brass halltrees. The bells are to be featured in Better Homes and Gardens.

The antiques sold out in front are for the most part purchased for the Rings in the East by sister-in-law Ruth Sarell who collects for them.

"Then once a year we go East and pick up what she has bought," Ring explains.

AND RUTH Sarell and her husband Jack spend five to six months of the year in California, working at Jay's House of Silver and Brass doing caning, reupholstering and other work.

"So we have a real family enterprise," says Jay Ring.

These December days have been especially busy ones for the Rings and their employees. "I've had four orders for brass beds as Christmas gifts," explains Jay. "But we have been held up by a shortage of parts, so it is going to be pretty darned close on getting them all out by Dec. 25. But we'll do our best."

And for a man who once vowed he would never be a metalworker, who was once laid up by a serious incapacitating injury, and who came up with his best-selling product only out of desperation and after it had become unavailable in its original form from the original sources, Jay Ring's best is very, very good.

BLESSED WITH four grown children and seven grandchildren, with a business that is their own and doing well, and with a product that demonstrates their pride in craftsmanship and satisfied the public need for solid contact with the past, Jay and Anna L. Ring have every reason to regard this season as a merry Christmas.

And to look forward to a prosperous 1973 when the brass bed production at Jay's House of Silver and Brass will exceed even this year's 60 units.

These December days have been especially busy ones for the Rings and their employees. "I've had four orders for brass beds as Christmas gifts," explains Jay. "But we have been held up by a shortage of parts, so it is going to be pretty darned close on getting them all out by Dec. 25. But we'll do our best."

And for a man who once vowed he would never be a metalworker, who was once laid up by a serious incapacitating injury, and who came up with his best-selling product only out of desperation and after it had become unavailable in its original form from the original sources, Jay Ring's best is very, very good.

BLESSED WITH four grown children and seven grandchildren, with a business that is their own and doing well, and with a product that demonstrates their pride in craftsmanship and satisfied the public need for solid contact with the past, Jay and Anna L. Ring have every reason to regard this season as a merry Christmas.

And to look forward to a prosperous 1973 when the brass bed production at Jay's House of Silver and Brass will exceed even this year's 60 units.

Paintings For A Holiday Ballet

Martha Baskett Mixes Art With Stagecraft

By DON KEOWN

Tomales artist Martha Baskett ordinarily does her paintings at her home in the greenhouse that she has converted into a light and airy studio.

But for her most recent assignment, she had to shift her working quarters to the gymnasium of the old, condemned Tomales High School.

She needed all that space, for she was working on canvases 20 by 24 feet in their dimensions, as she created the backdrops for this holiday season's performances by the Petaluma Ballet Guild of "The Nutcracker."

MRS. BASKETT did all three scenes for the production — the interior of the Victorian home of little Clara; the fantasy land Palace of Sweets, and the outdoor Snowflake Scene, the last all in blue and white and featuring a huge ornamented Christmas tree.

"The Nutcracker" scenes continue an interest in stagework which the petite Mrs. Baskett began developing five years ago.

The Basketts were then Petaluma residents, and the previous year she had enrolled daughter Brandie, then 5, in dancing classes at the Petaluma School of Ballet.

SOME OF the older ballet students and their parents were then in the process of forming the Petaluma Ballet Guild. And when they decided to present "Tales of the Vienna Woods" as a short ballet as part of the annual Petaluma School of Ballet recital, Mrs. Baskett volunteered to do the single scene or backdrop that was necessary.

WHEN NOT painting her gigantic stage backdrops for ballet performances, Martha Baskett works in her Tomales studio on more normal-size paintings.

This landscape shows the realistic approach she takes in her oils, which are usually done by commission, as requested by the buyer.

She smiles now as she admits that, taking artistic license, the trees she painted more closely resembled California redwoods than the species to be found in the actual Vienna Woods.

"But I used pastels — oranges, pinks, light greens, etc. — and, believe it or not, it really looked good," she sserts.

SO GOOD, in fact, that her scene was used again in 1971 for a repeat performance of "Vienna Woods."

Two years ago Mrs. Baskett did Cinderella's cottage for a Petaluma School of Ballet production.

But the three backdrops for "The Nutcracker" are by far her most ambitious undertaking in stagecraft. Each set is done in five hinged panels, on frames built for her by her carpenter husband, Larry Baskett, who also composes music in the rock, jazz and pop genres.

MRS. BASKETT works on unbleached muslin which she first stretches over the frames, then covers with Elmer's Glue, before applying water-base house paint.

"I love doing scenery," she says, "because I like the freedom afforded by all that space. But I also enjoy scenery because there is a whole other dimension to it. When the performers come on stage, in their costumes, they become a part of my 'painting.' They are, literally, my final brush strokes."

Mrs. Baskett is a Marin girl, reared in Mill Valley where she attended Tamalpais High School as Martha Schneider and began her studies of art. She has had courses at San Jose Junior College and College of Marin, but as an artist she is largely self-taught.

SHE PAINTS generally with oils and in a realistic style, doing still lifes, portraits, landscapes.

And generally, her paintings sell. In fact, usually they have been sold before she paints.

Since she lost a number of her paintings in a house fire a few years back, she says, she has followed the practice of receiving orders for a painting before beginning the work. "Thus I seldom paint for myself. I am usually painting for someone else."

WHICH DOES she enjoy the most, the paintings or the stage scenery? She refuses to make a selection. "I get so much enjoyment and satisfaction out of both."

Her work for "The Nutcracker" began with three months of research — on scenes for past produetions of the ballet, on Victorian home interiors, etc. There followed another month devoted to the designing of the sets. And then four months for their execution.

Here she had the help of two apprentices, Da[illegible]lyn Davis of Tomales and Doug KaCharos of Cotati "whom I taught the craft as we worked along."

"AND OF course," she says, "all the research, design and construction work was on a time-available basis when I wasn't busy as a housewife and a mother."

In addition to daughter Brandie, now 11, the Basketts have two sons, Zachary, 12, and Marc, 8. And the three children sometimes appear with their talented father as a singing group, featuring his compositions.

Mrs. Baskett's sets for "The Nutcracker" were first put into use last weekend when the Petaluma Ballet Guild production was performed twice in Santa Rosa.

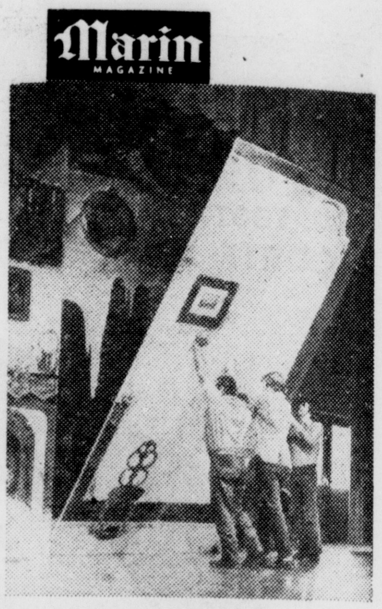
SOUTHERN SONOMANS and Marinites will have an opportunity to see them this coming week, on Tuesday at 8 p.m. and Wednesday at 2 p.m., when the holiday ballet will be performed in the Veterans Memorial Building at Petaluma. Mary Paula, Petaluma School of Ballet and Petaluma Ballet Guild director, is also the director for the show. Lorraine Kirsch is the current Guild president.

Mrs. Baskett is especially anxious for the public reaction to her Snowflake Scene. "I just love it," she says. "The lighting gives it such a glittery effect. It is going to be beautiful."

Then, for a time, Martha Baskett will return to her more normal-sized paintings. "I have two commissions awaiting me," she says.

BUT SHE WILL be on the watch, too, for new and challenging assignments for the stage.

"I just like the idea of having living people as part of my painting," she says. "Now that is just about as realistic as I can get!"



COVER PHOTO

THE GREAT GIFT SALE AT WARDS, CORTE MADERA STORE

SET DESIGNER and artist Martha Baskett of Tomales watches during rehearsal while a stage crew and production assistants go about the job of replacing the Snowflake Scene and its giant Christmas tree ornaments with the panels of the Victorian manor scene. Mrs. Baskett created all three backdrops for the Petaluma Ballet Guild performances of "The Nutcracker," to take place next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., and Wednesday, 2 p.m., in the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building.

MARTHA BASKETT, right, and Ann Ringstad, an assistant director, discuss the Victorian interior panels in place while stagehands await further instructions. Mrs. Baskett created the fireplace and the rest of the backdrop only after extensive research into Victorian homes and their decor.

Partake of Pacific Stereo's Latest HOLIDAY OFFERING

... before it's spirited away

Dickens' vivid portrayal of the Spirit of Christmas Present was drawn from the days when a Christmas feast might include a roasted peacock with feathers carefully replaced, a whole boar's head, and a procession of hearty desserts called "subtleties."

Our groaning board is laden with values in stereo components. Take your cue from Scrooge and don't let them vanish into thin air, leaving you only with regrets. We're introducing an entirely new offering for one week only, so you have to partake by this next Saturday. In fact some of the items are offered at such large savings and are in such short supply that they likely won't wait for the last minute rush.

You'll find additional special values in all of our stores, items that we've added to our offering too late to include here, and the prices are so low you'll surely want to consider them. Remember, the free accessories and special holiday services described in the "Free Offerings..." section apply to any system you select during the holidays.

But time IS running out and many of these desirable values WILL vanish rapidly, so let the spirit move you into coming to Pacific Stereo right away.

1. THIS WEEK ONLY: A $280 HARMAN-KARDON SYSTEM TO MAKE YOUR NEW YEAR HAPPY

You probably didn't know you could get such a good stereo system for so little money, and so you couldn't until Pacific Stereo managed to put this system together for only $280.

The Harman-Kardon 330A AM/FM stereo receiver is rated at 45 RMS watts, which provides ample power for medium to high efficiency speakers with very low distortion. Its tuner section is the best of six different receivers we tested in this price range. Source indicator lights show you what program source is currently switched on, there's provision for two sets of speakers, tape monitor facilities, and separate left and right bass and treble controls – luxury touches not usually found in a $199.95 receiver.

An automatic turntable as good as the BSR 310 ought to cost more than $50. A cueing lever protects your records, as does the anti-skate control, which reduces wear and also neutralizes one common form of distortion. We supply it with a base and a Shure M75 cartridge.

AR-4x's have been very highly rated by people who should know and they're among the best-selling speaker systems in the world. In each walnut cabinet is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker as well as a 2½-inch treble speaker. They sell for $115 a pair, which is quite low given how good they sound throughout their usable range.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

2. THE FIRST $400 SYSTEM THAT CAN DO JUSTICE TO BACH ORGAN FUGUES

If you've been wanting a component stereo system that can set a big room throbbing with Bach's low organ notes, you probably never hoped to find one for $400. Even the $136 saving doesn't entirely explain it. Three-way speaker systems with twelve-inch bass speakers make the low notes possible, and the TransAudio 1012's sell for a mere $159.90 a pair. The music's reproduced very cleanly, low bass notes and all, because the Spectrosonic 210-4 is a direct-coupled receiver with nothing between its transistors and the speakers to muddy the sound. The 210-4 has 64 RMS watts of power, a very good tuner section, and a host of convenience features including a convenient front panel switch for a four-channel adaptor. In fact, we don't know of any other $299.95 receiver that can come close to the 210-4 for power, performance and features. The walnut case is extra.

The Garrard SL55B record player has a synchronous motor that can't waver in speed even if house current fluctuates. There's a cueing mechanism, and an anti-skate control to prevent uneven record wear. The $75.90 price includes a base and the ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge.

INTRODUCING FOUR-CHANNEL RECORDS AT A SPECIAL HOLIDAY PRICE

All Pacific Stereo stores now have a good selection of SQ-encoded four-channel records for every musical taste. They are fully compatible with stereo equipment, so if you think you will convert to four-channel soon you can start buying the records now and play them on your present equipment. To listen to them in four-channel sound you need a system equipped with an SQ decoder. The retail price on these SQ records is $6.98; our special holiday price is $4.98.

3. A PIONEER FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM FOR $150 LESS THAN THE RECEIVER'S ORIGINAL PRICE

The Pioneer QX-8000 was designed as a versatile foundation for your first four-channel system. It originally sold for $549.95, but now your entire system need cost you only $400 if you get it before our very limited supply is gone. Basically, the QX-8000 is a very good AM/FM stereo receiver with four amplifiers instead of the normal two, so you're all set to add a discrete four-channel tape unit or an SQ decoder. The receiver already has built-in synthesizing devices which let you enjoy four-channel effects from stereo records or FM. Power output is rated at 80 RMS watts with all four channels driven. There's a front-to-rear balance control plus separate balance controls and tone controls for each pair of speakers, all of which help tailor the four-channel sound field to your taste. In addition, the QX-8000 has the features and performance you'd expect of a $550 Pioneer receiver.

The Garrard 40B is a totally reliable record player with a cueing lever to put the ADC 220XE elliptical cartridge down gently on the records. With this cartridge and the base, it normally sells for $60.90.

Our $400 system price wouldn't be possible without the new TransAudio 1008 speaker systems. All four in this system normally cost only $150, but don't be misled by the low price. 1008's are solidly built two-way systems with an eight-inch bass speaker that can reproduce even the lowest notes of a cello.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

4. HERE'S YOUR $1000 STEREO SYSTEM

If you've been thinking that this is the time to get something really special in the way of perfect sound reproduction, hold the thought and read on.

By improving their excellent S-8900 FM stereo receiver, Sherwood has produced probably the finest receiver you can find for $429.95. The new S-8900A delivers 120 RMS watts across the entire 20 to 20,000 Hz bandwidth with a miniscule .3% distortion. That's more power than you get almost anywhere else for the price. Also new is a built-in matrixing device to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, and an input and front-panel switch for adding a four-channel adaptor. The tuner section is superb of course. 1.7 microvolt sensitivity and a 70 dB signal-to-noise ratio ensure clean reception of any station on the air. You'll also find all the convenience features you'd expect on an outstanding $429.95 receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The straight-line tracking Garrard Zero 100 has a radically new tonearm which maintains tangency between the record grooves and the stylus across an entire record, thereby improving high frequency reproduction and reducing record wear. It has every feature you'd expect on a machine of this quality, and probably the lowest rumble of any automatic. We equip it with a base and the fine Shure M91E elliptical cartridge for $191.90.

You've probably read the praises of the Bose 901 in audio magazines, but this unique direct/reflecting system simply has to be heard to be appreciated. They reach as deeply into the bass region as anything, and their dispersion of sound is nothing short of phenomenal. The $476 fair trade price includes a device called an "active equalizer."

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

5. A BASIC DECK FOR A MODEST PRICE

The relatively low-priced TEAC A-1230 is a tape deck with everything you need for first rate performance. Three separate heads (for erasing, recording and playback) permit monitoring. Three separate motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their attendant problems. There's a pause control for editing and a bias control switch lets you use the different types of tape available to maximum advantage. Line and mike mixer inputs allow you to record two sources simultaneously. Automatic tape lifters and automatic shutoff help prevent accidental damage to your tapes. TEAC's solid construction and high standards of engineering should make the 1230 just what you're looking for in a high performance stereo deck at a moderate price. $359.50

6. SAVE $70 ON A NIKKO 6010 BY GETTING IT THIS WEEK

Just seeing the name Nikko on a receiver should alert you to look for features and performance that you otherwise wouldn't expect to find at the price. And the $200 Nikko 6010 AM/FM stereo receiver won't disappoint you. The direct coupled amplifier section delivers 30 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section is predictably better than you would expect for the price. It will provide quite good reception under almost any circumstances. Controls include tape monitoring and a loudness contour switch to compensate for bass loss at low listening levels. High and low filters cut out noise from scratchy records or FM interference. The 6010 can handle two pairs of speakers, and a front panel switch gives you a choice of listening to the main pair only or playing both simultaneously. The case is extra. The normal price is $199.95, but our sale price for this week only is $129.95.

7. A $50 SAVING ON A LIMITED SUPPLY OF LENCO RECORD PLAYERS

Lenco's B55 isn't as well known as their outstanding L75 manual record player, but it really should be. Like the L75, the B55 offers excellent performance with records and its normal price is even more reasonable than the L75's. The B55 has automatic damped cueing and an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the stylus centered in the groove. The low mass aluminum tonearm has a calibrated counterweight for adjusting balance and stylus pressure, and an 11.8" turntable makes it easy to pick up 12" records by their edge while still providing full record support. A unique Lenco feature is the infinitely variable speed control, useful to musicians for tuning pitch.

The B55 normally sells for $85 with a base, and we're equipping it with a $24.95 ADC 230XE elliptical cartridge. But instead of $109.95 you only have to pay $59.95 until our limited supply runs out.

8. GET ALL THE SCOTCH DYNARANGE TAPE YOU WANT FOR LESS THAN HALF PRICE

The only stipulation is that you have to do it this week, because the price goes back up the day before Christmas. Scotch 203 Dynarange is top quality low noise tape with a polyester backing. We're selling the 1800-foot 7-inch reels this week for $1.99, well under half of our usual $5.05 price. $1.99

Free Offerings During the Merrye Monthe of December at Pacific Stereo

FREE ELLIPTICAL CARTRIDGE

Instead of the conical cartridges usually supplied with value-oriented music systems, we're offering a very high quality elliptical cartridge which will help your records sound better and last longer. Except for a very few extremely low priced combinations, all of our holiday music systems will have ellipticals.

FREE HEADPHONES OR A SUBSCRIPTION TO "AUDIO"

You get to choose between a free pair of stereophones or a free one-year subscription to "Audio" magazine when you buy any music system at Pacific Stereo during the holiday season.

FREE CONNECTING WIRE

You can have whatever you need to connect your music system the way you want.

EXTENDED FIVE-YEAR WARRANTY

We won't start counting the elapsed time on our five-year warranty until January 1, so you get coverage for five years plus however much time there is between now and the 1st. The warranty covers free parts for five years and free labor for three years on absolutely everything but the needle on the record player. Even if you wrap up your system and don't use it until Christmas you get the full warranty.

EXTENDED EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

Our sixty-day exchange privilege and our one-year speaker trial privilege will also be dated from January 1st and cover the intervening time as well. You can exchange anything you aren't happy about within 60 days, and you have a full year to receive the purchase price on any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward more expensive speakers.

LAYAWAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

If you want to be sure of getting what you want but aren't quite ready to buy, just put a $10 deposit on the system. It's refundable and you're under no obligation, but you'll be able to get what you want at the price you've seen advertised.

Paintings For A Holiday Ballet

Martha Baskett Mixes Art With Stagecraft

By DON KEOWN

Tomales artist Martha Baskett ordinarily does her paintings at her home in the greenhouse that she has converted into a light and airy studio.

But for her most recent assignment, she had to shift her working quarters to the gymnasium of the old, condemned Tomales High School.

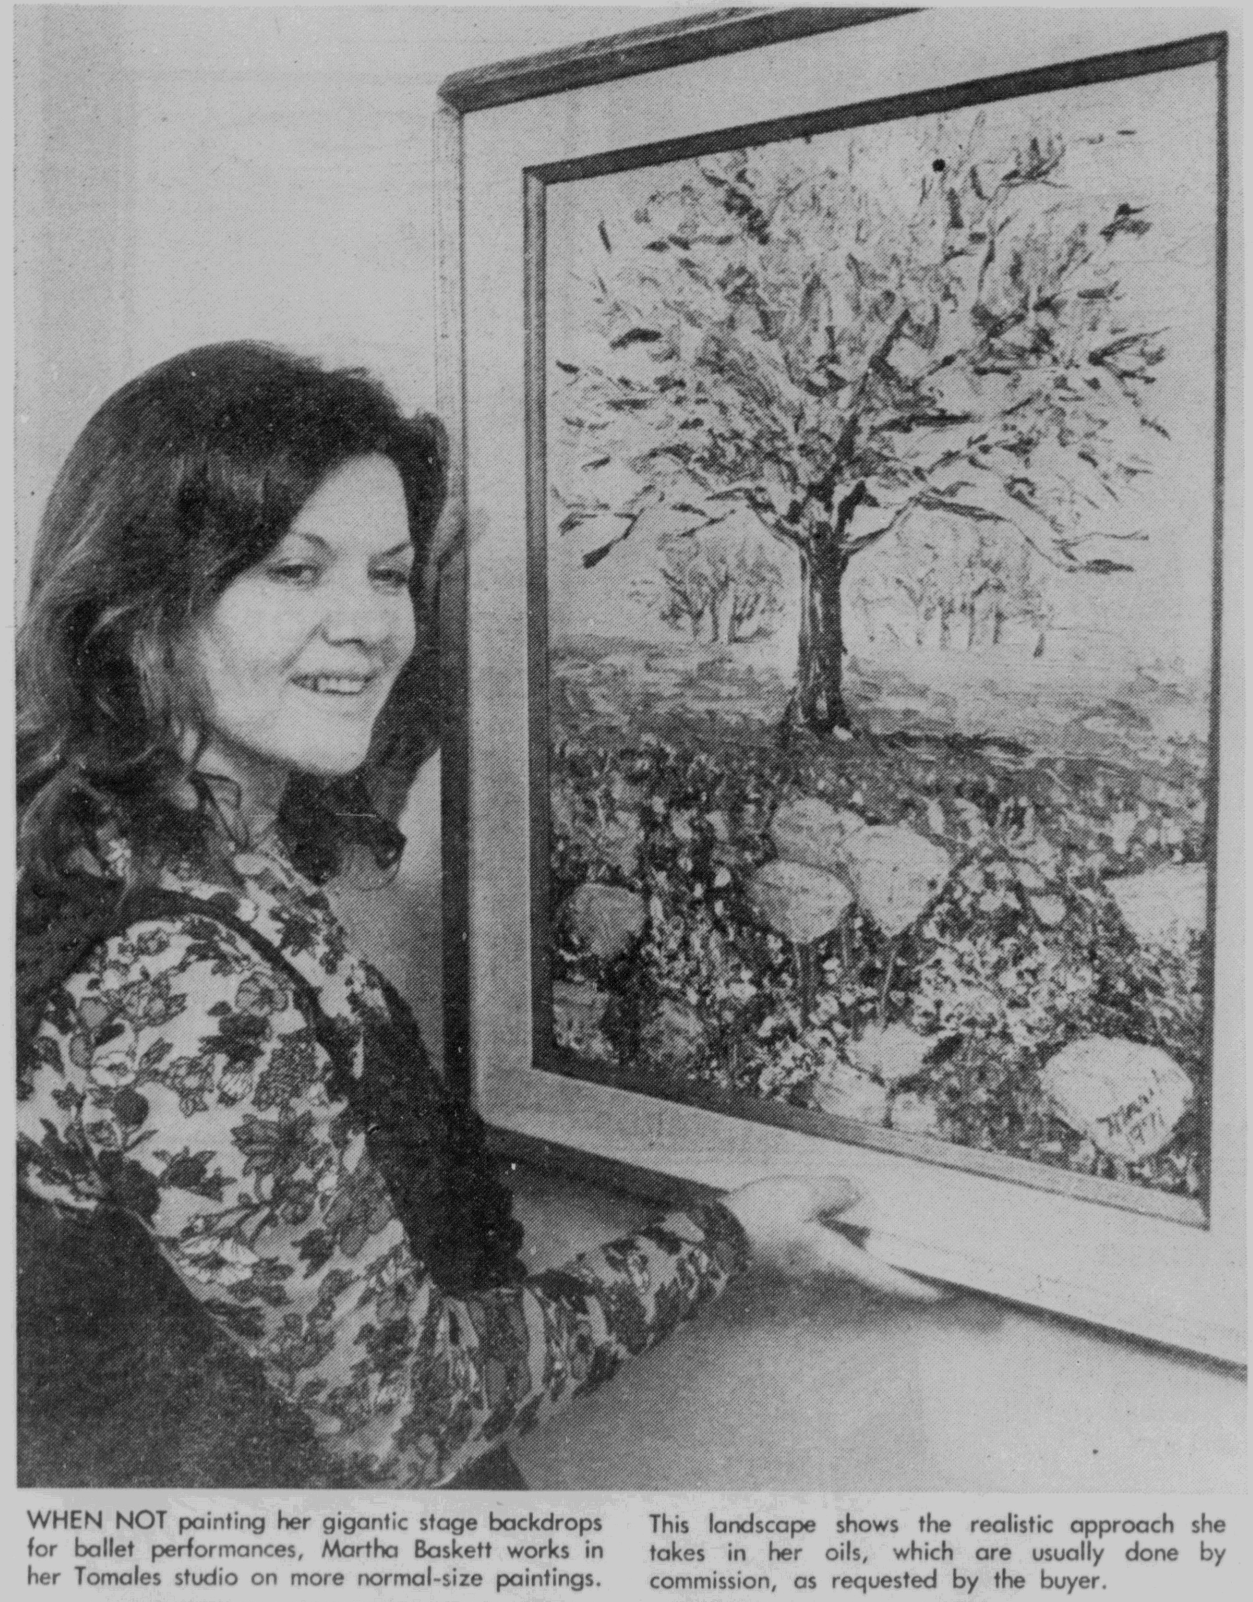
She needed all that space, for she was working on canvases 20 by 24 feet in their dimensions, as she created the backdrops for this holiday season's performances by the Petaluma Ballet Guild of "The Nutcracker."

MRS. BASKETT did all three scenes for the production — the interior of the Victorian home of little Clara; the fantasy land Palace of Sweets, and the outdoor Snowflake Scene, the last all in blue and white and featuring a huge ornamented Christmas tree.

"The Nutcracker" scenes continue an interest in stagework which the petite Mrs. Baskett began developing five years ago.

The Basketts were then Petaluma residents, and the previous year she had enrolled daughter Brandie, then 5, in dancing classes at the Petaluma School of Ballet.

SOME OF the older ballet students and their parents were then in the process of forming the Petaluma Ballet Guild. And when they decided to present "Tales of the Vienna Woods" as a short ballet as part of the annual Petaluma School of Ballet recital, Mrs. Baskett volunteered to do the single scene or backdrop that was necessary.



WHEN NOT painting her gigantic stage backdrops for ballet performances, Martha Baskett works in her Tomales studio on more normal-size paintings.

This landscape shows the realistic approach she takes in her oils, which are usually done by commission, as requested by the buyer.

She smiles now as she admits that, taking artistic license, the trees she painted more closely resembled California redwoods than the species to be found in the actual Vienna Woods.

"But I used pastels — oranges, pinks, light greens, etc. — and, believe it or not, it really looked good," she sserts.

SO GOOD, in fact, that her scene was used again in 1971 for a repeat performance of "Vienna Woods."

Two years ago Mrs. Baskett did Cinderella's cottage for a Petaluma School of Ballet production.

But the three backdrops for "The Nutcracker" are by far her most ambitious undertaking in stagecraft. Each set is done in five hinged panels, on frames built for her by her carpenter husband, Larry Baskett, who also composes music in the rock, jazz and pop genres.

MRS. BASKETT works on unbleached muslin which she first stretches over the frames, then covers with Elmer's Glue, before applying water-base house paint.

"I love doing scenery," she says, "because I like the freedom afforded by all that space. But I also enjoy scenery because there is a whole other dimension to it. When the performers come on stage, in their costumes, they become a part of my 'painting.' They are, literally, my final brush strokes."

Mrs. Baskett is a Marin girl, reared in Mill Valley where she attended Tamalpais High School as Martha Schneider and began her studies of art. She has had courses at San Jose Junior College and College of Marin, but as an artist she is largely self-taught.

SHE PAINTS generally with oils and in a realistic style, doing still lifes, portraits, landscapes.

And generally, her paintings sell. In fact, usually they have been sold before she paints.

Since she lost a number of her paintings in a house fire a few years back, she says, she has followed the practice of receiving orders for a painting before beginning the work. "Thus I seldom paint for myself. I am usually painting for someone else."

WHICH DOES she enjoy the most, the paintings or the stage scenery? She refuses to make a selection. "I get so much enjoyment and satisfaction out of both."

Her work for "The Nutcracker" began with three months of research — on scenes for past productions of the ballet, on Victorian home interiors, etc. There followed another month devoted to the designing of the sets. And then four months for their execution.

Here she had the help of two apprentices, Da[illegible]lyn Davis of Tomales and Doug KaCharos of Cotati "whom I taught the craft as we worked along."

"AND OF course," she says, "all the research, design and construction work was on a time-available basis when I wasn't busy as a housewife and a mother."

In addition to daughter Brandie, now 11, the Basketts have two sons, Zachary, 12, and Marc, 8. And the three children sometimes appear with their talented father as a singing group, featuring his compositions.

Mrs. Baskett's sets for "The Nutcracker" were first put into use last weekend when the Petaluma Ballet Guild production was performed twice in Santa Rosa.

SOUTHERN SONOMANS and Marinites will have an opportunity to see them this coming week, on Tuesday at 8 p.m. and Wednesday at 2 p.m., when the holiday ballet will be performed in the Veterans Memorial Building at Petaluma. Mary Paula, Petaluma School of Ballet and Petaluma Ballet Guild director, is also the director for the show. Lorraine Kirsch is the current Guild president.

Mrs. Baskett is especially anxious for the public reaction to her Snowflake Scene. "I just love it," she says. "The lighting gives it such a glittery effect. It is going to be beautiful."

Then, for a time, Martha Baskett will return to her more normal-sized paintings. "I have two commissions awaiting me," she says.

BUT SHE WILL be on the watch, too, for new and challenging assignments for the stage.

"I just like the idea of having living people as part of my painting," she says. "Now that is just about as realistic as I can get!"

Auckland—Christmas In The Summer

The Travel Pages

By ROBIN KINKEAD

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — For a city where 10 years ago travelers complained they couldn't get a decent meal or a good room, things have certainly changed.

Three first-class hotels of international standards of service have risen, and many smaller inns, lodges and motels are available.

Restaurants of European cuisines have opened to business so brisk that advance bookings are advisable.

High-rise buildings are beginning to sprout, although most of the city has a delightful old-fashioned look because of the wooden sidewalk roofs, the low buildings and the great number of Victorian frame houses.

AUCKLAND, with 700,000 people, is about the size of San Francisco and has a mild climate similar to the Golden Gate city. In winter — that is July and August down here — a light topcoat will do.

Summers, which come along around Christmas, have days in the 60s and 70s, not too hot for strolls about the city.

Much of the city is walkable. Otherwise coach tours for all-round sightseeing and taxis to single points of interest are the thing.

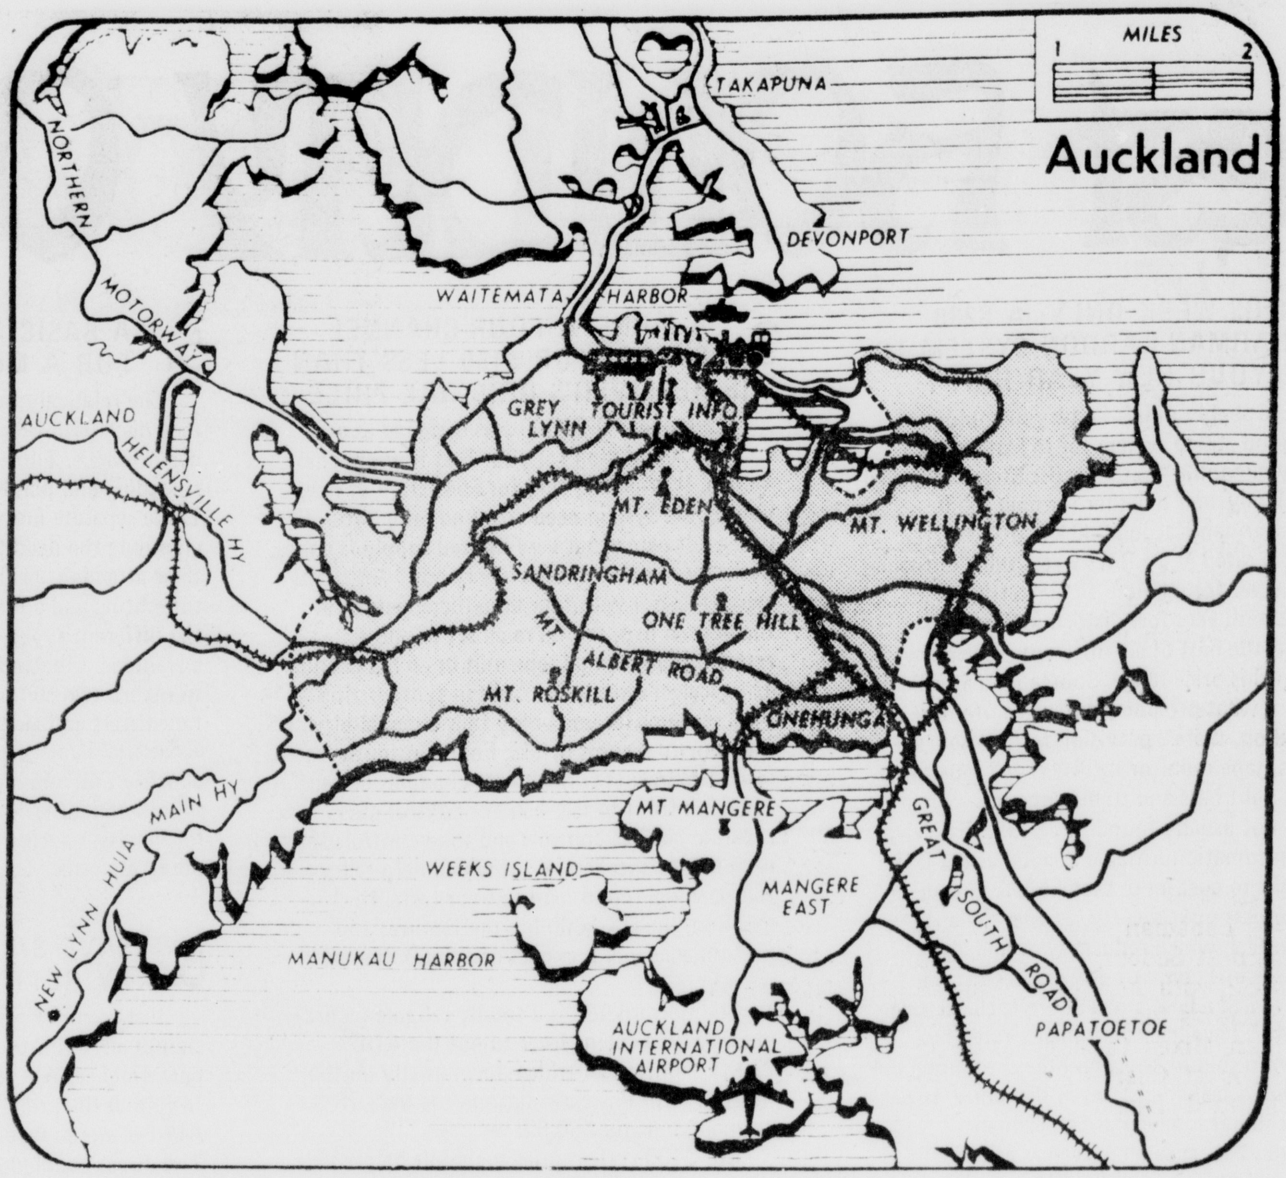
AUCKLAND IS the starting point for tours of New Zealand's North and South islands, and the point of arrival for two-thirds of the country's visitors; 200,000 of them in the year ending last March. Another 100,000 visitors came in through Christchurch.

American tourists are up 220 per cent in five years.

One of the welcome surprises here is that the 10-cent tip is still current. Ten cents in New Zealand coin, or 12 cents U.S. (they use the decimal system now with dollars and cents). Airport porters are gratis. Taxis don't take tips.

HOTEL PORTERS are happy with 20 cents a bag, and waiters with a 50-cent tip for dinner.

In a country which once listed such culinary monstrosities as cold-spaghetti sandwiches, eating has shot up in quality and variety, what with an influx of talented Europeans and a rising economy.



A couple of dozen new restaurants have opened their doors to let the aroma of international cuisine tempt the hungry.

MICHEL'S, where the owner speaks Polish, Russian and French, specializes in continental dishes. The Deerstalker Inn, run by a former Hungarian, offers venison roasted in port wine, hare and guinea fowl as specialties.

Steaks, in a country of three million cattle nourished on extra-rich grass, is treated respectfully, broiled over charcoal.

The Angus Steak House lets the customer choose his own cut of meat, then broils it over a charcoal pit sunk in the floor.

THE TROIKA Restaurant, with a Danish chef, specializes in Baltic dishes.

They all offer the national specialties of New Zealand rock oysters, small and delicate, Toheroa and Paua shellfish soups, brook trout, and deep-sea fish, big red strawberries with cream so thick it has to be spooned, cheeseboards crowded with eight varieties, and rich ice cream, which is becoming famous.

In a land with as many cattle as people and 60 million sheep, dinners run around $5 to $6. Butter is 40 cents a pound, cheaper than margarine.

FIRST OF the new hotels that changed the face of Auckland is the InterContinental opened in 1967 and today ranking tops in the deluxe category. On its 14th floor is the Top of the Town, one of the city's plush restaurants, the kind where waiters in dress suits wheel in carts covered with silver vessels, with blue flames coming up from chafing dishes. Table d'hote dinner here, $10.

Two other major hotels, the South Pacific and the Travelodge, followed, both of first-class international standards.

A nickname for a New Zealander is "Kiwi," the national bird. It is a creature with wings that cannot fly, that sleeps in the day and feeds at night.

AUCKLAND Zoo's kiwi house is darkened so the bird thinks it is night and can be observed in action, if that word can be used for its lazy movements.

Another local bird isn't around any more, but its skeleton is. When the Polynesian Maori people came down from Tahiti in their double-hulled outrigger canoes to settle in New Zealand in 1300 A.D. they found a race of primitive people called "moa hunters."

They lived off a giant, ostrich-like moa, a veritable goliath of the feathered world, standing 10 feet from its foot-long claws to its tiny and stupid-looking head. One moa drumstick must have lasted a family for at least a week.

THEIR SKELETONS and one reconstructed bird are quite a sight at Auckland's War Memorial Museum. It also houses the world's biggest collection of Polynesian and Pacific island artifacts: war clubs and spears, household articles, clothes, houses, canoes and ornaments.

A different kind of exhibit, not in the guidebooks yet, is the Museum of Transport and Technology, far more fun than the sound of its name. Here are steam trains from an earlier day sitting on their tracks, early airplanes, reconstructed pioneer houses, early cameras, phonographs, radio sets and even steamrollers.

Queen Street is Auckland's chief artery, and here the bigger shops are found. They are closed Saturdays and Sundays, when the streets are almost bare of strollers.

AN EXCEPTION is the Downtown Passenger Terminal which is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Here and in other shops are handicraft items, all kinds of things made of sheepskin, including popular sheepskin rugs, silver and abalone shell jewelry, carved wood Maori war clubs and bowls.

Brown's Mill, in an alley off Durham Lane, is a remodeled 100-year-old brick building specializing in original New Zealand handicrafts, with artisans doing their work on the spot.

Aucklanders are cheery people, outgoing and friendly, glad to chat with the visitor who makes the opening gambit. In this land with 2,000 native Maori Polynesians, there is no segregation, no racial feeling.

THERE IS wide intermarriage so that in 50 years, some estimate, every New Zealander may have a touch of Polynesian blood.

Living standards in this city are high. There is no unemployment. Health care is nationalized. And New Zealand women were first in the world to get the vote. They deserve it.

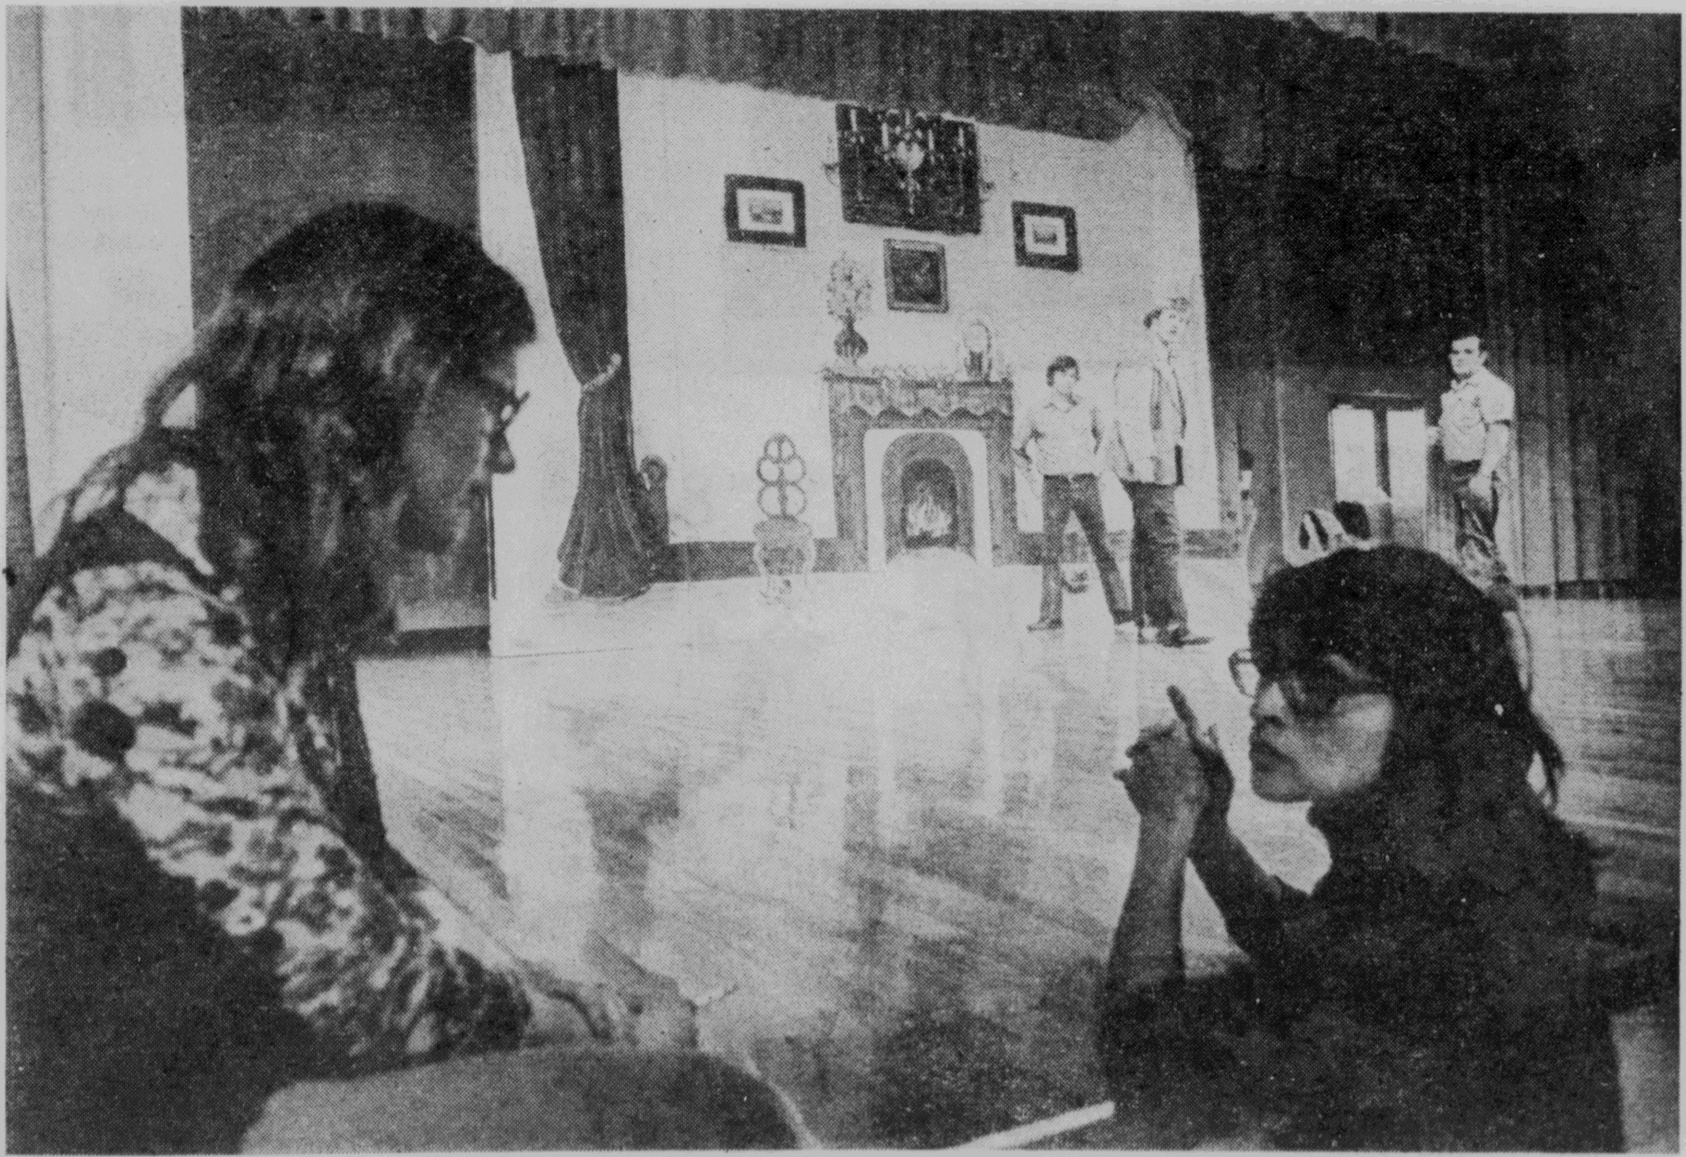
SET DESIGNER and artist Martha Baskett of Tomales watches during rehearsal while a stage crew and production assistants go about the job of replacing the Snowflake Scene and its giant Christmas tree ornaments with the panels of the Victorian manor scene. Mrs. Baskett created all three backdrops for the Petaluma Ballet Guild performances of "The Nutcracker," to take place next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., and Wednesday, 2 p.m., in the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building.



MARTHA BASKETT, right, and Ann Ringstad, an assistant director, discuss the Victorian interior panels in place while stagehands await further instructions. Mrs. Baskett created the fireplace and the rest of the backdrop only after extensive research into Victorian homes and their decor.

The Canadians Go Curling Crazy During The Winter

Curling is one of the most popular winter sports in Canada, with some 750,000 stone-happy enthusiasts from coast to coast.

And the 1973 world championship for the Silver Broom will be held in Regina, Saskatchewan, March 19-24.

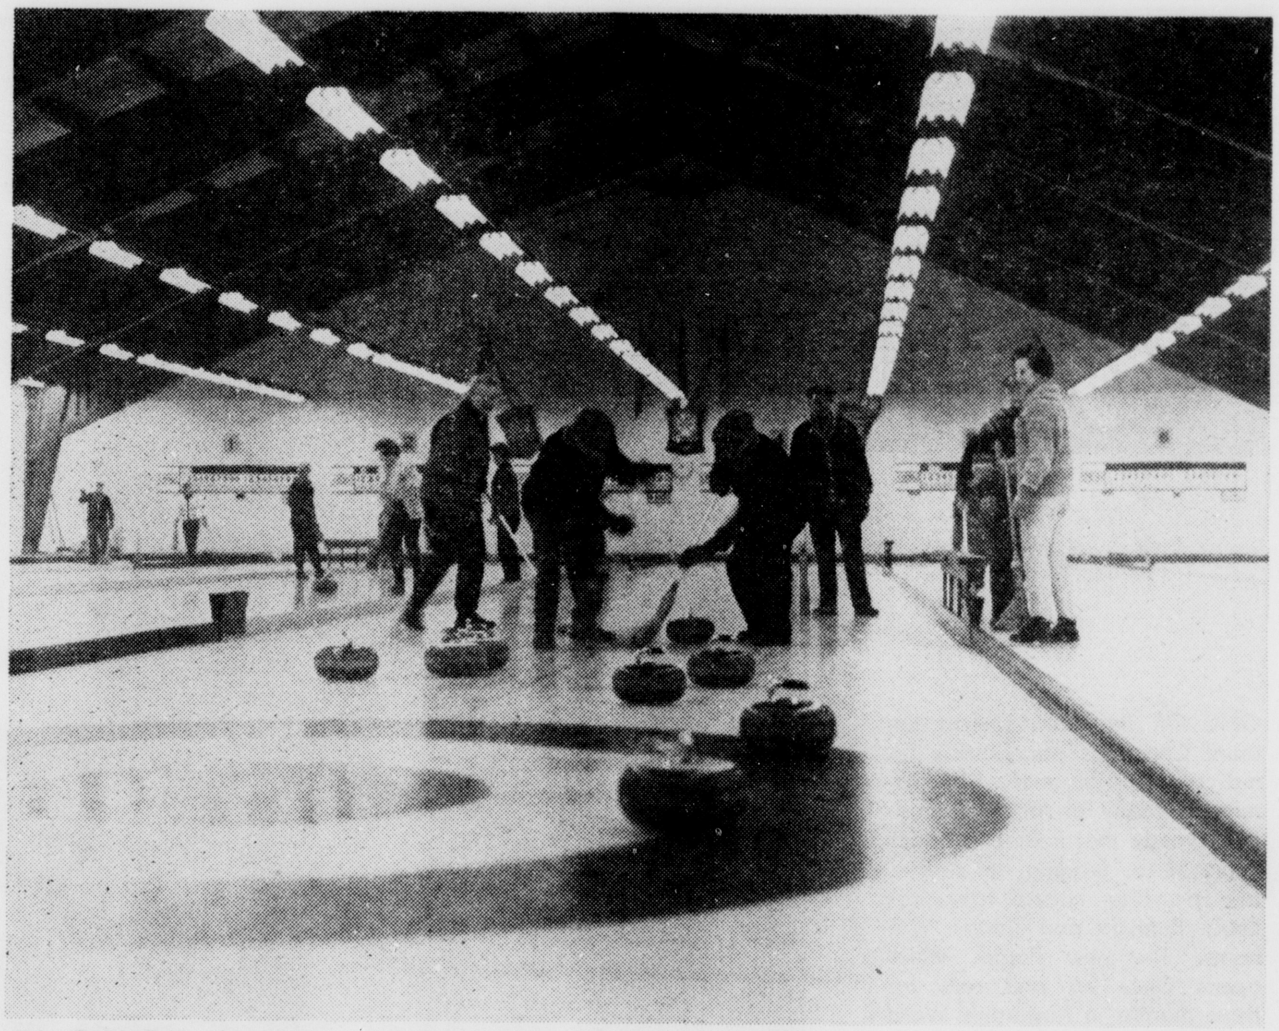
Ticket sales are already booming and officials believe demand is going to exceed supply —so booking now is a must.

Biggest spectator events are the Macdonald Brier for the Canadian championship in Edmonton, Alberta, March 5-9; the Canadian Senior Championship at Sudbury, Ontario, Feb. 18-23, with the famous Seagram Stone as top trophy; the Canadian Mixed Curling Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, March 25-31; the Canadian Schoolboy Championships at Moncton, New Brunswick, March 12-16; and the Canadian Ladies' Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, from Feb. 26 to March 2, 1973.

The western province of Manitoba is the center of most of the action with 247 clubs going at it every winter. Ottawa is yet another hotbed of the sport. And the world's curling endurance record is held by Keith Sjaagesund and William Reid of Thompson, Manitoba, who skipped their rinks for 26 hours and 15 minutes.

Curling has even gone "mod" at the Highlander Club in Winnipeg with the addition of Go-Go girls.

And visitors from the States never fail to find the unfamiliar sport a fascinating spectacle.



IN CANADA, the curling rinks compete with bowling alleys and the ice skating ponds as a winter sports attraction. Here the scene is the capital, Ottawa, as curlers sweep furiously with their brooms to guide the stone's couse and to control its speed. (Canadian Government Travel Bureau photo)

The Celebration In Old Quebec Is Family Affair

There is probably nothing in North America like a Christmas in French-speaking Quebec — especially if you participate in a family party in this part of Canada.

Preparations start weeks and, in some cases, months in advance, depending on the number of guests expected. Parties are family affairs. And scores of relatives and friends, and friends-of-friends, are invited.

After midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, the party begins around two or three in the morning with the traditional exchange of gifts and greetings. And it can last until dawn breaks over the snow-covered countryside. In fact, it generally does.

There is much singing, dancing, laughter, drinking, and a huge feast is served up.

A few of the favorite dishes are:

"Tourtieres," a meat pie of ground pork and beef

Golden roast turkey, or suckling pig, the latter stuffed with delicacies

"Cipaille," layers of veal, pork, and beef alternating with layers of crust

Hare stew, stuffed partridges roasted on cabbage leaves, fine cuts of deer meat.

Desserts include:

Pies made with apple, strawberry, raspberry, blueberry, gooseberry

The Quebec specialty, maple sugar pie, and

The traditional cake, rolled in the shape of a log and loaded with maple icing.

There's also tea, coffee, or a glass of home-made cherry wine.

And, of course, whenever French-speaking peoples get together for a special occasion, the champagne is likely to flow.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

All veterans and their families are eligible for two 1973 tours, a 21-day trek to the South Pacific in August and a 10-day visit to Mexico City and Acapulco in March, under the auspices of the Air Force Assn., Post Office Box 5534, Washington, D.C., 20016 . . . The "Meet the Irish" program initiated six years ago to enable Emerald Island visitors to meet Irish families of similar interests has been extended to offer the same opportunity to tour groups . . . Passengers on P & O's Oronsay, leaving San Francisco in March on a 59-day Cherry Blossom Circle Pacific cruise, will have Guam and Guadalcanal stops added to their itinerary.

American Express has published a new 64-page full-color brochure, available at all its travel centers, describing its ski vacation packages to 12 Alpine resorts in France, Switzerland and Austria, one to three weeks . . . World Airways and Greyhound Lines Inc. have reached an agreement by which Greyhound offices will act as sales representative for World air charter tours, and World facillties will serve in a similar capacity for Greyhound's bus charter and airport transfer services . . . Sugar Bowl, a mile from Donner Summit, is again offering half-price ($4) lift rates Monday through Friday during non-holiday periods to members of the Far West Ski Assn., students, servicemen and departments, "clergymen and Playboy Bunnies."

England's Inns Are A Joy For The Tourist

One of the joys of travel in England is the exploration of her innumerable small villages and rural inns.

Their considerable charm is quite real and uncontrived and they have history caught fast in their timber and stone.

Travel writer Garry Hogg has been captivated by his country's hamlets and hostelries and has selected 120 of his favorites for inclusion in a new book, "English Inns and Villages," published by Arco Co., 219 Park Ave. South, New York.

Happily tourists, British Inns are strung out along the roads and very accessible. Most offer meals — often very good ones indeed. Many also have overnight accommodations and, of course, all purvey liquid refreshment.

Partake of Pacific Stereo's La

... before it's spirited away

Dickens' vivid portrayal of the Spirit of Christmas Present was drawn from the days when a Christmas feast might include a roasted peacock with feathers carefully replaced, a whole boar's head, and a procession of hearty desserts called "subtleties."

Our groaning board is laden with values in stereo components. Take your cue from Scrooge and don't let them vanish into thin air, leaving you only with regrets. We're introducing an entirely new offering for one week only, so you have to partake by this next Saturday. In fact some of the items are offered at such large savings and are in such short supply that they likely won't wait for the last minute rush.

You'll find additional special values in all of our stores, items that we've added to our offering too late to include here, and the prices are so low you'll surely want to consider them. Remember, the free accessories and special holiday services described in the "Free Offerings..." section apply to any system you select during the holidays.

But time IS running out and many of these desirable values WILL vanish rapidly, so let the spirit move you into coming to Pacific Stereo right away.

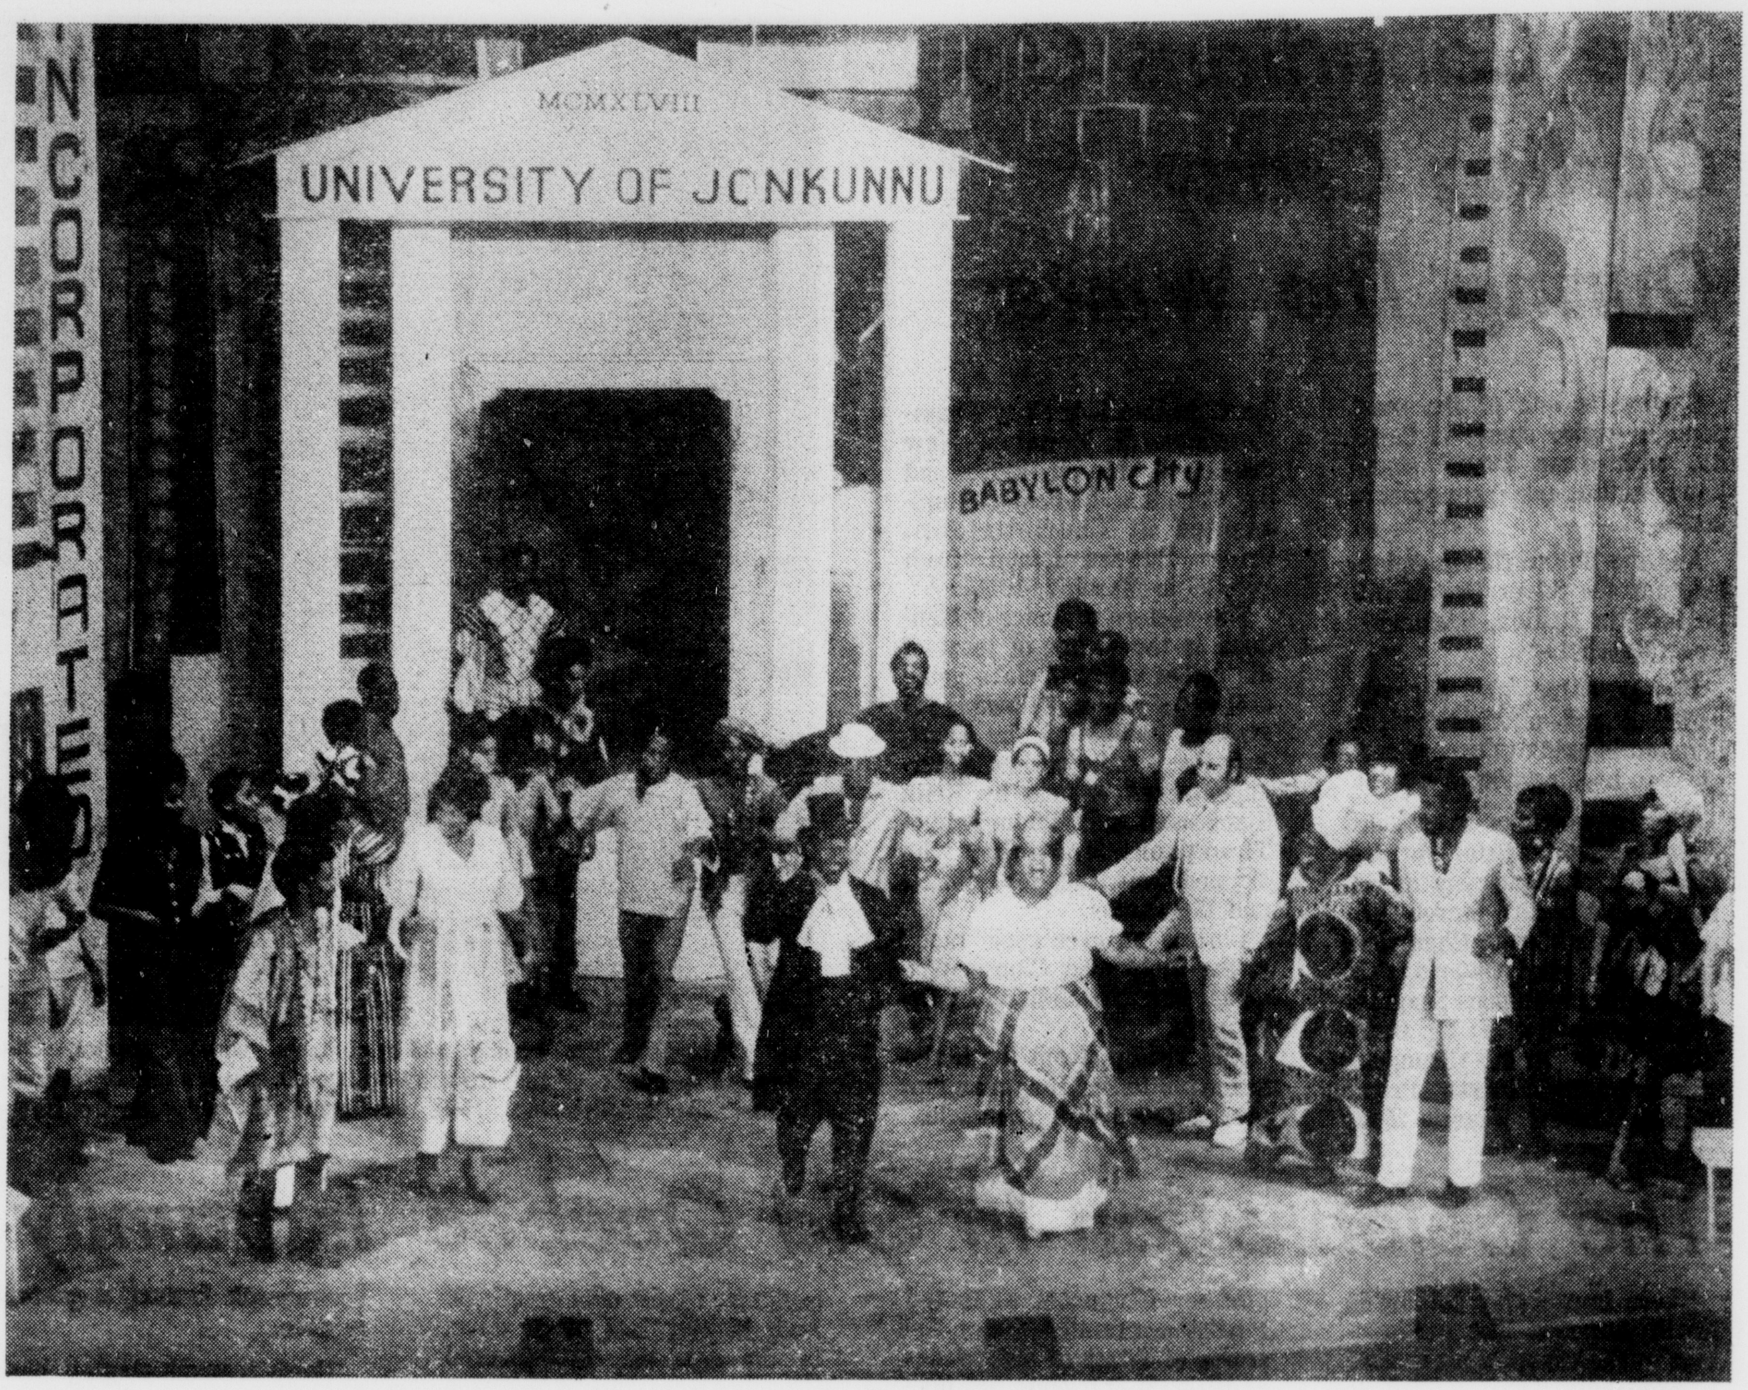
The Travel Pages



ONE OF the world's most unusual Christmas pageants is Jamaica's traditional "Pantomime," really an original musical comedy that is different each year. Here, leading the chorus, are popular island favorites Louis Bennett and Ranny Williams. The new Panto, which opens Dec. 26 and runs for three months in Kingston's Ward Theater, will star Williams as an off-beat, comic Christopher Columbus, discovering Jamaica.

Christmas In Jamaica — Tropical Style

As the curtain goes up at Kingston's Ward Theater on the Christmas Pantomime this year, a wiry little guy in sagging tights and an oversized helmet will "discover" Jamaica.

He is the island's favorite comedian and he is going to play the title role in an original show called "Hail Columbus."

Jamaicans call their Christmas musical comedy the Pantomime (or Panto) because it was modeled after Britain's famous holiday pageants of that name. But in the 31 years of productions in Jamaica, the Panto has become totally Jamaican — written, staged, danced and performed by the highly talented members of the theatrical community.

It's funny, topical, with bright music and brighter costumes and it's different every year.

MUCH OF the credit for the popularity of the unique holiday show (which runs from Dec. 26 through mid-March) is due to Jamaica's most beloved poet, singer, comedienne and actress, Louise Bennett. This quadruple-threat lady is a master of folk humor and proof of her effectiveness is the fact that she is known all over the country simply as "Miz Lou."

She has written many of the scripts for the Panto and almost always appears in it as co-star with Ranny Williams. Her impressively statuesque figure contrasts perfectly with Williams' frankly scrawny appearance.

It has not been announced as yet what role Miz Lou will play this winter, but if she is Queen Isabella to his Columbus, the producers' description of the Panto this year as "history that never was" should prove accurate.

THE PANTO, of course, is only one of the ways Jamaicans celebrate the Christmas season. The show is performed on the stage of the Ward Theater in Kingston, while shows of other kinds are going on all around the island The most familiar are the troupes of Jonkunnu dancers, who parade through the streets in elaborate masks to the music of fifes and drums. They are usually in groups of six to 10, led by traditional characters: The King, his Queen, the Bull and the Pitchy-Patch — or Ragman.

Jonkunnu — sometimes spelled John Canoe — is a legendary West Indian folk hero, probably from Africa, and the music is a combination of early Jamaican, European and African.

During the Christmas season, which in the West Indies is celebrated for the full Old English 12 days, there are street dances, fireworks, traditional "jump-ups" and the very contemporary reggae, an irresistible dance beat that is as attractive to visitors as to locals and not at all hard to learn.

VENDORS SELL paper hats and feefees (whistles), braebrees (wooden rattles), toys and traditional sweets. And there are carols sung everywhere, just as at home.

Christmas Day is a bit more sedate but on Boxing Day — another derivative from England — gifts are opened and the Panto raises the curtain on Miz Lou and Ranny for the new show.

And oddly enough, during this tropical-style Christmas, the whole island is aflame with scarlet poinsettia, growing wild at every turn of the road.

1. THIS WEEK ONLY: A $280 HARMAN-KARDON SYSTEM TO MAKE YOUR NEW YEAR HAPPY

You probably didn't know you could get such a good stereo system for so little money, and so you couldn't until Pacific Stereo managed to put this system together for only $280.

The Harman-Kardon 330A AM/FM stereo receiver is rated at 45 RMS watts, which provides ample power for medium to high efficiency speakers with very low distortion. Its tuner section is the best of six different receivers we tested in this price range. Source indicator lights show you what program source is currently switched on, there's provision for two sets of speakers, tape monitor facilities, and separate left and right bass and treble controls – luxury touches not usually found in a $199.95 receiver.

An automatic turntable as good as the BSR 310 ought to cost more than $50. A cueing lever protects your records, as does the anti-skate control, which reduces wear and also neutralizes one common form of distortion. We supply it with a base and a Shure M75 cartridge.

AR-4x's have been very highly rated by people who should know and they're among the best-selling speaker systems in the world. In each walnut cabinet is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker as well as a 2½-inch treble speaker. They sell for $115 a pair, which is quite low given how good they sound throughout their usable range.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

2. THE FIRST $400 SYSTEM THAT CAN DO JUSTICE TO BACH ORGAN FUGUES

If you've been wanting a component stereo system that can set a big room throbbing with Bach's low organ notes, you probably never hoped to find one for $400. Even the $136 saving doesn't entirely explain it. Three-way speaker systems with twelve-inch bass speakers make the low notes possible, and the TransAudio 1012's sell for a mere $159.90 a pair. The music's reproduced very cleanly, low bass notes and all, because the Spectrosonic 210-4 is a direct-coupled receiver with nothing between its transistors and the speakers to muddy the sound. The 210-4 has 64 RMS watts of power, a very good tuner section, and a host of convenience features including a convenient front panel switch for a four-channel adaptor. In fact, we don't know of any other $299.95 receiver that can come close to the 210-4 for power, performance and features. The walnut case is extra.

The Garrard SL55B record player has a synchronous motor that can't waver in speed even if house current fluctuates. There's a cueing mechanism, and an anti-skate control to prevent uneven record wear. The $75.90 price includes a base and the ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge.

INTRODUCING FOUR-CHANNEL RECORDS AT A SPECIAL HOLIDAY PRICE

All Pacific Stereo stores now have a good selection of SQ-encoded four-channel records for every musical taste. They are fully compatible with stereo equipment, so if you think you will convert to four-channel soon you can start buying the records now and play them on your present equipment. To listen to them in four-channel sound you need a system equipped with an SQ decoder. The retail price on these SQ records is $6.98; our special holiday price is $4.98.

3. A PIONEER FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM FOR $150 LESS THAN THE RECEIVER'S ORIGINAL PRICE

The Pioneer QX-8000 was designed as a versatile foundation for your first four-channel system. It originally sold for $549.95, but now your entire system need cost you only $400 if you get it before our very limited supply is gone. Basically, the QX-8000 is a very good AM/FM stereo receiver with four amplifiers instead of the normal two, so you're all set to add a discrete four-channel tape unit or an SQ decoder. The receiver already has built-in synthesizing devices which let you enjoy four-channel effects from stereo records or FM. Power output is rated at 80 RMS watts with all four channels driven. There's a front-to-rear balance control plus separate balance controls and tone controls for each pair of speakers, all of which help tailor the four-channel sound field to your taste. In addition, the QX-8000 has the features and performance you'd expect of a $550 Pioneer receiver.

The Garrard 40B is a totally reliable record player with a cueing lever to put the ADC 220XE elliptical cartridge down gently on the records. With this cartridge and the base, it normally sells for $60.90.

Our $400 system price wouldn't be possible without the new TransAudio 1008 speaker systems. All four in this system normally cost only $150, but don't be misled by the low price. 1008's are solidly built two-way systems with an eight-inch bass speaker that can reproduce even the lowest notes of a cello.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

4. HERE'S YOUR $1000 STEREO SYSTEM

If you've been thinking that this is the time to get something really special in the way of perfect sound reproduction, hold the thought and read on.

By improving their excellent S-8900 FM stereo receiver, Sherwood has produced probably the finest receiver you can find for $429.95. The new S-8900A delivers 120 RMS watts across the entire 20 to 20,000 Hz bandwidth with a miniscule .3% distortion. That's more power than you get almost anywhere else for the price. Also new is a built-in matrixing device to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, and an input and front-panel switch for adding a four-channel adaptor. The tuner section is superb of course. 1.7 microvolt sensitivity and a 70 dB signal-to-noise ratio ensure clean reception of any station on the air. You'll also find all the convenience features you'd expect on an outstanding $429.95 receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The straight-line tracking Garrard Zero 100 has a radically new tonearm which maintains tangency between the record grooves and the stylus across an entire record, thereby improving high frequency reproduction and reducing record wear. It has every feature you'd expect on a machine of this quality, and probably the lowest rumble of any automatic. We equip it with a base and the fine Shure M91E elliptical cartridge for $191.90.

You've probably read the praises of the Bose 901 in audio magazines, but this unique direct/reflecting system simply has to be heard to be appreciated. They reach as deeply into the bass region as anything, and their dispersion of sound is nothing short of phenomenal. The $476 fair trade price includes a device called an "active equalizer."

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

5. A BASIC DECK FOR A MODEST PRICE

The relatively low-priced TEAC A-1230 is a tape deck with everything you need for first rate performance. Three separate heads (for erasing, recording and playback) permit monitoring. Three separate motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their attendant problems. There's a pause control for editing and a bias control switch lets you use the different types of tape available to maximum advantage. Line and mike mixer inputs allow you to record two sources simultaneously. Automatic tape lifters and automatic shutoff help prevent accidental damage to your tapes. TEAC's solid construction and high standards of engineering should make the 1230 just what you're looking for in a high performance stereo deck at a moderate price. $359.50

6. SAVE $70 ON A NIKKO 6010 BY GETTING IT THIS WEEK

Just seeing the name Nikko on a receiver should alert you to look for features and performance that you otherwise wouldn't expect to find at the price. And the $200 Nikko 6010 AM/FM stereo receiver won't disappoint you. The direct coupled amplifier section delivers 30 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section is predictably better than you would expect for the price. It will provide quite good reception under almost any circumstances. Controls include tape monitoring and a loudness contour switch to compensate for bass loss at low listening levels. High and low filters cut out noise from scratchy records or FM interference. The 6010 can handle two pairs of speakers, and a front panel switch gives you a choice of listening to the main pair only or playing both simultaneously. The case is extra. The normal price is $199.95, but our sale price for this week only is $129.95.

7. A $50 SAVING ON A LIMITED SUPPLY OF LENCO RECORD PLAYERS

Lenco's B55 isn't as well known as their outstanding L75 manual record player, but it really should be. Like the L75, the B55 offers excellent performance with records and its normal price is even more reasonable than the L75's. The B55 has automatic damped cueing and an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the stylus centered in the groove. The low mass aluminum tonearm has a calibrated counterweight for adjusting balance and stylus pressure, and an 11.8" turntable makes it easy to pick up 12" records by their edge while still providing full record support. A unique Lenco feature is the infinitely variable speed control, useful to musicians for tuning pitch.

The B55 normally sells for $85 with a base, and we're equipping it with a $24.95 ADC 230XE elliptical cartridge. But instead of $109.95 you only have to pay $59.95 until our limited supply runs out.

8. GET ALL THE SCOTCH DYNARANGE TAPE YOU WANT FOR LESS THAN HALF PRICE

The only stipulation is that you have to do it this week, because the price goes back up the day before Christmas. Scotch 203 Dynarange is top quality low noise tape with a polyester backing. We're selling the 1800-foot 7-inch reels this week for $1.99, well under half of our usual $5.05 price. $1.99

Free Offerings During the Merrye Monthe of December at Pacific Stereo

FREE ELLIPTICAL CARTRIDGE

Instead of the conical cartridges usually supplied with value-oriented music systems, we're offering a very high quality elliptical cartridge which will help your records sound better and last longer. Except for a very few extremely low priced combinations, all of our holiday music systems will have ellipticals.

FREE HEADPHONES OR A SUBSCRIPTION TO "AUDIO"

You get to choose between a free pair of stereophones or a free one-year subscription to "Audio" magazine when you buy any music system at Pacific Stereo during the holiday season.

FREE CONNECTING WIRE

You can have whatever you need to connect your music system the way you want.

EXTENDED FIVE-YEAR WARRANTY

We won't start counting the elapsed time on our five-year warranty until January 1, so you get coverage for five years plus however much time there is between now and the 1st. The warranty covers free parts for five years and free labor for three years on absolutely everything but the needle on the record player. Even if you wrap up your system and don't use it until Christmas you get the full warranty.

EXTENDED EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

Our sixty-day exchange privilege and our one-year speaker trial privilege will also be dated from January 1st and cover the intervening time as well. You can exchange anything you aren't happy about within 60 days, and you have a full year to receive the purchase price on any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward more expensive speakers.

LAYAWAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

If you want to be sure of getting what you want but aren't quite ready to buy, just put a $10 deposit on the system. It's refundable and you're under no obligation, but you'll be able to get what you want at the price you've seen advertised.

BANKAMERICARD AND MASTERCHARGE O.K.

Use your credit card for any purchases you make at Pacific Stereo.

FINANCING AVAILABLE, NO PAYMENTS 'TIL FEB. 1

We've arranged for a financing contract that doesn't require you to start making payments until Feb. 1, 1973, well after the holidays.

9. JUST ABOUT HALF PRICE ON THE SHURE M91E THIS WEEK

The Shure M91E is an elliptical cartridge which is second only to the incomparable V15 II in the Shure line of cartridges. Its performance is bound to satisfy you by providing for long record wear and clean reproduction. Our regular price is $29.50; our $14.95 holiday price misses being half by 20¢, but that shouldn't stop you from getting one or more before next Sunday. $14.95

"I asked a friend who travels extensively up and down this vast land how the country has changed in the past year, and he replied simply, 'There's more hate.' There's also more unemployment, more pollution, more crime, more drug addiction, more pornography, more bankruptcies, more suicides, more breakdowns of public service, more fear and despair, more cynicism and more screams in the night. But this groping, blundering creature, Man, still summons up the spirit to celebrate the holidays in style."

A Doll With Harpoon

By DON KEOWN

NEVER GO ANYWHERE WITHOUT A PENCIL by Harriet Van Horne; Putnam, 313 pages, $7.95.

Not too many years back there was an almost total domination of the space allocated for columns in major newspapers by writers of a liberal persuasion.

While many argued that the arrangement was a fair one in that these columnists only helped to offset the prevailing conservative bias of the publishers, as reflected on their editorial pages, there was pressure to bring about a better balance of opinion among these commentators on the political, social and economic scenes.

William F. Buckley Jr. was joined by a host of like-minded writers in expounding the conservative philosophy and causes.

And gradually the pendulum has swung the other way, until, in many newspapers, the views of the columnists are generally to the right of even the editorials. Many spokesmen for the liberal perspective, including the dean of them all, Walter Lippman, have left the field. Others have altered their stance, sharply or slightly, to a more conservative posture.

Still, there remain a number of able columnists who reflect the liberal or progressive approach to our problems and our issues.

One such is Harriet Van Horne, window of the late David Lowe, a veteran of the New York Post as her home paper.

Physically slight, the attractive Miss Van Horne has been dubbed "the Dresden China doll with the harpoon."

Certainly the sharp-witted Miss Van Horne is capable of exchanging caustic barbs with the best of them — including the acidulous Mr. Buckley.

"Never Go Anywhere Without a Pencil" is a newly-published collection of her work, 1968 into 1972, that demonstrates her biting wit to fine effect, and which will delight those thirsting for an unabashed defense of their basic inner humanitarian instincts. For, make no mistake about it, liberalism has fallen into disrepute in many quarters, and many of us now hide our idealism like another skeleton shoved into the closet.

Harriet Van Horne feels no such compulson to hide her feelings and opinions.

"Our tax laws," she writes typically, "are written to punish the poor and pardon the rich. All concessions, all loopholes, all rebates are reserved for them that has."

And: "The shabbiest enemies of freedom in this country have been the Yankee Doodle zealots, the witch-hunters, the deniers of civil liberties. There are no swords as bloody as the swords of holy wars. And no patriots as unworthy of our flag as the flag-draped superpatriots."

After the Kent State tragedy: "At the cost of a great many innocent lives, we are beginning to learn that the National Guard in time of riot and civil commotion is a national menace . . . In the name of public safety, the National Guard should be abolished."

"Maybe the wobble and list, the general tackiness of today's goods and chattels can be blamed on our loss of Yankee thrift," she theorizes. "Upward strivers all, we are seduced by a name on a label, dazzled by a commercial in living color. We buy on the run. And we're pushovers for salesmen with a sweet line of blarney."

"There is a burning edge of hostility in Billy Graham's Christinaity," she finds. "It isn't simply the Graham theology that repels — though it certainly repels me — it's his hellfire and damnation preaching and his acceptance of Satan as a 'personal devil' that belongs back in the Bible-thumping days when snake oil was sold along with the religious tracts. But the really distressing aspect is the way he mixes politics and social commentary with sin and salvation."

Miss Van Horne also takes well-aimed potshots at such diverse targets as our treatment of the aged, Women's Liberation (their tactics, not their goals), youthful hairstyles (or the lack, thereof), organic food, sitar music, Richard M. Nixon and Spiro Agnew, modern films, our prisons, male fashions.

Unlike some liberal columnists, she doesn't think it necessary to endorse blindly all aspects of youth or every minority stand. "Young men today are becoming too girlish, too foppish, too feminized for their good or the good of society," she asserts. And of Women's Lib: "Officially, the movement appears to believe that karate lessons and coarse manners will scare men into promising them anything. Fools! It's the cool, feminine women who win their battles with men."

She is saddened and angered by the deterioration of life in New York City, and not beguiled by John Lindsay's charisma.

"The liberal," writes Miss Van Horne, "looks at the world affirmatively, believing that man can be liberated and that governments can be humane. He is as opposed to repression of human souls as he is to suppression of news. He abhors hierarchies, harsh authority and the selective justice that punishes the poor and the black.

"To those of us holding such views, the life around us confirms our judgment that repression, race prejudice and carefully maintained economic disparities have only worsened the suffering built into our system."

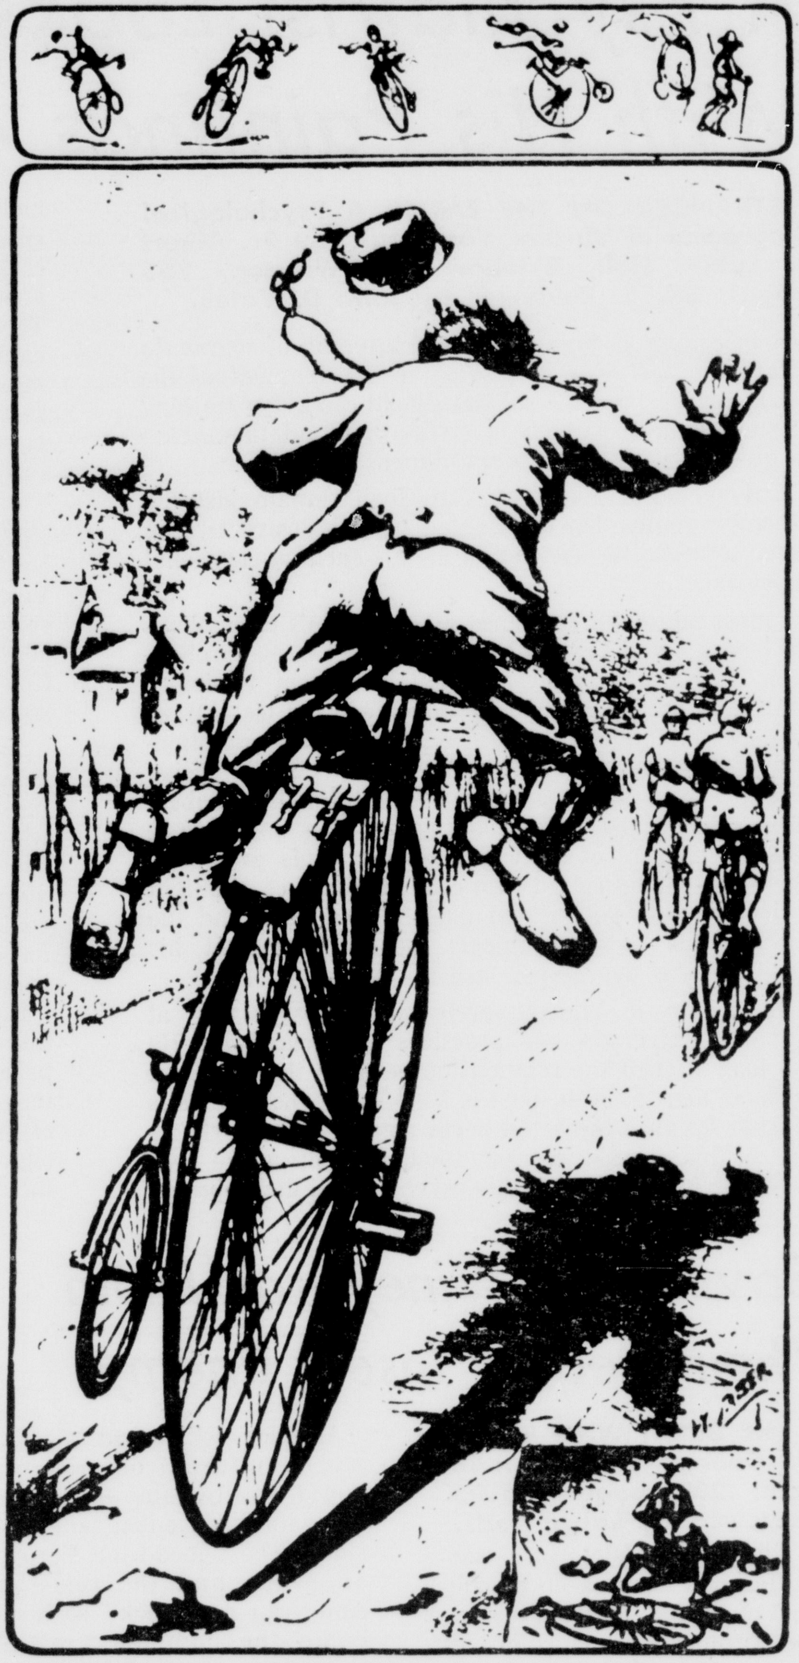
Against these inequities, "with the world growing dirtier, noisier, bloodier and meaner," she advises "it behooves us to become cleaner, quieter, kinder and more militant in our battle for a decent life. If ever our society needed activists, people who give a damn, it is now. The times demand an expression of outrage. Not muttered curses, not an occasional letter to the editor, but outrage, expressed in a socially constructive manner."

And, in the Van Horne columns at least, in a sprightly, witty manner as well.

Those newspapers that run Harriet Van Horne's column along with those of William Buckley, Joseph Alsop and Victor Lasky need not apologize for any imbalance. This charming and articulate lady can hold her own with any, all three, of those spokesmen for conservatism.

TRANSPLANTED New Englanders will find warmth and nostalgia in "Christmas In New England," a slim, well-illustrated picture album by photographer Taylor Lewis Jr. and writer Joanne Young. The snow-covered hills, the village church, the sleigh rides, the log fires and the people all bundled up are captured in color photos that carry the spirit of New England. Published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the attractive volume is priced at $5.95.

A BOOK ON BIKES



"RICHARD'S Bicycle Book" is the work of Richard Ballantine with illustrations by John Batchelor, and is offered as "a comprehensive guide that explains in detail and practical terms the exact functions of various parts of the bike" and "which enables the reader to evaluate and to repair bikes." Ballantine has published the book as an original paperback at $1.95, with today's ever increasing ranks of cycling enthusiasts in mind.

Sleuths & Suspense

SEANCE FOR TWO by Mark McShane; Doubleday, 177 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Pat Perry.

A shy bachelor who works as a librarian, William Wilson, has only one obsession - he loves murderesses. But always from afar, by reading reports of their trials and crimes. The vicarious thrill satisfies.

But one day he travels to the prison from which murderess Myra Savage is being released at the end of her sentence, and invites her to his home. Phlegmatically she accepts, and William basks in the pleasure.

Myra, in turn, has an obsession of her own - her psychic powers. It is an obsession that led to the murder for which she was convicted. And in a single-minded drive to justify her obsession, she shoves weak William into violent and uncharacteristic acts and proves her gifts of prediction.

This is one of those rare stories that maintains the sense of foreboding right through . . . you just know something awful is going to happen . . . and sure enough it does. Parapsychology nuts will appreciate the tale more than most.

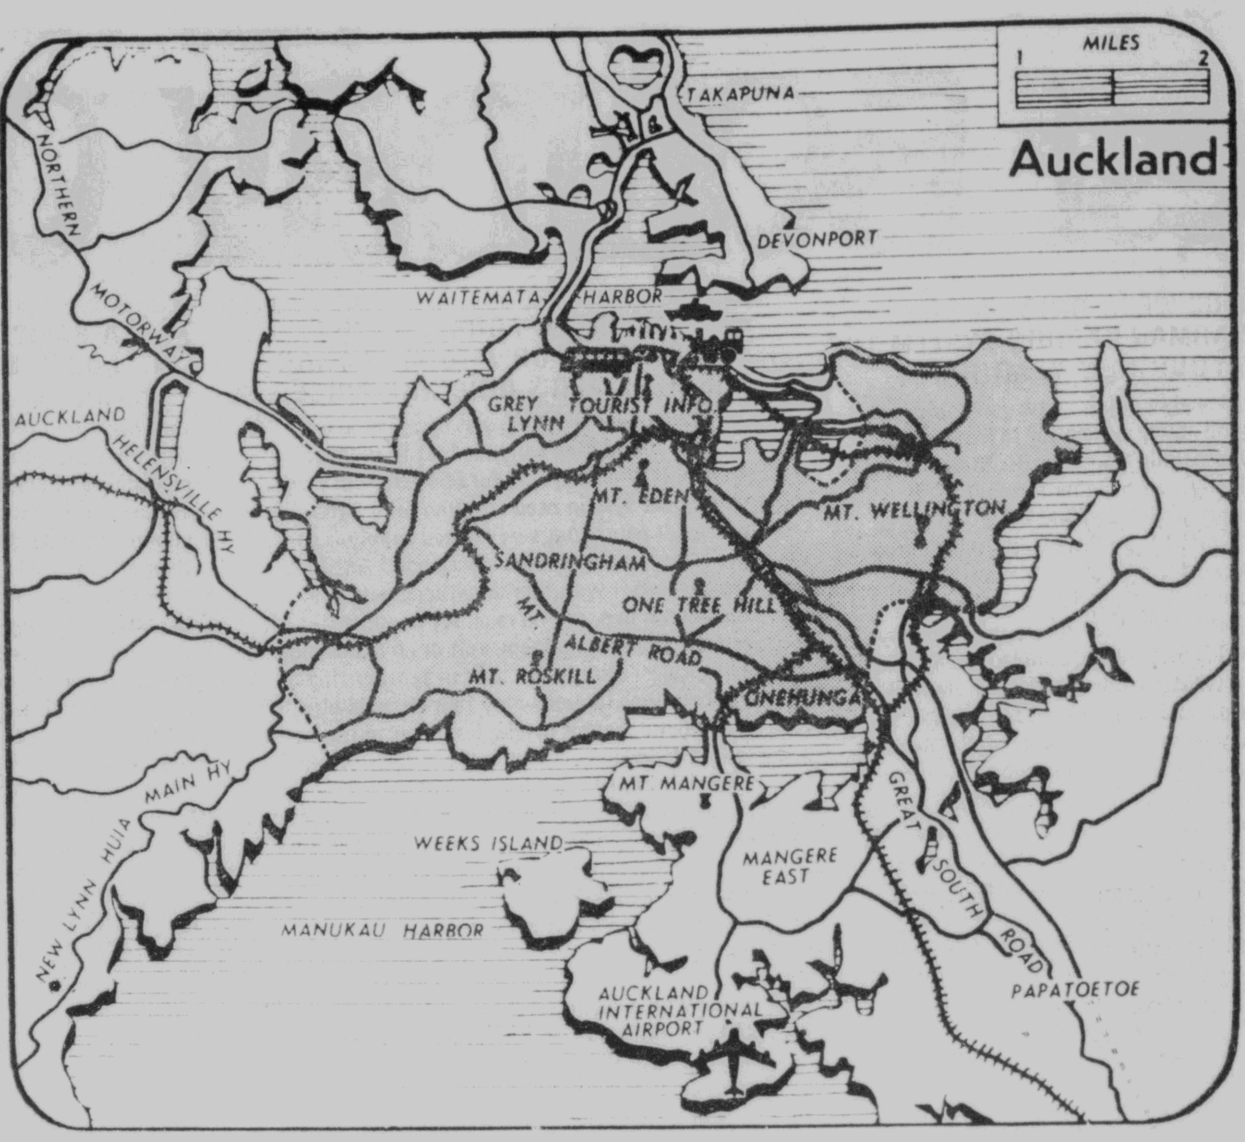
Auckland—Christmas In The Summer



By ROBIN KINKEAD

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — For a city where 10 years ago travelers complained they couldn't get a decent meal or a good room, things have certainly changed.

Three first-class hotels of international standards of service have risen, and many smaller inns, lodges and motels are available.

Restaurants of European cuisines have opened to business so brisk that advance bookings are advisable.

High-rise buildings are beginning to sprout, although most of the city has a delightful old-fashioned look because of the wooden sidewalk roofs, the low buildings and the great number of Victorian frame houses.

AUCKLAND, with 700,000 people, is about the size of San Francisco and has a mild climate similar to the Golden Gate city. In winter — that is July and August down here — a light topcoat will do.

Summers, which come along around Christmas, have days in the 60s and 70s, not too hot for strolls about the city.

Much of the city is walkable. Otherwise coach tours for all-round sightseeing and taxis to single points of interest are the thing.

AUCKLAND IS the starting point for tours of New Zealand's North and South islands, and the point of arrival for two-thirds of the country's visitors; 200,000 of them in the year ending last March. Another 100,000 visitors came in through Christchurch.

The Travel Pages

American tourists are up 220 per cent in five years.

One of the welcome surprises here is that the 10-cent tip is still current. Ten cents in New Zealand coin, or 12 cents U.S. (they use the decimal system now with dollars and cents). Airport porters are gratis. Taxis don't take tips.

HOTEL PORTERS are happy with 20 cents a bag, and waiters with a 50-cent tip for dinner.

In a country which once listed such culinary monstrosities as cold-spaghetti sandwiches, eating has shot up in quality and variety, what with an influx of talented Europeans and a rising economy.

A couple of dozen new restaurants have opened their doors to let the aroma of international cuisine tempt the hungry.

MICHEL'S, where the owner speaks Polish, Russian and French, specializes in continental dishes. The Deerstalker Inn, run by a former Hungarian, offers venison roasted in port wine, hare and guinea fowl as specialties.

Steaks, in a country of three million cattle nourished on extra-rich grass, is treated respectfully, broiled over charcoal.

The Angus Steak House lets the customer choose his own cut of meat, then broils it over a charcoal pit sunk in the floor.

THE TROIKA Restaurant, with a Danish chef, specializes in Baltic dishes.

They all offer the national specialties of New Zealand rock oysters, small and delicate, Toheroa and Paua shellfish soups, brook trout, and deep-sea fish, big red strawberries with cream so thick it has to be spooned, cheeseboards crowded with eight varieties, and rich ice cream, which is becoming famous.

In a land with as many cattle as people and 60 million sheep, dinners run around $5 to $6. Butter is 40 cents a pound, cheaper than margarine.

FIRST OF the new hotels that changed the face of Auckland is the InterContinental opened in 1967 and today ranking tops in the deluxe category. On its 14th floor is the Top of the Town, one of the city's plush restaurants, the kind where waiters in dress suits wheel in carts covered with silver vessels, with blue flames coming up from chafing dishes. Table d'hote dinner here, $10.

Two other major hotels, the South Pacific and the Travelodge, followed, both of first-class international standards.

A nickname for a New Zealander is "Kiwi," the national bird. It is a creature with wings that cannot fly, that sleeps in the day and feeds at night.

AUCKLAND Zoo's kiwi house is darkened so the bird thinks it is night and can be observed in action, if that word can be used for its lazy movements.

Another local bird isn't around any more, but its skeleton is. When the Polynesian Maori people came down from Tahiti in their double-hulled outrigger canoes to settle in New Zealand in 1300 A.D. they found a race of primitive people called "moa hunters."

They lived off a giant, ostrich-like moa, a veritable goliath of the feathered world, standing 10 feet from its foot-long claws to its tiny and stupid-looking head. One moa drumstick must have lasted a family for at least a week.

THEIR SKELETONS and one reconstructed bird are quite a sight at Auckland's War Memorial Museum. It also houses the world's biggest collection of Polynesian and Pacific island artifacts: war clubs and spears, household articles, clothes, houses, canoes and ornaments.

A different kind of exhibit, not in the guidebooks yet, is the Museum of Transport and Technology, far more fun than the sound of its name. Here are steam trains from an earlier day sitting on their tracks, early airplanes, reconstructed pioneer houses, early cameras, phonographs, radio sets and even steamrollers.

Queen Street is Auckland's chief artery, and here the bigger shops are found. They are closed Saturdays and Sundays, when the streets are almost bare of strollers.

AN EXCEPTION is the Downtown Passenger Terminal which is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Here and in other shops are handicraft items, all kinds of things made of sheepskin, including popular sheepskin rugs, silver and abalone shell jewelry, carved wood Maori war clubs and bowls.

Brown's Mill, in an alley off Durham Lane, is a remodeled 100-year-old brick building specializing in original New Zealand handicrafts, with artisans doing their work on the spot.

Aucklanders are cheery people, outgoing and friendly, glad to chat with the visitor who makes the opening gambit. In this land with 2,000 native Maori Polynesians, there is no segregation, no racial feeling.

THERE IS wide intermarriage so that in 50 years, some estimate, every New Zealander may have a touch of Polynesian blood.

Living standards in this city are high. There is no unemployment. Health care is nationalized. And New Zealand women were first in the world to get the vote. They deserve it.

A Psychiatrist Looks At An Artist With His Paintings As His Mirror

STRANGER ON THE EARTH: A Psychological Biography of Vincent Van Gogh, by Dr. Albert J. Lubin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 265 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

A biography of an artist should attempt, of course, to relate the life experiences to the development of the work; but perhaps the subject should remain something of an enigma - positively mysterious and unfathomable - to give his work that special dimension.

And should not Vincent Van Gogh remain just the eccentric genius, lonely, haunted and self-destructive, in order to make the viewing of his art such an emotional experience?

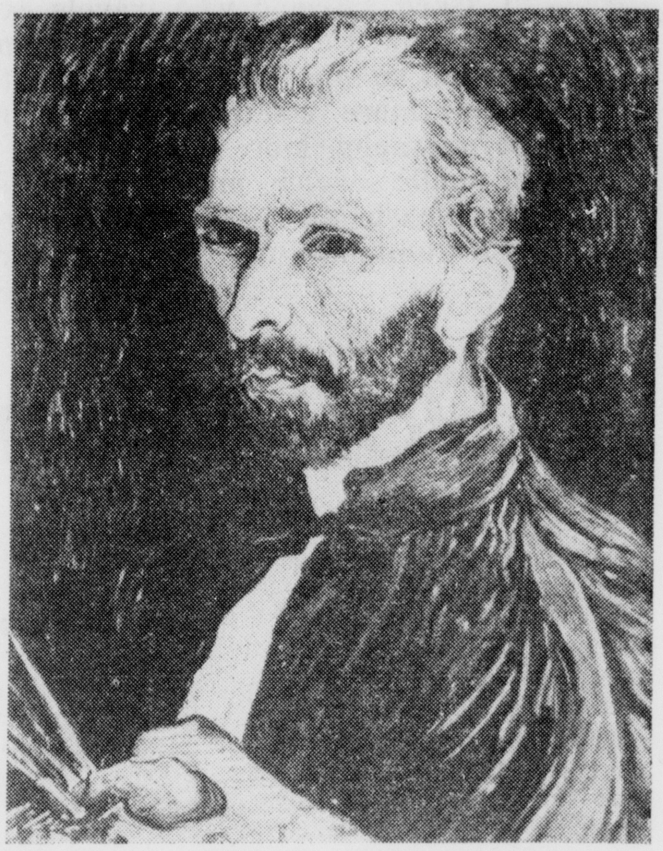
I must admit I approached Albert Lubin's psychological biography of Vincent Van Gogh with some apprehension; I did not believe I wanted Vincent clinically analyzed and psychologically dissected, and his art put into special compartments in relation to every emotional experience of his life. However, the special dimension I have looked for in art has been revealed by Albert Lubin's biography — the paintings of Van Gogh are in fact the mirrors of his experiences and his problems. The dark, earthy period with crude techniques, the light period with its yellow and blues, the themes and the relationships of his subjects inexorably reflect his loneliness, his depressions and his life.

Dr. Lubin is clinical professor of psychiatry at Stanford University and practices psychoanalysis. He has long studied the relationship between the lives and works of artists; in the case of Van Gogh (whom he calls Vincent because the artist never signed "Van Gogh" to any of his works) a vast amount of literature was available but no study of his psychological development had ever been attempted. Vincent's personal correspondence particularly his letters to his brother, Theo - is prolific, and from this Dr. Lubin has made his analysis. In one of the hundreds of expressive letters to Theo, Vincent says: " . . . telling you the thoughts that came into my mind without being afraid of letting myself go, without keeping back thoughts and censoring them . . ." That phrase reveals succinctly the potential value of such personal correspondence to the psychoanalyst.

Vincent Van Gogh was born, and died, on March 30, 1852. Exactly one year later, on March 30, 1853, another boy was born to the Van Goghs. He, too, was called Vincent (our Vincent), but, to his mother he could never replace her first born. Sharing the brother's name, he constantly reminded the mother of her loss; and as the first Vincent did not live long enough to be bad, the second Vincent would inevitably fail in comparison.

In this experience, further complicated by a strict religious upbringing (his father was a Dutch Reform minister), lay the roots of the psychological problems which tormented Vincent throughout his life, and contributed ultimately to his suicide in 1890. He passionately looked for close personal relationships (which he could never have effectively handled) but was always forced to accept a substitute for an intimate human bond; and all this precipitated a serious depression.

His first work as an art dealer, a thwarted love affair, his attempts to enter the formal ministry all ended in periods of long depressions. Finally, in 1879, after long months of inactivity, he turned to art, and turned much of the anger that he was unable to vent openly into the aggressive task of creating art. The many solitary figures in Vincent's work correspond to the lonely outcast - the stranger, the prisner and the vagabond - he saw himself to be.



VINCENT VAN GOGH
A self-portrait, painted in 1889

"The story of Vincent Van Gogh," Dr. Lubin writes, "is a never-ending struggle to control, modify, glorify, or deny a deep-rooted melancholy and loneliness . . ."

The study of how Vincent transformed these problems into incredible achievements is an outstanding addition to the literature on the life and art of Van Gogh; and the illustrations in the book of his work take on a new and revealing image.

Saving The Vineyards From Their Deadly Insect Enemy

THE GREAT WINE BLIGHT by George Ordish; Scribners; 237 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Laura Potts.

This is a completely scholarly, fascinating book on the impact of a small insect attacking the European grape vineyards and causing all kinds of mischief before it was finally controlled. The added notes and tables make a story in themselves.

Biologists and their reputed cures and methods had gained little testing in the 1880s when the phylloxera became an insinuating problem affecting not only southern Europe, but Algeria, Greece, and other wine growing areas.

America, which had taken so much culture from the Old World, finally came to the rescue with disease-resistant rootstock. The "good-wine European grape and the resistant American root-stock" soon became the common grafting throughout the old production areas.

With a measured but light touch, almost a "who-done-it" feel, George Ordish has written a fully documented story of a bewildered people whose whole life-style is threatened. Their sometimes foolish, sometimes noble thrusts persevere and finally put together a livable cure, saving the graces and pleasures of wines for all of us.

Galavanting Grandmas On The Go

TWICE OVER LIGHTLY by Helen Hayes and Antia Loos; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 343 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jorie Parr.

Two galavanting grandmas get off the phone and onto the streets of New York for a sedate romp through their chosen city. Having decided that New York is an okay place to live, and that it also would be stimulating to visit, this improbable combination of celebrated ladies takes off on a tour that hits the barber college and the Bronx, Staten Island, and the Stock Exchange.

"Twice Over Lightly" is fun when the principals recall incidents from the past, such as when Miss Hayes' late husband was asked on his "death bed" to name his religion, and he replied, "I am a phallic worshiper." It is also an inspiration to current over-65ers and others who haven't had a fling in their hometown in some time. A nice Christmas present for your mother.

Quakes, Past And Future, California And Elsewhere

WILL CALIFORNIA FALL INTO THE SEA? by Peter Briggs; David McKay Co., 243 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joan Erickson-Ingles.

After reading the list of books written by Peter Briggs the readers expectations of a great book is high. This book falls short.

From the title one would assume the subject be concerned with California earthquakes but Peter Briggs enlightens the reader to earthquakes worldwide. Probably the author found research for background material on California earthquakes limited, so that for filler he included famous earthquakes of Calcutta, India, Port Royal, Jamaica, and Tokyo, Japan.

In the last few chapters Peter Briggs does not answer his own question, "Will California Fall into the Sea?," but instead given the reader an imaginary account of what might happen in Los Angeles if an earthquake hits with the magnitude of 8.7 on the Richter scale. If you are easily alarmed, this is not for you.

This book reminds one of another published several years ago on the same subject, which became a best-seller. History probably will not be repeated.

A SLICE OF AMERICANA — THINGS BY COCA-COLA

THE ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO THE COLLECTIBLES OF COCA-COLA by Cecil Munsey; Hawthorn, 333 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

It seems that the ecology-minded aren't the only ones interested in picking up those Coca-Cola bottles and other memorabilia of America's soft drink thirst that sometimes litter our byways.

Collectors, too, have their eyes on the relics from the Coca-Cola Company's 86-year-history.

Most sought after are the Coke advertisements that began in the 1800s. Coveted, too, are the premiums and side products — jars, gum, glasses, razor blades, clocks, mirrors, etc. — that bore the Coca-Cola trademark. The bottles, too, have their seekers.

Cecil Munsey's "The Illustrated Guide to the Collectibles of Coca-Cola" reviews the history of the company and the drink, and then, with liberal illustrations, scans the "treasures" that history has dangled before collectors.

For collectors, of course, the book will be a must. But for other, it is an interesting excursion into nostalgia, for the Coke, for better or worse, cool refreshment or aching dental caries, has been as much a part of Americana as the apple pie. Those photos, alone, are worth a large slice of the price, but Munsey's entertaining text is not be be downgraded.

The Canadians Go Curling Crazy During The Winter

Curling is one of the most popular winter sports in Canada, with some 750,000 stone-happy enthusiasts from coast to coast.

And the 1973 world championship for the Silver Broom will be held in Regina, Saskatchewan, March 19-24.

Ticket sales are already booming and officials believe demand is going to exceed supply —so booking now is a must.

Biggest spectator events are the Macdonald Brier for the Canadian championship in Edmonton, Alberta, March 5-9; the Canadian Senior Championship at Sudbury, Ontario, Feb. 18-23, with the famous Seagram Stone as top trophy; the Canadian Mixed Curling Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, March 25-31; the Canadian Schoolboy Championships at Moncton, New Brunswick, March 12-16; and the Canadian Ladies' Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, from Feb. 26 to March 2, 1973.

The western province of Manitoba is the center of most of the action with 247 clubs going at it every winter. Ottawa is yet another hotbed of the sport. And the world's curling endurance record is held by Keith Sjaagesund and William Reid of Thompson, Manitoba, who skipped their rinks for 26 hours and 15 minutes.

Curling has even gone "mod" at the Highlander Club in Winnipeg with the addition of Go-Go girls.

And visitors from the States never fail to find the unfamiliar sport a fascinating spectacle.

IN CANADA, the curling rinks compete with bowling alleys and the ice skating ponds as a winter sports attraction. Here the scene is the capital, Ottawa, as curlers sweep furiously with their brooms to guide the stone's couse and to control its speed.

The Celebration In Old Quebec Is Family Affair

There is probably nothing in North America like a Christmas in French-speaking Quebec — especially if you participate in a family party in this part of Canada.

Preparations start weeks and, in some cases, months in advance, depending on the number of guests expected. Parties are family affairs. And scores of relatives and friends, and friends-of-friends, are invited.

After midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, the party begins around two or three in the morning with the traditional exchange of gifts and greetings. And it can last until dawn breaks over the snow-covered countryside. In fact, it generally does.

There is much singing, dancing, laughter, drinking, and a huge feast is served up.

A few of the favorite dishes are:

"Tourtieres," a meat pie of ground pork and beef

Golden roast turkey, or suckling pig, the latter stuffed with delicacies

"Cipaille," layers of veal, pork, and beef alternating with layers of crust

Hare stew, stuffed partridges roasted on cabbage leaves, fine cuts of deer meat.

Desserts include:

Pies made with apple, strawberry, raspberry, blueberry, gooseberry

The Quebec specialty, maple sugar pie, and

The traditional cake, rolled in the shape of a log and loaded with maple icing.

There's also tea, coffee, or a glass of home-made cherry wine.

And, of course, whenever French-speaking peoples get together for a special occasion, the champagne is likely to flow.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

All veterans and their families are eligible for two 1973 tours, a 21-day trek to the South Pacific in August and a 10-day visit to Mexico City and Acapulco in March, under the auspices of the Air Force Assn., Post Office Box 5534, Washington, D.C., 20016 . . . The "Meet the Irish" program initiated six years ago to enable Emerald Island visitors to meet Irish families of similar interests has been extended to offer the same opportunity to tour groups . . . Passengers on P & O's Oronsay, leaving San Francisco in March on a 59-day Cherry Blossom Circle Pacific cruise, will have Guam and Guadalcanal stops added to their itinerary.

American Express has published a new 64-page full-color brochure, available at all its travel centers, describing its ski vacation packages to 12 Alpine resorts in France, Switzerland and Austria, one to three weeks . . . World Airways and Greyhound Lines Inc. have reached an agreement by which Greyhound offices will act as sales representative for World air charter tours, and World facillties will serve in a similar capacity for Greyhound's bus charter and airport transfer services . . . Sugar Bowl, a mile from Donner Summit, is again offering half-price ($4) lift rates Monday through Friday during non-holiday periods to members of the Far West Ski Assn., students, servicemen and departments, "clergymen and Playboy Bunnies."

England's Inns Are A Joy For The Tourist

One of the joys of travel in England is the exploration of her innumerable small villages and rural inns.

Their considerable charm is quite real and uncontrived and they have history caught fast in their timber and stone.

Travel writer Garry Hogg has been captivated by his country's hamlets and hostelries and has selected 120 of his favorites for inclusion in a new book, "English Inns and Villages," published by Arco Co., 219 Park Ave. South, New York.

Happily tourists, British Inns are strung out along the roads and very accessible. Most offer meals — often very good ones indeed. Many also have overnight accommodations and, of course, all purvey liquid refreshment.

On The Stereo Scene

BY WILBUR LANDREY

The musically erotic massage parlor of all time was constructed by Richard Wagner when he wrote his opera "Tristan and Isolde."

Driven by the ideal of the unattainable Mathilde Wesendonk, one of the few women he couldn't get, Wagner poured forth a torrent of sensuality that overwhelms singers, orchestra and conductor in a music drama that can be described as subline. Its richness went to the limits of western chromatic harmonies. At the same time, it was the beginning of the atonality of the 20th Century.

Herbert von Karajan's production of Tristan on records with Helga Dernesch as Isolde and Jon Vickers as Tristan was something to anticipate, and it does not disappoint (Angel SEL-3777, five records).

Miss Dernesch's Isolde is a passionate, young Irish princess, Vickers is a powerful Tristan so caught between his feudal duty to King Mark and his inevitable love for Isolde that death was the only end.

Christa Ludwig as Isolde's nurse Bragane; Karl Ridderbusch as King Mark; Walter Berry as Tristan's retainer Kurwenal, and Bernd Weikl as Melot, the knight who betrayed the lovers, sing good supporting roles.

The conductor's problem is to control Wagner's flood of music. In this production with the Berlin Philharmonic and the Berlin German opera chorus, von Karajan does it and gives us a fine Tristan and Isolde.

HISTORICALLY THE most interesting of the opera albums so far this season is the first complete recording of Jean Philippe Rameau's "Castor et Pollux" (Das Alte Werke SAWT 9584-87-A).

Rameau, 1682-1764, stood at the end of the development of the French lyric tragedy in opera. In the time when Bach and Handel were writing their major works, Rameau was composing 36 ballets, ballet-operas and operas.

His sound anticipated that of Gluck by some 40 years. Only his ballet "Les Indes Galantes" holds its own at the Paris opera, perhaps because of its opulence, but in the past few years, there has been a growing renaissance of his works, of which the new recording is a part.

Nikolaus Harnoncourt is responsible for the revival, performed by his Concentus Musicus ensemble of Vienna and the Stockholm Chamber Choir under the direction of Eric Ericson.

The libretto is the Greek myth of Castor and Pollux, the brothers whose fidelity to each other elevated them to eternity as stars in the heavens.

The main roles are sung by Jeanette Scovotti, Norma Lerer, Zeger Vandersteene and Gerard Souzay.

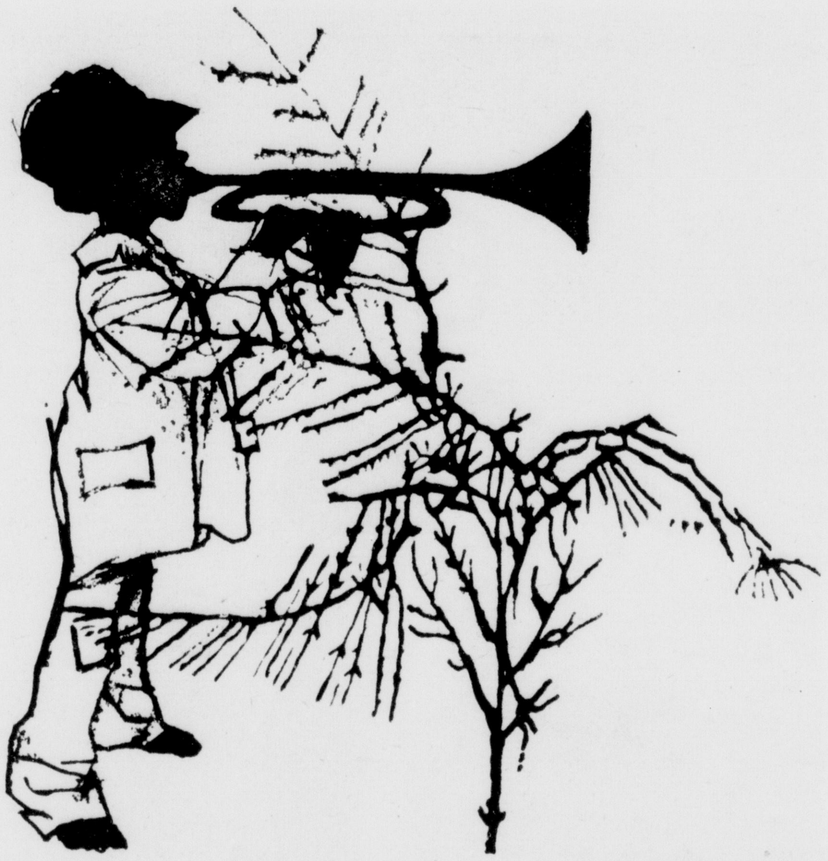
A CURIOSITY from the more recent past comes in a new recording of Giacomo Puccini's first two operas "Le Villi" of 1883 and "Edgar" of 1889 (RCA LSC-7096).

Puccini had to wait four years more after "Edgar" for his first large-scale success, "Manon Lescaut". After that, he was on his way with La Boeheme, Tosca, Madame Butterfly, La Fanciulla del West, Il Trittico and Turandot.

His first two operas served as the curtain raisers in which he learned his craft.

Le Villi, the story of the ghost maidens who dance to death the lovers that betrayed them, is given in its entirety in this two-record album, along with the second act of Edgar.

Barry Morell's vigorous tenor illuminates both, recorded by the Vienna Volksoper Orchestra under the direction of Anton Guadagno.



THIS EVALINE NESS illustration is from the cover of Lucille Clifton's "Everett Anderson's Christmas Coming," reprinted by Holt, Rinehart and Winston as a $1.25 paperback Owlet book and described by Horn Book as being "as moving as Tiny Tim's classic blessing in A Christmas Carol." One small lad explains what Christmas is really about.

NEW BOOKS FOR JUNIOR READERS

What a delight to find another of Raold Dahl's Charlie Bucket stories in a recent crop of books for junior readers.

Anyone of any age who enjoyed "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" will be happy to continue the adventures of Charlie, who has become the heir apparent to the fabulous chocolate factory of Mr. Willy Wonka.

"Charlie and the Great Glass Elevator," published by Alfred Knopf, $3.95, is a sure winner. Charlie, Grandpa Joe, Willy Wonka and all the old people become greatly elevated; as high as an American space hotel. They are pursued by the dreadful Knids, swallow some weird pills and encounter some unusual Gnoolies in Minusland.

It is an entertaining book that parents should read before they give it to the children, for they might not get another chance, and it would be fine Christmas gift for young readers.

ANOTHER series that has enchanted youngsters revolves around Gladys L. Adshead's delightful Brownies. The newest book detailing their adventures is "Smallest Brownie and the Flying Squirrel" (Walck, $4.50), with pictures by Richard Lebenson.

It deals with the Smallest Brownie's trip to visit Old Grandmother and Old Grandfather. Naturally the tiny one gets lost. But luckily, Flying Squirrel is on hand to effect the rescue.

It is a simple story preschoolers and kindergarteners will enjoy wholeheartedly. Lebenson's appealing pictures will add to the pleasure.

TAD BAUGH, language instructor at Redwood High School, did the translations for "Russian Folktales," published by Leswing Press of San Rafael. Robert A. and Marlene J. McCracken are the editors, as part of a series of "happiness is reading" books they are doing for young readers, and Brigitte Smith of San Francisco is the illustrator.

Baugh has translated six very old Russian stories that have stood the test of centuries. They are both familiar, in that they present characters and situations resembling favorite western folk and fairytales, and yet unfamiliar, in that they are distinctively Russian. You have the tsar instead of the king, the Frog Princess rather than a Frog Prince, a Gray Wolf, an Ash Boy and characters named Ivan and Elena instead of Jack and Goldilocks. The excellent book in a high quality softcover sells for a bargain $1.95, and will be available from Leswing, 750 Adrian Way, San Rafael, after Jan. 1.

Another country with a rich tradition of storytelling is Denmark, the land of Hans Christian Andersen. From there comes "Danish Fairy Tales," as collected by Svendt Grundtvig and first published in English in 1912. Now Dover has republished the book with new illustrations by Drew van Heusen, and another generation of children can be whisked into a world of Hans and Gretchen, of kings and queens, of magic and witchery. It is convincing proof that the Danish imagination has a special gift for enchanting small listeners and readers. And the price is $2.50 — small price, indeed, for transportation to a land where animals speak and good triumphs over evil.

Also from Dover: the charming Kate Greenaway's "Mother Goose Coloring Book" ($1.25) as rendered for coloring by Nancy Perkins. It's a Dover original with an irresistible opportunity to brighten the countenances, clothing and surroundings of Little Miss Muffet, Little Boy Blue and other childhood favorites. The verses are included.

HOLT, RINEHART and Winston continues its series of inexpensive paperback reprints for children under the Owlet label, with a new list that includes such proven favorites as "The Alphabeast Book" by Dorothy Schmiderer, "Everett Anderson's Christmas Coming" by Lucille Clifton, "All the Animals Were Angry" by William Wondriska, "The Scarecrow Clock" by George Mendoz and "Crabapple Night" by Jan Wahl. Prices run from 95 cents to $1.45. The latest selections are excellent, and the presentations lively with artwork.

The prairie dog is one of the cutest, most entertaining of all God's creatures. And fortunate is the boy, or girl, who has had the opportunity to observe the life of a prairie dog village. "Prairie Dog Summer" (Coward, McCann, $4.64) by Faith McNulty is about one lad, Joe, who gets that chance when his zoologist uncle invites him to accompany him for a field study. Joe develops a new understanding of and appreciation for prairie dogs — and for all wildlife. A meaningful, well-told story for youngsters about 9 and 10. Illustrations are by Bonnie Johnson.

"Datra the Muskrat" (Four Winds, $4.95) is a book for an older age group, done by Franklin Russell, the distinguished naturalist and writer. Volume 3 in an "At the Pond" trilogy, it covers a year in a muskrat's life realistically, treating nature honestly and the young readers with respect.

ONE OF the world's most unusual Christmas pageants is Jamaica's traditional "Pantomime," really an original musical comedy that is different each year. Here, leading the chorus, are popular island favorites Louis Bennett and Ranny Williams. The new Panto, which opens Dec. 26 and runs for three months in Kingston's Ward Theater, will star Williams as an off-beat, comic Christopher Columbus, discovering Jamaica.

Christmas In Jamaica — Tropical Style

As the curtain goes up at Kingston's Ward Theater on the Christmas Pantomime this year, a wiry little guy in sagging tights and an oversized helmet will "discover" Jamaica.

He is the island's favorite comedian and he is going to play the title role in an original show called "Hail Columbus."

Jamaicans call their Christmas musical comedy the Pantomime (or Panto) because it was modeled after Britain's famous holiday pageants of that name. But in the 31 years of productions in Jamaica, the Panto has become totally Jamaican — written, staged, danced and performed by the highly talented members of the theatrical community.

It's funny, topical, with bright music and brighter costumes and it's different every year.

MUCH OF the credit for the popularity of the unique holiday show (which runs from Dec. 26 through mid-March) is due to Jamaica's most beloved poet, singer, comedienne and actress, Louise Bennett. This quadruple-threat lady is a master of folk humor and proof of her effectiveness is the fact that she is known all over the country simply as "Miz Lou."

She has written many of the scripts for the Panto and almost always appears in it as co-star with Ranny Williams. Her impressively statuesque figure contrasts perfectly with Williams' frankly scrawny appearance.

It has not been announced as yet what role Miz Lou will play this winter, but if she is Queen Isabella to his Columbus, the producers' description of the Panto this year as "history that never was" should prove accurate.

THE PANTO, of course, is only one of the ways Jamaicans celebrate the Christmas season. The show is performed on the stage of the Ward Theater in Kingston, while shows of other kinds are going on all around the island The most familiar are the troupes of Jonkunnu dancers, who parade through the streets in elaborate masks to the music of fifes and drums. They are usually in groups of six to 10, led by traditional characters: The King, his Queen, the Bull and the Pitchy-Patch — or Ragman.

Jonkunnu — sometimes spelled John Canoe — is a legendary West Indian folk hero, probably from Africa, and the music is a combination of early Jamaican, European and African.

During the Christmas season, which in the West Indies is celebrated for the full Old English 12 days, there are street dances, fireworks, traditional "jump-ups" and the very contemporary reggae, an irresistible dance beat that is as attractive to visitors as to locals and not at all hard to learn.

VENDORS SELL paper hats and feefees (whistles), braebrees (wooden rattles), toys and traditional sweets. And there are carols sung everywhere, just as at home.

Christmas Day is a bit more sedate but on Boxing Day — another derivative from England — gifts are opened and the Panto raises the curtain on Miz Lou and Ranny for the new show.

And oddly enough, during this tropical-style Christmas, the whole island is aflame with scarlet poinsettia, growing wild at every turn of the road.

"I asked a friend who travels extensively up and down this vast land how the country has changed in the past year, and he replied simply, 'There's more hate.' There's also more unemployment, more pollution, more crime, more drug addiction, more pornography, more bankruptcies, more suicides, more breakdowns of public service, more fear and despair, more cynicism and more screams in the night. But this groping, blundering creature, Man, still summons up the spirit to celebrate the holidays in style."
Harriet Van Horne writing in 1970.

A Doll With Harpoon

By DON KEOWN

Not too many years back there was an almost total domination of the space allocated for columns in major newspapers by writers of a liberal persuasion.

While many argued that the arrangement was a fair one in that these columnists only helped to offset the prevailing conservative bias of the publishers, as reflected on their editorial pages, there was pressure to bring about a better balance of opinion among these commentators on the political, social and economic scenes.

William F. Buckley Jr. was joined by a host of like-minded writers in expounding the conservative philosophy and causes.

And gradually the pendulum has swung the other way, until, in many newspapers, the views of the columnists are generally to the right of even the editorials. Many spokesmen for the liberal perspective, including the dean of them all, Walter Lippman, have left the field. Others have altered their stance, sharply or slightly, to a more conservative posture.

Still, there remain a number of able columnists who reflect the liberal or progressive approach to our problems and our issues.

One such is Harriet Van Horne, window of the late David Lowe, a veteran of the New York Post as her home paper.

Physically slight, the attractive Miss Van Horne has been dubbed "the Dresden China doll with the harpoon."

Certainly the sharp-witted Miss Van Horne is capable of exchanging caustic barbs with the best of them — including the acidulous Mr. Buckley.

NEVER GO ANYWHERE WITHOUT A PENCIL by Harriet Van Horne; Putnam, 313 pages, $7.95.

"Never Go Anywhere Without a Pencil" is a newly-published collection of her work, 1968 into 1972, that demonstrates her biting wit to fine effect, and which will delight those thirsting for an unabashed defense of their basic inner humanitarian instincts. For, make no mistake about it, liberalism has fallen into disrepute in many quarters, and many of us now hide our idealism like another skeleton shoved into the closet.

Harriet Van Horne feels no such compulson to hide her feelings and opinions.

"Our tax laws," she writes typically, "are written to punish the poor and pardon the rich. All concessions, all loopholes, all rebates are reserved for them that has."

And: "The shabbiest enemies of freedom in this country have been the Yankee Doodle zealots, the witch-hunters, the deniers of civil liberties. There are no swords as bloody as the swords of holy wars. And no patriots as unworthy of our flag as the flag-draped superpatriots."

After the Kent State tragedy: "At the cost of a great many innocent lives, we are beginning to learn that the National Guard in time of riot and civil commotion is a national menace . . . In the name of public safety, the National Guard should be abolished."

"Maybe the wobble and list, the general tackiness of today's goods and chattels can be blamed on our loss of Yankee thrift," she theorizes. "Upward strivers all, we are seduced by a name on a label, dazzled by a commercial in living color. We buy on the run. And we're pushovers for salesmen with a sweet line of blarney."

"There is a burning edge of hostility in Billy Graham's Christinaity," she finds. "It isn't simply the Graham theology that repels — though it certainly repels me — it's his hellfire and damnation preaching and his acceptance of Satan as a 'personal devil' that belongs back in the Bible-thumping days when snake oil was sold along with the religious tracts. But the really distressing aspect is the way he mixes politics and social commentary with sin and salvation."

Miss Van Horne also takes well-aimed potshots at such diverse targets as our treatment of the aged, Women's Liberation (their tactics, not their goals), youthful hairstyles (or the lack, thereof), organic food, sitar music, Richard M. Nixon and Spiro Agnew, modern films, our prisons, male fashions.

Unlike some liberal columnists, she doesn't think it necessary to endorse blindly all aspects of youth or every minority stand. "Young men today are becoming too girlish, too foppish, too feminized for their good or the good of society," she asserts. And of Women's Lib: "Officially, the movement appears to believe that karate lessons and coarse manners will scare men into promising them anything. Fools! It's the cool, feminine women who win their battles with men."

She is saddened and angered by the deterioration of life in New York City, and not beguiled by John Lindsay's charisma.

"The liberal," writes Miss Van Horne, "looks at the world affirmatively, believing that man can be liberated and that governments can be humane. He is as opposed to repression of human souls as he is to suppression of news. He abhors hierarchies, harsh authority and the selective justice that punishes the poor and the black.

"To those of us holding such views, the life around us confirms our judgment that repression, race prejudice and carefully maintained economic disparities have only worsened the suffering built into our system."

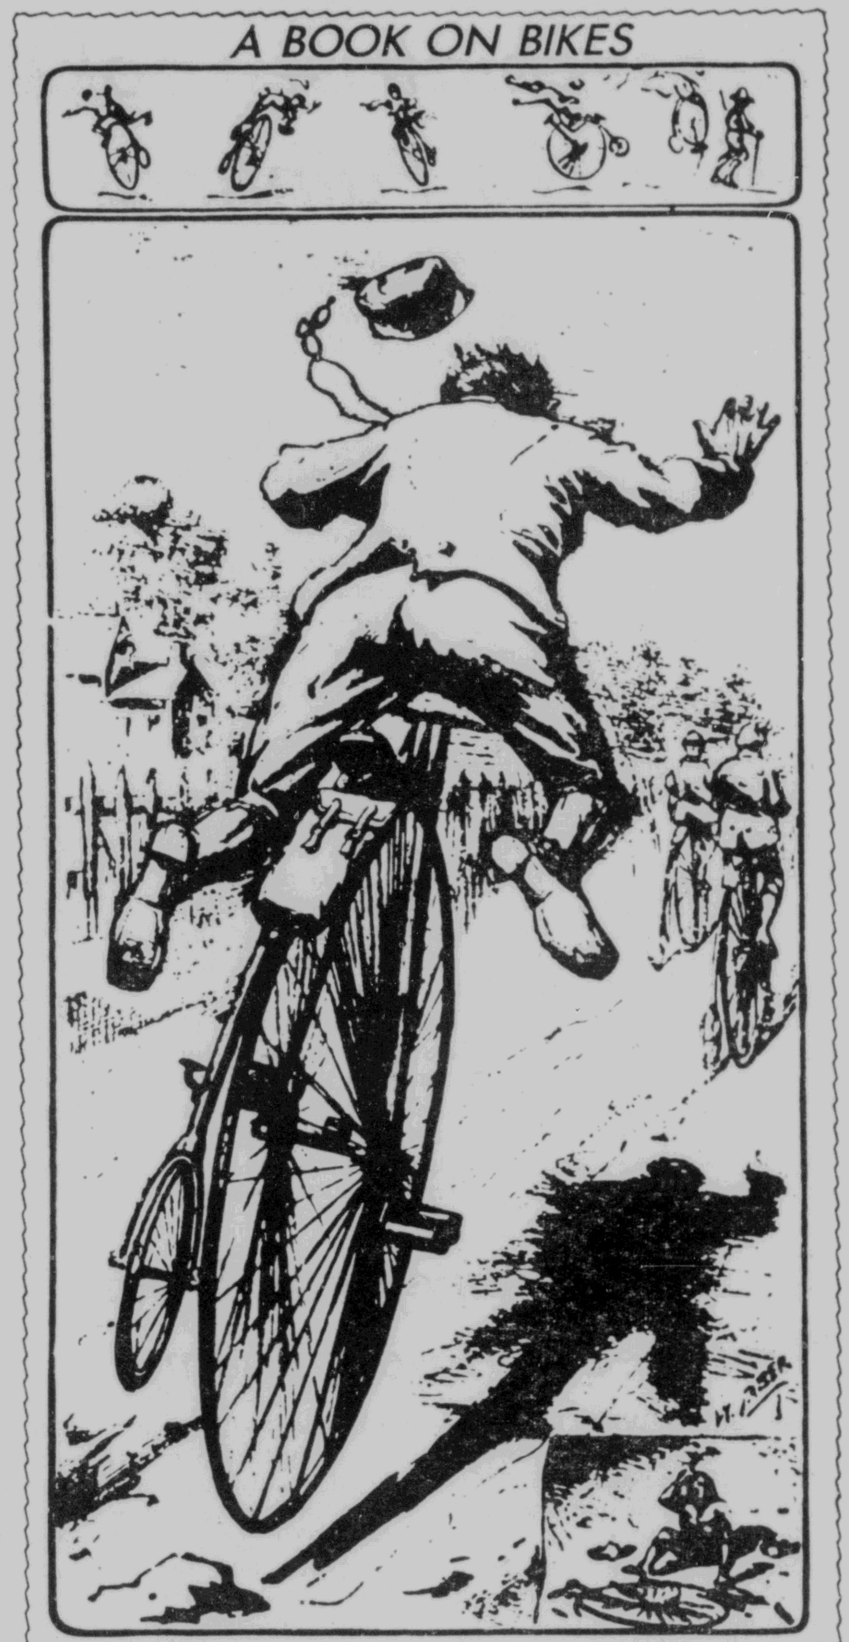
Against these inequities, "with the world growing dirtier, noisier, bloodier and meaner," she advises "it behooves us to become cleaner, quieter, kinder and more militant in our battle for a decent life. If ever our society needed activists, people who give a damn, it is now. The times demand an expression of outrage. Not muttered curses, not an occasional letter to the editor, but outrage, expressed in a socially constructive manner."

And, in the Van Horne columns at least, in a sprightly, witty manner as well.

Those newspapers that run Harriet Van Horne's column along with those of William Buckley, Joseph Alsop and Victor Lasky need not apologize for any imbalance. This charming and articulate lady can hold her own with any, all three, of those spokesmen for conservatism.

TRANSPLANTED New Englanders will find warmth and nostalgia in "Christmas In New England," a slim, well-illustrated picture album by photographer Taylor Lewis Jr. and writer Joanne Young. The snow-covered hills, the village church, the sleigh rides, the log fires and the people all bundled up are captured in color photos that carry the spirit of New England. Published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the attractive volume is priced at $5.95.

A BOOK ON BIKES



"RICHARD'S Bicycle Book" is the work of Richard Ballantine with illustrations by John Batchelor, and is offered as "a comprehensive guide that explains in detail and practical terms the exact functions of various parts of the bike" and "which enables the reader to evaluate and to repair bikes." Ballantine has published the book as an original paperback at $1.95, with today's ever increasing ranks of cycling enthusiasts in mind.

Sleuths & Suspense

SEANCE FOR TWO by Mark McShane; Doubleday, 177 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Pat Perry.

A shy bachelor who works as a librarian, William Wilson, has only one obsession - he loves murderesses. But always from afar, by reading reports of their trials and crimes. The vicarious thrill satisfies.

But one day he travels to the prison from which murderess Myra Savage is being released at the end of her sentence, and invites her to his home. Phlegmatically she accepts, and William basks in the pleasure.

Myra, in turn, has an obsession of her own - her psychic powers. It is an obsession that led to the murder for which she was convicted. And in a single-minded drive to justify her obsession, she shoves weak William into violent and uncharacteristic acts and proves her gifts of prediction.

This is one of those rare stories that maintains the sense of foreboding right through . . . you just know something awful is going to happen . . . and sure enough it does. Parapsychology nuts will appreciate the tale more than most.

CHRISTMAS PAST

Far away and long ago
A stocking by the fireplace.
Santa rode his sleigh —
I watched and listened
For sight of a reindeer
The sound of a hoof
And dreamed of bright colored candies,
Oranges, apples, and assorted nuts,
A new cap, a baseball mitt,
A trike or bike,
And an electric train!

ROSS SHIRLEY COCHELL

CHRISTMAS SCENE

I recall white Yuletides
Years ago in Eastern states,
Sleighs and ice skates.
Do I want to go
Where carols ring in the frosty night?

I remember mufflers, mittens, and overshoes,
A cold red nose and chilly toes —
"No snow for me,
Make my Christmas green!"

ROSS SHIRLEY COCHELL

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

The Christmas Spirit seems almost dead
crushed beneath the frenzied tread
of our compulsive buying drive
before the holidays arrive.

Through bright tinsel overhead
creeps an atmosphere of dread;
in a troubled world where hate is bred
how can we hope to keep alive
the Christmas Spirit?

But Christmas Eve when we have read
of the Christ Child's birth — when prayers are said
and carols sung, then we will strive with reborn faith and love to revive
and in our hearts once more embed
the Christmas Spirit.

A Psychiatrist Looks At An Artist With His Paintings As His Mirror

STRANGER ON THE EARTH: A Psychological Biography of Vincent Van Gogh, by Dr. Albert J. Lubin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 265 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

A biography of an artist should attempt, of course, to relate the life experiences to the development of the work; but perhaps the subject should remain something of an enigma - positively mysterious and unfathomable - to give his work that special dimension.

And should not Vincent Van Gogh remain just the eccentric genius, lonely, haunted and self-destructive, in order to make the viewing of his art such an emotional experience?

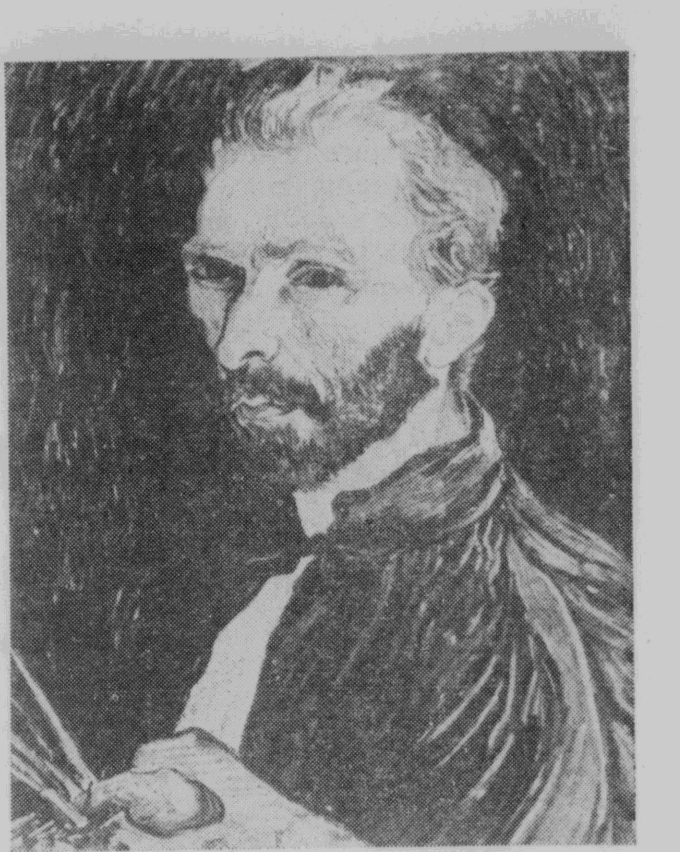
I must admit I approached Albert Lubin's psychological biography of Vincent Van Gogh with some apprehension; I did not believe I wanted Vincent clinically analyzed and psychologically dissected, and his art put into special compartments in relation to every emotional experience of his life. However, the special dimension I have looked for in art has been revealed by Albert Lubin's biography — the paintings of Van Gogh are in fact the mirrors of his experiences and his problems. The dark, earthy period with crude techniques, the light period with its yellow and blues, the themes and the relationships of his subjects inexorably reflect his loneliness, his depressions and his life.

Dr. Lubin is clinical professor of psychiatry at Stanford University and practices psychoanalysis. He has long studied the relationship between the lives and works of artists; in the case of Van Gogh (whom he calls Vincent because the artist never signed "Van Gogh" to any of his works) a vast amount of literature was available but no study of his psychological development had ever been attempted. Vincent's personal correspondence particularly his letters to his brother, Theo - is prolific, and from this Dr. Lubin has made his analysis. In one of the hundreds of expressive letters to Theo, Vincent says: " . . . telling you the thoughts that came into my mind without being afraid of letting myself go, without keeping back thoughts and censoring them . . ." That phrase reveals succinctly the potential value of such personal correspondence to the psychoanalyst.

Vincent Van Gogh was born, and died, on March 30, 1852. Exactly one year later, on March 30, 1853, another boy was born to the Van Goghs. He, too, was called Vincent (our Vincent), but, to his mother he could never replace her first born. Sharing the brother's name, he constantly reminded the mother of her loss; and as the first Vincent did not live long enough to be bad, the second Vincent would inevitably fail in comparison.

In this experience, further complicated by a strict religious upbringing (his father was a Dutch Reform minister), lay the roots of the psychological problems which tormented Vincent throughout his life, and contributed ultimately to his suicide in 1890. He passionately looked for close personal relationships (which he could never have effectively handled) but was always forced to accept a substitute for an intimate human bond; and all this precipitated a serious depression.

His first work as an art dealer, a thwarted love affair, his attempts to enter the formal ministry all ended in periods of long depressions. Finally, in 1879, after long months of inactivity, he turned to art, and turned much of the anger that he was unable to vent openly into the aggressive task of creating art. The many solitary figures in Vincent's work correspond to the lonely outcast - the stranger, the prisner and the vagabond - he saw himself to be.



VINCENT VAN GOGH
A self-portrait, painted in 1889

"The story of Vincent Van Gogh," Dr. Lubin writes, "is a never-ending struggle to control, modify, glorify, or deny a deep-rooted melancholy and loneliness . . ."

The study of how Vincent transformed these problems into incredible achievements is an outstanding addition to the literature on the life and art of Van Gogh; and the illustrations in the book of his work take on a new and revealing image.

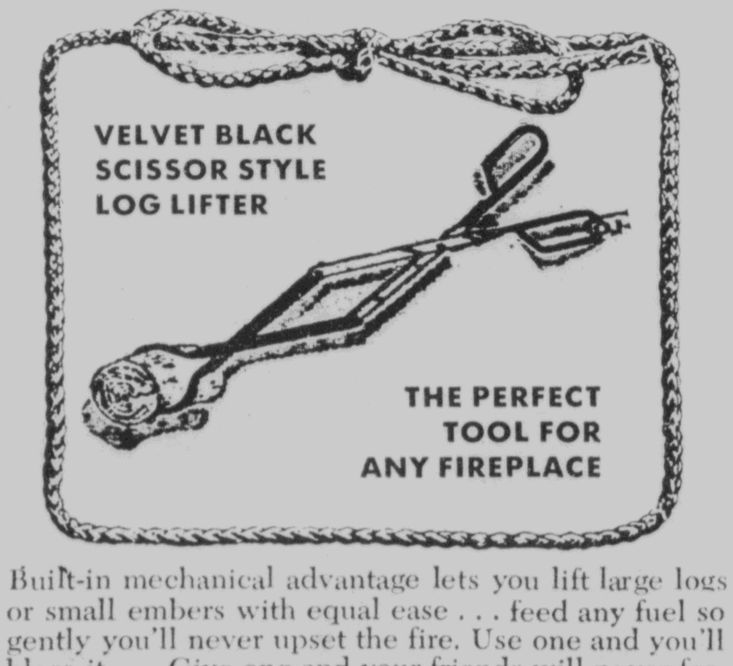
Saving The Vineyards From Their Deadly Insect Enemy

THE GREAT WINE BLIGHT by George Ordish; Scribners; 237 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Laura Potts.

This is a completely scholarly, fascinating book on the impact of a small insect attacking the European grape vineyards and causing all kinds of mischief before it was finally controlled. The added notes and tables make a story in themselves.

Biologists and their reputed cures and methods had gained little testing in the 1880s when the phylloxera became an insinuating problem affecting not only southern Europe, but Algeria, Greece, and other wine growing areas. America, which had taken so much culture from the Old World, finally came to the rescue with disease-resistant root-stock. The "good-wine European grape and the resistant American root-stock" soon became the common grafting throughout the old production areas.

With a measured but light touch, almost a "who-done-it" feel, George Ordish has written a fully documented story of a bewildered people whose whole life-style is threatened. Their sometimes foolish, sometimes noble thrusts persevere and finally put together a livable cure, saving the graces and pleasures of wines for all of us.



Built-in mechanical advantage lets you lift large logs or small embers with equal ease . . . feed any fuel so gently you'll never upset the fire. Use one and you'll bless it . . . Give one and your friends will never forget you. Special $2.95.

Galavanting Grandmas On The Go

TWICE OVER LIGHTLY by Helen Hayes and Antia Loos; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 343 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jorie Parr.

Two galavanting grandmas get off the phone and onto the streets of New York for a sedate romp through their chosen city. Having decided that New York is an okay place to live, and that it also would be stimulating to visit, this improbable combination of celebrated ladies takes off on a tour that hits the barber college and the Bronx, Staten Island, and the Stock Exchange.

"Twice Over Lightly" is fun when the principals recall incidents from the past, such as when Miss Hayes' late husband was asked on his "death bed" to name his religion, and he replied, "I am a phallic worshiper." It is also an inspiration to current over-65ers and others who haven't had a fling in their hometown in some time. A nice Christmas present for your mother.

Quakes, Past And Future, California And Elsewhere

WILL CALIFORNIA FALL INTO THE SEA? by Peter Briggs; David McKay Co., 243 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joan Erickson-Ingles.

After reading the list of books written by Peter Briggs the readers expectations of a great book is high. This book falls short.

From the title one would assume the subject be concerned with California earthquakes but Peter Briggs enlightens the reader to earthquakes worldwide. Probably the author found research for background material on California earthquakes limited, so that for filler he included famous earthquakes of Calcutta, India, Port Royal, Jamaica, and Tokyo, Japan.

In the last few chapters Peter Briggs does not answer his own question, "Will California Fall into the Sea?," but instead given the reader an imaginary account of what might happen in Los Angeles if an earthquake hits with the magnitude of 8.7 on the Richter scale. If you are easily alarmed, this is not for you.

This book reminds one of another published several years ago on the same subject, which became a best-seller. History probably will not be repeated.

A SLICE OF AMERICANA — THINGS BY COCA-COLA

THE ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO THE COLLECTIBLES OF COCA-COLA by Cecil Munsey; Hawthorn, 333 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

It seems that the ecology-minded aren't the only ones interested in picking up those Coca-Cola bottles and other memorabilia of America's soft drink thirst that sometimes litter our byways.

Collectors, too, have their eyes on the relics from the Coca-Cola Company's 86-year-history.

Most sought after are the Coke advertisements that began in the 1800s. Coveted, too, are the premiums and side products — jars, gum, glasses, razor blades, clocks, mirrors, etc. — that bore the Coca-Cola trademark. The bottles, too, have their seekers.

Cecil Munsey's "The Illustrated Guide to the Collectibles of Coca-Cola" reviews the history of the company and the drink, and then, with liberal illustrations, scans the "treasures" that history has dangled before collectors.

For collectors, of course, the book will be a must. But for other, it is an interesting excursion into nostalgia, for the Coke, for better or worse, cool refreshment or aching dental caries, has been as much a part of Americana as the apple pie. Those photos, alone, are worth a large slice of the price, but Munsey's entertaining text is not be be downgraded.

Picking Your Christmas Tree

By EARL ARONSON

A man who has been giving advice about Christmas trees for years will help select your three this year.

Alex Dickson of the New York State Cooperative Extension Service, Cornell University, is a specialist and he trimmed my literary tree. He reminds that tradition and folklore have glorified evergreen and coniferous trees and that the Christmas tree still has great religious significance although the origin of much of its symbolism has been obscured by time.

Hessian soldiers are credited with bringing the idea of the Christmas tree to this country at the time of the Revolutionary War. But growing them specifically for use at Christmas was not taken seriously until after World War II.

HERE ARE Dickson's thoughts on there trees:

1. All pines hold their needles well — even better than firs. Scotch pine, not Balsam fir, is the most popular Christmas tree in the United States. But different regions have their own favorites.

2. Buy a fresh tree, which will keep its needles longer. The drying of a tree is indicated by the dropping of green needles. Brown or yellow needles drop because of natural aging processes.

3. Two-thirds taper of a tree is generally accepted as a desirable shape. Actually, a 50 per cent taper would be very narrow.

4. There should be a "handle" several inches long to provide good anchorage and to soak up water. The stump is what is left in the ground.

Handle designates the basal part of the Christmas tree stem that fits into a stand.

5. Research has shown conclusively that sugar and aspirin, used in solution with water in which the tree is kept, do not benefit the tree in any way.

6. Finally, spruce and hemlock do not make very good greens for indoor use.

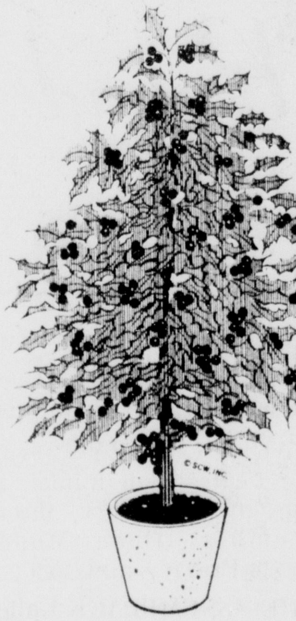
CHRISTMAS trees kept in a water reservoir not only will stay green and fresh longer but will thus have fire protection. Be sure there is ample water in the bucket.

Your own foundation planting of evergreens can help decorate your home. In this way you can also do some needed pruning that will enhance the beauty of your shrubs. Don't cut too much from any one branch. Cut sharply and cleanly on a slant.

Items that make good holiday greenery are holly, firethorn, pine, juniper, laurel, Rhododendron, azalea and bayberry. Keep them in water in a cool place until you are ready to use them.

ALEX DICKSON is co-author with Fred E. Winch Jr. of a booklet on Plantation Production of Christmas Trees in New York State. He estimates that almost 50 million Christmas trees are sold in this country each year, including about 30 varieties.

The ideal Christmas tree is one that is compact, has dense appearance: dark green or blue-green foliage; a symmetrical, pyramidal shape with the base no wider than 60 to 70 per cent of the height; retains needles and color indoors for at least two weeks; branches sturdy enough to hold ornaments, lights and small gifts; nonprickly foliage, and fragrant aroma. Now go out and get it.



THE HOLLY is one of those Christmas season traditionals that furnish not only around-the-calendar beauty out of doors, but decorative greenery for the indoors during the holiday period.

On The Stereo Scene

BY WILBUR LANDREY

The musically erotic massage parlor of all time was constructed by Richard Wagner when he wrote his opera "Tristan and Isolde."

Driven by the ideal of the unattainable Mathilde Wesendonk, one of the few women he couldn't get, Wagner poured forth a torrent of sensuality that overwhelms singers, orchestra and conductor in a music drama that can be described as subline. Its richness went to the limits of western chromatic harmonies. At the same time, it was the beginning of the atonality of the 20th Century.

Herbert von Karajan's production of Tristan on records with Helga Dernesch as Isolde and Jon Vickers as Tristan was something to anticipate, and it does not disappoint (Angel SEL-3777, five records).

Miss Dernesch's Isolde is a passionate, young Irish princess, Vickers is a powerful Tristan so caught between his feudal duty to King Mark and his inevitable love for Isolde that death was the only end.

Christa Ludwig as Isolde's nurse Bragane; Karl Ridderbusch as King Mark; Walter Berry as Tristan's retainer Kurwenal, and Bernd Weikl as Melot, the knight who betrayed the lovers, sing good supporting roles.

The conductor's problem is to control Wagner's flood of music. In this production with the Berlin Philharmonic and the Berlin German opera chorus, von Karajan does it and gives us a fine Tristan and Isolde.

HISTORICALLY THE most interesting of the opera albums so far this season is the first complete recording of Jean Philippe Rameau's "Castor et Pollux" (Das Alte Werke SAWT 9584-87-A).

Rameau, 1682-1764, stood at the end of the development of the French lyric tragedy in opera. In the time when Bach and Handel were writing their major works, Rameau was composing 36 ballets, ballet-operas and operas.

His sound anticipated that of Gluck by some 40 years. Only his ballet "Les Indes Galantes" holds its own at the Paris opera, perhaps because of its opulence, but in the past few years, there has been a growing renaissance of his works, of which the new recording is a part.

Nikolaus Harnoncourt is responsible for the revival, performed by his Concentus Musicus ensemble of Vienna and the Stockholm Chamber Choir under the direction of Eric Ericson.

The libretto is the Greek myth of Castor and Pollux, the brothers whose fidelity to each other elevated them to eternity as stars in the heavens.

The main roles are sung by Jeanette Scovotti, Norma Lerer, Zeger Vandersteene and Gerard Souzay.

A CURIOSITY from the more recent past comes in a new recording of Giacomo Puccini's first two operas "Le Villi" of 1883 and "Edgar" of 1889 (RCA LSC-7096).

Puccini had to wait four years more after "Edgar" for his first large-scale success, "Manon Lescaut". After that, he was on his way with La Boeheme, Tosca, Madame Butterfly, La Fanciulla del West, Il Trittico and Turandot.

His first two operas served as the curtain raisers in which he learned his craft.

Le Villi, the story of the ghost maidens who dance to death the lovers that betrayed them, is given in its entirety in this two-record album, along with the second act of Edgar.

Barry Morell's vigorous tenor illuminates both, recorded by the Vienna Volksoper Orchestra under the direction of Anton Guadagno.

NEW BOOKS FOR JUNIOR READERS

What a delight to find another of Raold Dahl's Charlie Bucket stories in a recent crop of books for junior readers.

Anyone of any age who enjoyed "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" will be happy to continue the adventures of Charlie, who has become the heir apparent to the fabulous chocolate factory of Mr. Willy Wonka.

"Charlie and the Great Glass Elevator," published by Alfred Knopf, $3.95, is a sure winner. Charlie, Grandpa Joe, Willy Wonka and all the old people become greatly elevated; as high as an American space hotel. They are pursued by the dreadful Knids, swallow some weird pills and encounter some unusual Gnoolies in Minusland.

It is an entertaining book that parents should read before they give it to the children, for they might not get another chance, and it would be fine Christmas gift for young readers.

ANOTHER series that has enchanted youngsters revolves around Gladys L. Adshead's delightful Brownies. The newest book detailing their adventures is "Smallest Brownie and the Flying Squirrel" (Walck, $4.50), with pictures by Richard Lebenson.

It deals with the Smallest Brownie's trip to visit Old Grandmother and Old Grandfather. Naturally the tiny one gets lost. But luckily, Flying Squirrel is on hand to effect the rescue.

It is a simple story preschoolers and kindergarteners will enjoy wholeheartedly. Lebenson's appealing pictures will add to the pleasure.

TAD BAUGH, language instructor at Redwood High School, did the translations for "Russian Folktales," published by Leswing Press of San Rafael. Robert A. and Marlene J. McCracken are the editors, as part of a series of "happiness is reading" books they are doing for young readers, and Brigitte Smith of San Francisco is the illustrator.

Baugh has translated six very old Russian stories that have stood the test of centuries. They are both familiar, in that they present characters and situations resembling favorite western folk and fairytales, and yet unfamiliar, in that they are distinctively Russian. You have the tsar instead of the king, the Frog Princess rather than a Frog Prince, a Gray Wolf, an Ash Boy and characters named Ivan and Elena instead of Jack and Goldilocks. The excellent book in a high quality softcover sells for a bargain $1.95, and will be available from Leswing, 750 Adrian Way, San Rafael, after Jan. 1.

Another country with a rich tradition of storytelling is Denmark, the land of Hans Christian Andersen. From there comes "Danish Fairy Tales," as collected by Svendt Grundtvig and first published in English in 1912. Now Dover has republished the book with new illustrations by Drew van Heusen, and another generation of children can be whisked into a world of Hans and Gretchen, of kings and queens, of magic and witchery. It is convincing proof that the Danish imagination has a special gift for enchanting small listeners and readers. And the price is $2.50 — small price, indeed, for transportation to a land where animals speak and good triumphs over evil.

Also from Dover: the charming Kate Greenaway's "Mother Goose Coloring Book" ($1.25) as rendered for coloring by Nancy Perkins. It's a Dover original with an irresistible opportunity to brighten the countenances, clothing and surroundings of Little Miss Muffet, Little Boy Blue and other childhood favorites. The verses are included.

HOLT, RINEHART and Winston continues its series of inexpensive paperback reprints for children under the Owlet label, with a new list that includes such proven favorites as "The Alphabeast Book" by Dorothy Schmiderer, "Everett Anderson's Christmas Coming" by Lucille Clifton, "All the Animals Were Angry" by William Wondriska, "The Scarecrow Clock" by George Mendoz and "Crabapple Night" by Jan Wahl. Prices run from 95 cents to $1.45. The latest selections are excellent, and the presentations lively with artwork.

The prairie dog is one of the cutest, most entertaining of all God's creatures. And fortunate is the boy, or girl, who has had the opportunity to observe the life of a prairie dog village. "Prairie Dog Summer" (Coward, McCann, $4.64) by Faith McNulty is about one lad, Joe, who gets that chance when his zoologist uncle invites him to accompany him for a field study. Joe develops a new understanding of and appreciation for prairie dogs — and for all wildlife. A meaningful, well-told story for youngsters about 9 and 10. Illustrations are by Bonnie Johnson.

"Datra the Muskrat" (Four Winds, $4.95) is a book for an older age group, done by Franklin Russell, the distinguished naturalist and writer. Volume 3 in an "At the Pond" trilogy, it covers a year in a muskrat's life realistically, treating nature honestly and the young readers with respect.

Let Nature Do Your Holiday Decorating

Garden Pages

A white Christmas is something only a relatively few Californians can hope for.

But most Californians, including Marin County residents, can expect and arrange a holiday season made bright by the reds and greens of berries and foliage in their gardens.

ONE OF THE most delightful examples of nature decorating for the holidays is the Strawberry Tree. This variety of the native Madrone bears edible fruit, strawberry-like in appearance, which color up to bright red just in time for Christmas. Grown naturally, it can provide a tall screen, with dark green, oblong leaves and red-brown trunk and branches, which become picturesquely twisted in age.

The Strawberry Tree — Arbutus unedo — may also be pruned into a patio-size tree.

Pyracanthas, Hollies, Cotoneasters and Toyon also exhibit natural intelligence of the color needs of the season, contributing their bright red berries for traditional decorating. Each is valued as an evergreen landscape shrub.

AN OUTSTANDING Christmas-colored tree is Chinese Pistache. The multi-paired leaflets of this large, dense tree start turning color with the first cool nights of fall. Color has intensified to a bright red by Christmas.

Leaves generally hang on through the holidays, and drop in January.

Heavenly Bamboo and Oregon Grape are medium-size landscape shrubs prized for their evergreen, cool weather color. From bright yellow and bronze-green to hints of pink and bright red, their mature brilliant foliage retains its color from early winter into spring.

New growth of Photinia, a large shrub or small tree, covers mature, deep-green foliage with a blanket of coppery-red, which holds through fall and winter.

OLD-FASHIONED Persimmon decorates itself for the holidays in modish color — bright orange fruit clinging to its deciduous, skeletal frame. Australian Fuchsia — Correa pulchella — adds its off-beat, winter color with its long, narrow pink flowers from November to April.

Color contributors from the conifer clan include Andorra Juniper, with its rosy plum cool weather foliage and Bar Harbor Juniper's silvery plum winter hues.

THIS CLOSE-UP VIEW of the Strawberry Tree shows the ornate fruits that give it its name, and make it such a winter-time delight in California gardens. Urn-shaped flowers are yet another of its eye-pleasing attractions.

Christmas Gift Suggestions For The Green Thumber

Giving a plant for Christmas is giving a gift that grows bigger and better as the years go by.

With each crop of flowers, seasonal display of berries or foliage, recipients are reminded of the good taste and thoughtfulness of the donor.

GARDENERS themselves enjoy giving plants to their friends and loved ones — and they also enjoy receiving them. There isn't a garden too small to handle something new, especially if its a gift from a good friend. Too, there are many garden devices that would be received enthusiastically on Christmas morning.

Gifts for gardeners are practical and some even could be considered "ego builders," as well. What green thumber wouldn't puff up with pride over owning his own spreader for feeding the lawn — or a second (or better) pair of pruning clippers? Gardening books, too, make excellent gifts.

How about a distinctive tree form Azalea or Camellia? These blooming aristocrats will be the envy of the neighborhood — in bloom or out. As landscape accents they excel.

A Kentia Palm will grace anyone's indoor decor.

THE ART OF bonsai is very popular and hobbyists and fledglings alike would be thrilled to receive a Bonsai plant in its handsome container. Besides being conversation pieces, the plants are decorative and beautiful.

The months of December and January signal the start of the bareroot planting season, and this offers many opportunities: Past and present All-American Roses, and other new introductions for 1973 — plus dwarf fruit trees. The latter fit into small garden spaces and also are appealing in containers for use on patio or entryway.

Seasonal favorites — blooming Azaleas, Cameallias, Rhododendrons, Bird of Paradise — make prized gifts which can be set-out in the shade garden after the holidays. For extra-special people these can be presented planted in redwood containers or attractive ceramin pots.

LITTLE GIFTS with big appeal include Cyclamen and African Violets. Nurserymen and florists have blooming specimens of these flowering gems. The color selection is outstanding.

Perhaps the most obvious gift item offered by nurseries is the gift certificate. This enables a person to choose for himself the plants he most desires. This is a thoughtful gift for the new home owner, especially, who is involved in landscaping his property.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Shop nurseries for your Christmas gifts. Blooming Poinsettias, Chrysanthemums, Azaleas, Camellias and Christmas Cactus are but a few living gift plants that will forever remind the recipient of your thoughtfulness.

✓If you are enjoying a living Christmas tree this year, remember to keep it well watered indoors and away from heat vents.

✓Bulbs that may be planted now include the breath-taking hybrid Amaryllis, Ranunculas, Anemones, Gladiolus and Calla Lilies.

✓Chrysanthemums should be cut back to the ground if you haven't done so already. Wait until February, or later, to prune Fuchsias and Hydrangeas.

✓Check with your nurseryman on applying pre-emergence crabgrass control on your lawn this month.

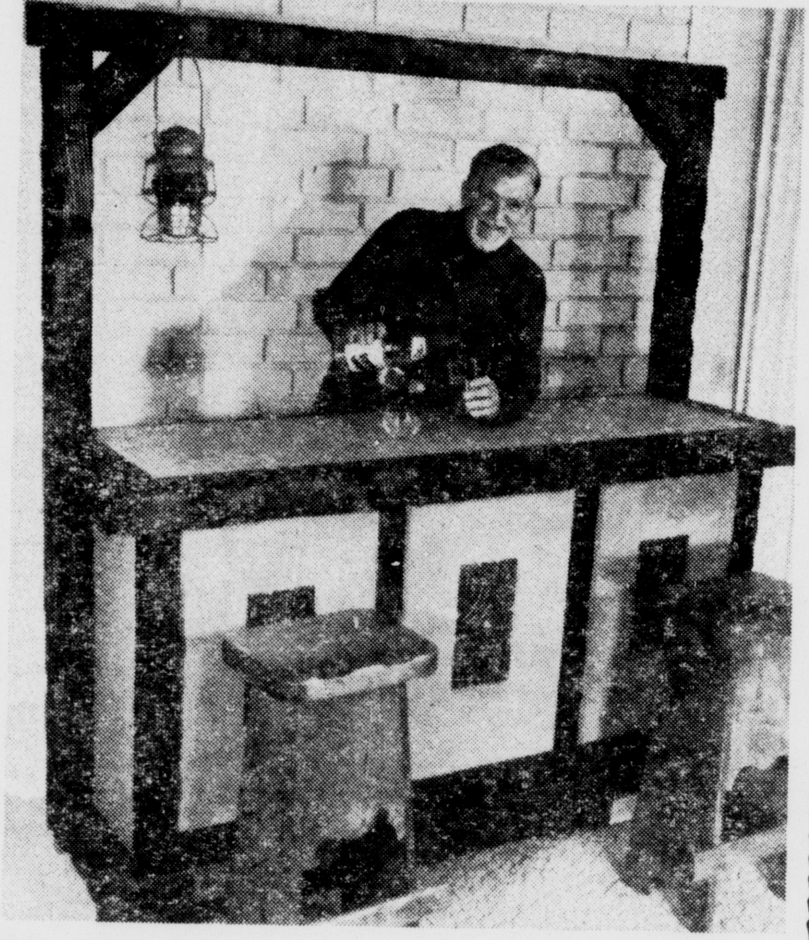
FOR ELBOW-BENDING



THIS RUSTIC BAR was built from a Steve Ellingson pattern by a home handyman. And actor John Warburton finds it just right — elbow high. There's a rustic overhang that measures almost seven feet. And if western isn't your thing, you can modify the accents a bit and come up with a piece of Mediterranean style furniture. The kerosene lamp, for instance, can become a wrought iron Spanish-style lamp. Send $2 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. Ask for Rustic Bar Pattern 519. For Bar Stool Pattern 284, send another 50 cents. There are casters for easy mobility of the bar. Instructions and illustrations are sufficiently detailed to guide any amateur handyman through the project.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

If You Haven't A Fireplace, Create Another Focal Point

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Somehow all the glorious, blockbusting photographs in the shelter magazines seem to feature living rooms with fireplaces. Yet only about one out of a dozen of my friends (and that includes me) actually has a fireplace he can call his own.

My friends say: "Why don't you break a hole in the wall and attach the chimney to the exterior of the house, or get one of those free-standing units and tuck it into the corner?"

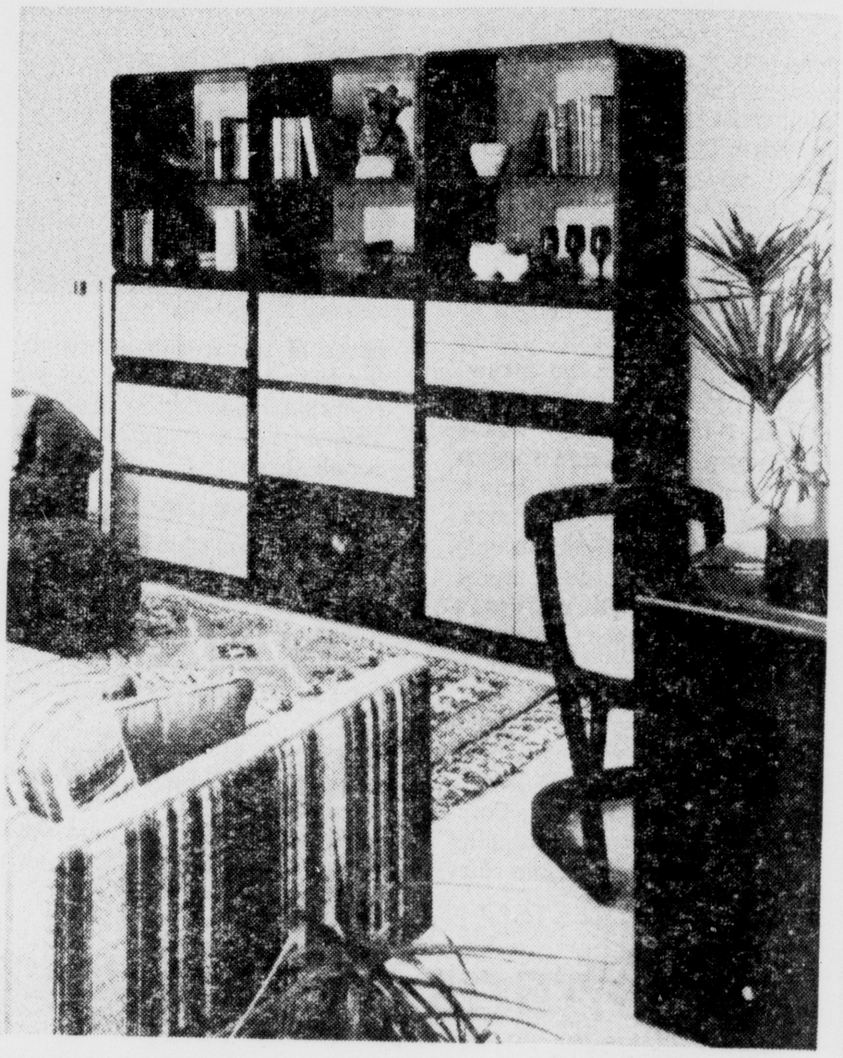
"What corner?" I say. "And whose money?"

INSTEAD OF succumbing to this "you've got to have a fireplace or it isn't home" philosophy, I've decided to go my own way and create some other center of interest in the living room.

I like looking at my stereo components. They light up nicely. And my receiver flashes a little green legend "stereo" when my FM is tuned in properly.

The television set is handsome when not in operation. It has a nice clean-looking black face and a stainless-steel indoor antenna that adds a bit of punctuation.

ACTUALLY THERE are lots of ways to create an important wall in a room. The illustration used today is just one. Composed of a series of nine new components being made by Directional Industries, it features the soft edge, rounded corners reminiscent of the 1930s modern.



INSTEAD OF a fireplace, which you would use only part of the time, you have here a group of components designed to hold two closets-full of possessions, while at the same time holding its own visually as the living room focal point. The storage space is invaluable to the occupants of the apartment or small home. And, unlike so much storage, it adds to, rather than detracts from, the appearance of the room.

But unlike other wall storage units, this one is designed to hold things you ordinarily store in closets. In fact the total amount of storage space is equivalent to two extra closets. And that's good news to anyone in a tiny house or confined apartment interior.

Most wall systems are based on open shelf space. So you usually wind up buying new accessories and plants to fill the gaps between books and record albums.

THIS SYSTEM allows you to go heavy on hidden storage units. And one component has a drop-down tray that allows it to become a desk-writing surface or temporary bar for refreshments.

The group has midnight brown-colored casing natural oak fronts, and there are companion pieces, such as the desk and chair, which encourage you to expand the new brown coloring into other areas of the room.

CHRISTMAS PAST

Far away and long ago
A stocking by the fireplace.
Santa rode his sleigh —
I watched and listened
For sight of a reindeer
The sound of a hoof
And dreamed of bright colored candies,
Oranges, apples, and assorted nuts,
A new cap, a baseball mitt,
A trike or bike,
And an electric train!

ROSS SHIRLEY COCHELL

CHRISTMAS SCENE

I recall white Yuletides
Years ago in Eastern states,
Sleighs and ice skates.
Do I want to go
Where carols ring in the frosty night?

I remember mufflers, mittens, and overshoes,
A cold red nose and chilly toes —
"No snow for me,
Make my Christmas green!"

ROSS SHIRLEY COCHELL

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

The Christmas Spirit seems almost dead
crushed beneath the frenzied tread
of our compulsive buying drive
before the holidays arrive.

Through bright tinsel overhead
creeps an atmosphere of dread;
in a troubled world where hate is bred
how can we hope to keep alive
the Christmas Spirit?

But Christmas Eve when we have read
of the Christ Child's birth — when prayers are said
and carols sung, then we will strive
with reborn faith and love to revive
and in our hearts once more embed
the Christmas Spirit.

Some Facts About Aluminum And How To Use It

Handyman's Pages

By ANDY LANG

What you probably never knew about aluminum and never bothered to ask:

Bare aluminum will turn gray over a period of time outdoors, but the change of color can be prevented by coating it with lacquer or wax that doesn't contain an abrasive or cleaning agent.

WHEN ALUMINUM is said to be anodized, it means that it has been treated by an electrolytic action to give it a protective or decorative coat. Anodized aluminum changes color, too, but much more slowly.

Painted or porcelainized aluminum will not change color. When cleaning painted aluminum, water should be used first, then a mild soap. Porcelainized aluminum is so hard that it can be cleaned with any type of powder and soap.

When cleaning painted aluminum house siding, the long, hollow-handlebrush sold for car washing may be used. Wash from the bottom up and keep all the washer area wet until that side of the house is finished. This will prevent streaking.

IF YOU INTEND to paint new aluminum, the oil or grease applied at the factory to protect it during shipment must be washed off with a phosphoric acid available at most paint and hardware stores. When the aluminum has dried thoroughly, it should be primed with an exterior metal primer, preferably zinc chromate where corrosive conditions exist.

Mirror-bright aluminum cooking pots can be washed only with soaps and detergents. Polishes and nylon pads usually will dull their finish through abrasion. If the inside of an aluminum pot becomes blackish after cooking eggs or similar food in it, the coloring will neither harm the food nor the pot.

However, if the color is disturbing, it can be removed by boiling in it water to which cream of tartar has been added — two tablespoons to each quart of water. Boil about seven or eight minutes.

AN ALUMINUM boat will resist corrosion without cleaning, polishing or painting it. If you decide to paint it for appearance's sake, use a paint especially designed for aluminum, not a mercury, arsenic or copper-base anti-fouling paint.

While aluminum is exceptionally resistant to corrosive attack, galvanic corrosion may occur under certain conditions if any dissimilar metal is fastened to it. If aluminum fasteners are not used, a bituminous paint coating or insulating tape is recommended.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Alex Dickson of the New York State Cooperative Extension Service, Cornell University, is a specialist and he trimmed my literary tree. He reminds that tradition and folklore have glorified evergreen and coniferous trees and that the Christmas tree still has great religious significance although the origin of much of its symbolism has been obscured by time.

Hessian soldiers are credited with bringing the idea of the Christmas tree to this country at the time of the Revolutionary War. But growing them specifically for use at Christmas was not taken seriously until after World War II.

HERE ARE Dickson's thoughts on there trees:

1. All pines hold their needles well — even better than firs. Scotch pine, not Balsam fir, is the most popular Christmas tree in the United States. But different regions have their own favorites.

2. Buy a fresh tree, which will keep its needles longer. The drying of a tree is indicated by the dropping of green needles. Brown or yellow needles drop because of natural aging processes.

3. Two-thirds taper of a tree is generally accepted as a desirable shape. Actually, a 50 per cent taper would be very narrow.

4. There should be a "handle" several inches long to provide good anchorage and to soak up water. The stump is what is left in the ground.

Handle designates the basal part of the Christmas tree stem that fits into a stand.

5. Research has shown conclusively that sugar and aspirin, used in solution with water in which the tree is kept, do not benefit the tree in any way.

6. Finally, spruce and hemlock do not make very good greens for indoor use.

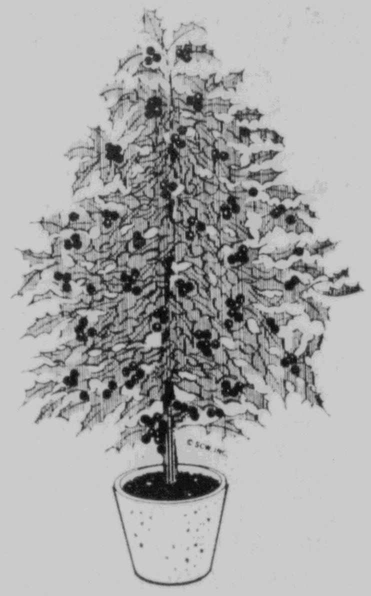
CHRISTMAS trees kept in a water reservoir not only will stay green and fresh longer but will thus have fire protection. Be sure there is ample water in the bucket.

Your own foundation planting of evergreens can help decorate your home. In this way you can also do some needed pruning that will enhance the beauty of your shrubs. Don't cut too much from any one branch. Cut sharply and cleanly on a slant.

Items that make good holiday greenery are holly, firethorn, pine, juniper, laurel, Rhododendron, azalea and bayberry. Keep them in water in a cool place until you are ready to use them.

ALEX DICKSON is co-author with Fred E. Winch Jr. of a booklet on Plantation Production of Christmas Trees in New York State. He estimates that almost 50 million Christmas trees are sold in this country each year, including about 30 varieties.

The ideal Christmas tree is one that is compact, has dense appearance: dark green or blue-green foliage; a symmetrical, pyramidal shape with the base no wider than 60 to 70 per cent of the height; retains needles and color indoors for at least two weeks; branches sturdy enough to hold ornaments, lights and small gifts; non-prickly foliage, and fragrant aroma. Now go out and get it.



THE HOLLY is one of those Christmas season traditionals that furnish not only around-the-calendar beauty out of doors, but decorative greenery for the indoors during the holiday period.

Let Nature Do Your Holiday Decorating

Garden Pages

A white Christmas is something only a relatively few Californians can hope for.

But most Californians, including Marin County residents, can expect and arrange a holiday season made bright by the reds and greens of berries and foliage in their gardens.

ONE OF THE most delightful examples of nature decorating for the holidays is the Strawberry Tree. This variety of the native Madrone bears edible fruit, strawberry-like in appearance, which color up to bright red just in time for Christmas. Grown naturally, it can provide a tall screen, with dark green, oblong leaves and red-brown trunk and branches, which become picturesquely twisted in age.

The Strawberry Tree — Arbutus unedo — may also be pruned into a patio-size tree.

Pyracanthas, Hollies, Cotoneasters and Toyon also exhibit natural intelligence of the color needs of the season, contributing their bright red berries for traditional decorating. Each is valued as an evergreen landscape shrub.

AN OUTSTANDING Christmas-colored tree is Chinese Pistache. The multi-paired leaflets of this large, dense tree start turning color with the first cool nights of fall. Color has intensified to a bright red by Christmas.

Leaves generally hang on through the holidays, and drop in January.

Heavenly Bamboo and Oregon Grape are medium-size landscape shrubs prized for their evergreen, cool weather color. From bright yellow and bronze-green to hints of pink and bright red, their mature brilliant foliage retains its color from early winter into spring.

New growth of Photinia, a large shrub or small tree, covers mature, deep-green foliage with a blanket of coppery-red, which holds through fall and winter.

OLD-FASHIONED Persimmon decorates itself for the holidays in modish color — bright orange fruit clinging to its deciduous, skeletal frame. Australian Fuchsia — Correa pulchella — adds its off-beat, winter color with its long, narrow pink flowers from November to April.

Color contributors from the conifer clan include Andorra Juniper, with its rosy plum cool weather foliage and Bar Harbor Juniper's silvery plum winter hues.

THIS CLOSE-UP VIEW of the Strawberry Tree shows the ornate fruits that give it its name, and make it such a winter-time delight in California gardens. Urn-shaped flowers are yet another of its eye-pleasing attractions.

Christmas Gift Suggestions For The Green Thumber

Giving a plant for Christmas is giving a gift that grows bigger and better as the years go by.

With each crop of flowers, seasonal display of berries or foliage, recipients are reminded of the good taste and thoughtfulness of the donor.

GARDENERS themselves enjoy giving plants to their friends and loved ones — and they also enjoy receiving them. There isn't a garden too small to handle something new, especially if its a gift from a good friend. Too, there are many garden devices that would be received enthusiastically on Christmas morning.

Gifts for gardeners are practical and some even could be considered "ego builders," as well. What green thumber wouldn't puff up with pride over owning his own spreader for feeding the lawn — or a second (or better) pair of pruning clippers? Gardening books, too, make excellent gifts.

How about a distinctive tree form Azalea or Camellia? These blooming aristocrats will be the envy of the neighborhood — in bloom or out. As landscape accents they excel.

A Kentia Palm will grace anyone's indoor decor.

THE ART OF bonsai is very popular and hobbyists and fledglings alike would be thrilled to receive a Bonsai plant in its handsome container. Besides being conversation pieces, the plants are decorative and beautiful.

The months of December and January signal the start of the bareroot planting season, and this offers many opportunities: Past and present All-American Roses, and other new introductions for 1973 — plus dwarf fruit trees. The latter fit into small garden spaces and also are appealing in containers for use on patio or entryway.

Seasonal favorites — blooming Azaleas, Cameallias, Rhododendrons, Bird of Paradise — make prized gifts which can be set-out in the shade garden after the holidays. For extra-special people these can be presented planted in redwood containers or attractive ceramin pots.

LITTLE GIFTS with big appeal include Cyclamen and African Violets. Nurserymen and florists have blooming specimens of these flowering gems. The color selection is outstanding.

Perhaps the most obvious gift item offered by nurseries is the gift certificate. This enables a person to choose for himself the plants he most desires. This is a thoughtful gift for the new home owner, especially, who is involved in landscaping his property.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Shop nurseries for your Christmas gifts. Blooming Poinsettias, Chrysanthemums, Azaleas, Camellias and Christmas Cactus are but a few living gift plants that will forever remind the recipient of your thoughtfulness.

✓If you are enjoying a living Christmas tree this year, remember to keep it well watered indoors and away from heat vents.

✓Bulbs that may be planted now include the breath-taking hybrid Amaryllis, Ranunculas, Anemones, Gladiolus and Calla Lilies.

✓Chrysanthemums should be cut back to the ground if you haven't done so already. Wait until February, or later, to prune Fuchsias and Hydrangeas.

✓Check with your nurseryman on applying pre-emergence crabgrass control on your lawn this month.

MY BROTHER'S KEEPER — They call me "Special" and that's my canine brother, "Delivery," being fed by a night supervisor at the Sausalito Post Office, John McDeill. We lived at the post office for three weeks but now we're looking for a permanent home.

Dogs' Days Are Numbered At Sausalito Post Office

By JAY GOODWIN

They call me "Special."

And my brother — another pooch who looks more like his dachshund mother than his terrier father — they call "Delivery."

I'm not sure why they named us that, but perhaps it's because we made our home at the Sausalito Post Office for three weeks.

I shudder every time I think of the whole experience, but maybe if I retell my tale, it'll help other dogs like me and "Delivery."

Just before Thanksgiving, my brother and I were riding in a car with our family. Family, hah! We hadn't been fed lately and were treated miserably.

Well, all of a sudden, as we're heading down Bridgeway, the car screeches to a sudden stop and me and "Delivery" are thrown out of the car.

As the dust settled and we pulled ourselves together, I soon realized we were in for quite an ordeal.

There we were, in the middle of Sausalito, two 5-year-old dogs, tired, sick and starving. Our ribs were even showing because we hadn't had a decent meal in weeks.

So I said to my brother, "Well, Big D, we're in quite a fix. Where are we gonna spend the night or get something to eat — "I'm freezing."

He suggested an all-night diner, but I quickly reminded him we were abandoned in Sausalito, not San Mateo, and that an all night diner was out of the question.

All of a sudden, a brainstorm hits me. Why not head for the post office. That place is bound to be open with all those workers sorting Christmas mail.

So "Delivery" and I drag ourselves over to the loading dock behind the post office building and huddle together near the mail carts. Sure enough, at 3 a.m. the night crew checks in and we were immediately treated like royalty.

The night superintendent kept bringing us food — including turkey the day after Thanksgiving — and the clerks built us a makeshift home out of an overturned mail cart.

Things were definitely improving. We were eating better and finally putting some meat back on our ribs.

At first, neither of us was prepared to make friends with the postal workers. In fact, after getting thrown out of that car on Bridgeway, both of us were downright scared of anyone we didn't know.

But, eventually, we recalled our father's wise advice — "Don't bite the hand that feeds you" — and started to accept the post office's hospitality.

As I said, things were getting better, but something was definitely missing. We still yearned for a permanent home. You know, a place to settle down in. With some kids and, perhaps, a newspaper or a pair of slippers to fetch occasionally.

Well, someone — I still don't know who — called a woman named Helen Galantiere, who is president of the St. Francis Animal Protection Society.

She came down to the post office, picked us up and has been trying to find us a permanent home ever since.

I'm not sure, but I gather finding homes for abandoned dogs in Marin County isn't easy.

If you've got little children or a newspaper you'd like fetched every now and then, contact Helen Galantiere or the Sausalito Post Office and they'll introduce us.

So that's the story. It isn't a happy one, but I'm not asking for sympathy — just a home.

Fire Does $47,000 Damage To Larkspur Home, Contents

A blaze, caused by a compressed fireplace log that exploded, destroyed the James Alexander home in Larkspur yesterday, causing an estimated $47,000 damage to the residence and its contents.

Three firemen suffered minor injuries while fighting the flames.

Firemen said the blace began about 3 p.m. when a Nikkel log exploded in the living room fireplace, knocking the fire screen across the room and spewing embers around.

Alexander is Northern California distributor for the Nikkel Fire Log Division in Sacramento.

The Alexander's son, James Jr., 11, was the only one home at the time and came up from downstairs to find the room engulfed in flames. He ran from the house.

By the time firemen arrived, the two-and-a-half story woodframe home at 271 Wilson Way was totally involved in flames. Firefighting efforts were hampered by the fact the home is built on a steep hill and firemen could not get around to the rear of the structure, according to Chief William C. Shurtz.

The residence is located in a heavily wooded area, surrounded by other homes, and Shurtz said "we would have lost more than one home had the fire occurred in the summer." The blaze was under control within 10 minutes, but took nearly an hour and a half to extinguish completely.

Capt. Gordon M. Bell suffered a cut hand pushing a hose through a broken window and volunteer fireman Paul Winkelman was treated for soot in his eye. Volunteer William Anderson received a badly bruised leg when he fell through a deck.

Nixon Can't Accept Peace Terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger reported today that his negotiations with North Vietnam have failed thus far to produce a cease-fire agreement which President Nixon could accept.

He placed the blame for the impasse on delaying tactics by Hanoi on details of creating an international team to oversee the cease-fire agreement.

The President's chief foreign policy adviser told a news briefing:

"We will not be blackmailed into an agreement. We will not be stampeded into an agreement, and, if I may say so, we will not be charmed into an agreement until it is right."

Kissinger also said that if and when an acceptable cease-fire agreement is reached, objections by the South Vietnam government would not prevent the United States from signing it.

He added that he anticipates more bargaining sessions between himself and the North Vietnamese in Paris.

"I expect we will meet again," he commented, "but we have to meet in an atmosphere worthy of the seriousness of the endeavor."

In Paris, U.S. and North Vietnam officials said diplomatic "technicians" would confer again today despite the absence of Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the top peace envoys on the two sides.

But in a clandestine radio broadcast today from the jungles of Cambodia, the Viet Cong's provisional government in South Vietnam warned it will continue fighting unless Washington signs a tentative peace treaty drawn up in October by Kissinger and Hanoi envoys.

Nixon has conferred several times with Kissinger, his national security advisor who returned earlier this week to Washington after 10 days of secret and direct talks with Tho and Xuan Thuy, the chief of the North Vietnam delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Over the past two days, Kissinger also has conferred with Nixon's highest ranking advisors, including Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and outgoing Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The inclusion of other advisors, diplomatic sources said, indicated that Nixon may have reached a decision on terms for a cease-fire and wants to line up the support of key administration officials.

President Nguyen Van Thieu outlined his own cease-fire plan earlier this week but the White House said it did not support it. Instead, the White House said, Nixon was working on another plan.

Sources said the President might send an evoy, possibly Gen. Alexander M. Haig, who is Kissinger's deputy, to Saigon to try to convince Thieu to support a U.S. agreement with North Vietnam.

If Thieu refuses, the sources said, it would leave Nixon with the decision to go ahead with any agreement as it now stands.

William J. Porter, the chief of the U.S. delegation to the Paris peace talks, met for 2-½ hours Friday with Thuy outside Paris. They did not discuss their meeting, described earlier as the first in a series of "technical" discussions.

Diplomatic sources said they were engaged in ironing out the details of an eventual cease-fire agreement, the central subject in the talks by Kissinger and Hanoi envoys.

The two sides said today Porter and Thuy would meet at the home of a jeweler named Arnaud Clerc outside Paris. The two met Friday at another suburban site.

In its radio braodcast, the Viet Cong's provisional government assailed the United States for what it called "wily tricks" to create an illusion of peace.

It said it would continue the war to "completely defeat" the United States and South Vietnamese governments unless Washington signed the agreement announced Oct. 26 by Hanoi and Washington. If the United States signs the agreement, the Viet Cong said it would respect it and "carefully" carry it out.

Board To Reward Cost Reductions

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors asked top department heads yesterday to join in a concerted effort to reduce the cost of government by increasing efficiency, promising to reward the "more effective" when salaries are reviewed.

The meeting, attended by three of the five supervisors, found general acceptance among both elected and appointed officials of the board's plan "to streamline government."

But yesterday's so-called "workshop session" of the board was not completely one-sided, as several department heads called for more autonomy, more responsibility and more support from supervisors.

The 90 minutes of give and take was the first step in a new program to cut $300,000 from the county budget this fiscal year and eventually to reduce the county's 1,600-man work force by 2 to 4 per cent.

The plan was proposed last month by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere and won unanimous endorsement from the board.

To carry out the cost-cutting program, the plan calls for reopening the 1972-73 budget to reconsider levels of funding for Hall of Justice security, War-on Poverty programs and the children's treatment center at Marin Juvenile Hall.

All positions not filled with regular, full-time employees will be subject to board review on Tuesday with an eye toward cutting those positions department heads cannot rejustify.

Funds budgeted in June for services and supplies will be reviewed at the same time. County Administrator John F. Barrows has recommended an across-the-board cut of about $244,000.

The plan also calls for meeting with leaders of private industry to study new efficiency methods and various training programs for employees.

In soliciting the help of department heads, chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. proposed yesterday a committee be formed to figure out details of the cost-reduction plan.

The committee, to be made up of two supervisors, six department heads, the county administrator and personnel officer, will report directly to the board.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste told the gathering of about 50 county officials he hoped they would embrace the program in much the way Betty L. Presley, county welfare director, accepted it when she wrote:

The plan is "to get the most mileage out of every nickel and where possible, more mileage on less nickels."

"Are you going to cave in under (political) pressure from little groups. . . when we come in with a program (to cut expenditure and services)?" asked county Librarian Bruce D. Bajema.

(Bajema was overruled by supervisors during June budget hearings when he proposed to close the small Tamalpais Valley branch. A group of local residents had protested the proposal.)

Arrigoni answered that the board would have to back such cost-cutting proposals but added there had to be a political balance to any board action.

The board also was jabbed by Ray W. Foreaker Jr., director of public works, who said much of his time is spent "putting out small fires" which are shuffled to him by supervisors trying to help a constituent.

He said some problems would have to wait their turn and asked the board to go along with his department in setting priorities.

"To be frank," he told the board, "I'm asking you to give us more authority" so there will be time to deal with departmental administration.

Three Cars Required For Arrest

Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, arrested Thursday on suspicion of drunken driving, not only refused to take roadside sobriety tests but it took three California Highway Patrol cars to halt his speeding auto on Highway 101, the Independent-Journal was told yesterday.

As a result of his refusal to take the tests, according to the highway patrol, Maloney's license will be suspended for six months unless he can convince the state Department of Motor Vehicles otherwise.

Although Keith Chapman, information officer for the patrol in Corte Madera, told the I-J yesterday that Maloney was "very cooperative" and had been given the standard sobriety tests, he later said that the 39-year-old county legal officer had failed to complete a urinalysis test and had refused to take two other tests measuring alcohol in the blood.

A full report of the arrest was suppressed uncustomarily by patrol officers, but the Independent-Journal was told by sources that Maloney's car first was seen traveling at a high rate of speed by a tow truck driver near Tiburon and forcing other vehicles out of its way.

A patrol squad car with red light flashing fell in behind Maloney's car at Alto Hill, but the car continued northbound. When the siren failed to stop the car, the officer called in two other CHP units, according to, the sources.

The three patrol cars finally hemmed in Maloney's vehicle and stopped it near the Lucas Valley road exit.

Maloney is to appear Dec. 21 in Marin Municipal Court.

John Scali Named To U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John A. Scali, a former newsman who acted as an unofficial intermediary between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, will be the next U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, administration officials say.

The officials said Friday that President Nixon will nominate Scali, 54, to succeed George Bush, the present U.N. envoy, whom Nixon has chosen to be the new national chairman of the Republican Party.

Since 1970, Scali has been a special consultant to the President for press relations.

On Oct. 26, 1962, at the height of the Cuban missile crisis, Scali, then with ABC, was eating a baloney sandwich at the State Department when he received a call from Aleksander F. Fomin, of the Soviet Embassy, who urgently wanted to see him.

They met at a restaurant. Fomin asked Scali if the United States would settle the missile crisis on a series of terms, including dismantlement and removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Scali took this overture to the State Department and then relayed a reply, written out by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and approved by Kennedy, back to Fomin who relayed it to the Soviet leadership.

In order to preserve diplomatic secrecy, Scali did not report his own, biggest story.

Weather Causes Death Of Robins

"The north wind doth blow
And we shall have snow,
And what will the robin do
the, poor thing?"
-Nursery rhyme, anon.

A low pressure system brought light rain and warmer weather to Marin and Southern Sonoma today, but the milder temperatures came too late for 16 robins and a snake.

The dead robins were delivered to the Marin County Humane Society yesterday, frozen to death by recent sub-freezing weather. Madelon Tormanen, humane society education director, said the birds apparently ate too many intoxicating pyracantha berries — the only food available during the cold snap — got drunk from the berries, couldn't fly and froze.

The snake apparently could not burrow into the frozen ground and was unable to survive the icy temperatures.

But the cold spell, which has killed vegatation throughout the two counties and caused food problems for other birds and wild animals, is apparently over, according to the National Weather Service.

The weatherman predicts steadily rising temperatures in the 40s and 50s today and tonight, with 50-degree weather expected for tomorrow.

Rain is forecast for today and tonight, with skies turning to partly cloudy tomorrow.

The warming trend was reflected in area temperatures which hovered near 40 in most places.

Sausalito reported a high of 40 degrees and a low of 34, while Novato had the lowest temperatures, 29 and 38. Other temperatures were: Woodacre, 37 and 33; Belvedere, 40 and 32; San Anselmo, 40 and 35. Fairfax had a low of 35 degrees and San Rafael registered an overnight low of 34 and a high yesterday of 39.

San Rafael's temperature at noon today was 41, about five degrees higher than yesterday at the same time, with .12 of an inch of rain.

The rest of the county also had light showers yesterday and during the night, ranging from .15 of an inch in Woodacre to .07 in Sausalito and San Anselmo.

The entire Bay Area had similar weather, with brief showers and rising thermometers. The cold snap caused a natural gas shortage in San Francisco, where 211 major buildings had to begin using oil for heating when Pacific Gas and Electric Co. cut off their gas supply.

It also has brought about icing of PG&E transmission lines, breaking two of them in Northern California, triggering an intermittent blinking of lights in the Bay region and other areas, according to the company.

A company spokesman said the condition will persist until the ice begins to melt. The spokesman said trouble at PG&E's Vallejo plant has aggravated the condition.

Truman Hanging On After Restful Night

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman, troubled by failing kidneys and a weak heart, spent a "quiet, restful night" aided by medication. Doctors said today the former president was still semiconscious and in "very serious" condition.

"Mr. Truman's kidney output still is unsatisfactory, but not decreasing," Research Hospital spokesman John Dreves said. "Mr. Truman's cardiac situation remains unchanged."

Dreves said the 88-year-old former president "had a quiet, restful night with medication. His vital signs are remaining stable."

Dreves said the statement did not imply either that doctors were optimistic or that Truman's condition had improved.

"His overall condition remains very serious," he said.

At 9 a.m. EST doctors said the former president's pulse was 80, respiration was 20, blood pressure was 128 over 56 and his temperature was 98.6.

Dr. Wallace H. Graham, Truman's personal physician, said the former chief executive was listed in "very serious" condition, a slight drop due to the kidney disease and an increased fluctuation of his heart.

Graham said Truman would be kept on the "very serious"—rather than critical list—as long as his vital life signs, pulse, respiration and temperature remained within normal limits.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

If You Haven't A Fireplace, Create Another Focal Point

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Somehow all the glorious, blockbusting photographs in the shelter magazines seem to feature living rooms with fireplaces. Yet only about one out of a dozen of my friends (and that includes me) actually has a fireplace he can call his own.

My friends say: "Why don't you break a hole in the wall and attach the chimney to the exterior of the house, or get one of those free-standing units and tuck it into the corner?"

"What corner?" I say. "And whose money?"

INSTEAD OF succumbing to this "you've got to have a fireplace or it isn't home" philosophy, I've decided to go my own way and create some other center of interest in the living room.

I like looking at my stereo components. They light up nicely. And my receiver flashes a little green legend "stereo" when my FM is tuned in properly.

The television set is handsome when not in operation. It has a nice clean-looking black face and a stainless-steel indoor antenna that adds a bit of punctuation.

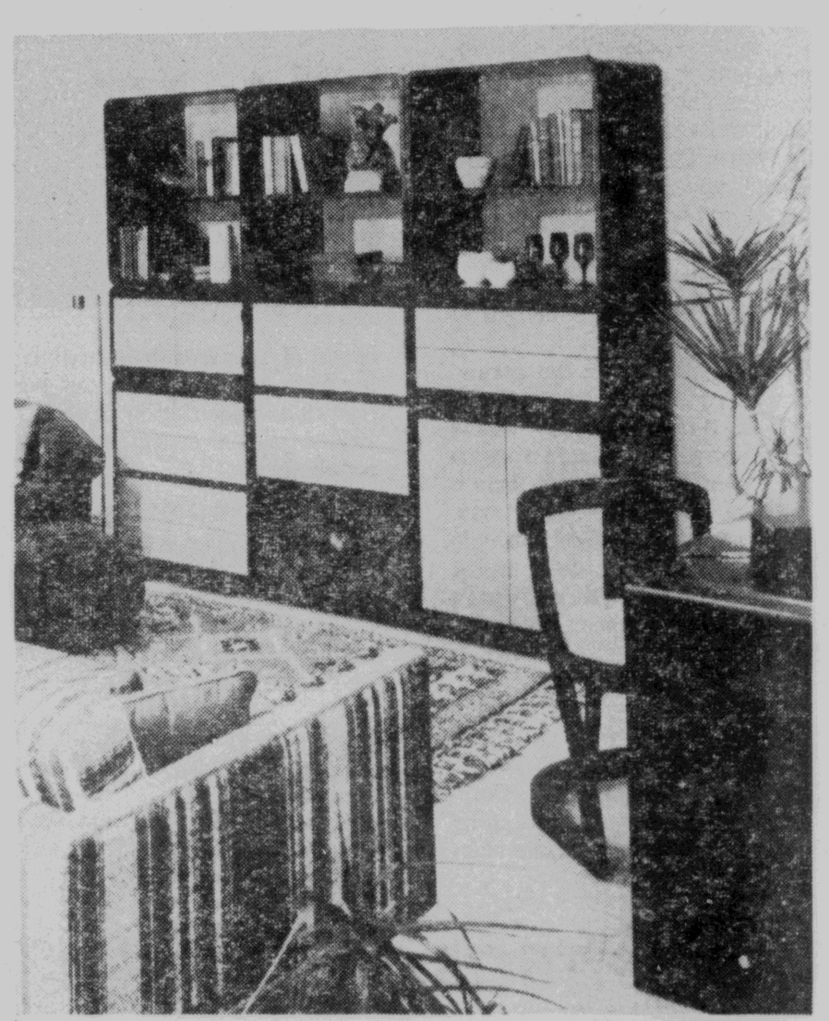
ACTUALLY THERE are lots of ways to create an important wall in a room. The illustration used today is just one. Composed of a series of nine new components being made by Directional Industries, it features the soft edge, rounded corners reminiscent of the 1930s modern.

But unlike other wall storage units, this one is designed to hold things you ordinarily store in closets. In fact the total amount of storage space is equivalent to two extra closets. And that's good news to anyone in a tiny house or confined apartment interior.

Most wall systems are based on open shelf space. So you usually wind up buying new accessories and plants to fill the gaps between books and record albums.

THIS SYSTEM allows you to go heavy on hidden storage units. And one component has a drop-down tray that allows it to become a desk-writing surface or temporary bar for refreshments.

The group has midnight brown-colored casing natural oak fronts, and there are companion pieces, such as the desk and chair, which encourage you to expand the new brown coloring into other areas of the room.



INSTEAD OF a fireplace, which you would use only part of the time, you have here a group of components designed to hold two closets-full of possessions, while at the same time holding its own visually as the living room focal point. The storage space is invaluable to the occupants of the apartment or small home. And, unlike so much storage, it adds to, rather than detracts from, the appearance of the room.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Lynch's Visit

DUBLIN (UPI) — Premier Jack Lynch's visit to the United States next month will be primarily aimed at halting the flow of American dollars to the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), political sources said today.

No date for Lynch's visit was given in the official announcement Friday, but government sources said it would come in the first half of January.

Officially, Lynch's trip will be to boost the republic's image as a base for manufacturing industry, particularly with her admission to the European Economic Community January 1.

Seven Arrested

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — A magistrate Friday ordered seven Americans arrested after two raids turned up nine tons of marijuana in their possession to go on trial Jan. 4 on charges of conspiring to export and traffic in the drug.

The raid on the 42-foot cabin cruiser, Sea Lion, registered in Dennis, Mass., and the 74-foot shrimp boat Lady Christine was carried out by U.S. Coast Guard and Jamaican vessels with the cooperation of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics.

The seven were identified by Jamaican police as William Sutton, 25, Boston; David Ward, 28, Chicago; William Jude Goldrick, 25, Providence, R.I.; Ron Rodeman, 25, Torrington, Wyo.; Arthur Davey, 31, Wyemouth, Mass; Richard Dickey, 42, Provincetown, Mass., and William Helliesen, 25, Provincetown, Mass.

POW Letters

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Folk singer Joan Baez and three other pacifists left for Hanoi today, carrying about 500 letters to prisoners of war from their families in the United States.

The four boarded a Soviet Aeroflot airliner which stopped in Vientiane en route from Moscow and said they expected to stay in Hanoi about one week.

The group said it was going to Hanoi at the invitation of the North Vietnamese government but did not know what sort of schedule was planned for them. Miss Baez said she had not even known all the members of the group before starting the trip.

Troubled Ship

SAINT JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI) — A tugboat battled through the storm-tossed Atlantic today towing a West German ship in danger of being capsized by eight 150-ton locomotives loose in the hold.

A Canadian Forces Labrador helicopter braved the storm's 50-mile an hour winds Friday to plucked 12 crewmen from the Rumba's decks.

The six other crewmen aboard the 341-foot container ship were picked up by the tug Smith-Lloyd shortly after they abandoned ship in a lifeboat.

A spokesman for the Air and Sea Rescue Center in Halifax, N.S., said today the tugboat and the crippled vessel were making slow progress in the heavy seas. He said there were 30-foot waves and 50-mile an hour winds in the area.

No Deterrent

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government of Canada, where capital punishment was suspended five years ago for all but a very few crimes, published a study Friday which said the death penalty does not prevent murder.

The study, prepared by criminologist Ezzat Abdel Fattah, said the country's homicide rate was 1.5 per 100,000 population in 1966 and 1.9 in 1967. In 1968, it again was 1.9, stayed at that level until 1970, then reached 2.3 in 1971.

However, Fattah said, "The increase in criminal homicide is a part of a general increase in criminal violence and it can be safely stated that this increase would have taken place anyway even if the death penalty had not been suspended."

A CAPITALIST IN RUSSIA?

BANGKOK (UPI) — The way the hotel manager tells it, the leader of a Russian circus troupe saved the strangest part of his act for last.

Chukiet Travachanapong said that when a maid started cleaning a room occupied by the Russian after the group checked out to go home, she discovered a bulky package underneath a mattress.

The package was a money belt stuffed with about $50,000 in $100 bills, Chukiet said.

The belt and its contents were rushed to the airport in time to reach the Russian, identified only as "Emenyanov." He already had discovered the loss and telephoned the hotel in what Chukiet said was a state of panic.

First Methadone Clinics Licensed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration in a special ruling has licensed the first doctors and clinics treating heroin addicts with the synthetic narcotic methadone.

"It is not in the public interest either to withhold the drug from the market until it has been proved safe and effective under all conditions of use, or to grant full approval for unrestricted distribution, prescription, dispensing or administration of methadone," the FDA said Friday.

Methadone will be available only to hospital pharmacies and approved maintenance programs for heroin addicts with the exception of some rural areas where it will be available at drug stores.

Red Gunners Blast Airbase Again

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners fired 20 Soviet-made rockets at the huge Bien Hoa airbase outside Saigon today in the third consecutive day of such assaults on strategic targets around the capital.

Meanwhile, U.S. warplanes continued to hammer Communist targets in both the north and south.

Military spokesmen said, there were no casualties on the base, but said two villagers died when some of the rockets veered off target and landed in three nearby hamlets. There were three separate attacks over an eight-hour period.

One runway on the base 14 miles outside of Saigon was closed briefly after one of the 100-pound, 122mm rockets landed on it, spokesmen said. They reported no other damage.

Military sources said many of the aircraft and armored vehicles rushed by the United States into South Vietnam to beat a possible cease-fire deadline are stored at Bien Hao.

Bien Hoa also houses about 1,000 U.S. Marine pilots and technicians.

In the air war, formations of U.S. B52s rained more bombs on tanks Communist forces were reported moving south above and along the border dividing North and South Vietnam.

The latest bombing raids followed a record 16 strikes by B52s into North Vietnam and two other strikes into the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). Those raids, military sources said, were intended to block movement of Soviet-made armor into South Vietnam.

The latest air raids, spokesmen said, saw two B52 formations strike along Highway 101 northwest of the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi and six other formations hammer suspected supply points around Dong Hoi. Three other waves of the B52s hit inside the DMZ and 13 waves bombed targets inside South Vietnam.

In the ground war, military spokesmen said government paratroops clashed twice with Communist forces near Quang Tri City. The government said its troops killed 63 North Vietnamese while three paratroopers were wounded.

Communist attacks in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today totalled 53, the lowest mark since Dec. 2. there were 52 on that date.

Guerrilla Mortar Barrage Fails To Close Israel's Syrian Border

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli authorities kept the border with Syria open today despite a mortar barrage Friday by guerrillas firing across the frontier at targets in the occupied Golan Heights. A military spokesman said the situation was calm.

Israeli troops patroling the bleak stretches of the Jordanian border near Eilat, far to the south of the Golan Heights, killed an Arab described by the military command as an infiltrator from Jordan.

The incident Friday marked the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan into Israel in more than a year.

The military command said it was keeping the heights open to tourists and civilian traffic despite the latest round of shelling. The command said it caused no casualties or damage.

The heights usually are closed to all but authorized personnel after any bombardment. "All is quiet now," a spokesman said.

The command said the bombardment consisted of 12 rounds of mortar fire. It said the guerrillas disappeared after leaving behind three mines and two home made bazookas.

The incident was the first on the heights since Nov. 26, when a single bazooka round was fired from Syrian territory following a 30-minute Syrian shelling the previous day.

A command communique said a patrol found a guerrilla three miles north of Israel's Red Sea port and killed him as he tried to flee. The troops suffered no casualties, it said.

Military records showed it was the first reported guerrilla infiltration from Jordan since July 15, 1971, when troops killed six guerrillas who fired rockets into Petah Tikva, a town near Tel Aviv. A seventh man escaped into Jordan.

Since then, the guerrillas have confined most of their operations against Israel to Lebanon and Syria, often trying to use the hilly Israeli-Lebanese frontier as an infiltration route.

An explosive charge went off outside an employment office 40 miles southwest of the Golan Heights in the west bank town of Nablus, but the command said it caused no casualties or damage.

Joint Docking Device Tested

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and American engineers have made the first tests of a docking mechanism to be used in the joint space mission planned for the last half of 1975.

Representatives from the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration and from the Soviet space center carried out the tests on scale models, a joint statement reported today.

Seven Are Wounded In Belfast Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and wounded seven persons in three separate incidents today in Belfast streets, the latest in a series of shootings which killed three persons Friday, one of them a policeman delivering a Chrismas present to a little girl.

The shooting victims included the 16-year-old brother of a leading Protestant militant. Police said Andrew Agnew, brother of Ulster Vanguard movement leader Frazer Agnew, was shot in the face from a passing car on the same street where just 24 hours earlier, two men on a motorcycle killed a 16-year-old Catholic youth. All those shot today were walking in the street when shot, police said.

Police said the death toll Friday made it one of the bloodiest days in months of violence in Northern Ireland. The deaths raised the toll in 3½ years of strife to 664.

One of the victims Friday was constable George Chambers, a 44-year-old policeman who was shot in an ambush by five gunmen minutes after he delivered a Mickey Mouse wristwatch and other gifts to a little girl injured in a road accident several days ago.

The other victims Friday were a militiaman and a Roman Catholic youth. All were shot.

Chambers was slain and two fellow policemen wounded in Lurgan, 20 miles from Belfast, while the militiaman died in Armagh, 35 miles from Belfast, and James Reynolds, 16, died in northern Belfast.

Police said Chambers was shot a few hours before he planned to take his wife out to celebrate their 22nd wedding anniversary. He was wearing his police uniform when gunmen opened fire on him and the other two policemen in a police vehicle.

The little girl remembered their visit vididly.

"They told me to have a happy Christmas and asked me if I had written to Santa Claus," said Linda Hughes, who was injured when struck by a police car several days ago. "Then one of them wound up my watch and put it on my wrist. We all had a listen to hear it ticking."

In Armagh, three gunmen pumped 12 bullets into Frederick Greeves, 40, as he left work. He was a member of the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR), a part-time force supporting British troops in Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, two men on a motorcycle shot and killed Reynolds as he stood on a street corner.

Police said Reynolds was the latest victim of a wave of reprisal killings among the majority Protestant and minority Catholic communities in the province. More than 100 persons from both communities have died in religious assassinations this year.

Some Facts About Aluminum And How To Use It

By ANDY LANG

Handyman's Pages

What you probably never knew about aluminum and never bothered to ask:

Bare aluminum will turn gray over a period of time outdoors, but the change of color can be prevented by coating it with lacquer or wax that doesn't contain an abrasive or cleaning agent.

WHEN ALUMINUM is said to be anodized, it means that it has been treated by an electrolytic action to give it a protective or decorative coat. Anodized aluminum changes color, too, but much more slowly.

Painted or porcelainized aluminum will not change color. When cleaning painted aluminum, water should be used first, then a mild soap. Porcelainized aluminum is so hard that it can be cleaned with any type of powder and soap.

When cleaning painted aluminum house siding, the long, hollow-handlebrush sold for car washing may be used. Wash from the bottom up and keep all the washer area wet until that side of the house is finished. This will prevent streaking.

IF YOU INTEND to paint new aluminum, the oil or grease applied at the factory to protect it during shipment must be washed off with a phosphoric acid available at most paint and hardware stores. When the aluminum has dried thoroughly, it should be primed with an exterior metal primer, preferably zinc chromate where corrosive conditions exist.

Mirror-bright aluminum cooking pots can be washed only with soaps and detergents. Polishes and nylon pads usually will dull their finish through abrasion. If the inside of an aluminum pot becomes blackish after cooking eggs or similar food in it, the coloring will neither harm the food nor the pot.

However, if the color is disturbing, it can be removed by boiling in it water to which cream of tartar has been added — two tablespoons to each quart of water. Boil about seven or eight minutes.

AN ALUMINUM boat will resist corrosion without cleaning, polishing or painting it. If you decide to paint it for appearance's sake, use a paint especially designed for aluminum, not a mercury, arsenic or copper-base anti-fouling paint.

While aluminum is exceptionally resistant to corrosive attack, galvanic corrosion may occur under certain conditions if any dissimilar metal is fastened to it. If aluminum fasteners are not used, a bituminous paint coating or insulating tape is recommended.

Hamilton Site Is Studied For Coast Guard Housing

The Coast Guard is eyeing about 20 acres of vacant land at Hamilton Air Force Base as a possible future housing site.

Nothing is definite. but the Coast Guard is" just interested." CWO Milton Duby of the Coast Guard public information office in San Francisco said yesterday.

Fifty-five acres at the south end of the base near Capehart Housing and 15 acres at Hamilton School are not being used by the Air Force.

Under presidential order, the Air Force must list all land holdings not fully in use. The property then is offered to other services and governmental agencies, Maj. Douglas K. Rhodes, chief of information at Hamilton, explained.

The Coast Guard, which now houses men assigned to the immediate San Francisco area at Treasure Island and is building housing for West Marin personnel at Point Reyes Station, has expressed interest in about 20 of the 55 acres near Capehart Housing. Duby said no final decision has been made.

Rhodes said the department of health, education and welfare, meanwhile, is eyeing the Hamilton School site, but a spokesman at the general services administration said this probably was just a "holding action" by the department.

The school site is under long-term lease to the Novato Unified School District, according to dist. Supt. James G. Bunker.

Bunker siad enrollment in the three schools serving military families — Hamilton, Meadow Park and Pacheco — has dropped. Students from the three schools possibly will be combined into two, pending a further look at enrollment next year, he said.

Of the three schools, Pacheco, operating at half capacity, probably would first be considered for closing, Bunker said.

Renewed Hospital Pact Is Endorsed By Auditor

A renewed contract between the county and Marin Hospital District for use of the Marin Community Mental Health Center has been endorsed by county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell, who originally questioned the document.

Mitchell, in recommending approval by the board of supervisors this Tuesday, noted about $3,000 was trimmed from the original $86,000 contract during negotiations with the hospital district.

He originally had questioned the document since the rental price seemed high for the building, which is owned by the hospital but was built with federal, state and county money.

Mitchell criticized the county administrator's office and the department of health care services for not having reviewed the document with his office before submitting it to the board last month.

"Had the administrator and the department of health care services touched bases with this office," he wrote, "it would have avoided a last-minute inquiry which was also to the detriment of the hospital district (delay of payments, etc.)"

Judge Closes Courtroom In Stack Accident Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Superior Court judge banned spectators from his courtroom Friday during opening arguments in the trial of $1 million in lawsuits involving the wife of television actor Robert Stack.

Judge Oscar Kistle, at the request of attorneys, banned spectators because they had been continually entering and leaving the courtroom in effort to see Stack. Mrs. Stack was not present at the proceedings.

Mrs. Stack is being sued for $750,000 by singer Art Lund, whose wife was killed in an auto crash near Sacramento Oct. 15, 1969.

In addition, Mrs. Stack and another passenger in the vehicle are suing Ford Motor Co. and Hertz Corp. for $250,000 for injuries suffered .

Mrs. Stack was the driver of a rented station wagon which went out of control and struck a concrete abutment after veering off a road near Sacramento Metropolitan Airport.

Three Die In Crash Of Plane

DETROIT (UPI) — A twin-engine Lear jet lost atltitude on takeoff from Metropolitan Airport Friday and crashed into a gasoline tank, killing three men.

A worker standing atop the tank toppled to the ground in the crash and was killed. Also killed were the pilot and copilot, employes of Zantop Air Lines, a freight carrier. They were the only occupants of the plane.

Burning pieces of the wreckage were spewed over a half-mile area and the bodies of the crewmen were hurled about one-quarter mile from the crash site. Some of the wreckage flew onto the six-lane Interstate 94 freeway, but no vehicles were reported hit.

The fennec is a small fox with very large ears. It lives in the desert.

160 Safe After Jet Emergency

MIAMI (UPI) — The tires of the Boeing 747 jumbo jet "exploded with a roar that sounded like thunder" during an emergency landing Friday, but the brakes held and the plane lurched to a safe stop at Miami International Airport.

The Northeast Airlines jet carrying 160 persons ran into a flock of birds shortly after takeoff on a nonstop flight to Chicago

The pilot, Capt. William Burnett, 57, of Minneapolis, asked for immediate clearance to make an emergency landing and after circling the airport to dump excees fuel from his tanks, made his approach on the rain-slick west runway.

Airport authorities said the nose landing gear appeared to collapse after one or more of the landing tires apparently blew out. The plane then skidded off the runway in a shower of sparks and its nose collapsed into the soft dirt.

Four passengers received minor injuries when they and the others aboard were evacuated from the plane by sliding down emergency exit chutes.

Miami business executive Hugh McLoone said he was just pulling out of a Cuban refugee receiving station at the west end of the airport in his car "when I saw the whole thing unfold before me.

"The jet went skidding off the end of the runway and the tires exploded with a roar that sounded like thunder," McLoone said. "Then the nose dropped down.

"When the plane stopped, the people started piling out in the emergency chutes."

The plane remained mired in the soft earth at the end of runway 27-left today while investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration continued their investigation of the incident.

Bride Convicted Of Manslaughter

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UPI) — The justice of the peace pronounced them man and wife and the jury pronounced the bride guilty—of manslaughter in the shooting death of her bridegroom's rival.

Georgiane Baylor, 54, said "I do" to Henry Owens, 58, Friday in the women's quarters of the Webster County Jail while the jury deliberated her fate one floor above.

Mrs. Owens was tried on murder charges in the death of Sam Boutchee, 44, who she said also wanted to marry her.

She testified that he attacked her with a knife when she told him she planned to marry Owens and she shot him in self defense.

Packer Fined

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Magistrates fined a packing firm $58.75 Friday for supplying a customer with a packet of peanuts containing dogs' teeth.

You can save as much as $300* if you read this new book about 20 charter tours to Europe.

How will it save me $300?

It's very simple.

The book will tell you that since The Travel Planners charters entire planes your air fare is computed at a charter rate which is much lower than any non-charter rate charged by I.A.T.A. carriers. So much lower that you can save up to $300 on your total tour price.

And you don't have to become a member of any club or organization prior to signing up.

Anyone can take advantage of this savings at any time.

What kind of tours are they?

Our free book gives you the choice of 20 different charter flight/escorted tour itineraries. Plus 242 different departures. We have 16 day, 23 day, or 30 day tours. All you have to do is choose one. Prices range from $565 to $1345.

Here's a typical tour itinerary.

Tourist 1

Day 1	Depart USA	Day 9	Rome
Day 2	London England	Day 10	Rome-Florence
Day 3	London	Day 11	Florence-Venice
Day 4	London-Paris France	Day 12	Venice-Cortina-Innsbruck Austria
Day 5	Paris	Day 13	Munich-Heidelberg-Mannheim Germany
Day 6	Paris-Dijon-Geneva Switzerland	Day 14	Mannheim-Luxembourg-Brussels Belgium
Day 7	Geneva-Lausanne-Montreux-Rhone Valley-Stresa Italy	Day 15	Brussels-Amsterdam Holland
Day 8	Stresa-Rome	Day 16	Amsterdam-USA

16 Days—9 Countries—from $595 incl. air

That's just one of the charter tour itineraries listed in our free book. If you can decide where you want to go and how much time you have to spend, chances are we have exactly the tour you want. At the prices you want to pay.

What kind of transportation?

The land portion of the tours begin either in London, Athens, Malaga, or Hamburg. You'll fly to one of these destinations on one of World Airways fleet of Boeing 747's, 707's or DC-8 stretch jet aircraft. World Airways is a U.S. Certified Supplemental Carrier. On board you enjoy complimentary cocktails and superbly prepared food. World Airways takes pride in their service. Ask anyone who has flown with them.

World Airways

Where do I leave from?

All our departures leave from either Los Angeles, Oakland, Denver or Seattle on Saturday and return on a Sunday. They all fly direct to Europe. Departures begin the end of March 1973 and carry through early November 1973. With flights leaving every weekend you shouldn't have difficulty fitting us into your schedule.

We take you to Europe
We take care of you in Europe
We bring you home from Europe

Can I depend on you?

Of course.

We're The Travel Planners. Solid. Dependable. We don't leave people stranded in Europe. If something prevents you from returning with your tour group don't worry, we'll get you home. Another nice bonus: The Travel Planners will also guarantee a 100% refund of your total tour cost if your plans change for a permitted reason and you must cancel. This is provided the cancellation takes place up to 24 hours before your scheduled departure.

Cancellation Protection

This certificate can save you hundreds of dollars in air fare charges. The Travel Planners guarantees 100 percent refund if cancellation occurs for a permitted reason up to 24 hours before departure.

Where will I stay?

You'll stay at some of the finest hotels Europe has to offer.

The Travel Planners will bring thousands of travelers to Europe every year. Hotel and restaurant owners know us and are anxious to be of service to our customers. We are quite certain we are providing you with accommodations which will please you.

What if a problem comes up?

We'll help you solve it.

The Travel Planners, through a network of subsidiaries, affiliates and representatives, provides 800 offices around the world. So if for any reason you need assistance the chances are that someone will be on hand.

You can stop worrying about being alone if an emergency arises. We'll be there.

This is most important for the first time traveler to Europe. And it will help the experienced traveler.

Board Views $1 Million In New Bridge Equipment

New communications and toll equipment costing more than $1 million was recommended for purchase yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors

Most of the money, $637,420, would go toward modernization and expansion of the radio network for district vehicles, with microwave stations planned atop high points in Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco. The remainder would include $300,000 to replace failing devices that count vehicles through the toll gates and $80,000 to replace equally fallible communications links between the toll sergeant's office and the toll takers

The district's radio consultant Herbert M. Watson of Lafayette, estimated the new radio network will cost $71,903 a year to operate. Initial costs would be less if the system relied on leased telephone lines instead of on microwave transmitters, but the annual cost would be about $18,000 more, he said.

More to the fiscal point, district officials noted, was that the federal government probably will pay for two-thirds of the initial cost, while the district must pay all of the annual operating cost.

The radio network for the first time will link the district's bus fleet with dispatchers Bus transit Mgr. H. Donald White said this will permit more efficient use of the coaches to meet changes in traffic and peak loads.

The microwave stations will be atop Mount Tamalpais, San Rafael or Pedro Hill, Big Rock Mountain, Sonoma Mountain, the bridge and the Bank of America in San Francisco.

The building and operating committee reluctantly recommended the system to the full district board despite its fears that Watson's estimates may prove too low The board will consider the committee's recommendations at 10 a.m. next Thursday in toll plaza offices

The committee also recommended leasing 700 automatic vehicle identifiers from Litton Industries for $1,860 a month The devices are being tested for possible use by commuters to allow monthly billing The devices signal the district's computer upon passing through the toll gates

The committee withheld action on a staff proposal to sell 147 surplus light fixtures from the span. Bulbs for them no longer are manufactured, but the staff suggested they might find popular use in gardens.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini jokingly suggested they would look good in bedrooms if fitted with candles. San Francisco Supervisor John Molinari retorted that "I always knew you were weird, Bettini."

The staff was asked to determine how to sell them.

Heliport Switch Pondered

The Marin County Aviation commission has agreed to investigate the possibility of relocating the Marin County Heliport at Richardson Bay to a more central location

Chairman William W Schwarzer said today the commission heard a preliminary report at its meeting Tuesday and will continue to study the relocation

He said SFO Helicopter, the sole operator at the Heliport, would like to move into the Larkspur-San Rafael area if a site can be found

Schwarzer said one possible location is the proposed Larkspur ferry terminal to be located at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur.

However, the Golden Gate Briege District must approve any use at the terminal, he said Plans for the ferry terminal make mention of a heliport site

Schwarzer said he hoped the county could lease air space and landing rights when a site is found and amortize any cost through a rental agreement with SFO Helicopter.

In other action, the commission reelected Schwarzer as chairman and named Richard P Nave as vice chairman

Novato Council Will View Plan

The Novato City Council will have a special meeting on the proposed new Novato general plan at 8 p.m. Monday at the community house.

Councilmen decided at the close of the fifth public hearing on the plan Tuesday night to have a meeting for council discussion Monday

Mayor F. Wayne Sartain has pushed for adoption of the plan before the end of the year, but that appears unlikely since any revisions by the council must be referred back to the planning commission for comment before adoption

Boeing To Train Chinese On 707

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — More than 100 technicians from the People's Republic of China will start ground training early next year at the Boeing Co.

A spokesman said Friday that the Chinese would be trained to service and fly the 10 Boeing 707 jet transports ordered by China at a cost of $125 million. Delivery is to begin the middle of next year and be completed by the spring of 1974.

Novato Flood Board Delays Budget Action

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has postponed a decision on a 1973-74 budget which could boost the tax rate from 14.5 cents to $1 per $100 assessed valuation.

Faced with four possible budgets, depending upon which project is undertaken along Novato Creek, directors Thursday night postponed a budget decision until Jan. 18, according to Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineers.

The district budget is submitted to the Marin County Department of Public Works and then to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which makes the final decision.

Budgets for the four potential projects are $1,181,060 for the joint local-federal project by the Army Corps of Engineers, $1,481,060 for an interim dredging program and $731,060 for either leaving the creeks in a natural state or having a modified local-federal project.

Directors also mentioned the possibility of financing a project by a bond issue, but no amount was specified, Murphy said.

The board adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18 at the Novato branch library.

Evans Exempted —To Get Promotion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apollo Astronaut Ronald Evans will receive his Navy promotion from commander to captain despite President Nixon's order freezing government promotions, the Pentagon said today.

Spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim said an exemption had been granted specifically for Evans, now returning to earth with two other Apollo 17 astronauts

Cooper Hoax Fatal To Newspaper

SEATTLE (AP) — The man the government said was duped by two Bremerton area men, one who posed as the skyjacker known as D. B. Cooper, has testified the hoax has led to the demise of his Los Angeles newspaper.

Karl Fleming, a former Newsweek Magazine contributing editor, broke down in federal court here Thursday when asked during cross examination if he would be running any more stories on Cooper.

"There will be no further issues of this paper whatever," Fleming answered.

He said in an interview with the Seattle Post-Intelligencer later that Max Palevsky, backer of the newspaper, "L.A.," had withdrawn his financial support of the publication.

Palevsky also has been called to testify in the trial of Donald Murphy and William Lewis, charged in a federal grand jury indictment of defrauding Fleming of $45,000 in exchange for an interview with Cooper.

Cooper is the name used by a man who hijacked a Northwest Airlines 727 jetliner on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, and then parachuted from the craft after collecting $200,000 in ransom from the airline at Seattle.

During earlier testimony in the four-day-old trial, Fleming said he was approached by two men who promised him an exclusive interview with Cooper in return for $45,000.

Fleming, then a contributing editor for Newsweek, said the magazine killed the story because of the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes hoax.

Palevsky, largest single stockholder in the Xerox Corp., testified that he had given $30,000 to Fleming to pay for the interview.

A series of stories based on the interviews were run in L.A. last October. However, the publication noted that the government had charged the interviews were a hoax.

The defense already has stipulated that Murphy had posed as Cooper.

In earlier testimony Thursday, an FBI expert testified that three $20 bills given to Fleming during one of the interviews were not part of the ransom money.

Four Candidates For Barbier Seat

Four candidates have applied for the San Rafael Fire Commission seat left vacant by the death of Harry A. Barbier, City Mgr. James H. McCown said yesterday.

The four are John Adams, Henry Hewelcke, Richard Sadler and Richard Meihling.

McCown said the council will fill the vacancy by Jan. 2. Persons interested in applying should contact city hall, he said

'Consumer Affairs' Program Endorsed

The Marin County Human Rights Commission has endorsed creation of a new "consumer affairs" program on a trial basis.

According to Executive Director Gerald J. Hood, the pilot project is designed to work with local businessmen to iron out consumer complaints.

Hood said many complaints filed with his office during the last year leaned toward consumer problems and not infringements on human rights.

He said the new program, which must be approved by the county board of supervisors, was protested by consumer advocate Silvia Segal, formerly of Sausalito, who said a separate county department should be created to handle the new program.

The commission, which met over dinner Thursday night at Sabella's Restuarant in Mill Valley, also recommended that a new position of human rights coordinator be created within the department to handle special projects.

Not attending last night's session was Commissioner Edward W. Colthurst, who boycotted the meeting, charging dinner meetings discourage public attendance.

Chairman Ernest J. Gray responded to Colthurst's charge saying such meetings are necessary "so that we can communicate with each other and get to better know and understand one another . . ."

Student On Tam Panel Not First

When a student representative was seated on the Tamalpais High School District board on Wednesday, it was not the first time in Marin County, as the Tam students claimed.

For the San Rafael Board of Education has had not one, but two, student members since October 1970.

Currently serving as student members are Robin Bacci from San Rafael High School and Todd Gulick from Terra Linda High School.

Elected by fellow students, the pair sit as full members of the board, and their advisory votes are recorded in the minutes

Asst. Supt. Wayne Boone said the students, as have their predecessors, take part in board discussions and emphatically give their views.

Terra Linda High School principal Frank Stocking said students feel they are participating in district management in a purposeful manner, and they're not afraid to disagree with trustees.

San Rafael High School principal Peter Palches said the district appreciates getting student points of view directly, and it helps students realize the work involved in being a public official.

Future Eyed Of Water Subgroup

The environmental advisory subcommittee of Improvement District A will meet with directors of the Marin Municipal Water District to discuss the subgroup's future on Jan. 11 at 8 p.m. at the district offices

The subcommittee was formed more than a year ago by the water district board to advise on the environmental impact of a proposed $28 million consolidated waste treatment system for central and southeast Marin

One of the committee's members, David Greenlee, manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, resigned from the group early this month, charging it has overstepped the bound of its responsibility.

Greenlee said he objected to the subcommittee's recommendation that a major regional treatment plant be constructed so as to reclaim all its sewage when it opens late in 1975.

Saying that the subcommittee shouldn't attempt to make policy decisions for the water district, Greenlee claimed that some subcommittee members from organizations like Marin Alternative and Marin Conservation League have attempted to involve it in affairs "that are none of our business"

District A manager John T Schulte said the meeting will discuss the subcommittee's composition, and whether it really reflects the desires of the general public When it was formed more a year ago, 25 members were appointed, but Schulte said attendance has dwindled to 10 or 12.

YOU SEE, GIRLS, IT'S EASY TO BREAK BONDS IF YOU KNOW YOU CAN!
HOLA! OUR PRINCESS IS INVINCIBLE!
WHA - WHAT'S GOIN' ON AROUND HERE?
I DON'T KNOW. I HEARD SOMEONE SAY "IT'S A HOLD-UP." GOOD-BYE!
DON'T THINK I'M GOING TO THANK YOU FOR SAVING MY LIFE, WONDER WOMAN! I WOULD, IF YOU WERE A MAN--BUT A WOMAN--NEVER!
I DIDN'T RESCUE YOU TO RECEIVE YOUR THANKS, MR. TIGHE. IT IS THE AMAZON'S CODE TO HELP ANYONE IN NEED, EVEN A WOMAN HATER!

ONCE AGAIN in a world torn by hatreds and wars of men appears Wonder Woman, to whom problems and feats of men are child's play. A collection in book form is being issued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, and its producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized values of today's feminists — self-reliance and mutual support among women, respect for life and disdain for violence as a way to solve conflicts.

ON THE AGENDA

Business, Professional Women Honor Two Long-Time Members

Two members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin County were given surprise honors this week as the club marked its 40th anniversary.

The only charter member, Letha Jenkins, was presented an honorary life membership award by the club. Mrs. Jenkins, retired Ross School principal and teacher, served as the club president in 1948 and has been an active member of the scholarship committee.

Also honored was Elsie P. Mazzini, long-time club member and a past president. She was given the Woman of Achievement Award for 1972 and certificate of appreciation for her continuing contribution to the club.

The awards were Tuesday at the Meadows in Terra Linda, when 17 past presidents of the club were also introduced.

THE OPENING of the musical film "1776" at the Northgate Theater in Terra Linda will be a gala occasion benefitting the the Marin Mental Health Association and presented by MMH Auxiliary. The opening night Wednesday will begin with the serving of champagne in the lobby at 7:30 p.m. and snacks will be available for the children. The film will be shown at 8 p.m.

Barbara Burke of Mill Valley is chairman for the opening and Mrs. Lawrence Guadagni of San Rafael is ticket chairman. The committee urges families to attend together.

NOVATO HIGH School choral group under the direction of John Anders will present a program at the Novato Newcomers Club luncheon at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio on Wednesday. This is the third year the choral group will perform at the Newcomers' Christmas luncheon.

SUZETTE SASSE
To be wed

A Summer Wedding Is Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Paul William Sasse of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter Suzette (Suzi) Sasse to Richard Leonard Timmerman of Novato.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Timmerman of Novato.

Suzi is the sister of James Sasse of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Harkey of Novato. Mrs. Sadie D'Ambrogio of Novato is her great grandmother.

The future bride is a graduate of San Rafael High School and is assistant manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken shop in San Rafael.

Rick is the brother of Mrs. Kenneth Haney of San Rafael and Mrs. David Elliot of Modesto, and Mrs. Myrtle Jeffries of Madison, Wis., is his grandmother.

Also a graduate of San Rafael High School, he is employed by Fairfax Lumber Co. in Fairfax.

The couple is planning to be married next summer.

Cerebral Palsy Treatment Goal

NEW YORK (UPI) — The general treatment goal for the individual with cerebral palsy is to help him function as optimally as he can within the limits of his basic handicap.

While it may be impossible to alter the extent of his motor incoordination, it is possible to train him to get the "most out of what he has," according to health authorities familiar with the problem. Cerebral palsy is the general term applied to a group of permanently disabling symptoms resulting from damage to the developing brain. The damage may occur before, during or after birth.

Wonder Woman Makes Comeback

Wonder Woman is back — courageous but compassionate, non-violent, as lovely as Aphrodite, as wise as Athena, with the speed of Mercury and the strength of Hercules.

Wonder Woman comics of the '40s by psychologist William Moulton Marston have been collected and reissued by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, Inc. as a new book, with introduction by Gloria Steinem and an interpretive essay on the Amazon legacy by psychologist Dr. Phyllis Chesler.

In the course of her adventures Wonder Woman upheld the ideals that feminists project today, Gloria Steinem explains in her introduction.

"Here was a heroic person who might conquer with force but only a force that was tempered by love and justice. She converted her enemies more often than not. . .She was brave, beautiful and explicitly out to change a world torn by the hatreds and wars of men," Ms. Steinem writes.

The book's producers believe that Wonder Woman symbolized many of the values that feminists try to uphold today — strength and self-reliance for women, sisterhood and mutual support among women, peacefulness and respect for life and a belief that violence is not the way to solve conflicts.

The original Wonder Woman comics are being produced in book form in cooperation with Ms. Magazine and Warner Books.

Yule Cards Started With Nature Motifs

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —Their creators probably thought little about ecology when they made the early Christmas cards, but they used nature motifs liberally.

Both flowers and animals were favorites for cards as early as the 1860s when families exchanged greetings before the Christmas card became a universal custom.

They were called "album" cards and great-grandma pasted quantities of them in her album. These were decorated with colored pictures of flowers, birds, butterflies, landscapes and seascapes.

The big push toward today's phenomenal card business (3.5 billion cards sent this Christmas and New Year's alone) came from Louis Prang, often called the father of the American Christmas card.

IN THE 1860s, Prang, a German immigrant, was turning out art reproductions and album cards from his print shop in Boston.

Then came the day in 1874 when a novel idea was presented him.

According to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, one account has it that the suggestion came from a woman employe in Boston. Another says it was original with the wife of his London agent.

Whichever woman deserves the credit, Prang was quick to see the possibilities of increased business if he printed only a "Merry Christmas" on small floral-decorated cards.

He experimented with his British customers first, for it was in England where the world's first Christmas card appeared in 1843. In 1875, Prang tried the cards on the American public.

Within five years, he was turning out five million cards a year and employed 300 people.

"To my mind," wrote Edward Everett Hale in 1889, "the most interesting place in Boston is Prang's printing house..."

HALE WENT on to describe the processes by which a picture was run through the press from eight to as many as 17 times, each time receiving an added shade of color.

Original sample books of the old Prang firm are considered valuable today and sought after by various libraries. The card publishers association says two outstanding collections are with the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, Mass., and the Fine Arts Department of the Boston Public Library.

When the association recently moved its New York headquarters from Rockefeller Center to the Pan-Am Building, it uncovered dozens of rare cards mounted on panels.

Association director Harry J. Cooper says the cards are typical of those of the Victorian era but he has not determined whether any are Prang designs.

The collection, however, includes cards decorated with Prang's favorite flower motif — Killarney roses.

The Family Income

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — An average family in Taipei earned about $178 a month in the first half of 1972, an increase of about $40 over 1969, according to city government statistics reported by the Central News Agency of China.

Many Persons Lose Hearing

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of every 10 persons in the United States has some degree of earing loss. That comes out to 20 million.

According to the National Health Survey, there are about 8.5 million persons who consider their hearing loss serious.

Health educators say the increasing age of the American population probably is the greatest single factor in the increased incidence of hearing loss. Changes connected with aging can hurt hearing.

Two Plan Wedding In June

A June wedding is being planned for next year by Marilyn Claire McNamara of Stockton and Jackson Emil Dennis of Terra Linda.

The couple's engagement was announced by Mr. and Mrs. William McNamara of Corte Madera, Marilyn's parents. She is the sister of Bill McNamara of Sausalito and the granddaughter of Mrs. Clara Hubkins of San Francisco.

Now employed with Loyal Protective Life Insurance Co. in Stockton, Marilyn is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin.

Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson E. Dennis of Terra Linda and the brother of Robert and James Dennis. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dennis of Gridley and Mrs. Estella Beatty of Chico.

He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and is a senior at the University of the Pacific.

German Unveils New Line

By ALYCE MCLAUGHLIN

Fashion elegance, it seems, will no longer be synonymous only with the pacesetters of Italy and France, now that Germany's most sought after fashion designer Uli Richter has unveiled his fabulous collection of originals.

Richter, Germany's most successful designer, enjoys an international reputation on par with the best of Europe.

His casually elegant and youthful spring and summer fashions were previewed at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel and sponsored by Lufthansa German Airlines.

His fashions pulsate with a vibrance brought about only when grace, elegance, and style are combined with an array of paradise prints, polka dots, plaids, siripes, abstracts, and bright flowers strewn over wide bands of silk.

RICHTER MAKES his creations one fluid motion after another. His designs have soft, swinging lines, while long skirts have playful pleats with backless tops. The batwing sleeve is featured while jackets are often bell shaped, as well as back flared coats with fitted fronts.

He emphasizes color in his fashions, going from warm gleaming pinks, vivid jades, Spanish greens and electric blues, to natural tones of carmel and caramel to complement the warm brown tones of summer tans.

The highlight of his collection, though, is his tribute to the American Wild West, where jeans are used in a playful mixture of western plaids in cotton and wool voile, carrying such names as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "The Girl From Texas."

ULI RICHTER does about 400 creations a year, all complete with their own accessories, also designed by him.

The House of Uli Richter is the pinnacle of fashion in Germany, and is well on its way to becoming the "in way for American women to look."

Teen Allowances Hit By Inflation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation is taking a healthy chunk of teen-agers' allowances but, with business looking brighter, allowances are easier to collect, says the Rand Youth Poll.

Parents are still heavy borrowers from their children, according to Rand, which said 32 per cent of the teen-agers surveyed said their parents put the bite on them when the need arises.

Feminist Leader Sets Marin Talk

Feminist Gloria Steinem, founder and editor of the magazine MS., will speak in Marin on Jan. 17.

Ms. Steinem and Margaret Sloan, also on the magazine staff and a leading member of the Women Mobilized for Change group based in Chicago, will speak on "Sexism and Racism" in an 8 p.m. program at the College of Marin gymnasium in Kentfield.

GLORIA STEINEM
To speak in Marin

Ms. Steinem has been contributing editor and political columnist for New York Magazine and her work has been published in magazines and newspapers in America and Europe. She is presently a member of the New York Advisory board of the National Organization for Women.

Ms. Sloan has been active in the liberation movement of oppressed people for 10 years and was an organizer of the Congress of Racial Equality in Chicago at the age of 14. She is a contributor and associate editor of Ms. magazine.

Tickets for the program will be sold after Jan. 2 at the College of Marin box office from 1 to 4 p.m. and through Women on the Move at Redwood High School box office from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Parties The Name Of Holidays Game

By MOLLY MARIN

Holiday entertainment continues in Marin with news of parties and visitors coming to spend the holidays.

EIGHTY FRIENDS from throughout the Bay Area will gather for cocktails and a buffet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Tiburon tonight. Sharing the duties as hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilhite of Tiburon.

The Williamses, who have been in New York a year, planned the evening to renew acquaintances.

WORD OF HER mother's surprise visit has brightened the holidays for Mrs. Laurence Kraus of Corinthian Island. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Freedheim of Shaker Heights, Ohio, is expected the week before Christmas, and Mrs. Kraus has arranged luncheons with friends for her.

AN OPEN house for 40 neighbors and friends is planned by Mr. and Mrs. James V. Mealey of Tiburon on Friday evening. Their son, Richard Borgmann, will be home from Tulane University for the party.

MARIN MEMBERS of American Conservatory Theater are baking cookies for ACT's Christmas party for senior citizens at the Geary Theater in San Francisco on Monday.

Musicians and actors will present different acts and other ACT members will act as hostesses including Mmes. Edward McCrum and Adolph Mueller.

Chariman of the party is Mrs. Joseph Barton of Ross.

AN INTIMATE dinner party tomorrow night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Johnson in San Rafael will be attended by Messrs. and Mmes. Fielding Reese, Edsel Yarling, S.P. Spiliotis and Peter Meyer, all of San Rafael.

THREE HUNDRED friends of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Martin received invitations to an annual Christmas open house at their San Rafael home next Saturday, evening.

The evening is planned on a staggered schedule at the large home carpeted in red.

Guest of honor will be Mrs. Doris Gagnebin, who grew up with Mrs. Martin in Fresno.

A "YULE SPIRITS" party for 100 friends from all over the Bay Area will be held at the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wyckoff tomorrow.

A NEIGHBORHOOD party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Speckmann of Mill Valley on Friday with Christmas cheer served from 5 p.m.

ONE HUNDRED friends from Marin and San Francisco will come to an open house tomorrow from 4 to 7 p.m. at the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller.

He was graduated from Tahoe Truckee High School in Truckee and is employed with Sears store in San Rafael.

The couple will be married Feb. 17 at Resurrection Lutheran Church in Terra Linda.

Working Women Like One Store

NEW YORK (UPI)—Of women who hold full time jobs, 67 per cent usually frequent one particular supermarket, according to a Bureau of Advertising report.

This compares with 56 per cent of the stay-at-home women who usually go to one particular supermarket.

Costs Will Increase On College Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The costs of a college education have increased steadily since World War II and are likely to continue to rise in the years ahead.

A recent survey predicts cost of a year at a coeducational college will likely be $3,065 in 1980, compared with 1972's average cost of $2,000. By the year 2000 that cost could be as high as $6735.

She's Sure 'Vegetable' Viet Veteran Not Totally Hopeless

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I've been working as a nurses' aide in a convalescent home. Most of the patients are elderly, but then there's Joe! He's 23.

Joe was injured in Vietnam when he was 21. He had three major brain operations. The doctors say he has the mentality of a six-month-old baby. He can't understand or communicate, although a radio plays all day to keep him quiet. He's classified as a "vegetable," thus put away in a rest home, without therapy, because (I'm told) it's cheaper.

Yet I'm sure — and so is the orderly who works with him — that Joe could eventually learn some kind of communication. With enough loving care, the part of his brain left might be trained to take over — just as a six-month-old child gradually develops. He already cries when he's hungry or uncomfortable.

I'm writing this because I'm sure there are other Joes who have given their very lives for their country but because they're classified as "hopeless' they're farmed out in minimum-care homes to die. If the government can spend millions on arms to kill people, it shouldn't desert even one poor "Joe" if there's a tiny chance that therapy might help to bring him back. Doesn't he deserve maximum care and intensive treatment in the best veterans' hospital? He didn't ask to have half his brain shot away!

I know there isn't anything you can do personally, Helen and Sue, but maybe if you print my letter someone in high command will read it and a few Joes may be remembered again. — LARI

DEAR LARI:

We'll not only print your letter but send several copies to people in high command. Let's hope someone will hear, and Joe can have another chance. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

You asked for letters on the positive side of family life. May I share with you and your readers the following note enclosed in our anniversary card, along with a pair of Broadway theater tickets:

WHAT ARE "GOOD" PARENTS

Good parents are the ones who spend their extra money on their children, and at the same time tell them not to spend any of their allowances on them.

They are the ones who drive you to places out of the way, acting as though it's no trouble and, at the same time, tell you it's unnecessary to go out of your way for them.

They're the ones who smile at your petty problems, while listening, and try to make you see they're not the end of the world. Sometimes you think they "just don't understand" — but they do.

They are the ones who restrict you from certain activities "for your own good," but little do you realize at the time it is for your own good.

This was written by our daughter when she was 16. I'd like to add my thoughts on — WHAT IS A "GOOD" DAUGHTER?

She's thoughtful and loving to those around her, but doesn't complain if they are inadvertently thoughtless of her.

She adds music and laughter wherever she goes and is a delight to have around, even though many times you wish she'd turn down the stereo or play the piano a bit softer — or lose her radio.

She does favors for her brothers, even though they act like teenage boys — which is more conducive to mayhem than kindness.

After the thrill of getting her driving license has worn off, she'll still offer to hop in the car and drive to the store for items you've forgotten.

She has often accepted our judgment about certain restrictions, without an argument, and later been able to say, "You were right."

The list is endless, but mainly she thinks of us as people, not merely parents. And we are very — LUCKY

LUCKY:

I think everyone is lucky in your family — and it isn't just "luck!" Congratulations! — SUE

DEAR READERS:

Sudden thought: Why don't all you people who appreciate your family members but haven't said so in a long time, write little notes like the above and pin them on the Christmas tree? They might be the nicest gifts received this year — and so inexpensive! — HELEN

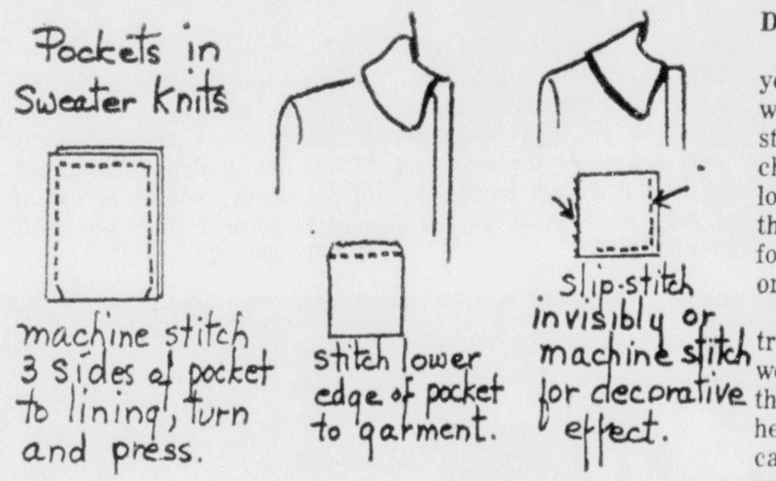
SEW SIMPLE

Patch Pockets The Easy Way

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)



Pockets in Sweater Knits
machine stitch 3 sides of pocket to lining, turn and press.
stitch lower edge of pocket to garment.
slip-stitch invisibly or machine stitch for decorative effect.

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there a simple way to make pockets for those sweater knit shirts? I want the patch pocket look, but I find it so very difficult to get my pockets straight and even.

MRS. S.D.

DEAR MRS. S.D.,

Try this method. I think you will find it "sew simple" and have good results every time.

Use a lightweight woven underlining and cut it the same size as your pocket. Machine stitch around the two sides and the top. Angle your machine stitching in slightly at the end that isn't stitched, making the lower end slightly narrower.

Grade seams, clip excess from corners and turn the pocket right side out. Press edges flat. Place pocket right side down with lower seam allowance over the line for your finished pocket. Machine stitch across lower end only on the seam allowance. Next, flip the pocket up, pin and slip stitch permanently to your sweater. If you prefer machine stitching instead of hand stitching, this can also be done. This is a real time saver, and it works easily and well.

MRS. EDGAR Etzold, McPherson, Kan., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"Invariably, pattern instructions suggest stitching the darts as the first step in constructing a dress or blouse. Since this is the one area where an adjustment is often necessary but cannot be determined until the garment is in the final stage of completion, I have learned that by basting the darts instead of sewing them, it is much simpler to change. If no adjustment is needed, it is also very simple to complete the final stitching from the basting stitch as a final step."

Another tip on knits to add to the columns I hope you have saved so you can breeze through your next knit project.

If your knit is the squiggly kind that just squirms around when you try to stitch darts and the zipper, your worries are over. Just purchase a roll of hair setting tape (a thin paper, the kind you paste right over pin curls) and apply it right next to your machine stitching line. This will stabilize the knit, your sewing machine will ride over the paper and avoid pushing the knit out of shape.

If you understand this correctly, you will not stitch through this paper, but instead, right next to it. It is equally simple to remove when the stitching is completed. It can actually be used more than once effectively.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am a working woman with a limited clothing allowance. I find several good wool dresses in my closet, all with short sleeves. This doesn't seem to be the look for this year. Is there any way I can update these dresses and still get some wear out of them?

CLARE L.

DEAR CLARE,

Yes, with very little effort, you can change your simple wool dresses to this year's styles. I would suggest you change them to the jumper look. This requires removing the sleeves, adding a finished fold-over braid to the armholes, or a bias facing.

There are so many attractive trims available today with the wool look. Try to add some of these to the neckline, belt or hemline. This will give a more casual look to your jumpers and make them look more professional. Now you can wear them with the matte jersey body shirts, or any kind blouse you prefer. Nothing could be newer and more fun to make.

Agnew Lights Nation's Yule Tree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, braving a cold drizzle and ignoring a small group of antiwar activists, officially lit the 70-foot national Christmas tree Friday.

Before throwing the switch to light the Englemann spruce, Agnew said "the long journey toward worldwide peace is now nearer to its goal because America has led the way and has not turned its back from her responsibility in the world community."

The annual tree-lighting ceremony, which opens a 10-day "Pageant of Peace," was held on the ellipse, a park just south of the White House. President Nixon earlier held a reception in the White House for about 1,000 supporters.

Agnew told the crowd watching the ceremonies that U.S. prisoners of war in Southeast Asia were in the prayers of all Americans.

"As we pray for these men and the other Americans who have suffered the adversities of war," he said, "we can be grateful that because of their sacrifices and American's steadfastness, the promise of peace burns brighter this Christmas than during any we have known in recent years."

As Agnew was speaking, antiwar protesters circulated petitions calling on Nixon to sign the nine-point peace agreement with North Vietnam and sang "peace" carols.

At the White House reception, Nixon, with his wife Pat and daughter Julie Eisenhower, greeted 500 couples who supported his re-election. "I want to say thank you," Nixon told guest after guest as he stood in a receiving line.

The gathering culminated a series of receptions given by the Nixon's this week in honor of what the White House calls their "new majority" political supporters.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the reception guests came "from all walks of life."

Morton (left) looked on last night as Eric Watt, 10, of Camp Springs, Md., threw the switch to light the national Christmas tree in ceremonies on the ellipse behind the White House. Astronauts Ready For Trip Home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — America — the spaceship and the nation — bids farewell today to the moon and an era.

Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt were set to fire the command ship's main rocket engine at 6:31 p.m. EST to break the orbital grasp of lunar gravity for the last time and begin the 68-hour trip home.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga was standing by in the South Pacific to retrieve the last men of Apollo and their priceless 249-pound treasure of moon specimens Tuesday afternoon.

During their last few swings around the moon, the spaceborne observers spotted a mysterious patch of rusty-hued craters near the southwestern rim of the Sea of Serenity. This is west of the Taurus-Littrow Valley where Cernan and Schmitt lived for three days.

"Man, we're starting to see an orange moon now," Cernan shouted as the spacecraft America swept 75 miles above the moon's front face.

As it did, instruments in the spacecraft searched for hot spots on the lunar surface which might indicate volcanic activity or rich deposits of radioactive material. They measured the extremely thin lunar atmosphere and probed with radar waves one mile into the moon to map subsurface structure and detect underground water or mineral deposits if they exist.

Scientists and engineers have been unanimous so far in their praise of the three astronauts and their space machinery.

Flight Director Neil Hutchinson said Friday that Apollo 17 would complete the orbital surveillance today "with an incredible record of accomplishment."

"I suspect we've come out with, by and large, just about 100 per cent on everything," he said.

Still ahead is a spacewalk Evans will perform 200,000 miles above Earth Sunday to retrieve a mile and a half of film from the two mapping cameras.

Evans orbited the moon alone in relative obscurity while Cernan and Schmitt were exploring the surface Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two of eight explosive charges the two explorers left behind on the lunar surface exploded on schedule late Friday and the television camera the astronauts used showed one blast as a sharp white flash.

The detonations sent vibrations ringing through the upper lunar crust to be recorded by seismometers for study by geophysicists. The seismic signals will tell something about subsurface makeup.

The reports from orbit of orange-stained craters tied in with the discovery Wednesday of orange soil on the rim of a small, deep crater at the Apollo 17 landing site. Scientists believe that crater was an extinct volcanic vent and the orange material was minerals oxidized by the escape of water vapor associated with the volcano.

Schmitt said the orange depressions in the Sea of Serenity looked as if meteoroids had punched through the gray lunar soil and excavated orange and red-brown material from below. In addition, he said, there was a rimless depression with colored debris streaming down its walls.

"My goodness, there's another crater we'll have to look at," said Schmitt, the first professional geologist to go to the moon.

Cernan assured fascinated geologists back at the mission control center in Houston that they weren't seeing things.

"Just so you're fully aware we're not ... getting color blind up here, this last one Jack was talking about was not even subtle. It had that orange-brown hue to it without any question at all."

The mission closed America's lunar exploration program for many years. Dr. William R. Muehlberger, an Apollo geologist, said he was glad it was coming to an end so he would have some time to analyze the immense amount of data returned by six lunar landings.

"We have an invaluable chance over the next 10 years to study and analyze this incredible wealth of data and find out what we really know about the moon and find out what we want to ask when we start sending rockets and men there again," he said.

Tree Pruner Is Awarded $2 Million In Accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Brooklyn tree pruner paralyzed from the waist down when a high voltage cable fell on him was awarded $2,175,000 Friday.

Edward Miner, 27, is now a paraplegic confined to a wheelchair as a result of the injuries he suffered Aug. 15, 1969, while working for the Floral Park Landscaping Co. of Floral Park, N.Y. The wire was part of the Long Island Lighting Co. (LILCo.) system.

Miner's attorney, Jacob Fuchsberg, said the lighting company was negligent for failing to insulate its high voltage lines.

"The reason utilities do not insulate their lines is because they put money above public safety," Fuchsberg said.

LILCo. contended that all high voltage lines throughout the country are uninsulated and that its lines conform to industry standards.

It awarded Miner $2 million for his injuries and $175,000 to his wife, Linda, 22, for the loss of her husband's services. The Miners have two children, ages 4 and 5.

In a cross complaint, the jury decided Miner's employer was 5 per cent negligent for not asking the utility to shut off the current in the area where he was working. The landscape company was ordered to pay about $108,000.

the board to revamp the county hearing procedure so minor items, such as land division and use permit appeals, are not heard by both the planning commission and board of supervisors.

"There are just too many minor items coming up on the agendas," he said, adding it eats up staff time to have employees waiting for an item to be heard.

"Have some hearings stop at the planning commission level or bypass the commission and come directly to the board. That would save one hearing at least," he said.

Both von Gundell and Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, proposed more use of part-time employees to replace permanent employees.

Von Gundell said part-time employees would be both less expensive (no fringe benefits) and more efficient since they wouldn't be in the 8-to-5 workday routine. He added that some of his regular employees would probably prefer working part-time.

Others addressing the board included County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel, who said state law dictated the operation of his office; Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez and County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini, who said tax returns this year will produce $100,000 over the revenue estimates in their budgets; Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, who said his department was already in the process of "streamlining."

Also, Police-Community Relations Director Bella Aaron, who called for more departmental autonomy, and Public Defender Harold J. Truett, who urged careful study of law enforcement needs.

Supervisors Louis H. Baar and Michael Wornum were absent from yesterday's meeting.

A special session of the Marin Transit District board, made up of supervisors and two city councilmen, was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum.

The meeting, slated to consider a special bus contract with Marin Transit Systems of Marin City, will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. during the board of supervisors' meeting.

OBITUARIES

ALMA SCHAFER

Alma M. Schafer of San Rafael, who had lived in Marin since 1904, died yesterday after collapsing at her home at 205 Greenfield Avenue.

Miss Schafer, 83, was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. She had a history of heart disease, according to Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas.

Miss Schafer was the last survivor of her family. Her father, Philip, and one of her brothers, Philip Jr., worked for Sloan's furniture store in San Francisco, making furniture for a total of about 75 years.

Two sisters and another brother, none of whom ever married, preceded her in death.

Miss Schafer worked as secretary for a plumbing firm in San Francisco before retiring many years ago.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael.

Funeral will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

DR. HAMREN

Memorial service for Dr. John M. Hamren, 48, of Lucas Valley, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Treasure Island Naval Station chapel.

Dr. Hamren died Thursday when his car crashed into a tree near Brentwood in Contra Costa County and caught fire.

He was a psychiatrist who practiced in Vallejo.

Dr. Hamren was born in New Jersey and had lived in California 23 years. The family home is at 13 Zephyr Court.

He was a commander in the Naval Reserve and was a member of the American Psychiatric Association and the Vallejo Medical Society. He also had belonged to Alpha Omega Alpha.

He is survived by his wife, Joan; two sons, Jonathan M. and Jeffrey S. Hamren, and his sister, Jill Willey of Palo Alto. He was the son of Friendly S. Lucas, also of Palo Alto.

The family prefers memorial contributions to Sunny Hills in San Anselmo.

BLANCA MEJIA

Blanca Luz Mejia, 69, of 301 San Sebastian Way, Novato, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She was born and reared in Guatemala, coming to the U.S. 22 years ago and working as a milliner in San Francisco until she retired four years ago. She had lived in Novato since last April.

Survivors are a daughter, Thelma Olgiati of Novato; two brothers, Jose M. Mejia and Humberto Mejia; two sisters, Carmen Mejia and Trinidad Guerra, all of Guatemala, and a grandchild.

Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato. Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Novato. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

CHARLES GERBIC

Private Mass of the Resurrection has been held at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax for Charles C. Gerbic of San Anselmo, who was killed Nov. 28 in a jetliner crash in Moscow.

Gerbic, 40, was manager of the engineering development section of Grove Valve and Regulator Co., an Emeryville-based firm. He was on his way from Russia to Japan on business.

Gerbic was born in San Francisco but lived most of his life in Marin. He was a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the University of Nevada.

He was a member of the Marin Chapter of Professional Engineers, American Chemical Society, American Welding Society and the California Metal Trades Association.

Gerbic is survived by his wife, Carole Miron Gerbic of the family home at 15 Caletta Avenue; three children, Charles, David and Jeffrey Gerbic, also of the family home; his grandmother, Mrs. Marie Hansen of San Francisco; a brother, Leo Gerbic, and two sisters, Mrs. Virginia Slivka and Mrs. Beryl Mauk.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

E. E. ANDERSON

Ernest Eugene Anderson, retired welder who lived in Woodacre, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was 70.

Anderson was born in Kansas and had lived in California since 1942. He and his family had lived at 110 Redwood Drive for 22 years.

Anderson had his own welding business in San Rafael until he retired about four years ago.

He was a member of the Eagles lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Nellie M. Anderson; three sons, Donald E. and Andrew Gary Anderson, both of Woodacre, and Roger G. Anderson of San Rafael, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

The family prefers contributions to charity.

ROBERT BARNETT ROTHSCHILD JR.

Funeral for Robert Barnett Rothschild Jr., whose construction firm built the $5.5 million administration wing of the Marin Civic Center, was held yesterday in Palo Alto.

Rothschild, 65, of Atherton, died Thursday in a Palo Alto hospital after a short illness. He was head of Rothschild-Raffin Inc., general contractors.

He was born in Berkeley and graduated from San Francisco's Lick-Wilmerding School, and the University of California at Berkeley. In 1944 Rothschild and Edward Haas formed the firm of Haas and Rothschild. In 1951 the firm of Rothschild-Raffin Inc. was formed.

Rothschild is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; two sons, Peter Alan Rothschild of San Francisco and Robert B. Rothschil III of Menlo Park; a brother, August Rothschild of San Francisco, and three grandchildren.

✓REDUCED $1000—3 BDRM., 2 BATH—$43,950

Reduced $1000 for quick sale to coincide with appraiser's evaluation of $43,950, and that's good motivation to invite your offers for this immaculately kept home. Heavy shag carpeting throughout plus 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, breakfast room, and modern electric kitchen. Plenty of room for a large swimming pool in the fenced backyard. Submit offer and move in immediately in time to enjoy the Christmas holidays here. EVES: HENRY HICKS — 897-2210.

★NEW LISTING—3 BDRM., 2 BATH—$44,500

It's a new home with step-down family & dining room, new carpet and drapes, modern electric kitchen, completely insulated, brick patio, oak trees, and a pool site. And you'll enjoy the interior of this 3 bedroom home featuring family room, dining room, breakfast room, 2 baths, fireplace. Priced below replacement value. EVES: JOHN MARTINS — 479-1079.

✓✓11 ROOMS—6 BDRMS., 3 BATHS—$73,500

And we are certain that it can not be duplicated today for less than the listed price; however the contractor-owner is a reasonable man and will consider all offers — even the ridiculous ones! Rather than trying to find the appropriate superlatives to describe this custom built home, why not pick up the phone and call one of our competent sales staff members and come take a look? You'll do yourself and your family a favor. EVES: HENRY HICKS — 897-2210.

CHRISTMAS COMES TO COMMUTERLAND

Six-year-old David Giannini, a first grade student at San Rafael's Coleman School, intently pours a lot of concentration into his work decorating the Sausalito ferry for Christmas. He and his classmates worked for months to create decorations for the ferry, and spent several hours yesterday putting them up as the vessel went about its way between Sausalito and San Francisco. The decorations will be up through the holidays. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Repairmen Busy On BART Cars

OAKLAND (UPI) — The $1 billion San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit system (BART) is having so many problems that it's keeping the repairmen busy.

BART General Manager B. R. Stokes said Friday that of the more than 90 sleek, aluminum cars delivered for passenger service only a third have been put into use.

Stokes said he had told Rohr Industries Inc., Chula Vista, the car manufacturers, of the "litany" of defects that included problems with air conditioning, disc brakes, sticky doors, erratic lights, short circuits and other equipment failures.

The system's repair shops were working as fast as possible to keep cars in repair for use on the side of the bay where BART has already begun operations.

Bikers Encounter Pleasant People

By LANCE CARDEN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The same hospitality that once greeted the man on horseback now awaits the cross-country bicyclist.

Like the traditional man in the saddle, he is constantly at the mercy of the elements, and his progress is always affected by the terrain he covers. Although relatively self-sufficient, he also is sometimes dependent on assistance from the farmers, shopkeepers, and housewives he meets along the road.

For instance, on our first night out among the scrubby sagebrush of the eastern Oregon desert there was a sudden thunderstorm. Taken by surprise, with tents in our saddlebags, my partner and I packed up and hit the road.

We were soaked to the skin by the time we reached shelter (a gas station a few miles away), and Tim had nothing dry to wear.

However, we were not only welcomed into the dilapidated station, but when the storm let up, Tim rode off in a dry, if ill-fitting pair of jeans.

"He has more jeans than he knows what to do with," said the wife of the station owner as she gave Tim the jeans, and her husband — shy and embarrassed — pretended not to notice.

The bicyclist can travel about twice as far in a day as a man on a horse. Some racers average well over 100 miles. The average bicyclist, however, is capable of only about 50 miles daily. The man on horseback, by comparison, can expect to average about 25 miles.

The cyclist's cuisine is frequently limited by the size of his saddlebags, which are strapped onto a special carrier above the rear wheel of the bike.

He does not have to graze or feed his mount, but the bike must be carefully watched — as bicycle thieves now are more plentiful than horse thieves.

In Idaho, we asked an old man sitting outside a small house if we could camp on his land. He said he thought we could, and showed us a suitable place. No sooner had we set up camp, however, than the old man was back.

"I've run into some opposition," he said. "The man living in the trailer back there" (pointing to a trailer near the house) "thinks you're going to bother his dogs and keep us up all night."

At that moment a chunky bull of a man appeared at the trailer door and began to walk toward us slowly and deliberately.

"I'll tell ya what," he said, "go on round the bend in the road till ya get to where you see a footbridge across the creek to the right. The land there don't belong to nobody."

Following his advice, we bedded down across the stream from the road. We were just about to turn in when a red pickup stopped beside the footbridge and four figures emerged: a man, two youngish women, and a child. A powerful voice boomed across the stream.

"You all bedded down OK?"

"It's that big guy," whispered Tim.

"The girls fixed ya some sandwiches . . . thought maybe ya missed your supper."

The child, a boy, crossed the bridge with a large shopping bag hugged to his chest.

"Thank you very much," said Tim. "We've had some dinner already . . . Maybe you'd like to share this?"

"There's some milk and ice water there for you in the morning," came the reply, ignoring Tim's invitation to cross the bridge. "It's real cow's milk."

The boy handed me the heavy bag. I thanked him and watched him step cautiously back across the bridge.

"We'll return these jars in the morning," I said.

"Don't bother. Keep on down this dirt road two miles and you'll be back on the highway."

Silence stretched itself across the stream. The two women and boy started walking toward the truck, but the man stood his ground — as though unsure what to say to a pair of tramps on bicycles.

Finally, returning to the pickup, where the boy sat perched on someone's lap, he turned around and shouted back.

"Good luck!"

Do you harbor a secret desire to spend a few weeks in the saddle? Try the feel of a 10-speed with 40 pounds of baggage behind you and the freedom of the highway ahead. You can expect a warm response.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

A Guilty Person Is Own Hangman

It is said that every guilty person is his own hangman. Often the guilty person will do some odd, illogical thing and end up convicting himself.

The police arrested Ralph and Perry three months after Diana, a narcotics addict, was murdered. The evidence against both was weak and circumstantial. In fact, the police considered dropping the charges a few days after their arrest because the evidence was so weak.

But before they could be turned loose, the two tried to escape from jail. They were captured just moments before a clean getaway. At the trial of the two defendants, the jury heard about their escape attempt. Defense attorneys objected, but the jury was allowed to hear of the escape. Both were convicted largely because of the evidence of the abortive escape attempt.

The defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment and they appealed. Their attorneys said it was an error to bring in the evidence of the escape. The defendants lost again.

"Evidence of flight is an inference of consciousness of guilt, and constitutes an implied admission." Flight tends to connect the accused with the commission of the offense. If the defendant knows he is suspected of commiting a crime, and he flees, he brings guilt upon himself.

This is true too where the accused person tries to conceal his identity or to hide. This is also legal evidence pointing to a consciousness of guilt.

In another case Fred Freebee was arrested and questioned about a crime. Fred talked freely but denied he knew anything about the crime. His alibi: he was out of town. He gave details as to his whereabouts and even gave a hotel registration card.

The police checked out the alibi and it turned out to be false. The evidence was produced in court and he was convicted. The false alibi was motivated by fear of detection. It is circumstantial evidence of guilt.

The same happens when the accused tries to "buy" a witness or juror, or attempts to suppress evidence against him. Sending a letter to the complaining witness to "take it easy" or to send him a threat not to testify is circumstantail evidence of guilt.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Jaycees Told To Change Name

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce must change its name.

The San Francisco group has pulled out of both the national and state chambers.

U.S. District Judge Charles B. Renfrew issued a permanent order Friday declaring that the San Francisco group was infringing on the national group's trademark by continued use of the name.

End Of Program Brings Study Time

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — A space agency geologist says the end of the Apollo program will give scientists time to study the wealth of data collected in its six lunar landings and to develop questions they need answered the next time man goes to the moon.

Dr. William R. Muehlberger said Friday scientists would like more moon flights. But since there will be no more for many years, he said, scientists should take advantage of the hiatus to study the material they already have.

Today is Saturday, Dec. 16, the 351st day of 1972 with 15 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

English playwright and factor, Noel Coward, was born Dec. 16, 1899.

On this day in history:

In 1773, American patriots disguised as Indians boarded a British ship in Boston Harbor and hurled the contents of 342 chests of tea into the water. The demonstration, protesting the British tax on tea, is inscribed in history as "The Boston Tea Party."

In 1916, Gregory Rasputin, called the "Mad Monk" of Russia, was lured to a palace in Petrogad and murdered by poisoning. He was said to have wielded powerful and strange influence over the Russian Czar and Czarina — Nicholas and Alexandra.

In 1944, the "Battle of the Bulge" erupted as German forces launched a great counter-offensive in the Ardennes Forest in Belgium as World War II drew toward a close.

In 1960, two airliners collided over New York Harbor, crashed to the earth, and killed 131 persons.

A thought for the day: Irish novelist George Moore said, "The wrong way always seems the more reasonable."

Paternity Suit Payment Ruled

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ordered a Bolinas attorney to pay $125 a month toward the support of the 2-year-old daughter of a Marin public defender.

In his order, Judge Joseph G. Wilson said attorney Paul D. Kayfetz accepted the child as his and ruled the young girl a legitimate child.

Deputy Pubic Defender Gaile O'Connor had filed suit earlier this week asking for the order on behalf of her daughter, Sharon.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Residents of Backwoods Town Suffer From Urban Pressures

In the September issue of Medical Opinion, Skip Rozin tells of changes that have occurred among the patients of Dr. Lundy Adams. Jeremiah, Ky., is hillbilly country with its feuds, moonshine whisky, and mining interests. Dr. Adams is 59 and has lived there all his life, except while attending college and medical school. In his opinion, the mountain people have changed during the past 25 years and are now plagued with the same pressures as urbanites in Chicago, New York, or Los Angeles.

BEFORE 1932, the mountain people were independent, self-reliant and poor, but wouldn't take a penny from anyone — under any circumstances. All this changed when the government began to interfere with their lives.

It started with work programs on the proverty gangs. The people got a few dollars and were issued free commodities. This led to "relief" as we now know it. When a man was laid off, he no longer looked for another job, but left his wife and children so they could get on welfare. This tended to disrupt family life.

THE CHILDREN were allowed to do as they wished and the parents didn't seem to care. As permissiveness increased, so did behavior problems in schools. Drinking and drug abuse were followed by promiscuity, vandalism, and murder. Malnutrition was the result of improper supervision of diets.

According to Dr. Adams, as soon as life was made easier, complaints of aniety, lack of sleep, and severe depression became more common. Appetites began to suffer and more and more children became anemic. "Bills are not paid but every house has a new Ford and color TV . . . none of which is paid for."

SEVENTY FIVE out of every 100 patients need some kind of psychiatric care. Suicides are up. Dr. Adams is seeing more people with peptic ulcers and other gastrointestinal complaints. "Just like Chicago and New York."

Jeremiah has not changed much aside from the price paid for a century of coal mining — the stripped off mountains, caved in hills, and occasional muddy stream. Its economy is gone, even though many of the hills are green and quiet and full of game.

PARASITE INFECTION

N.O. writes: What is the best treatment fo a parasitical infection?

REPLY

There are many different parasites that plague man and the treatment must be tailored to "fit the worm." Alcopara and Mintezol are used for hookworms, whereas piperazine citrate may be prescribed for large roundworms. Pinworms respond to pyrvinium pamoate or the piperazine salts. Quinacrine hydrochloride is used to eliminate tapeworms.

DEPRESSION CAUSE

C. N. writes: Does hardening of the arteries cause mental depression?

REPLY

Yes, but psychological and emotional reasons are a thousand times more likely possibilities.

BURN TREATMENT

Mrs. D. S. writes: If a woman burns her hands severely at the stove, what is the best first aid measure before the doctor arrives?

REPLY

Put the hands in cold or ice water.

Texas Boosts Limit On Oil Production

By PHILIP W. McKINSEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Without fanfare, the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates production from that state's oil wells, has moved its limit on how much oil can be pumped out of the ground up to 100 per cent of an oil field's maximum efficient production.

Demand for petroleum products has finally overwhelmed any need for the commission to restrict production through its pro-rationing programs. Notes a recent Dallas Federal Reserve Bank study: "Without a drastic change in price conditions or import policies, there is little likelihood that the commission will again be called on to limit the output from fields in the state because of insufficient markets."

It was the end of an era of sorts, and it renders moot an argument among economists whether the pro-rationing system has boosted oil prices over the years. The system received prominent mention on the list of structural problems seen contributing to inflation that was compiled by the Council of Economic Advisers early in the Nixon administration.

Dr. Hendrik Houthakker, then a member of the CEA, infuriated a number of oil-state congressmen and senators with his caustic remarks about the system and its inflationary consequences.

The commission had held production below capacity for more than a quarter of a century, though not just as a prop to prices. Slower rates of production often can result in more oil being recovered from a field, which in turn means more tax revenues for the state.

"In the early days of the Texas fields, conservation was difficult," the bank study recalls. "In the absence of production controls, producers pumped oil as fast as they could, regardless of the future of the field. Producers owning only part of a field could not be kept from draining off their neighbors' reserves. As a result, even though prices were low, the drive was to deliver oil before the price — or the reservoir — fell even farther."

Oil was produced in those days even though there were no buyers on occasion. "In the heat of cutthroat competition in early Texas fields, oil was withdrawn at damaging rates — often faster than companies could transport, refine, or even store the oil," it continues. "Earthen dams were often used to hold crude, wasting oil, polluting water, and creating fire hazards."

When crude prices fell to 10 cents a barrel during the depression years, martial law had to be declared to keep peace among various producers looking for buyers. It led directly to the pro-rationing scheme.

Producers still will not be free to pump out the oil at just any rate. The commission sets the barrels-per-day, called maximum efficient production, for each established field, which is the limit at which wells can be produced without damaging the field and lowering the ultimate total recovery of oil. The state is interested in this, in part, because its various taxes on oil production are tied to the amount of oil produced.

The state wants slower production for higher total oil recovery and thus a higher total tax take. This is an issue in the pending development of Alaska's North Slope oil field and probably will lead to construction of a gas pipeline from the North Slope through Canada to tha lower 48 states.

To insure maximum recovery of oil, Alaska prohibits the flaring, or open burning, of gas that comes out along with the oil. The producers must pump it back into the ground to maintain pressure in the oil reservoir, which helps push the oil out of the ground, or find a market for it.

Texas also restricts the flaring of natural gas, which may be more of a problem for producers there now whose fields are not tied to a pipeline network. When production levels were lower, the bank says, "pro-rationing took care of most problems of conserving natural gas."

The Texas situation and the 100 per cent allowable serve to underline the growing shortage of oil reserves within the United States relative to ever rising demand.

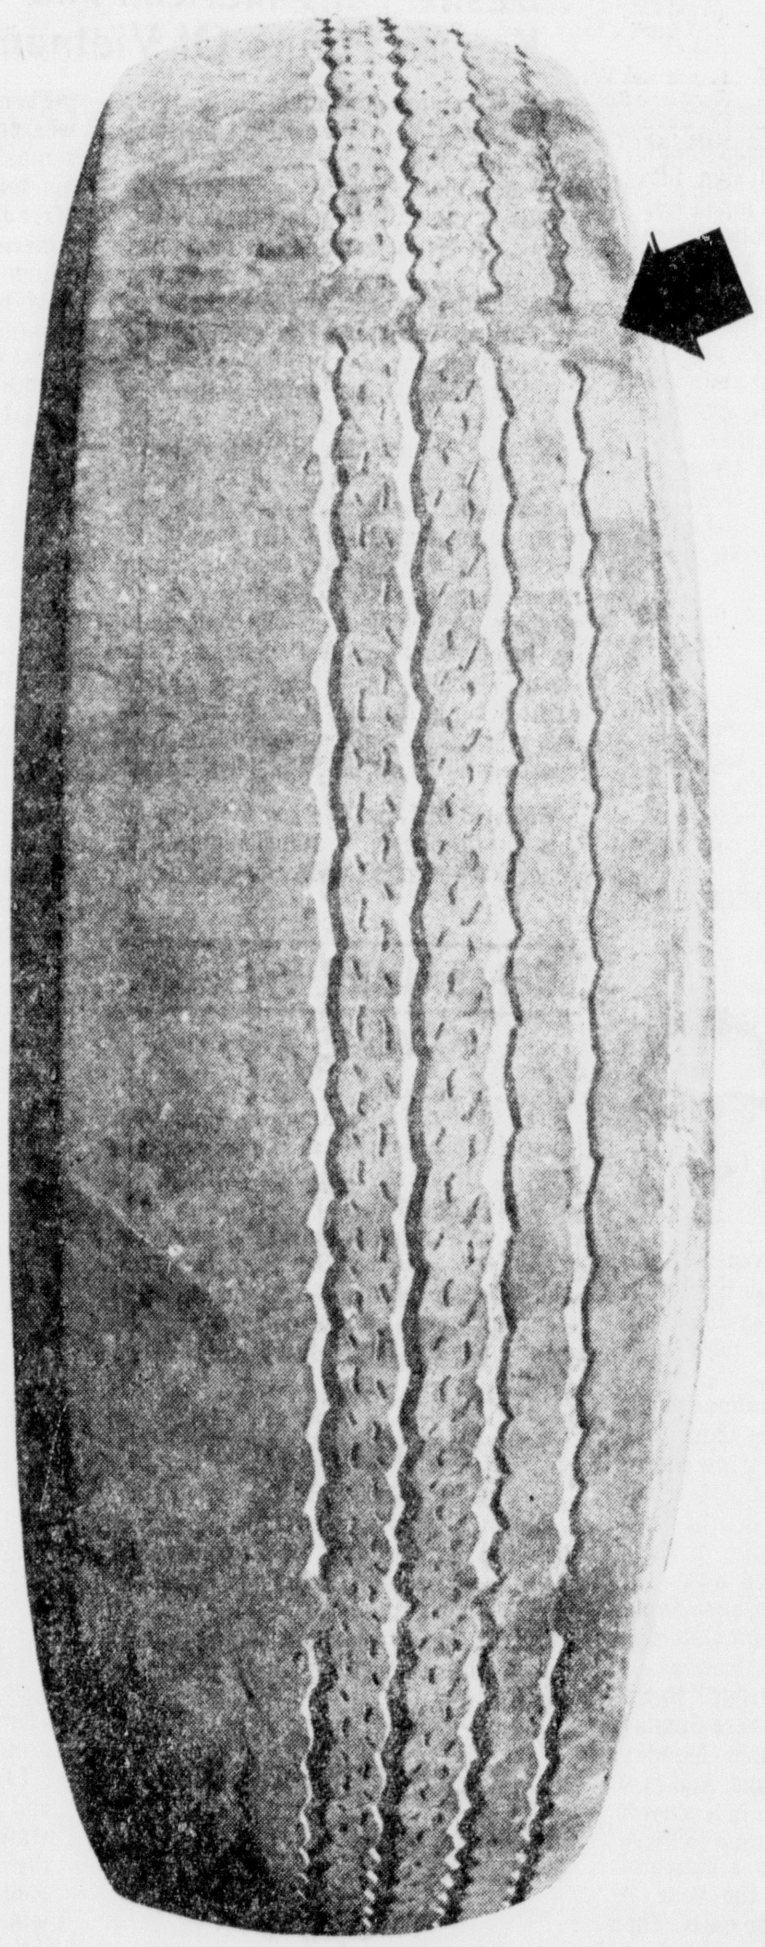
TWO SECONDS TO LIVE, or SLICK TIRES ON WET ROADS



When you're driving on slick tires on a wet road you're in a menacingly dangerous condition that greatly reduces the control you have of your car.

When slick tires meet road water they hydroplane, the same way a waterski scoots across the water's surface. When you attempt to change lanes or make a turn and these conditions prevail, you may feel that sickening moment when you are not in control and your car is taking you to your death.

Your tires don't have to be baby-skin smooth, either. The arrow on the tire to the left shows the dangerous, tread-wear bar that might be the last warning you get that your tires should be replaced.

Reduce the danger of driving on wet roads by having enough tread on your tires to grip a wet road and by traveling at reduced speeds. Drive easily, don't make any sharp turns or abrupt stops, or accelerate too rapidly. Follow these tips and you will greatly increase your control, when you need it most.

California Vehicle Code: Section 34500 -

(b) No person shall use on a highway a pneumatic tire when the tire is so worn that less than one thirty-second (1/32) of an inch tread depth remains in any two adjacent grooves at any location on the tire.

MARC Needs Our Help At Christmas

WE SHOULD BE doing more — much more — to help the mentally retarded among us.

For at least 15 years a handful of dedicated volunteers have struggled valiantly under the name of MARC (Marin Aid to Retarded Children) to improve the lot of mentally retarded children and adults in Marin. Many have been helped over the years. But MARC has never had the resources to help ALL who need it.

In this joyous Christmas season more of us should give thought to helping MARC provide help to those who need it.

The National Association for Retarded Children calculates there are about six million retarded men, women and children in the United States. Among our Marin population of 225,000, we must have nearly 7,000 mentally retarded.

MARC is justifiably proud of its programs which help a few dozen. If we all shared MARC workers' anguish at their inability to help the rest of the 7,000, perhaps we would be motivated to provide more support for MARC and others in the field.

THERE WAS A time when mentally retarded children and adults were hidden in shame. Fortunately, our society has begun to mature and now, more and more, we are facing up to the problem.

This change in attitude led to the founding of MARC here in Marin.

Now we know that mental retardation is not hereditary. We know it is caused mostly by illness, accident or birth defect. Recent research indicates that sometimes mental retardation is more apparent than real — the result of educational deprivation and other cultural and environmental factors.

Researchers also have learned about "PKU", a metabolic disorder which causes mental retardation and which can be treated by a special diet to prevent brain damage.

We know that mentally retarded children and adults can be helped, sometimes dramatically, by special education and special training.

The National Association for Retarded Children has concluded that 25 out of every 30 retarded persons can hold productive jobs if they are given proper training and education. Most can become partly or completely self-supporting.

The national association sponsors research programs to prevent retardation. Common measles, the childhood disease, is a villain. Four million children get measles in the U.S. each year. Five hundred die from measles encephalitis (brain inflammation) and measles pneumonia. Some have permanent brain damage, causing retardation in some but not all cases.

Measles vaccination could bring all this to a sudden stop. Every child between the age of nine months and 12 years should be vaccinated against measles. But 12 million American youngsters in this age group have not yet been vaccinated.

We hope Marin parents are more concerned about the welfare of their children; but it is possible that 10,000 or more children in Marin still do not yet have measles protection.

Measles can be stamped out, just as polio was virtually ended a few years ago. The end of measles will bring a sharp reduction in mental retardation.

If you are a parent whose children have not yet been immunized against measles, you cannot give your children a more valuable Christmas present than measles vaccination.

MARC IS, of course, not the only source of help for the retarded in Marin. The county schools office operates special education programs and provides special training.

Cedars Development School in Ross and Forest Meadows Development Center in San Rafael are especially oriented to the needs of the retarded. Over the years, few federal grants have helped locally, and the State Department of Social Welfare has participated.

MARC has received on-again off-again support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The Marin Deputy Sheriffs' Association has been one of the heaviest contributors of financial support.

LARC, the Ladies Auxiliary of MARC, has provided invaluable assistance.

Last spring MARC received a couple of private grants totalling nearly $50,000 which made possible the employment of the first full-time executive director.

AID TO THE retarded is moving ahead now on three fronts. Marin House provides a kind of half-way house between the protective shelter of home and complete independence for young retarded women preparing to become independent and self-supporting.

The Big R Respite Home in Novato provides developmental care for retarded children for short periods for their parents to take a brief break from the rigors of rearing retarded children.

Marin Enterprises is a MARC-backed effort to establish a landscape contracting business employing only mentally retarded workers. Some of the mentally retarded young men involved initially have made spectacular progress toward becoming self-supporting and independent.

MARC and the other programs aimed at helping the mentally retarded in Marin ARE accomplishing great things. But too many of the nearly 7,000 who need our help are not yet getting it.

May we not forget this when the Christmas spirit of giving is at work within us and when we contemplate New Year's resolutions.

Graham Interview Honest And Accurate

I wish to express my profound gratitude to you for allowing the publication of the article on Palestine written by Pat Angle. Her interview with Dr. Finlay M. Graham is without doubt the most honest, most accurate piece of journalism that I have read about Palestine. I have been in the United States for more than 24 years. Throughout these times, the U.S. press have been biased, distorted, malicious and grossly unjust to us. . .

Merchants' Advertising Sometimes Misleads

In regard to your article in last week's paper about shopping in Marin County. I went to a store directly after reading of a sale in one of your advertisements, only to learn that the item "was not in stock" or "not available at this time." In which case, I was told I would be given a rain check for a future, unspecified purchase.

I don't believe merchants should advertise unless they are sure that the goods are available. Plus — there are a few down-right dishonest business practices, such as not stating "one to a customer" in an advertisement, and later being told in the store itself.

Perhaps these are several more reasons why people don't like shopping in Marin.

Further Medications In Water Suggested

Now that we have changed from merely purifying our water to medicating it, I propose a campaign to add to the water the following:

1. Hair growing medication or nutriment to help keep and grow the receding hair on my son-in-law's receding pate.
2. Arthritis medication for my marvelous mother of 90 years.
3. Wart deterrent for my daughter and me who suffer several warts.
4. Nail medication to strengthen my easily-broken nails.
5. Indigestion medication to help everyone to swallow today's idiocies such as polluting our water by popular vote.

I realize these additives will all be voted down soundly the first time they are presented. The second time however, we will have gained some adherents and it will be a closer vote. The third time 'round we will have gained doctor's approval and publicity will have done its work. . .and it will pass!

Some of us won't like it as we have already too much hair (lip, arms) or do not suffer from arthritis, or like our nails short, or enjoy experimenting with warts or indigestion remedies. But what is best for the few has become best for all! Abide by it!. . .

Don't Get Relaxed Over That Tax Shift

We now have a "tax-shift" enactment, which Governor Reagan will sign into law. I'm sure the Governor is much less happy with this act, a compromise sine qua non, than he professes to be.

Using only the analyses published in the newspapers, it seems that some of us will save on property taxes but pay out most of the savings in income and sales taxes. This is inevitable if state spending is not reduced, so is to be expected.

There has been much said about increasing state aid to schools. How? By using part or all of a current state budget surplus; by using revenue sharing funds from the federal government.

The state budget surplus, even if the accounting is correct, is a one-time bonanza. What about next year?

Federal revenue sharing is a will-o'-the-wisp at best, both as to amount and as to its continued existence. Moreover, it is just money taken from the taxpayer's other pocket. What about next year?

Let's not get all relaxed and cozy over the great tax shift.

If Feminine Santa Calls, Blame The Washington Redskins

WASHINGTON — Santa Claus was sitting in front of his television set on Christmas Eve watching the Redskin-Green Bay Packers playoff game when Mrs. Claus came in.

"Are you going to sit there all day watching that idiotic football game?"

"Will you get out of here and leave me alone?" Santa Claus said.

"But you've got to go to work. The sleigh is piled high with toys and the reindeer are getting very impatient."

"LISTEN, THIS playoff means a lot to me. If the reindeer are cold, they can come in and watch the game with me."

"How can you behave that way? Children all over the world are waiting for you to come down their chimneys tonight. You'll never make it if you don't start now," Mrs. Claus said.

Santa opened another can of beer. "For heaven's sake, woman, can't I relax for a few hours withour your yakking at me?"

"If you don't deliver those toys, they're going to find a new Santa Claus and you're going to be out of a job."

Santa took a swallow. "How did I know they were going to have a playoff game on Christmas Eve? Answer me that! If I had known it, I would have made my deliveries yesterday."

"Yesterday was not Christmas Eve!" Mrs. Claus screamed. "Look at you sitting there in your undershirt, swilling beer, with your fat stomach sticking out! You certainly have the holiday spirit."

"THERE GOES Larry Brown!" Santa yelled. "A 12-yard gain. Now there's a football playr."

"You're not even listening to me. Will you get dressed and get on that stupid sled and go to work?"

"Not until the game is over," Santa said. "I can work any day, but how often do the Redskins get into a playoff game? Do you have any more potato chips to go with this beer?"

"Don't you understand Christmas won't be Christmas if you don't get those toys ditributed? Just think — tomorrow morning millions and millions of children will come downstairs with their hearts beating fast, excitement glistening in their eyes, knees trembling — and what will they find? Nothing. Why? Because Santa Claus was sitting on his fat butt watching a football game."

"That's easy for you to say," Santa said. "But I've been sitting here Sunday after Sunday, not to mention Monday nights, rooting for the Redskins. And now that they've made it and are in a playoff for the Super Bowl, you want me to leave them in the lurch to deliver a bunch of toys on the coldest day of the year. A man has to have priorities. Be quiet. This could be a crucial play."

"ALL RIGHT," said Mrs. Claus, "if you won't leave the TV set, I'll deliver the toys."

"But you don't like to drive a sleigh in icy weather."

Mrs. Claus threw on an overcoat, put on boots, and wrapped a scarf around her head. "It doesn't matter. I'm not going to have those children disappointed."

"Okay," Santa shrugged. "Here's the list. Be careful going over Detroit. It gets very smoggy this time of the year."

Mrs. Claus grabbed the list, stomped out and slammed the door. Santa passed a beer to one of his elves. "Women sure get mad when they see a man enjoying himself. Ho! Ho! Ho!"

Cabinet Reshuffle Leaves Nixon's Landscape Unchanged

WASHINGTON — With the dust kicked up by the re-shuffle slowly settling, the Nixon landscape is curiously unchanged. It is the same only more so.

The admonition of former Gen. John N. Mitchell early in the Nixon presidency, "Watch what we do and not what we say," has a special force. The intention, as solemnly proclaimed, was to spread responsibility in the exercise of power. The end result is very likely to be a greater concentration of decision-making authority in the palace guard in the White House.

First rate men have been assigned to posts where the learning process is long and difficult. Elliot L. Richardson is a prime example. He goes from the vast domain of Health, Education and Welfare to the infinitely greater complexities of the Defense Department.

THE MILITARY TEAM in the Pentagon, with whom President Nixon has long had a close relationship, remains intact with one important addition. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. was jumped over 228 generals who outranked him — 46 lieutenant generals and 182 more senior major generals, to be named vice chief of staff of the Army. This says a lot about the stock pile of generals out of the Vietnam War. As Henry A. Kissinger's able right-hand, Haig has had a close relationship with the President and he can be expected to continue in that relationship.

Whatever else one might say about Melvin Laird, he went to the Pentagon with a broad background of knowledge about military spending through his position on the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense Expenditures. Richardson is the new boy in a very tough school and it will take all his proven capacities to gain mastery over the hierarchy of powerful men who have devoted much time and ingenuity to circumventing the civilians — in theory their superiors.

Inspired reports have it that Richardson will be the front man spending a good bit of his time testifying before Congress while the old boys run the school as before. Other reports which Richardson stoutly denies have him choosing "liberal" types for his team as a challenge to the military.

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce is a conspicuous example of how controls from the power center are likely to be tightened rather than dispersed. In the past more often than not an honorific reward for deserving party faithful, it was given new life by Peter G. Peterson. Coming from the White House and the Council on International Economic Policy, he carried through highly successful negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Rather unceremoniously pushed aside, he is being replaced by a newcomer, Frederick B. Dent, a South Carolina textile manufacturer with the proper hallmarks of St. Paul's School, Yale, and rewards in the family business. Dent led the successful fight for quotas on textile imports. While Japan fought the quota limitations the Japanese economy was strong enough to absorb the loss.

The real losers were the smaller Asian nations that, as a first step in industrial development, had gone in for textiles. It may be merely a coincidence that in certain of these nations dictatorial pwoers have been asserted over the economy.

Dent may not be a protectionist, with the textile quota drive merely a reflex action of manufacturers — and organized labor — convinced they were being undercut by coolie wages in the Far East. But he will have to prove himself in a post in which foreign trade has an increasing importance.

BORN IN KEARNEY, Neb., where his father ran a restaurant, Peterson rose from an executive post in a big advertising agency to become chairman of the board of Bell and Howell, the camera company that has had a meteoric growth. It was from this same firm that Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois jumped into politics in Chicago.

Percy, outstanding in the liberal-moderate wing of his party, has been talked about as a nominee in 1976 despite his insistence that no such though has crossed his mind. Peterson thought in a sense Percy's protege. His dismissal is bound to be interpreted as a cut at the moderates who look with something less than enthusiasm on Spiro Agnew as the inevitable Nixon successor.

Desire For American Aid Key To Future Of Vietnam

Among veteran diplomats these days, the argument is over how long the non-Communist regime in Saigon will last after the American military withdrawal.

Optimists think it may last three years. One or two give it a chance for long-term survival. The majority, insofar as our research goes, seem to think that two years is the probable life span of the present regime, to be followed by a decisive slide into the control of the men from Hanoi.

Of course, the official White House view is more optimistic. The official theory is that if Hanoi honors the terms of the agreement Henry Kissinger is (at this writing) working out, then the Saigon regime can survive indefinitely and the southern part of Vietnam will continue to be independent of and distinct from North Vietnam for a long time ahead. And of course a survival of an independent regime in Saigon would mean a "peace with honor" for President Nixon.

WE SUBMIT that the key factor in all this will turn out to be Hanoi's interest in American technical and economic aid.

There is to be an aid program. That was promised long ago by Lyndon Johnson as bait for a settlement of the war on his terms. Hanoi turned it down when Mr. Johnson made the offer. But an American aid program is part of the deal which Mr. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho have worked out in their series of secret meetings.

But how important is that aid program in the eyes, and economic plans, of the men in control in Hanoi? What do they want most: control of Saigon, indeed of all Indo-China, or economic recovery from the ravages of war?

If recovery is what they want, and if they have been touched by the same desires which are obvious in these days in the leadership in Russia and in Russia's eastern European clients, then they may be deeply influenced in the years ahead by the American aid program.

ALL THROUGH the Communist world in Europe there is a new and vigorous reaching out for the technical skills of the West. Events of recent years have made it plain to the leaders that they cannot afford indefinitely to feed their people on austerity. They want a share in a better life. They want more housing, clothes, motor cars, electric refrigerators, and all the other paraphernalia of the affluent society. They have had puritanical self-denial. Now they want goodies. And their leaders are negotiating with the West for ways and means of providing the goodies. That is why there is a detente now and what detente is all about.

But does this urge yet touch the thinking of men in Hanoi? Who knows the answer? Perhaps Hanoi itself doesn't yet know it. Perhaps it will only discover how much it wants outside help when it begins to taste it. And perhaps then Moscow or Peking or both will decide to offer the aid which otherwise would have come from the United States or Japan.

IT COMES DOWN to the kind of leverage Washington will have in Hanoi when the last American soldier has left South Vietnam and the last American prisoner has been released from North Vietnam.

There will be leverage if Hanoi wants American aid and is willing to take it. There will be no leverage if Hanoi prefers austerity and doctrinal purity.

In other words, no one in Washington can surely calculate now what will be the state of affairs in Saigon two years after the withdrawal. There will be some continuing leverage if Hanoi wants and will accept continuing American aid. But will it?

Actions In The Irish Republic Show Change From Other Days

By PETER C. STUART

"Home rule Rome rule."

Gaudy Irish tricolors.

Graffiti on the walls of Northern Ireland recall simpler days.

Changes now afoot in the neighborhing Irish Republic leave the old, pat inscriptions looking a trifle dated.

The republic — once the heroine of Ulster's Roman Catholic republicans, and the hobgoblin of Protestant loyalists — within just the past two months has:

Arrested Sean MacStiofain, alleged chief of staff of the militant "provisional" wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, and introduced sweeping new legislation to help convict other suspected IRA members.

Closed the Dublin headquarters of the "provisional" IRA's Sinn Fein (political arm).

Successfully prosecuted large numbers of purported terrorists in new, nonjury courts (104 convictions among 139 persons charged so far), chiefly under recently toughened firearms and explosives regulations.

Scheduled a referendum later this month to delete from its constitution the Roman Catholic Church's "special position."

Heard Prime Minister Jack Lynch caution against premature withdrawal of British troops from Ulster, and admit that "immediate unity in Ireland is not a real prospect."

No one, including Lynch, expects these initiatives to drive Britons, Ulstermen, and Irishmen into each other's arms.

The republic, for a start, still stubbornly claims jurisdiction over "the whole island of Ireland." And it bans divorce and birth-control devices, while spending only one-half as much money per capita on social services (education, housing, health, income supplements) as does Northern Ireland.

But government and diplomatic sources here agree that the conciliatory moves in Dublin may stimulate a reexamination of old attitudes — both in London and Ulster.

"The next fortnight is going to be interesting," a Conservative member of the British Parliament who recently visited Northern Ireland, said privately. "Now each individual in Ulster must decide for himself what he wants."

The old reflex allegiance, or hatred, toward the Irish Republic, he explained, may be fading.

The moderation of their (southern) Dublin "ally" may prove particularly painful for the outnumbered Ulster republicans.

"The minority in the North may feel upset," concedes an Irish Embassy official in London. But the Lynch government decided to risk their support, he said, because "subversion within the Irish State itself must come foremost."

He calls the IRA crackdown "entirely a home-front operation."

Even so, it inevitably sends diplomatic ripples churning across the Irish Sea to Britain.

Relations between Britain and its former Irish territory, often stormy, are suddenly becoming almost placid. Dublin had recalled its ambassador during the first three months of this year, but in the past three months the two prime ministers have met twice.

After the most recent session here British Prime Minister Edward Heath cheerily reported the highest level of agreement ever.

The improving relations are traced to Dublin's initiatives — and to the apparent mutual respect developing between the two men.

Heath's government, for its part, now concedes that the Irish Republic has a legitimate interest in Ulster's future. "A settlement," its latest discussion paper states, "must . . . recognize Northern Ireland's position within Ireland as a whole."

It's also dawning upon both governments that they will become partners — economically, at least — in the European Common Market next month. But security repercussions may be more immediate. Pressure on the IRA from their onetime sanctuary in the Republic is expected by Northern Ireland officials to shift terrorism from cities into the more remote countryside along the border.

War Of Words Is Mounting Between Moscow And Peking

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A reported Sino-Soviet border clash recently comes against the background of a mounting war of words between Moscow and Peking.

The escalation of rhetoric could be merely the result of the fact that at this time of year the United Nations brings the two adversaries into open clash. Or it could reflect a worsening of relations, with the Peking border talks in grave difficulty.

Some diplomatic observers also suggest that as China has moved to improve relations with the United States and Japan it has stepped up its verbal assault on the Soviet Union as a tactic in its broad strategy to forestall Soviet penetration of Asia while the U.S. influence wanes there.

In any event, amid the propaganda polemics, comes a Soviet report of an incident along the Central Asian border in which five Soviet soldiers and several native shepherds allegedly were killed. The confidential report was leaked to western diplomats in Moscow and because it is a leak — neither the Soviet leaders nor the Soviet press has mentioned it publicly —it may or may not reflect reality.

A Chinese foreign ministry spokesman has denied the report as malicious fabrication and slander.

According to the Soviet account, a contingent of Chinese crossed the border late in November at a mountain pass between the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan and the Chinese province of Sinkiang. One of the Chinese (and there is no indication they were soldiers) reportedly was captured in the fighting with Soviet border guards.

U.S. analysts say there are no signs of an upsurge of activity along the 4,000-mile Sino-Soviet frontier. This fall the Russians added three more divisions to the 46 already stationed there, but this is seen as part of a continuing steady buildup and not an indication of heightened tensions.

Hence the reported clash, and this is the first reported since 1969, could be merely an isolated incident.

One thing seems clear. The border talks, while they go on, are at an impasse and are not moving toward an agreement.

With respect to the dispute in the East, the Chinese maintain that the border along the Amur-Ussuri rivers should be recognized, in accordance with international law, as running along the main navigational channel. But the 19th-century treaties under which Russia acquired this area placed the border on the Chinese bank of the river and so the Soviets claim the whole river.

Peking says these treaties were "unequal," and the Russians, if they want to treat the Chinese as equals, must recognize them as such. It would seem to be an extremely complex problem because both sides can make a rational case.

Despite the sharpening of rhetoric, Sino-Soviet relations on a state-to-state basis have remained fairly steady. Trade has been climbing between the two countries as Moscow has supplied its former ally with airliners, helicopters, and air-related equipment.

But, significantly, the Russians have been indicating in private that they now are having to consider whether what they supply Peking has strategic value or not.

Little New In Hijack Accord

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The imminent Cuba-United States hijacking agreement, or something very like it, could have been concluded three years ago — had Washington wanted it.

That is the view of informed Latin Americans who say that proposals put forward by Cuba in 1969 are essentially the same as today's draft.

For some time already, Cuba has been meting out severe jail terms to some skyjackers. And as far back as 1970, Havana began quietly returning a number of skyjackers to the United States.

Both Washington and Havana have more reason for wanting an accord today than they did in 1969, but in the Latin American view, the current negotiations now under way in Havana are leading to an agreement or some sort of understanding very similar to the 1969 Cuban proposals.

The Cuban proposals were outlined by its United Nations ambassador, Ricardo Alarcon Quesada, in the course of a wide-ranging speech Oct. 8, 1969. They also were aired by Havana Radio and other Cuban media at the time.

Cuba said any agreement on skyjacking must also deal with the hijacking of ships as well as airplanes and with other violations governing traffic between Cuba and the United States.

Latin American sources note there has been a steady flow of ship hijackings by Cubans wanting to go to the United States. Moreover, just before Alarcon spoke to the UN in 1969, a Cuban Air Force lieutenant seized a Cuban MIG-17 and flew it to Florida, where he was granted asylum.

The Cuban proposals in 1969 did not win favor with the United States at the time.

Man's Picture Of Moon Jumps Sharply Into Focus

By JACK WAUGH
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HOUSTON, Tex. — It had seemed all quiet on the moon's face. Apollo 16 had left a new network of instruments there. And lunar scientists listened intently from earth, but not much was stirring.

Suddenly, one day this fall, it happened. A huge impact shook the moon. The shock waves began to reach seismographs on the other side. Lunar scientists raced for their earphones. The moon had been hit on its far side — the dark side. It was just what scientists had hoped would happen. They had waited a long time.

They knew it might tell them the answer to a key lunar question. What was the center of the moon like? Seismometers left on the near side by Apollo astronauts had the data. Everybody waited.

Three weeks ago the news filtered out: A molten core! To the lunar scientists it was like a shot heard 'round the world.

Suddenly a major piece of the lunar puzzle fell into place. And this month as Apollo 17 astronauts walked on the moon for man's last time, perhaps in this century, the story of what really has happened to the moon down through almost measureless time, has jumped into focus.

There still are hundreds of missing pieces in the lunar puzzle. Astronauts have yet to bring back rocks younger than three and one-fifth billion years or older than four and one-fifth billion years. But from that relatively small sliver of time — one billion years — lunar scientists can piece together a tentative picture of how the moon got that way. And this is what it looks like:

The moon was born about four and one-half billion years ago. Just how, nobody still knows for sure. The surface of the moon was hot from accretion, of incoming matter so hot that it melted or partly melted for 100 miles from the surface downward.

At the same time, we now know there was a molten core within, a great iron-rich magna chamber, which was probably acting as a dynamo to give the moon a mightier-than-we-once suspected magnetic field.

Between four and one-half and four billion years ago, a molten material at the lunar surface cooled and hardened into a crust about 40 miles deep. At about the same time, before four billion years ago, the moon, as lunar geophysist Robin Brett of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) puts it, "was being zapped by meteorites from space."

For half a billion years it took a titanic pelting by meteorites, some of them as big as the state of Rhode Island. About four billion years ago, the bombardment stopped. All fell quiet. Suddenly the moon was left in pock-marked silence, massive gouges in it as wide as 600 miles across.

Then, the molten action from within began to take over. For half a billion years, molten material began to fill in the empty basins to form the great seas or mares, as the inquisitive Galileo, gazing on the wonder from earth, was later to call them.

After that, about three billion years ago, the moon fell into almost total inactivity. There was some cinder cone-making and some minor shakings, all small —less than three on the Richter scale — as earthquakes go. But the moon lay still, ghostly, remote, beaten, and silent.

The lunar unknowns are still more than scientists sometime care to think about. Nobody can explain how the moon got there in the first place. Most lunar scientists can only nod in sad agreement with Dr. Harold Urey, who says, "It is far easier to explain the moon's nonexistence than it is to explian its existence."

None of the three major theories of lunar origin makes sense. And lunar scientists are all resigned to the possibility they may never know how it all started. The only thing they can be confident of, because the rocks tell them, is what has happened since then.

The moon couldn't have been part of earth that split away, as one theory holds, because the rocks on moon and earth are totally different. Nor could earth and moon have been twins, shaped simultaneously from the same primordial stuff, as another theory holds —for the same reason. And it is difficult for lunar scientists to believe that the moon was made over here and the earth over there and that the two came together and the moon was captured. Nine times out of ten, in that situation, the moon would have crashed into the earth instead of orbiting it.

But the origin aside, lunar scientists can hardly believe they know as much about what has happened since, as they now do. Three and a half years ago, before Apollo, they had a rough idea what the moon's surface was like. They cnew something of its soil mechanics from the earlier unmanned missions. They knew there was some magnetic material on the moon, but had no idea the magnetic field was as powerful as it is. And they had pinned down the moon's approximate bulk density close enough.

Beyond that they knew little. They didn't even know, as the Apollos have since told them, that the moon has a core, a mantle and a crust — just like earth. News like that might bring a blank stare from the man on an earth street. But to a lunar scientist, that is man biting dog, the biggest news of 1972 — or any year.

CRUCIAL QUESTIONS IGNORED?

In Meeting Energy Crisis

By LICIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Environmentalists are concerned that federal regulatory officials may be skipping past some crucial questions in their rush to meet America's rising energy demands.

Of particular concern is the rapid development of nuclear power plants. Currently 26 are operating, accounting for a mere 2 per cent of the nation's electricity supply. However, that percentage share is expected to edge up to 30 by the end of the decade and the number of plants to reach 900 by 1990.

Environmentalists concede that the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), the agency charged with licensing both the construction and operation of such facilities, is asking tougher questions of industry than ever before.

In the critics' view, however, the agency, charged with the promotion of nuclear power as well as its regulation, proceeds always on the basic premise that the licenses will be granted once federal standards are met, simply because the existing energy crisis demands it.

"This is such a critical time," observes Anthony Z. Roisman, a partner in the environmental public interest law firm of Berlin, Roisman, and Kessler. "If all these plants get licensed, and built, ever stopping them would be very difficult. By then we would be so dependent on nuclear power that a rational, objective decision would be out of the question."

The AEC, in this lawyer's view, should be carefully examining other power source alternatives, the possibility of curbing energy demands rather than rushing to meet them, the adequacy of existing federal safety standards, and the cost and reliability factors of a substantial nuclear power investment.

The latter factors alone, says Roisman, should induce the AEC to encourage the building of prototypes and to insist that industry perfect its designs before any more licenses are granted.

Problems in this area have recently brought a number of industry executives to the side of environmentalists in urging caution rather than an unthinking plunge forward for the sake of progress.

Just a few days ago, for instance, the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company announced that it was temporarily cancelling plans to build a $700-million nuclear power plant along the Bush River in Maryland's Harford County because of financing difficulties, changing regulatory rules, and environmentalist objections.

Similarly, a few days before that, at the Atomic Industrial Forum's 1972 international conference in Washington, Louis H. Roddis Jr., president of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, told participants that nuclear power plants were proving to be substantially less reliable than originally predicted and that unless designs were vastly improved a backoff might be well advised.

Noting that many of the "glorious promises" about nuclear energy benefits have not materialized, Roddis specifically mentioned the cost in time and money of the failure of a cooling pipe last spring at his company's Indian Point Number One plant. From start to finish the repair involved $1 million, seven months and 700 men (because of radiation exposure dangers) where a comparable breakdown in a fossil fuel plant would have involved only a fraction of that investment.

The difficulties are such that even the AEC, though firmly committed to a forward thrust in nuclear power development, is showing signs of a slightly more relaxed stance on the speed. In a recent speech at the Atomic Industrial Forum here, AEC Commissioner William O. Doub concluded by admonishing both industry and government to "take it a little easy" and "learn to pace yourselves."

While Congress gave the AEC temporary licensing power early last summer through October, 1973, to meet what it regarded as critical energy shortages, environmentalists insist the legislation involves no significant shortcuts for industry and point out that only the Vermont Yankee reactor has been granted such a license.

That reactor experienced a fire and has been shut down, a factor environmentalists argue may well ward off other utilities from hurriedly filing similar applications and the AEC from granting them. Says Roisman: "I give the utilities credit — they're not environmentalists but they all want reliability."

Under pressure from such varied sources as environmentalists, Congress, and the National Academy of Sciences, the AEC has involved itself in extensive research and public hearings on various aspects of nuclear reactor safety. Critics argue, however, there still are significant gaps between theory and practice and in some cases a vacuum in theory itself.

One such area is waste disposal. The AEC has now scheduled a public hearing on this question for next Feb. 1. But in Roisman's view, the agency will be "dancing on the periphery of the issue" by discussing what to do with the waste rather than facing the basic question of whether they want it at all.

The AEC has developed various proposals for the treatment of nuclear power plant waste according to the toxicity of the product, but critics contend that, at best, the solutions are only interim. High-level liquid waste with a high radioactivity concentration, for instance, is now frequently solidified and stored underground in steel-lined concrete tanks.

But given the decay potential of man-made materials, the possibilities of accidental leakage, and the long life of some nuclear waste products (Plutonium-239, for instance, takes 50 years to decay to a harmless level) long-term solutions still are needed.

Another area of top concern to those urging a slowdown in nuclear development is the safety feature required in plants of Emergency Core Cooling Systems (ECCS).

This safeguard, required by the commission, is an emergency arrangement to cool the zirconium alloy which surrounds the reactor core in the event of a mishap. There is disagreement even among AEC experts as to how adequate the current ECCS standard is. In hearings set up to last about two months but now stretching out to about a year's time, the AEC and others have been debating the subject at Bethesda, Md. It now appears slightly more stringent standards will be forthcoming.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon said hail and farewell this week to America's manned flights to the moon in the 20th Century.

Nixon's remarks came shortly after the last of the Apollo series lunar module "Challenger" left the surface of the moon for its rendezvous with the command ship "America".

"This may be the last time in this century that men will walk on the moon," the President said.

"But," Nixon added, "space exploration will continue, the benefits of space exploration will continue and there will be new dreams to pursue based on what we have learned."

Challenger docked with America in a 71-mile-high orbit around the moon.

On Saturday evening the three astronauts will fire the main engine aboard America to break away from lunar gravity and head back to Earth.

The men, Eugene A. Cernan and Harrison H. Schmitt, who explored the moons surface; and Ronald E. Evans, who commanded the America, are scheduled to splash down in the South Pacific Tuesday.

The return of Apollo 17 to earth will end the $25 billion project that landed 12 Americans on the moon. The United States has current no plans to return.

Don't Waste Time Feeling Guilty In A Silly Slam Bid

Do you feel guilty when you bid a silly slam and then manage to bring it in? If it's any comfort, the same thing happens to all of the best players. The only difference is that they don't waste time feeling guilty — unless they muff a change to make the silly slam. The principle is illustrated today with a hand played a few weeks ago in the Chairty Fund session held continent-wide by the American Contract Bridge League.

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	2 ◇	3 ◇	4 ♣
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ◇
Pass	6 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead — ◇ 4

A SILLY BID

The slam was a silly one to bid because South had no way of knowing that the dummy would have help in hearts. If North had two very low hearts instead of the 10-9, there would virtually no play for the slam.

Even the actual dummy would be useless for slam purposes if the six missing clubs failed to break 3-3; and the odds are almost 2 to 1 against the favorable club break.

WITH THE ACE

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, cashed the top clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. When both opponents followed suit, South was tempted to draw two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy. If this exhausted all of the missing trumps, declarer could cash dummy's two good clubs to discard low spades.

WOULD NOT WORK

The plan would not have worked since East actually had three trumps instead of precisely two. But one player at the national tournament knew better than to rely on a 2-2 trump break. East needed about 12 or 13 points in high cards for his opening bid, which left only about two or three points for West. But West needed more than those two or three high-card points for his raise to three diamonds, and a singleton in hearts was the most likely reason.

South therefore led a heart to the nine and returned a good club from dummy. East had to ruff, and South overruffed. South then led another low heart to dummy's ten, discarded a spade on dummy's last club and finally led a spade through the ace to make sure of a trick with the king of spades.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:
♠- J 5 3
♥- 10 9
♦- 9 6 2
♣- A 8 7 4 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Some experts would bid one no-trump, but most would pass. If partner opened with one spade, you would risk a raise to two spades since then your jack of spades would be worth a trifle more, and the doubleton in hearts would be an asset rather than a liability.

Buyer Of Stolen Car Said Duped

A Marin Municipal Court judge has dismissed a felony car theft charge against 24-year-old Ralph Richard Umland of San Rafael, who apparently was duped into buying a stolen car for $50 because he can't read or write.

Judge Robert A. Smallman dismissed the charge after Umland told him he thought the man he gave the money to was signing over the pink slip when, in fact, the man gave him something else.

Umland was arrested by San Rafael police on Thanksgiving after they stopped his car for an apparent speeding violation on Fourth Street and found it had been stolen a month before.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER INTERLUDE

Anna Heins of Novato, as Beatrice, and Vanessa Witt of Mill Valley, as Ruth, have a moment of family closeness in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." Final performances of the play will be at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, 267 Buena Vista Avenue. The cast combines adult performers from throughout Marin County with young actors from Tamalpais High School drama classes. Director is Cynthia David, who has performed in the American Conservatory Theater and Marin Shakespeare Festival.

BOOED DIVA IS DEFINITE ABOUT VOICE

LONDON (UPI) — Diva Amy Shuard, booed by the audience at a performance of Puccini's opera "Turandot" in Naples, returned home Friday night clutching a bouquet of flowers—and some nasty suspicions.

"I still stick by my theory that all this was a put up job," she said of the booing.

"I was halfway through my performance when the stage lights dimmed. This was the signal for the booing and jeering to start from the gallery," she said. "I was staggered. Nothing like it has ever happened to me before during any of my performances."

Someone asked if it was perhaps possible her voice was not up to its usual high standard.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "I was singing superbly."

Ship Disturbances Said Not Fully Racial Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of a House Armed Services subcommittee say racial conflict was not the only cause of recent disturbances aboard at least three Navy ships.

The subcommittee members also suggested that testimony showed military discipline to be better than they had expected, but improvement was needed.

The subcommittee met in private for three hours Friday. Members were questioned by newsmen after the session.

"There has been too much emphasis on the racial aspect," said Rep. W. C. Daniel, D-Va.

Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., said the fights between black and white crewmen were not as serious as first believed. "We found some areas, however, where discipline needs to be corrected," he said.

Hicks, the subcommittee chairman, Daniel and Rep. Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., took testimony Friday from Navy Secretary John W. Warner and Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of naval operations.

Hicks said testimony Monday from Assistant Defense Secretary Roger T. Kelley should complete the hearings. A report on the subcommittee findings will be worked up then, Hicks said.

Rep. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, set up the three-member panel to determine whether there was "too much permissiveness" in the Navy following racial fights aboard the carriers Kitty Hawk and Constellation and an oil tanker.

The subcommittee opened the hearings in San Diego where testimony was taken from crew members and relatives of crewmen involved in the fights.

Warner and Zumwalt, who has gained publicity for easing some long-standing Navy regulations, said nothing of substance to newsmen after the hearing.

"This committee is not out to hang Adm. Zumwalt," Hicks said. "In fact in some instances we will probably commend him."

Court Martials Open For 21 Black Sailors

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The court-martials of 21 black sailors began Friday at the Navy Law Center, two months after a race riot erupted aboard the war zone-bound aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk.

Testimony in the proceedings was not expected to be heard until late next week, or even the week after.

Four military jurors chosen to help preside over the court-martials were present during the first hearing, which was confined to preliminary defense motions. The only one of the defendants to present himself during Friday's hearing was Seaman Cleveland Mallory, 19, Pittsburgh.

NAACP attorneys said they intend to make a test case out of the special court-martial against Mallory, who is accused of rioting and assault.

One member of the sailors' civilian defense team challenged the authority of the Navy to court-martial the young black crewmen, but the Navy trial judge turned down the motion.

Mallory and 18 other Kitty Hawk sailors have been recommended for special court-martials for allegedly taking part in hand-to-hand combat with Marine guards Oct. 12-13 while the carrier steamed toward Vietnam. Forty-six sailors were hurt during the brawling.

Another of the crewman has been recommended for a more serious general court-martial and the matter will be brought up Wednesday. The 21st crewman has also been charged with rioting and may also be brought up on a general court-martial.

Big Spender Sought In Gem Thefts

ROME (UPI) — Police said they became suspicious when an airport employe who earned $254 a month purchased a luxury car, an apartment costing $45,760 and was negotiating the purchase of a speedboat.

Then, police said Friday, when they found a diamond at his home and evidence that he pawned six other diamonds, they thought they had solved the theft of diamonds worth $1.7 million from a mail pouch last summer at Leonardo da Vinci airport.

They arrested Mrs. Roberto Oronzo, 23, and said they were seeking her husband on charges of stealing the diamonds as they passed through Rome en route from Johannesburg to Hong Kong.

The theft was discovered in Hong Kong. Italian police began checking airport employes.

Oronzo's spending drew attention to him.

A search of his new home, police said, turned up a diamond worth $8,470 and evidence he pawned six more diamonds worth $1,690 each.

Oronzo apparently became suspicious he was under investigation, police said, and fled, possibly to South Africa.

General Plan Policy Clarified

The proposed countywide general plan does not suggest that open space funds be allocated only to cities that have accepted its low and moderate-income housing policies, Marin County Planning Director Werner von Gundell said yesterday.

Von Gundell said statements that it does, contained in a parks and recreation department document and reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal, are incorrect.

He said the plan proposes that cities working for more low and moderate-income housing be given "priority" for such funds.

The Capuchin monkeys, common in South America, are sometimes called ring-tailed monkeys because they often carry their tails rolled into a tight coil.

Museums To Pool Masterworks

PARIS (UPI) — Two of the greatest museums in the world are pooling their artistic assets, launching what one museum director called "a new epoch."

The museums are the Louvre in Paris and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, storehouses of masterworks ranging from the Mona Lisa to primitive arts of African tribes. The "Met" alone has more than 1 million art works and has the largest collection in the Western Hemisphere.

Culture Minister Jacques Duhamel announced the move Friday in the presence of Thomas P. Hoving, director of the Metropolitan, and Jean Chatelain, the head of all French national museums.

"The two museums are entering a new epoch," Hoving said, "an international epoch which will affect all the great museums in the world."

One aim is to make borrowing and lending of great works easier and less costly.

Another is to organize a series of special exhibits, starting in late 1973 in Paris with a showing of Medieval tapestries.

Hoving also announced his museum will return to France some of the parts of a portal from the Saint-Michel de Cuxa monastery which are now in New York.

'London Flu' Outbreaks Listed In Two Areas Of United States

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first major civilian outbreak of an influenza-like virus that may be the "London flu" has been reported in Baltimore, the federal Center for Disease Control (CDC) said Friday.

Additionally, the CDC said Ft. Huachuca Army Base in Arizona had also reported an outbreak.

The CDC did not identify the virus in the Baltimore outbreak, but the city was listed as one of five major U.S. cities where a flu bug similar to the "London flu" had been isolated.

Emergency room visits at Baltimore hospitals were 30 to 40 per cent higher than expected, with the majority of the increase represented by respiratory disease.

The Arizona Army base reported 621 cases of influenza between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, representing an attack rate of 91.3 per 1,000 soldiers.

Laboratory tests revealed the influenza virus was similar to the A-England-42-72 strain, or London flu.

Victims reported classic flu symptons which lasted two to three days followed by malaise for an additional two to three days.

To date, most of the flu outbreaks in the country have been limited to military installations at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.; and at Lowry Air Force Base and Ent Air Force Base, both in Colorado.

The CDC also said last week that isolated cases of influenza closely resembling the London flu had been reported in Memphis, Tenn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Anchorage, Alaska, and Seattle, Wash.

A virus similar to the London flu bug was also isolated from patients with an influenza-like disease in a prison in New York City.

The World Health Orangization (WHO), said the CDC, has reported that an influenza outbreak started in November in Bulgaria with a virus similar to A-England-42-72. The WHO report said influenza appeared widespread in England, where 71 strains of flu, all similar to the London flu have been isolated.

50 Foreign Visitors Stranded In Oregon

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — Fifty foreign visitors found themselves stranded in Oregon Friday amid much confusion over their means of travel and who was paying for it.

The visitors—from England, Canada, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico and New Zealand—had been on what they thought was a chartered flight from London to Los Angeles.

They were a little surprised when the plane landed in Seattle, but assumed everything was all right when the tour broker convinced Continental Trailways that it was to bus the group to Los Angeles.

Then things got complicated. The tour broker disappeared and Continental Trailways halted the trip in Medford when it discovered the fare had not been paid.

Finally the director of overseas tours for Continental said the tour could continue to Los Angeles at the bus firm's expense.

Continental, meanwhile, was trying to contact London authorities to straighten out the mixup.

INSIDE THE SOVIET UNION

Religion A Key Challenge

By PAUL WOHL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Religion is posing a growing challenge for Russian leaders.

It appears, for instance, that while the appeal of Marxism-Leninism has been declining, religion has been attracting more and more young people.

The Kremlin is aware of Communism's declining influence. At high official levels it tries to engage in a dialogue with religious thinkers.

But in the country at large the mallet blows of administrative repression continue. In recent months many priests and lay writers of the Orthodox Church have been arrested, and bishops and even an archbishop (Archbishop Paul of Novosibirsk and Barnaul) have been demoted or retired without pension.

The Reform-Baptists, Pentocostals, and other sects are persecuted more harshly than ever; Roman Catholic parishes are harrassed; Jewish and Buddhist religious groups are hounded.

This judgment of the Russian religious scene is based on years of research by the London Center for the Study of Religion and Communism. The work of the center, under the leadership of Rev. Michael Bourdeaux, has commanded even the respect of Soviet officialdom.

Its quiet, unpolemical method, combined with the wealth and authenticity of its inside information, gleaned from the network of indirect contacts with a wide variety of religious groups in the U.S.S.R., has forced the Russians to take heed of its findings.

Besides the gowing influence of religion among young Russians, the center has found that underground, or samizdat, religious literature has spread in recent years.

Religious publications are the only ones that somehow are produced in printing and duplicating facilities. The most important ones are the Reform-Baptists' "Christian Press' and the journal of the Lithuanian Roman Catholic Church.

Nobody knows how it is done, but more and more, more readable bulletins of religious groups reach the West.

This flow of information would not be possible without the devoted collaboration of Russians outwardly in good standing with the regime.

Among the many authentic underground documents in the possession of Bourdeaux's study center is the original text of the petition of more than 17,000 Lithuanian Catholics addressed last January to Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev through the intermediary of the secretary-general of the United Nations.

From the accompanying notes of the Lithuanians, we know that the collection of signatures was stopped at a very early stage by the Russian KGB (security police). Otherwise many more signatures would have been gathered.

The more than 17,000 who were able to sign the document gave their full names and addresses and occasionally even their telephone numbers — an unprecedented sign of steadfast courage by men and women in defying the world's most powerful totalitarian regime.

As a whole, Communist attempts to infiltrate religious groups have been singularly unsuccessful.

Because the Kremlin has become aware of the world influence of religion, Bourdeaux's center has found, it has increasingly been trying to appease and mislead Westerners with religious pretense.

Quite recently, for example, a delegation of official Soviet religious leaders was due to tour the United States under the leadership of Metropolitan Nikodem, often referred to as the "foreign minister" of the Moscow patriarchate.

At the last minute, the mission to the West was postponed, reportedly because its leader was ill.

Metropolitan Nikodem, one of the three highest dignitaries of the Russian Orthodox Church, is characteristic of the kind of religious strawmen set up by the Kremlin.

Rather than completing his theological studies in one of Russia's few remaining seminaries, Metropolitan Nikodem acquired his religious degree through a correspondence course.

Once Metropolitan Nikodem had acquired a degree, he was sent by the patriarchate to the Russian Spiritual Institute (administered by the Russian Government) in Jerusalem, where he learned Hebrew and gained the polish and social and diplomatic skills that enabled him to cultivate relations, first with non-Russian Orthodox clergymen, and ultimately with the World Council of Churches.

A diplomat and a Communist propagandist, Metropolitan Nikodem has become an asset for the Kremlin. Yet even he may sometimes have to walk a tightrope to remain in the good graces of an increasingly nervous regime.

Whether the fairly young Metropolitan's physical indisposition was genuine is anybody's guess, but other Soviet religious missions, with or without the Metropolitan, are due sooner or later in the West.

Such religious missions are supposed to convey the impression that religion enjoys constitutional guarantees in the Soviet Union. The friendly reception the missions usually receive by those who wish to give the Russians the benefit of the doubt is used by the Kremlin for propaganda purposes at home and to undermine the support Western religionists try to give their colleagues in the USSR

Retiring Minister To Be Feted Tomorrow

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, who is retiring, will be honored following tomorrow's morning services.

Kent came to Marin in September 1963 to lead the newly-formed congregation. During his nine years, the church has expanded — moving into its new home.

The retiring pastor has served as moderator of the Presbytery of the Redwoods and chairman of the Marin Council of Churches. He has also been active in the Marin County chapter of the American Red Cross and Rotary International.

Following a trip to his native Holland after the Christmas holidays, he will retain his residence in Marin.

$50,000 Is Allocated For New Guinea Aid

NEW YORK (LC) — Lutheran World Relief has allocated $50,000 to help alleviate widespread famine conditions in the wake of frost, drought, and bush fires in the highlands area of Papua, New Guinea.

According to reports received here by the LWR's board of directors, about 130,000 people are starving as a result of severe frosts in the Southern and Western Highlands which have wiped out thousands of acres of sweet potatoes, the staple food of Highlanders. To make matters worse, the areas are also suffering a prolonged drought, and fire has destroyed 200 houses.

Lutheran Group Reelects President

NEW YORK (LC) — Dr. Luverne Rieke, law professor at the University of Washington in Seattle, has been re-elected president of the USA National Committee of the Lutheran World Federation.

A layman of the American Lutheran Church, Dr. Rieke will be serving his second term as head of the USA committee.

Call For Volunteers For The Philippines

I-J Special Report

MONROVIA — A call for young, mature Christian volunteers to serve in the Philippines for 10 months has been issued by Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of World Vision International.

The volunteers will be part of 25 five-man teams who will pave the way and follow-up two evangelistic crusades set for the Philippines in November 1973 and April 1974.

Mobile Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — A church-mobile, a converted bus with all features of a conventional church — even to the steeple on top, was devised by Rev. Robert Dunlop, the only Baptist minister in County Kildare, Ireland, because he could not get to all the people who wanted to attend his church.

Hispanic Lutherans Form Organization

NEW YORK (LC) — A permanent National Hispanic Lutheran Assembly was organized at a three-day meeting here attended by 40 Hispanic Lutheran pastors and laymen from 14 states and Puerto Rico. Also participating were 17 Spanish-speaking non-Hispanos.

Elected chairman of a 12-member board of directors, composed of laymen and pastors, was Dr. Victor M. Rodriguez of San Juan, Puerto Rico, president of the Caribbean Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Other officers named were the Rev. Ruben Dario Colon, pastor of Resurrection Lutheran Church, Bronx, N. Y., vice chairman; Carlos Segovia of Chicago, a layman of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, secretary, and Rev. Jose G. Puerto, an LCMS pastor attached to Christ Lutheran Church (LCA) in West New York, N.J., treasurer.

A Declaration of Purpose adopted by the Assembly listed the following objectives:

1. developing a communication system among Hispano-American Lutherans; 2. sensitizing Lutherans to the needs of Hispanic American congregations and communities and the need to develop new approaches to ministry; 3. developing ministry expertise through special curricula in Lutheran seminaries and other training institutions; 4. recruitment and scholarships for future Hispano-Lutheran pastors, 5. development of lay ministries, and 6. producing original Hispanic Christian literature.

The Assembly devoted an evening to exploring the theme "Conscientizacion Christiana." In a brief paper, Rev. Roberto Navarro, an ALC pastor serving with the Texas Conference of Churches, stressed the need for increasing sensitivity to the Hispanic cultural reality in America.

There are 120 Lutheran congregations in the U.S. and Puerto Rico that use the Spanish language in their ministry. The nation's Hispanic American population is estimated at 10 to 12 million.

Basketball Tourney: Tars Host Foothill Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Demonstrating two different kinds of patience, College of Marin and Foothill College of Los Altos won their semi-final games last night and will collide tonight at 9 o'clock for the championship of the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament.

The host Tars survived a tense and frustrating stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to eke out a 58-55 victory, while Foothill calmly ran through its testbook offensive patterns for an 83-60 triumph over defending champion Reedley.

Reedley will meet Ohlone for third place tonight at 7 o'clock, while Santa Rosa will play Solano of Suisun City for the consolation title at 5 p.m. Santa Rosa defeated Napa yesterday, 91-80, and Solano topped Sierra of Rocklin, 55-52.

Neither Marin (8-1) nor Ohlone (6-2) ever led by more than five points in the seesaw battle, but when the visiting Renegades achieved a 49-48 lead on a bank shot by forward Chuck Pierce with 8:48 left, they decided to make the one point stand up.

Ohlone held the ball for two minutes, then took a three-point lead on a layup by guard Dave Whaley. When Marin guard Len Smith cut the gap back to one with a jumper, Ohlone stalled nearly three minutes more before guard Mike Perry made two free throws for a 53-50 lead.

Marin center Neil Traub then scored on a hook shot with 3:41 left, and was fouled on the play. When he missed the free throw, forward Joe Casteel rebounded and tossed the ball to forward Wil Garner, who hit a jumper for a 54-53 lead. Garner later scored again after he and Traub forced a turnover at midcourt, giving Marin a 56-53 lead and the ball game.

Garner led Marin with 23 points while Casteel and Smith added 12 each. Smith did a fine defensive job on Ohlone's Pierce, holding him to two points in the second half and 12 for the game after Pierce had scored 31, 33 and 27 in his previous three outings. "Wore him like a shirt," said Tar assistant coach Jim Webster.

For only the second time in nine games, Marin was outrebounded, this time by a 35-28 margin. The Tars compensated by shooting 46 per cent (26 of 56) and restricting the Renegades to 41 per cent (24 of 58) from the floor — not much of a difference, but more than enough in a three-point ball game.

Marin's foe Foothill (6-2) drew praise from Tar head coach John Panagakis during its systematic destruction of Reedley (3-5). "They're very patient," he said. "They run their offense like a machine."

Foothill got 20 points from Scott McLean and 17 more from K.C. Jackson in its victory. The Owls made 27 of 35 free throws, while Reedley went to the line only 14 times, making 9.

Also contributing heavily to the attack were Mike Roman with 13 points and Gary Schaefer, a 6-9 center, with 10. Jackson had 10 rebounds.

Rick Bakker of Napa (0-8) scored 36 points, but it wasn't enough to bring the Chiefs their first victory of the season. Santa Rosa (5-3) responded with twin 18-point efforts from Rudy Navarro and Bill Healy and had five other scorers with eight or more points.

The victors shot a healthy 44 per cent from the floor on 38 of 86 attempts. They had nine more shots than Napa, and made six of them.

Solano (4-4) erected a 34-23 halftime lead, then had to struggle to hold back Sierra (2-6) by three points. Jim Hicks scored 18 points, Stan Foster and Kelly McWilliams 10 apiece and former San Rafael High School star Donnie Canfield 8 for the Falcons, who shot 45 per

Terra Linda Tips Piner

Terra Linda High School broke a four-game losing streak last night with a 51-41 nonleague basketball victory over Piner of Santa Rosa on the winners' court.

In other action involving Marin County teams, San Marin rallied to beat Vintage of Napa, 57-54; Redwood also rallied to top Lincoln of San Francisco, 60-50; San Rafael lost to Vallejo, 55-46; Tamalpais lost to San Mateo, 76-63; and Novato bowed to Santa Rosa, 73-61.

Terra Linda's press defense set the game's tempo against ball-control oriented Piner, according to Trojan coach Bob Corley. The harassed Prospectors attempted only 38 shots from the floor, and even though they shot 45 per cent to make 17 field goals, Terra Linda outscored them with 22 successes in 63 tries for 35 per cent.

The Trojans (4-5) were led by Mark Lowey's 17 points and Scott Logan's 15.

San Marin (6-2) outscored Vintage in the second half, 37-23, to overcome a 11-point halftime deficit against Vintage.

Mustang Hoza Wright scored 18 points and Fred Doar 13 in the second half to lead the late charges. Wright and Doar finished with 23, and 16 points respectively. Price (Skip) Starnes led in rebounds with 14, and Doar pulled down 10.

San Rafael's three-game winning streak came to an end with its loss to powerful Vallejo. The Bulldogs (5-3) sank eight free throws, but missed 14 to fall short of a major upset. Vallejo shot seven of 14 from the line.

Bulldog Byron Stewart scored 17 points and grabbed a game-leading 13 rebounds. Vallejo's Ricky Beavers scored 23.

Redwood evened its record at 4-4 in preparation for the tough Yuba City tournament next week by outscoring Lincoln in the fourth quarter, 21-10.

Warriors Trek To Baltimore

Combined AP & UPI

BALTIMORE — The Golden State Warriors will try to cap a successful road trip by defeating the Baltimore Bullets here tonight.

The Warriors won their third straight by trouncing Buffalo 123-95 Friday night. Golden State now is 2-1 on the current road tour.

Hot shooting in the third period erased Buffalo's 57-49 halftime lead as the Warriors outscored the Braves 42-10 in that stanza to go ahead 91-67.

Cazzie Russell and Jeff Mullins led the surge with Russell scoring 15 of his 23 game points in the third quarter and Mullins contributing 12 of his 27. Guard Fritz Williams, scoreless in the first half, tallied 20 points in the final two quarters for the Warriors.

The Braves shot out in front 18-4 in the game's first six minutes as even Rick Barry missed a free throw, his first miscue after 27 straight good ones for the Warriors.

The Warriors hit 63 per cent of their shots in the second half and took command of the backboards. Center Nate Thurmond led the team with 24 rebounds for the night.

Elmore Smith had 19 and Bob McAdoo 18 for the Braves.

The Warriors, now 19-10, come home for seven games after tonight's test. They even gained a game on mighty Los Angeles Friday as the Lakers lost 102-98 to Boston. The Warriors are now 5½ back of Los Angeles.

Coast Cage Teams In Good Evening's Work

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

While the West Coast's two best college basketball teams had the night off, the best of the rest of the West ran wild Friday in a big night of wins across the nation.

Washington, Oregon and the University of San Francisco kept unbeaten slates by winning impressively far from home while top 10 teams UCLA and Long Beach State were idle.

The Huskies, now 5-0, were especially impressive in roaring 102-68 at Wichita State with 13 different players in the scoring column.

The Ducks are now 4-0 after freshman Ron Lee's 19 points led them past Colorado State 73-68 in the first game of the University of Kentucky Invitational tourney. Oregon gets its toughest test tonight when it meets the nationally rated Wildcats in the final.

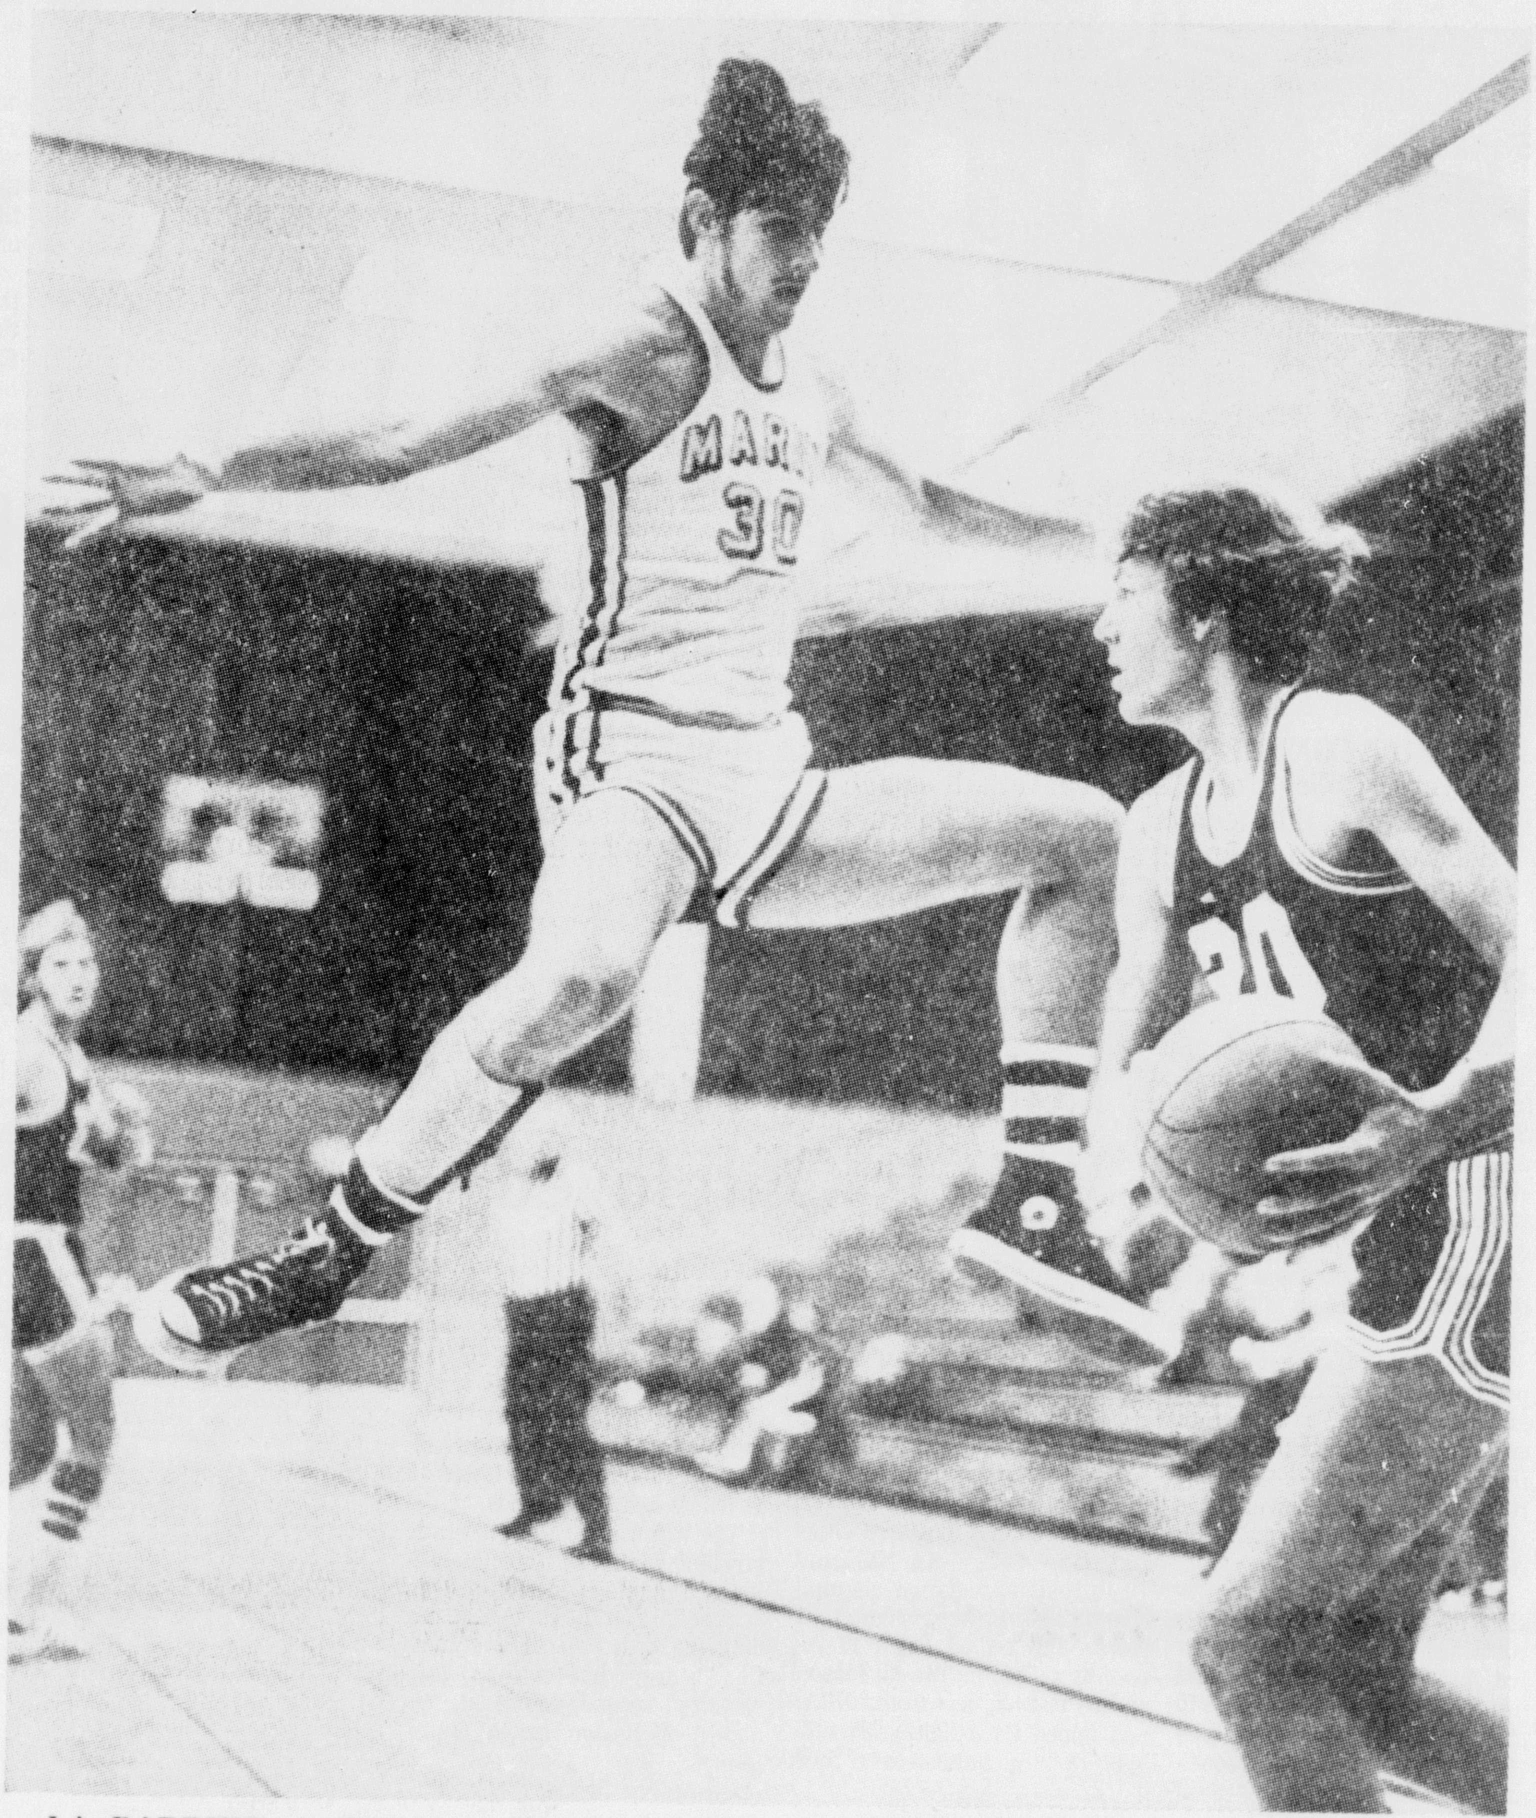
The Dons blasted Army 87-70 in the first round game at the Jayhawk Classic to run their record to 5-0. Mike Quick, Kevin Restani and Phil Smith combined for 55 points for the 18th-rated Dons, who battle host Kansas tonight. Guard John Boro, a Redwood High School graduate, added 10 points to the Don cause.

Santa Clara has lost a few, but joined in Friday's fun with an 80-76 stunner over the hosts at the Utah Classic.

In the Trojan Basketball Classic in Los Angeles, Purdue looked sharp taking Western Kentucky 91-75 and then USC, with freshman Bob Trowbridge and soph Gus Williams replacing suspended regular forwards Monroe Nash and Clint Chapman, took Auburn 73-66. The two young front-liners combined for 34 points.

With just about the whole Pacific Eight off to a remarkable start this season, the troubles are growing for Washington State. Montana flattened the Cougars 72-49 to drop the losers record to 1-4.

Other scores: Northridge State 61 Seattle Pacific 49, St. Martins 81 Pacific Lutheran 75, Cal Poly Pomona 76 Portland 60, Westminster 99 Western Montana 80, Arizona State 85 San Diego 59, Humboldt State 73 Oregon College 65, Chapman 62 U.S. International 55, Southern California College 79 Pomona Pitzer 59, San Diego State 86 Portland State 53, Cal Lutheran 87 Los Angeles Baptist 68, Grand Canyon 83 Western New Mexico 77, Chico State 86 La Verne 85.



LA BARRIER — College of Marin center Dana La Ferriere was in the air, everywhere on this play in the first half of the Tars' game with Ohlone College of Fremont last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield, forcing Ohlone's Jim Snyder to forget temporarily whatever plans he had for passing the ball. Marin won, 58-55.

Padres' Future Locale

NEW YORK (AP) — "A man," said Buzzie Bavasi, president of the San Diego Padres, "would have to be out of his mind to move from San Diego . . ."

Then, Bavasi added the key phrase.

". . . if he didn't have to." The Padres, however, may have to and Bavasi buzzed through New York Friday amidst wide reports that his baseball team is about to move to Washington, D.C.

Bavasi stopped by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office while American League owners, unhappy that the National League is considering a move into Baltimore's backyard, held a quick meeting on the subject a few blocks away.

Bavasi missed connections with the commissioner and denied that he intended to talk to Kuhn about the possible transfer of the Padres. He had only stopped by to discuss some minor league matters with an aide of the commissioner's, he said.

But Bavasi didn't deny that the subject of Washington was on his mind.

"If such a move is made, it will have to be made quickly — next week or the week after at the latest," said Bavasi.

Baltimore is already having problems with attendance and installing a National League team that would put gate attractions like Bob Gibson, Hank Aaron, Tom Seaver and Steve Carlton 40 miles down the turnpike would hardly be a healthy situation for the Orioles.

The Padres have been burdened by the worst attendance in the National League in their four years at San Diego. They attracted a mere 644,272 last season.

Raiders, Chicago In Oakland Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 10 years, close out the 1972 regular season tomorrow against the Chicago Bears and about the only thing at stake is their latest five-game winning streak.

Since they locked up their fifth division title in the last six years two weeks ago, it has been hard for the Raiders to get motivated but they did just enough last Monday to beat the New York Jets and now a victory over the Bears, making their first start ever against Oakland, would give them a 10-3-1 record and momentum going into the American Football Conference playoffs.

"We're playing the Bears but we're getting ready for someone else," said center Jim Otto, the last of the original Raiders. "We have to build a tempo going into the playoffs."

OPPONENT

By sundown tomorrow the Raiders will know who they meet in the first round of the AFC post-season playoffs—the Pittsburgh Steelers or the Cleveland Browns. To be sure, the Raiders as individuals have discussed both contenders but for the record aren't saying who they prefer to meet.

"Once you get to the playoffs," said Otto, "it doesn't make much difference who you play or where. The big thing is to get to the playoffs. But first, we have to worry a little about the Bears. They are new to us and we know they are a physical club."

Guarding against injury is the Raiders' big worry Sunday since they go to the playoffs only six days later against the AFC Central champ—Pittsburgh or Cleveland.

FIRST GAME

Since they never have played the Bears the Raiders go into Sunday's game, before the usual sellout crowd of over 54,000, a bit apprehensive.

"Their cornerbacks are good but they like to sit and wait," said rookie wide receiver Mike Siani, who played against Chicago in a practice game preceding the All Star contest last August. "They've been beaten deep because of it."

BEARS

While the Raiders are thinking playoff the Bears have nowhere to go but to their respective homes after Sunday's game, the last one of the year for them. They come to Oakland with a 4-8-1 record but among their victims are the Browns, Vikings and Cardinals and they also held the Rams to a tie.

In quarterback Bobby Douglass the Bears have one good offensive weapon. He's the greatest running quarterback in NFL history with 841 yards and he also has completed 69 passes for another 1,193 yards. Douglass, in the most amazing statistic, has accounted for 17 of his team's meager 24 touchdowns, nine on passes and eight on runs, including a 57-yard gallop.

OBJECTIVES

The Raiders have several objectives in mind on a personal level.

At the moment, quarterback Daryle Lamonica ranks second in the AFC and would like to make it to No. 1 ahead of Earl Morrall of the Miami Dolphins; running back Marv Hubbard needs 41 more rushing yards to top the club mark of 1,099 held by Clem Daniels, and Fred Biletnikoff would like to repeat as the AFC's top receiver. He and Chip Myers of Cincinnati have 53 receptions each but Fred has more yards gained—759 to 742.

McASHAN CASE

School Supports Fulcher

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Tech Athletic Association backed up head football coach Bill Fulcher Friday in the continuing squabble over the fate of black quarterback Eddie McAshan.

In a session with newsmen, Tech President Joseph M. Pettit read a statement in support of Fulcher but refused to comment on charges of racial bias made by McAshan.

The Gainesville, Fla., senior, who holds 16 passing records for the Yellow Jackets, has been suspended from next Monday's Liberty Bowl game against Iowa State.

In a news conference Thursday night, McAshan said he had

Goliath finally won.

The tall Hayward High School Farmers turned back a valiant effort by the small but determined Drake High Pirates last night to take a 69-65 second round victory in the Rose City Invitational basketball Tournament at Cardinal Newman High in Santa Rosa.

The loss knocked the Pirates out of the running for the championship, and they play the loser of the Montgomery of Santa Rosa-Cardinal Newman game (results unavailable at press time) for third place tonight at 7:30 p.m. Hayward plays the winner for the title at 9:30 p.m.

In other tournament games involving Southern Sonoma and Marin County teams, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park beat St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 51-44, and Petaluma took a last second 45-44 victory over Marin Catholic.

Rancho Cotate and Petaluma were to play today at 4:30 p.m. for the consolation title. Marin Catholic was to play St. Patrick's at 3 p.m. today for seventh place.

Six-foot-seven center Paul Volasgis, 6-4 forward Ray Jackson and 6-3 guard Scott Paulsen led the Hayward victory against the Pirates, whose tallest player is 6-4 center John Channell.

Drake was in the contest until the last four minutes when it missed three straight lay-ups and made some critical turnovers. At this time, Hayward finally began to dominate both backboards and took a 63-51 lead.

"I think we should have won the ball game," Drake coach Pete Hayward commented. "We didn't play good defense and we committed too many turnovers. They're a better ball club, that's all."

Even with the tremendous height disadvantage, the Pirates more than held their own on the boards, especially in the early part of the game. They outrebounded the Farmers, 33-26, with most of them hauled in

Seals, Vancouver Face Off Tonight

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The California Seals will be attempting to rebound here tonight after falling apart against the Chicago Black Hawks last night in Oakland.

While the Seals skate against the host Vancouver Canucks tonight, Seals' coach Fred Glover may be recalling painful memories of last night's game.

What had been a close game fell apart Friday night when the Hawks exploded for five goals in the last period.

Last place California, which has lost their last seven games, led 2-0 in the first period on early scores by defenseman Rick Smith and left wing Joey Johnston.

But the Black Hawks came back with scores by J. P. Bordeleau and Lou Angotti and took the lead 4-2 in the second period with goals by Cliff Koroll and Jim Pappin. Then Johnston hit his second goal to cut the lead to 4-3.

Jerry Korab scored twice for Chicago in the third period and Stan Mikita, Pat Stapleton and Bordeleau put in one each.

Hilliard Graves scored California's only third period hit.

Agase Returns To Purdue Grid

Combined AP & UPI

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Northwestern's Alex Agase, who played one season at Purdue during World War II and earned All-America status, is returning today to the Boilermakers as their head football coach.

Agase, 50, was named Friday night to replace Bob DeMoss, who resigned after three unsuccessful seasons, saying he wanted to devote more time to his family.

Agase spent nine years at the helm of the Northwestern Wildcats, seven of them losing seasons.

"The decision to leave Northwestern was tough," Agase told a news conference. "I debated the move in agony the last 11 days when I learned my friend, 'Demo', was leaving coaching. I hope I can do the job Purdue expects of me."

Although Agase's record at Northwestern was a losing one, 32-58-1, his 1970 and 1971 seasons were exceptions, finishing each time in second place in the Big Ten.

Hayward, which shot a blistering 63 per cent from the field, was led in the scoring by Jackson with 20 points, and Paulsen with 19. Top scorers for Drake, which converted 42 per cent from the floor, were Channell with 19 and Eddie Joe Chavez with 13 points.

Petaluma had trouble with the press for the second night in a row, turning the ball over 11 times, but Steve Steady put in a pressure free throw with three seconds left to beat Marin Catholic.

The Trojans, who fell behind by seven at halftime, took over the lead at 30-28 with six minutes left in the third quarter on two Kirk Smartt free throws, and never trailed thereafter.

The Wildcats tied the score at 38, 40 and 42 all in the last two minutes on baskets by the Mahoney Brothers, Mike and Dan, but missed an easy basket that would have given them the game with 30 seconds remaining.

Rancho Cotate took control of the lead and the ball game in the third quarter and built up a 16 point lead with four minutes to play. The Cougars had trouble early against St. Patrick's, scoring only 14 points in the first half, but Marshall Brant, John Sorenson and Frank Garrett started hitting from outside to give them a 32-32 third quarter lead.

DALLAS — Southern Methodist University Friday hired Dave Smith of Oklahoma State as head football coach, replacing Hayden Fry, fired just before the season's final game. Salary figures were not disclosed.

Golf

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — American golf professional George Archer shared the lead with Australian Bob Tuohy today after the third round of the City of Auckland Golf Classic.

Both leaders carded 210s — three-under-par — over the first 54 holes and are three strokes ahead of 22-year-old Jack Newton of Australia who, along with Tuohy, shot a four-under-par 67 today.

Tennis

SAN FRANCISCO — British Motors announced the sponsorship of a second major Pro Tennis Tournament to be held Jan. 21-27 at the Los Angeles Forum.

The British Motors MG Tennis Championships will follow on the heels of a $25,000 San Francisco tournament which opens the national Virginia Slims tour.

San Francisco's six night event ends Saturday, Jan. 20. Opening round play for the Forum tournament begins Sunday Jan. 21 at 11 a.m.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — A simple handshake was good enough Friday to double the salary of Steve Carlton, the best pitcher in baseball last season. Of course, winning 27 games and the Cy Young Award didn't hurt either when the lanky left-hander talked contact with Phillies general manager Paul Owens.

"Steve and I shook hands and that's good enough for me," said Owens Friday. He said he expected Carlton to sign sometime after the first of the year. The verbal agreement they reached calls for a reported $150,000 a year, as compared with the $75,000 he received last year.

Carlton will be the highest paid player in Phillies' history.

Basketball

LOS ANGELES — UCLA basketball coach John Wooden won't be at Pauley Pavilion tonight when his no. 1-ranked Bruins return to action after a two-week layoff to face University of California at Santa Barbara.

Wooden, 62, was taken to the hospital last Sunday night for what his doctors later reported as a mild heart condition. It will be the first game he has missed since becoming the coach at UCLA in 1948.

Assistant coach Gary Cunningham, 33, will fill in until Wooden's return. The Bruins' coach is expected to be released during the weekend.

Pamphlet On Boating Safety Is Released

The Department of Navigation and Ocean Development in Sacramento yesterday released the new boating safety pamphlet, "Safety Boating Hints for Northern California Coast."

This free pamphlet, covering boating situations from Point Reyes to the Oregon border, can be obtained by writing to the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development, 1416 Ninth Street, Room 1336, Sacramento, 95814.

SUMMIT CONFERENCE — Dwarfed by his players, College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis (center, tie) issued instructions to his Tars during a time-out last night in the College of Marin Invitational basketball tournament in Kentfield. All of Panagakis' strategy and his players' brawn was needed to overcome a stall by Ohlone College of Fremont to achieve a 58-55 victory.

tuted liberally, particularly in the second quarter when the winners only scored five points. Mike Conner of Redwood led game scorers with 17 points, while Darrell Elder came up with 10, and 13 rebounds. Neil Hennessy led assists with seven.

Tamalpais (3-6) scored only 30 points in the first three periods and was trailing, 53-30, before erupting for 33 points in the final quarter to make the score respectable. Guard David Jones scored all 21 of his points in that frantic stanza.

Tam's unbelievable succession of injuries and ailments continued as Kevin Murphy, the Indians' leading scorer the last two games, wrenched a knee in practice Thursday and missed the game. Coach Bernie Schneider expects him back next week.

been plagued by racial bias during his years at Georgia Tech.

Pettit said it was the opinion of the board of trustees of the athletic association that "Coach Fulcher acted in the best interests of not only the present football team but of the entire school and of its future overall athletic program," in suspending McAshan.

"We affirm that the manner in which Coach Fulcher reached his decision in this unfortunate occurence conforms to the highest ethics and ideals of his profession."

McAshan charged that Fulcher had promised he could play in the Liberty Bowl if he would make a public apology and that Fulcher reneged on that promise.

NBA PLAY

Lakers In Trouble; Wilt Is Outplayed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's not often Wilt Chamberlaih is both outscored and outrebounded by the opposing center in the same game but when it does happen the Los Angeles Lakers are usually in trouble.

That was the case Friday night when young Dave Cowens led the red hot Boston Celtics past the defending National Basketball Association champions 102-98. Cowens scored 31 points and pulled down 19 rebounds as Boston ran its season record to 24-3, best in the NBA, and upped its Atlantic Division lead to 2 ½ games over New York.

Cowens tallied 29 of his points in the first three quarters but had to play it careful in the final session during most of which time he played with five personal fouls. The three-year veteran from Florida State did finally foul out with 43 seconds left to play but not before he let the officials know how he felt over the call. In addition to his sixth personal he also collected a technical foul which will leave him $50 lighter in his wallet.

Cowen's figures were even more impressive when matched against Chamberlain's totals of 18 points and 14 rebounds.

The win was Boston's seventh straight while Los Angeles had its six game winning streak snapped. The Lakers lost for only the fifth time in 30 games this season but it was Los Angeles' second defeat at the hands of Boston in as many games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee maintained its one game lead in the Midwest Division with a 98-82 decision over Cleveland while second place Chicago kept pace by beating New York 90-86, Golden State whipped Buffalo 129-95, Baltimore edged Houston 94-91, Kansas City-Omaha outlasted Detroit 140-132 in overtime and Portland nipped Seattle 96-95.

WHA Action: Hull Is Upstaged By Rookie

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Michael Plante, a rookie whom nearly no one had ever heard of before this year found himself in rather strange surroundings Friday night—stealing Bobby Hull's thunder.

Plante, who played last season with Drummondville in the Quebec Junior League, matched Hull with two goals as the lowly Philadelphia Blazers rose up to beat the western division-leading Winnipeg Jets 6-4. Plante who now has eight goals, five since he began playing on the line with John McKenzie and Michel Boudreau, scored what proved to be the game-winner in the third period. Hull, meanwhile has now scored 17 in 22 games for Winnipeg since being freed by the courts.

In the other World Hockey Association games, Cleveland defeated Quebec 6-3, Minnesota edged Houston 4-3 and Ottawa nipped Alberta 4-3.

Jack Stanfield's breakaway goal with seven minutes left snapped a 2-2 tie and gave Houston its win over Minnesota. Dunc McCallum and Murray Hall had the other two Aero goals.

Cleveland moved back into second place in the east as rookies Bill Horton and Ralph Hopiavuori tallied their first goals of the season to trigger the scoring. Ron Buchanan, the Crusaders' leading scorer, increased his total to 17 with a pair of goals.

Second period goals by Bob Leduc, Guy Trottier and Mike Boland keyed Ottawa over Alberta. Nationals' goalie Gilles Gratton proved the difference in the final minutes of play, stopping the Oilers' threat.

Junior Varsity Cage

Dave Steele, Mike Farris and Eric Wheeler combined for 32 points, Farris had 11 rebounds and James White had five assists as San Rafael High School's junior varsity basketball team defeated host Vallejo yesterday, 54-42. Terra Linda's unbeaten J.V.s, meanwhile, got 38 points from Steve Johnson, Doug Carlisle and Jeff Creamer in downing visiting Piner of Santa Rosa, 69-47.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Teams Keep Eye On Scoreboard

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There may be quite a few National Football League players playing scoreboard this weekend.

Scoreboard is a game played in the final stretch of a season when your team is in contention and your major opposition is on the road. It consists in keeping one eye on what you're doing and one eye on the scoreboard to keep track of your rivals.

The game of scoreboard be taking place in San Diego where the Pittsburgh Steelers will be keeping a close eye on the New York Jets-Cleveland finale as they prepare to take on the Chargers.

If the Jets beat Cleveland, then Pittsburgh has its first title in 40 years of NFL play. Should the Browns win, Pittsburgh then must beat San Diego to earn the title. A Cleveland victory and a Steeler defeat would push the Browns into the conference title on the basis of best conference record (they split their head-to-head games) and Pittsburgh would then compete in the playoffs as the wild card or best runnerup team.

No playoff berth was on the line for today's other game but three league records could fall. Miami met Baltimore in its attempt to become the first NFL club to go unbeaten through a 14-game schedule. No NFL team has had an unbeaten regular season since 1942 when the Chicago Bears were 11-0 before bowing in the playoffs.

In other action Sunday, Buffalo is at Washington, Chicago at Oakland, Green Bay at New Orleans, the New York Giants at Dallas, Cincinnati at Houston, New England at Denver and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

Reds' Bench Vows To Play Next Year

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench proclaimed Friday he would be ready to play ball next year.

"No doubt about it," said Bench, attired in a bright red robe and a floppy blue denim hat with a flower in it.

"I consider myself a very lucky person," Bench told newsmen attending the first news conference since his lung surgery Monday.

Bench, who had a benign lesion removed from his right lung, was expected to be released from Christ Hospital possibly Monday. he said he was "feeling great" and that he had been confident from the outset that everything would be alright.

Doctors said Friday the lesion had been caused by a fungus infection in the lung.

"I'd be a liar if I didn't admit I had some doubts," Bench said. "I thought about what might happen if they found it was malignant and I worried about the possibility of them having them cut into me and find out that it wasn't necessary after all."

Bench said he had seen the x-rays taken before and after the operation.

The spot was discovered in September during a routine team examination. Bench continued to play out the season, playoffs and World Series,

MARIN BOWLING

San Rafael's Tauscher Gets 707 In Greenbrae

Mike Tauscher's 707 series at Greenbrae Lanes Tuesday night was the loudest sound recorded in an otherwise quiet week of Marin County bowling.

Tauscher of San Rafael parleyed games of 225, 258 and 224 in turning in Marin's top bowling achievement of the week. He was bowling in the Mixed Mates League.

In other county bowling endeavors, Bea Hoffmann ruled the roost at Country Club Bowl this week, registering a fine 666 series. The San Rafael bowler rolled games of 231, 204 and 231 last Friday night in Our Own Gang league.

A TOURNEY IS ON TAP Monday, 1 p.m. at Country Club Bowl. Some 30 entries are expected for this Christmas powder puff tournament entitled "Three-Six-Nine Throwout."

Competitors will bowl four games with the lowest score thrown out. Bowlers will be automatically credited with strikes on the third, sixth and ninth frames. Scoring is based on three-games, total pins with handicaps.

Entrants must pay a $3 entry fee at Country Club Bowl and have a listing in the Marin County average book or have a current average compiled over a 21-game period. The higher average will be used in determining the handicap.

LUCKY 13. Thirteen-year-old Tony Trowbridge served notice this week that he is, indeed, a bowler with potential. Bowling at Greenbrae Lanes last Saturday morning, he compiled a creditable 660-series. After rolling games of 266 and 227, observers felt a 700-series was within Trowbridge's grasp. However, he plummeted to a 167 in the final game, thus missing the goal by 40 pins.

ANTARCTIC GREETINGS

As human explorers from many nations again fan out from bases during Antarctic summer to probe that frozen area, they find the natives friendly for the most part. Emperor penguins above waddle over to greet visitors, cocking their heads and squawking among themselves and show very little alarm. A mother seal (left), a bit more cautious, bellows a warning not to touch her baby — but then she just eyes any intruder with gentle curiosity.

Casino Robber Sentenced For His Part In Crime

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Casino robber Larry Swinburg yesterday was ordered to serve five years probation and weekends in jail for four months for his role in the $178,500 robbery of Harrah's Lake Tahoe casino.

U.S. District Court judge Bruce Thompson also ordered Swinburg to make restitution of $1,220, his share of the holdup loot, within a two-year period.

Swinburg had pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge in connection with the Sept. 19 robbery and testified for the government in the trial of three other men.

Donald Rice, 35, Jack Cozad, 37, and Thomas Norman, 36, were convicted of conspiracy at a jury trail earlier this month. Rice was also convicted of interstate transportation of stolen property and Cozard and Norman of aiding and abetting.

Closed Council Session For Barbier Successor

The San Rafael City Council will meet in closed session at 7 p.m. Monday to consider filling the council seat held by the late Harry A. Barbier.

Councilmen failed to reach agreement on Barbier's successor two weeks ago when a vote produced a three-way split. Frontrunners in the eight-way race appear to be planning commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole, Dixie School District board president John A. Starkweather and county planning commission chairman Jack G. Nixon.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini has said he will call a special election to coincide with the expiration of Barbier's term in April if the council is unable to make the appointment on Monday.

The council in closed session also will consider a board of review recommendation upholding the firing of police officer James W. Jackson, who is accused of submitting pay vouchers for a training class he never attended.

The council in public session will consider an historic preservation ordinance drafted by Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan and consider the request of Marin Heritage, a preservation group, for funds to purchase the Dollar Mansion on Mission Avenue.

The council will also hear a report on financial matters from Councilman John A. Miskimen, consider a no-smoking policy during council meetings and hear a report on the timing of the city's sale of open space bonds.

$11,000 Damage To Detergent Plant At Prison

A fire which broke out yesterday in the storage section of the detergent plant at San Quentin Prison did more than $11,000 damage before the prison's firemen extinguished it.

Lee De Bord, prison information officer, said cause of the blaze, which started about 10:30 a.m., was not known.

The fire burned about $8,500 worth of boxes and did between $2,500 and $3,000 damage to the storage building.

The smoky blaze was mainly confined to stacks of boxes, DeBord said.

Detergents and cleansers are manufactured in the plant which are sold to tax-supported agencies.

Acquisition

TACOMA Wash. (BW) — Acquisition of the Babcock Co., Coral Gables, Fla., by Weyerhaeuser Co., Tacoma, was reported Thursday by officials of the two firms.

We're funny people. We want to give you a Free Turkey for Christmas.

That's right. A Christmas turkey absolutely free. Bring in this ad. Take a demonstration ride in one of our sparkling new Coronas, Corollas, Celicas or Mark II's, and we'll hand you an order for your Christmas turkey absolutely free. No obligation.

New cars are arriving and will be priced higher. You will never again be able to buy a new Toyota at the low prices we're quoting right now. Use your good judgement. Come in while these savings are still available. Get a free turkey, too.

Note: Licensed drivers only. One to a family. Offer expires December 20.

THIS WEEK'S BUSINESS

Profit Taking Drops Prices On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Profit taking dropped prices this week on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said the pullback was normal following the market's steep climb of recent weeks and the usual year-end portfolio changes.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues fell 5.95 to 1,027.24. Monday's closing of 1,036.27 was an all-time high Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 0.60 to 118.26. The NYSE common stock index dropped 3.38 to 64.63.

The stock market was overdue for a correction, analysts said, and this week it began to slide, although there was little pressure to the selling, some of which was attributed to seasonal tax considerations. However, most analysts concluded, the stock market was "overbought and ready for the dip." The market remained sensitive to peace rumors as Wall Street saw a brief rally Friday based on peace hopes.

Of 1,975 issues traded this week, 1,211 declined, 586 advanced Turnover for the week totaled 87,039,040 shares compared with 93,499,771 shares the week before and 89,333,650 shares a year earlier.

The consolidation phase began Monday as investors ignored a White House announcement that President Nixon

THIS WEEK'S BUSINESS

Profit Taking Drops Prices On Market

would seek to extend wage and price controls beyond their scheduled April 30, expiration. Brokers said the market had been expecting the move.

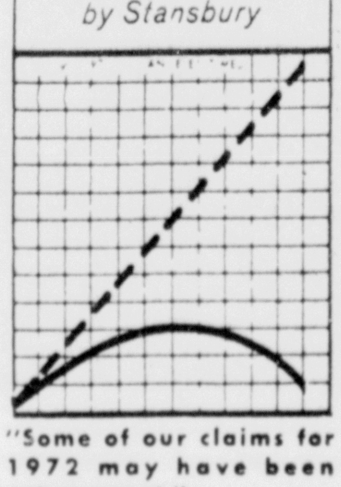
The remainder of the week saw moderate profit taking chop prices. Analysts said there was some disappointment that a peace pact was yet to be signed in Paris. Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger returned to Washington, prompting one analyst to postulate, "a Kissinger correlation." As he noted, "When Henry's on his way to Washington the market drops, and when he's on his way to Paris, it rises."

On Friday, the profit taking was interrupted by a twenty-minute peace rally inspired by a French radio broadcast forecasting a cease-fire in 48 hours. The list backed off after White House denial of such a cease-fire.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue and rose ⅞ to 52 ⅜ on 934,400 shares. AT&T has seen a resurgence of investor interest following a long decline.

Gulf Oil was second, up ¼ at 26 ½ on 910,600 shares. Gulf was still actively traded following its 9,225,000 share secondary offering.

Pan American World Airways was third, off 1 ¼ at 9 ½ on 907,500 shares. The airline issue was rocked after a prospectus disclosed if the line failed to sell a $75 million convertible debenture issue, the company will have a financial squeeze in the 1973 second quarter. Adding to the company's woes was the possibility of a rate war on the North Atlantic routes.



"Some of our claims for 1972 may have been extravagant."

Deputies Spurn Lie Tests In Student Shooting Case

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Several deputies suspected in the killing of two Southern University students have refused to take lie detector tests.

The East Baton Rouge Parish sheriff says he will conduct an investigation aimed at finding who caused the Nov. 15 campus disturbance.

U.S. Attorney Douglas Gonzales said Friday an investigation by about 40 FBI agents was complete "as of today" and he expected a report from them soon.

He said the investigation, which involved the interrogation of every law officer present at the disturbance, had narrowed to include only six deputies, several of whom refused to take the test.

"The error is that the FBI has narrowed its investigation to one suspect—that is wrong," he said. "And it is also wrong that this one suspect is the only one that refused to take the test. I saw he isn't the only one, so you can conclude that others have also refused."

The state commission of inquiry reported Thursday that the shots that killed Denver A. Smith and Leonard D. Brown in front of the Southern administration building came from an area where six deputies were posted.

State Attorney General William Guste Jr., the commission's chairman, said it was his unofficial opinion that one of the deputies killed the two students during the demonstration.

Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff Al Amiss said finding out whether his men killed the youths was being left to the FBI and the attorney general.

"We're right now in the process of appointing a special task force to investigate the Southern University takeover, who did take over the administration building, also who intimidated the students on the campus from going to class," Amiss said. "Also, who burned the building, which is aggravated arson. I'm going to make a very intensive investigation and hope to make some arrests."

Gonzales said the FBI's report would be given to him and other federal officials and "the federal attorney general's office will then decide what to do."

Court Rules Cable Firm Can't Ignore Blackout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has ruled that cable television systems cannot carry a network sports program into an area that has been blacked out.

The commission decided that a regional sports blackout applies to all television, both network and cable.

The ruling Friday came in response to a request from WPTV, the Scripps-Howard Broadcasting Co. television station in West Palm Beach, Fla.

WPTV, a NBC affiliate, said the network telecast of today's Baltimore Colts-Miami Dolphins football game at Miami was blacked out in its region because of the contract between the National Football League and NBC.

But WPTV said that it had reason to believe a cable system was planning to televise today's game and the Dec. 24 American Football Conference playoff game at Miami into the West Palm Beach area.

The FCC said that the cable system could not carry the regular season game today or the AFC playoff game Dec. 24:

The FCC said the cable system was trying to make use of a technicality in a rule, which applied only when the network affiliate had an option to carry a program. No option for WPTV exists in the case of the Colts-Dolphins game or the playoff game, the FCC said.

Girl Auction Blasted By Women

LONDON (UPI) — Women journalists were angry today over plans by male colleagues to auction a shapely model at a Christmas press ball.

The women, members of an organization called Women in Media, assailed their own union, the National Union of Journalists, for sponsoring a "degrading auction" of a girl at a dance.

The women said the union, "which stands for equality for women," should not sponsor the Dec. 18 ball because it includes a "Win a Woman" contest.

"If they would like to take up the remaining tickets, we would be happy to provide a man for them to win," a union spokesman said.

Mrs. Sandra Brown, a Women in Media leader, said her group considers the auction idea degrading.

"Somebody I know was approached to be auctioned," Mrs. Brown said. "She refused point blank...It smacks very much of a cattle market."

Aviatrix Dead

LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Jessie "Chubbie" Pugh, a famed aviatrix and central figure in a sensational American murder trial of the 1930s, died today in a London hospital. She was 70.

Few Flaws In Replica Of 'Spirit'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The replica of the "Spirit of St. Louis" was the best one ever made, said the man who built the original.

But T. Claude Ryan watched with approval as Charles A. Lindbergh spotted a few tiny flaws.

"He picked out these little things," Ryan said in an interview Friday after his friend and fellow aviation pioneer, Lindbergh, had his first look at the model of the little plane he flew from here to St. Louis to New York and then alone across the Atlantic in 1927.

"The exact location of the compass was a little off. The spinner on the propeller was one that the airplane had originally been equipped with but had been replaced in New York, so the one that actually flew across the Atlantic was different. He spotted that right away."

Lindbergh was here for a meeting of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality. "He was the one who insisted that the committee take time off and come up to the aerospace museum," said Ryan with a smile.

In a corner of the museum Lindy found another treasure — the original M1 monoplane on which he trained for his flight.

"We found it in a barn on a ranch in Montana about a year ago and restored it," said Ryan, now nearly 75 but still active as board chairman of Teledyne Ryan.

"It was what attracted Lindbergh to our company. It's very similar to the Spirit of St. Louis but smaller. He liked the Ryan M1 and he spent quite a bit of time in San Diego flying one while the 'Spirit' was being built, to get accustomed because it was so similar.

"This was the grandmother, or father if you like, of the Spirit of St. Louis."

While Lindbergh was practicing in the M1 — a model later widely used for Pacific Coast mail flights-Ryan was hurriedly assembling the Spirit of St. Louis, named because Lindbergh's financial backers were from that city. It took 60 days.

"We had a fuselage already under way, Ryan recalled, "and a few parts which we could use.

"They wanted it all done so fast."

Owner Of Biggest Circus Is Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israel S. Feld, a Russian immigrant's son who rose from an itinerant snakeoil salesman to ownership of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus, died Friday after a heart attack. He was 62.

In partnership with his brother Irvin and Judge Roy Hofheinz of Houston, Feld bought the world's largest circus for $10 million in an elaborate ceremony in 1967 at the entrance to the Colosseum in Rome.

U.N. Forms Unit On Environment

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations set up a 58-nation organization Friday to combat pollution and safeguard the earth's resources, then named Nairobi as its home base and appointed a Canadian expert on ecology to head it.

The U.N. General Assembly also placed East and West Germany—two of the most polluted nations in Europe—on the governing council of the new organization even though the two states are not yet full members of the United Nations.

The new organization, the first such U.N. group, will monitor and measure pollution, collect and exchange data on it and supervise global projects to combat the deterioration of the world's environment.

The choice of Nairobi as headquarters for the organization was unanimous and historical. It makes Nairobi the first headquarters for a U.N. organization outside the rich nations of Europe and North America.

Maurice F. Strong, a Canadian industrialist who served as secretary general of a world environment conference held last summer in Stockholm, won election as executive secretary of the new organization. He will earn $42,000 a year in a job which compares with such posts as director general of the U.N. World Health Organization (WHO) or the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

The new body was established as a result of the Stockholm conference, which proposed a U.N. organization to deal with monitoring and protecting the world's oceans, lands and atmosphere.

East Germany was barred from the Stockholm conference because it was not a member of the United Nations and as a result Soviet bloc nations boycotted the meeting.

But following the diplomatic breakthroughs leading to closer relations between the two Germanys and after East Germany achieved the same kind of observer status at the United Nations as West Germany, both German states won places on the new organization's governing council.

Other members elected to the governing council included the Soviet Union and four other members of the Eastern bloc, 16 black African states, 13 Middle and Far Eastern states, including China, 10 Latin American states and 12 Western bloc states, including the United States and Canada.

Jail Term Is Given To Arsonist

A 28-year-old man who set fire to his former home in Bolinas has been ordered to serve six months in jail by a Marin Superior Court judge.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed Charles K. Post, now of San Francisco, on probation for five years on the felony arson count.

Post was arrested Sept. 16 after a chase at 80 miles an hour through Petaluma, two hours after the 19th century home at 19 Brighton Avenue caught fire. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Post, now unemployed, had been a volunteer fireman and owner of Survival Health Foods in Bolinas.

A probation officer said he set the fire "in a desperate bid to secure assistance with his emotional distress" over the dissolution of his marriage.

The report noted he made no effort to conceal the crime.

Miller Wins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arnold E. Miller has defeated W. A. "Tony" Boyle for the presidency of the United Mine Workers (UMW), according to final unofficial votes released today by the Labor Department.

Doctor, Nurses Fined For Sale Of Illegal Drug

BERKELEY (UPI) — Dr. John A. Richardson, an Albany physician, and his two nurses, were found guilty yesterday on charges of dispensing Laetrile, a drug banned for use as a cancer cure.

Municipal Judge George Brunn gave Richardson a six-month suspended sentence, placed him on probation for three years and fined him $2,500.

Charlotte Anderson, one of the nurses, was given a 90-day suspended sentence and $250 fine. Margaret Grosch, another nurse, got a $600 fine and 90-day suspended sentence.

The physician conceded that he had sold Laetrile to undercover agents posing as cancer patients.

MacArthur's Plane To Be Restaurant

NIIGATA, Japan (UPI) — A Lockheed Constellation Starliner which once served as the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur's special plane flew into Niigata airport Friday—to become a restaurant.

Hiro Miyajima, 38, the new owner of the plane, said the aircraft restaurant would cost him about $454,000.

SACKED SANTAS

Fired from their Santa Claus jobs in a St. Paul, Minn., department store for telling children that Santa Claus does not bring guns are Bill Devine (left) and Darrell Baird, both 24. The two were sacked yesterday after the store issued a memo forbidding antigun statements. Both had told children who asked for guns that Santa Claus does not give them. A store spokesman said Devine and Baird were violating a store policy which states that Santas should not promise or refuse any particular gift to a child.

Mental Patient Doesn't Want To Leave Home Of 40 Years

WAUPUN, Wis. (UPI) — William Jensen, 87, will be able to stay in a mental hospital over the holidays. That, for him, is good news. But afterwards he will have to leave and he doesn't like it a bit.

Jensen has been a mental patient for 40 years and currently is an inmate of Central State Hospital.

A court ruled recently that Jensen was "not a proper subject" for confinement under Wisconsin's involuntary commitment law and ordered that he be released Friday.

The hospital's superintendent, Dr. Edward F. Schubert, Thursday night asked and obtained a two week extension of the order so that Jensen could spend Christmas with his friends in the hospital.

But after that, Schubert said, the hospital will have to let him go. He said neither he nor Jensen thinks much of the prospect.

"He takes a dim view of the whole release thing," Schubert said. "Mr. Jensen said he wants to stay at the hospital, but there's nothing I can do about it."

Schubert said he does not want to turn Jensen out into "the cold, dreary world."

"This bothers me very much that I'll have to let him go," he said. "But there's nothing I can do to keep him here. He's going to be pretty damn much on his own now.

"The one good thing is that at least he'll be here through Christmas."

Jensen, of Hanshaw, Wis., was first committed to a mental hospital in 1932, when the Oneida County Court ruled he was insane.

West German President Says Office Is No 'Token'

BONN (UPI) — German women are getting more actively involved in politics and are thinking and acting independently, the first women elected president of the West German parliament said Friday.

Annemarie Renger added in an interview with UPI that "I am for the emancipation of women because I am for the emancipation of the whole of society."

Mrs. Renger, who got into politics after World War II as secretary to Kurt Schumacher, chairman of the Social Democratic Party, won her way to the presidency of the Bundestag, the 496-member lower house of parliament when the deputies elected Nov. 19 convended Wednesday.

At 53, she is the first woman to win the post, the second highest in the republic, ranked only by the head of state.

Mrs. Renger brushed aside suggestions she was given the job as "a token woman," as a salve to the consciences of male parliamentarians for the fact that the new legislative body has only 30 female members, fewer than any of its predecessors.

Despite what appears to be their poor showing in the last election, Mrs. Renger said she is convinced women are becoming politically more emancipated and active.

"Women more and more vote politically, throwing off external influences such as that of their religious confession," Mrs. Renger said. "It used to be that many women whose husbands voted for us Social Democrats because of these external influences. If you are well enough backgrounded in German affairs, you will know what I mean."

Assistants said she meant that until recently such women followed the advice of their priests or pastors to vote for the Christian Democrats no matter what were the political issues.

"Now growing numbers of these same woman are voting for us Social Democrats," Mrs. Renger said.

But it must not be assumed that women automatically vote for women, she went on. However, she said analysis shows that women who managed to become candidates despite male dominance of the Social Democratic Party organization increased their polls this election more than did the men.

Mrs. Renger was widowed in 1944, when her first husband was killed in France. She entered parliament in 1953, after Schumacher died, making a name for herself in dealing with social legislation, and in European affairs. Seven years ago, she married a former Yugoslav diplomat who is now a businessman and German citizen.

Rock Tunes Draw Shad In Flocks

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Each winter the Gizzard shad, a fish common to Lake Erie, has been attracted to the warm water discharged at the Pennsylvania Electric Co. plant on Presque Isle Bay.

After a few days many of the fish die in the warmer water. The company decided to do something to discourage the winter influx of the fish.

Someone suggested that rock 'n roll music would probably frighten off the shad.

At considerable expense, the company built an experimental tank to contain the fish, then lowered speakers into the water to pipe in the music in the hope it would discourage the fish.

Thursday, company officials gathered for the great experiment. Someone pushed a button and rock 'n roll music blared under water inside the tank.

The music attracted more shad.

Now, the company is conducting a study to find out why shad like rock 'n roll music.

Lock Contract Session Set

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board will hold a special meeting Thursday prior to awarding contracts on construction of a tidal lock and dredging of the community lagoon.

Directors agreed Thursday night to go over details of bids before awarding contracts at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 28 at the Bel Marin Keys Community Center, according to Betty L. Zoeller, district secretary.

Last month, Duncan Harrelson Co. of Oakland submitted low bid of $689,400 for construction of the tidal lock, while Shellmaker Inc. of San Francisco, was low bidder on the dredging at $242,350.

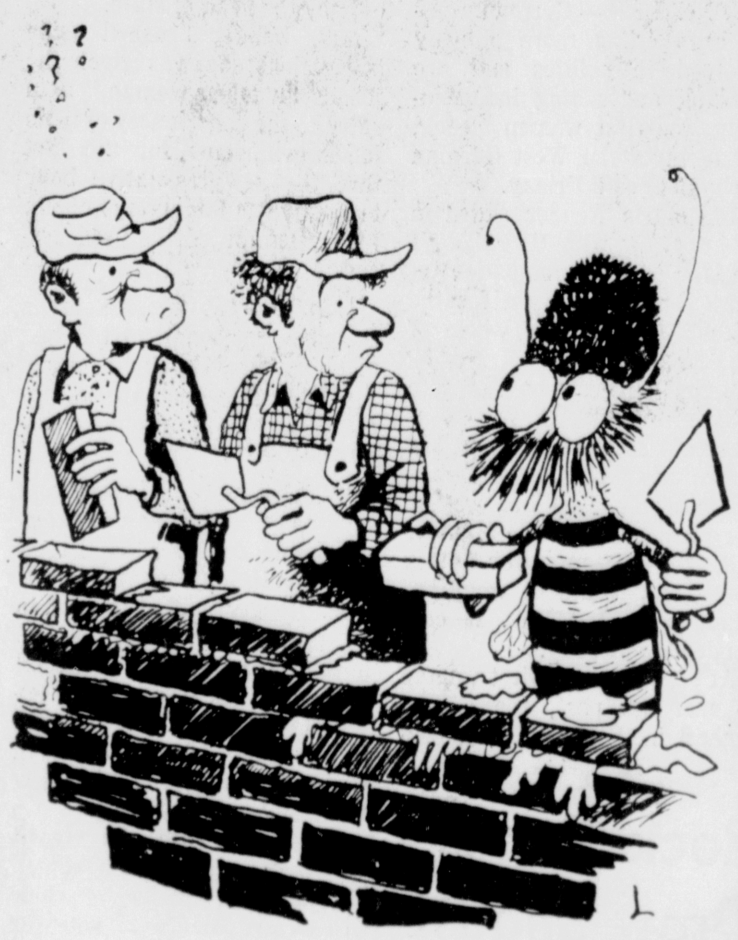
Despite Planning, New Embassy In Moscow Might Have Bugs

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service



WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bugs? For years Russians in Washington, and Americans in Moscow, have assumed these devices were a fact of diplomatic life.

Now both sides have a chance to minimize electronic eavesdropping, since each is to build a brand-new embassy in the other's capital.

Americans know it will be difficult to exterminate bugs completely.

"The U.S. knows it's working in a bugged building (in Moscow), "says on State Department official, "and to think you can keep a building free of bugging in this day of sophistication is nonsense."

Nonetheless, one can assume the United States and the Soviet Union will do their utmost to keep out electronic listening devices when they build the new embassies.

Under a recently signed agreement on construction, each side has the right to do all the iterior work and to have unrestricted access to its building site — provisions that Washington, which wants to use American or West European laborers, insisted upon.

Both sides, if they choose, also can do the exterior facing and the final roofing work.

No one is fooling anyone, though. It is virtually impossible to eliminate eavesdropping by the "other side." Americans in Moscow — and no doubt Russians in Washington — have always worked on the assumption that no building is "safe" and therefore keep alert about what they say inside.

U.S. security officials are mum about the latest wiretapping techniques. But these days there are highly developed devices to monitor conversation, some so miniaturized that "drops and pickups" are a constant hazard. A Russian or East European visitor to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, for instance, can drop a small object in some hard-to-find nook and pick it up unobtrusively (he hopes) at some later date.

In any event, both sides are pleased that after years of wrangling an accord was signed — it is the 101st Soviet agreement since 1933 and the 43rd in the Nixon administration — and plans for the embassies can now take wing. The United States has hired the firms of Skidmore, Owings, & Merrill of San Francisco and Gruzen and Partners of New York to design the building. Their overall mandate is to come up with something that reflects American architectural trends and values.

This gives the United States an unusual opportunity to project the American image in a Communist society. Moscow watchers re hoping the building will turn out to be more of an eye-catcher than, say, the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw, which many critics term "unimaginative."

It is expected to be at least two years before ground is broken for the embassy. Besides the architectural plans, which must be cleared by the Russians to make sure they meet local building codes, Congress must appropriate the money.

Occupancy of the two embassies is to be simultaneous — bugs and all.

Witnesses Tell Strange Tales On Psychologists

NEW YORK (UPI) — A housewife testified that an unlicensed psychologist had sexual intercourse with her and her school-age daughter and the daughter "took pictures of us in bed together."

An attractive brunette said her therapist on New York's West Side "socked me in the breasts" and "banged my head on the floor." When she complained, she said the therapist told her, "I had a problem with healthy play."

A third young woman said that, in her second week of treatment, her mental health therapist "started fondling and caressing me. It had nothing to do with any kind of treatment." She stopped going to him after paying out $1,100 in three weeks, the woman said.

Those were among the witnesses testifying either in person or through tape at a public hearing Friday into the practices of unlicensed mental health therapists. The witnesses did not identify themselves at the hearing.

"Today in New York anyone, including incompetents, charlatans, criminals and mentally ill persons can and do hold themselves out as being able to minister to those seeking help for mental, emotional or behavioral disorders," said State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz as he opened the hearings.

His office, Lefkowitz said, has found "widespread abuses by these unregulated practitioners in the mental health field."

There is a "shockingly widespread pattern of sexual therapy," said Stephen Mindell, deputy head of Lefkowitz's Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection.

Are there people today who care about their fellow-men?

Read the I-J's four part series on modern Good Samaritans, starting Tuesday.

All around the world there are people who see a need and do something about it. They're ordinary people, but they show an extraordinary interest in others who need help. They're people who take time to care. Read this special holiday feature in the I-J.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Buddy Ebsen, who has given long and good service to films and television aside from his nine-season run in video's "The Beverly Hillbillies," will be back on the tube beginning Jan. 28 at 9:30 p.m. as star of an hour-long CBS dramatic series tentatively titled "Barnaby Cobb." He will play a veteran private investigator.

CPM Programs Inc. is placing in production in Los Angeles a weekly one-hour program for syndication titled "Black Omnibus," with noted actor James Earl Jones as host. The series will explore the involvement of blacks in many phases of American life.

ABC will bring to the air during 1973 a seven-part drama, "The Strauss Family," depicting the triumphs and tragedies of the father-son waltz kings of Vienna in the 19th century. The series, produced in London, begins with a 90-minute episode, followed by six that are an hour long. Eric Woofe plays the elder Strauss, and Stuart Wilson is the son. The London Symphony Orchestra provides the music.

Hallmark Cards, Inc., which so far has invested about 50 million dollars in its long-running "Hall of Fame" drama specials, plans to invest 60 million dollars more in the same area during the next decade, according to Donald J. Hall, president.

Sir Lew Has Cracked The American Market

there's an advertisement for licenses for television.' . . .

"My associates and I put up a nominal capital of 500,000 pounds (1.3 million dollars).

"One day I meet a woman who says, 'I've got a great idea for a series called Robin Hood.' I said, 'That sounds interesting. How much will it cost?' She said, 'Thirty-nine episodes will cost 420,000 pounds' I said, 'Okay, you've got a deal. Go ahead.'

"A few weeks go by. She's making all the plans. Suddenly I thought, 'Perhaps I'd better call a board meeting and let them know what I've done with 420 out of 500 thousand pounds.' I mean, I'd had no experience of big business and they were the 10 most prominent people in this country."

SIR LEW IS all innocence as he describes, slyly, his tenderfoot status.

"So we had a board meeting at my agency office on Regency Street and I say, 'We're going to do a series called Robin Hood. 39 episodes.'"

Had he sold it? No, but he thought it was a great idea, he told the board.

"'Well, you must be raving mad,' they said. 'We've got 500,000 pounds and you spend 420,000 on this one thing?'

"The chairman said, 'Have you signed an agreement?' I said, 'No, but I've given my word.' Another member said, 'Once Lew has given his word, we have to go through with it.'"

IN THE END "Robin Hood" ran for five years. Meanwhile ATV, and a subsidiary called ITC, started putting out other series that became staples of the Anglo-American TV scene.

"The Saint," for example.

Originally all three American networks turned it down because they thought their viewers wouldn't watch action with a British accent. So it was sold directly to local stations and became a hit, even nudging out New York's long reigning movie champ "The Late Show." Eventually NBC commissioned a new season of "Saint's," creating the unusual situation of a network buying a series after syndication.

But prior to that, Sir Lew had to crack the tough American television market. He did it with "Danger Man" — known to Americans as "Secret Agent" — starring Patrick McGoohan.

How about recent charges that ATV programs are too permissive?

"We produce more programs than any other company," he explains, "And I have to take other contractors' programs where they have nude scenes. But I don't think you should go into a home where there may be children, or you might have friends who would be embarrassed."

Too much talk and too little action is what killed "The Persuaders" last season, Sir Lew says. "All of us, I think, overlooked the fact that what might be amusing dialogue here might not be in Des Moines or Cincinnati. The fact it was a tremendous hit everywhere else in the world is unfortunate:"

THAT WAS THE trouble, he feels, with another famous flop of his — "Shirley's World," starring Shirley MacLaine.

"I see the first episode and she comes to the London office of an American magazine," he relates, "pays off the cab, goes upstairs, says 'I want to see so-and-so,' and the receptionist says, 'Well, you turn . . .'"

Bombs appear unlikely to stop the ATV empire, as it turns out everything from more National Theater productions to pedestrian syndicated stuff like "Department S," a British show just beginning to cath on in the United States.

NOTHING HELPS?
HYPNOSIS WILL!
L. Davis A.I.E.H. 388-7367

"Christmas?...Bah!"
Said Ebenezer Scrooge.

WAS HE HARD OF HEARING?

Chances are Ebenezer had a hearing loss, or he couldn't have talked that way about the jolliest holiday of the year!

Seriously, Christmas can be a sad day - if hearing loss makes you miss all the fun. You feel alone . . . left out of things . . . even when you're surrounded by the very people you love.

If you look forward to Christmas with misgivings rather than pleasure, call on Beltone for help! Take your first step towards clear, unstrained hearing today! It's easy. Simply come in, phone, or write for an electronic hearing test with a Beltone precision audiometer, given by an authorized Beltone hearing aid specialist. You decide whether you want it at our office or at home. No obligation, of course.

A Master Of Pewter Making—

"Ale or beer tastes better when drunk from a pewter cup," insists Wayne Levie of Sausalito.

And Levie should know. A craftsman, he specializes in the production of the kind of pewter wares that have enjoyed the favor of people who like a combination of utility and beauty in their possessions.

THESE DECEMBER weekends Levie is making his point at the Great Dickens Christmas Fair and Pickwick Comic Annuel in San Francisco where he is exhibiting his goblets and chalices.

On the point of utility, Levie notes: "Pewter reacts very quickly to heat or cold. And it retains that heat or cold for long periods of time."

As for beauty, Levie lets his products speak for themselves. And apparently fair-goers, at Fezziwig's Warehouse that has been recreated next door to the San Francisco Produce Market, are favorably impressed. Levie's shop is one of the most popular spots at the fair which recreates the holiday period in the London of Charles Dickens' time. And these visitors agree that Levie's work fits in perfectly with the spirit of the fair.

LEVIE'S PEWTER drinking vessels on display have a textured surface, ornately carved stems and some have jade bead decorations, with the beads cut right in Levie's stall. The textured surface is achieved by special techniques in polishing.

"Ornamentation in Victorian times was — well, you might call it organic," says Levie. "Utensils were formed in the shapes of animals and flowers in the 19th Century, and we're going back to nature for our forms today. This particular trend in ornamentation really began in the 1880s with Art Nouveau."

Pewter craftsmen peaked in their popularity during the 18th Century when pewter cups and bowls were used quite commonly. (In the Renaissance it was royalty who drank their meade from pewter.)

BY VICTORIAN times pewter-makers were so established that their wares could almost be called mass-produced. They had "recipes" for the various alloys which produced different flexibilities or degrees of hardness.

Casting in Victorian times was done in brass dyes which were expensive, but allowed a great number of castings to be made from one mold.

Wayne Levie's own method of making pewter goblets involves casting in sand — a method he developed after long experimentation. He prefers casting in sand since this produces a unique one-of-a-kind goblet, each one having very slight variations.

"I work with pewter as an artist, not as a manufacturer," he says.

LEVIE NOW spends most of his time working with pewter — an alloy of tin and lead. He has taken arts courses and jewelry making at the College of Marin.

The Great Dickens Fair and Pickwick Comic Annual ends its 1972 holiday season run next Saturday. It is open Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sundays from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The fair is reached from Bayshore Freeway by taking the Army Street exits, then following the signs.

Special shuttle buses are running every half hour, starting at 10:30 a.m., from Union Square across from the St. Francis Hotel.

WAYNE LEVIE IS only one of more than 100 craftsmen featured at the fair in small shops and stalls along a replica of Old London's winding streets.

These artisans produce an array of decorations, ornaments, garments, figurines and toys, working with many different materials.

But for Wayne Levie there is no material more "satisfying and honest" than pewter.

That, he feels, is the very reason why it has stood the test of time. And now centuries after pewter dominated man's table, it still claims stout adherents by the many thousands.

Beds Of Brass Are In Demand

Marinite Has Popular Product

By DON KEOWN

A hot-selling item a few years back for Jay and Anna L. Ring among the antiques they were handling in their Jay's House of Silver and Brass on San Rafael's Fourth Street were the old brass beds.

"Once a year," says Jay Ring, "we would make a buying trip East to buy antiques. We always picked up 18 or 20 of the brass beds of the kind grandpa and grandma used to sleep on. And we never had any trouble selling them, once we got them back here."

However, the beds became harder and harder to find. And finally the source dried up completely.

"WE LOOKED then for bed parts, thinking we could assemble the beds ourselves," Ring continues. "But there just weren't any."

And still the Rings' customers back in Marin clamored for the brass beds they had come to associate with the House of Silver.

So Jay Ring decided to solve his problem by building his own replicas of the old brass beds.

Using one of the beds in his own home, Ring had molds made from its parts for headboards and footboards, "and we started making our own beds earlier this year."

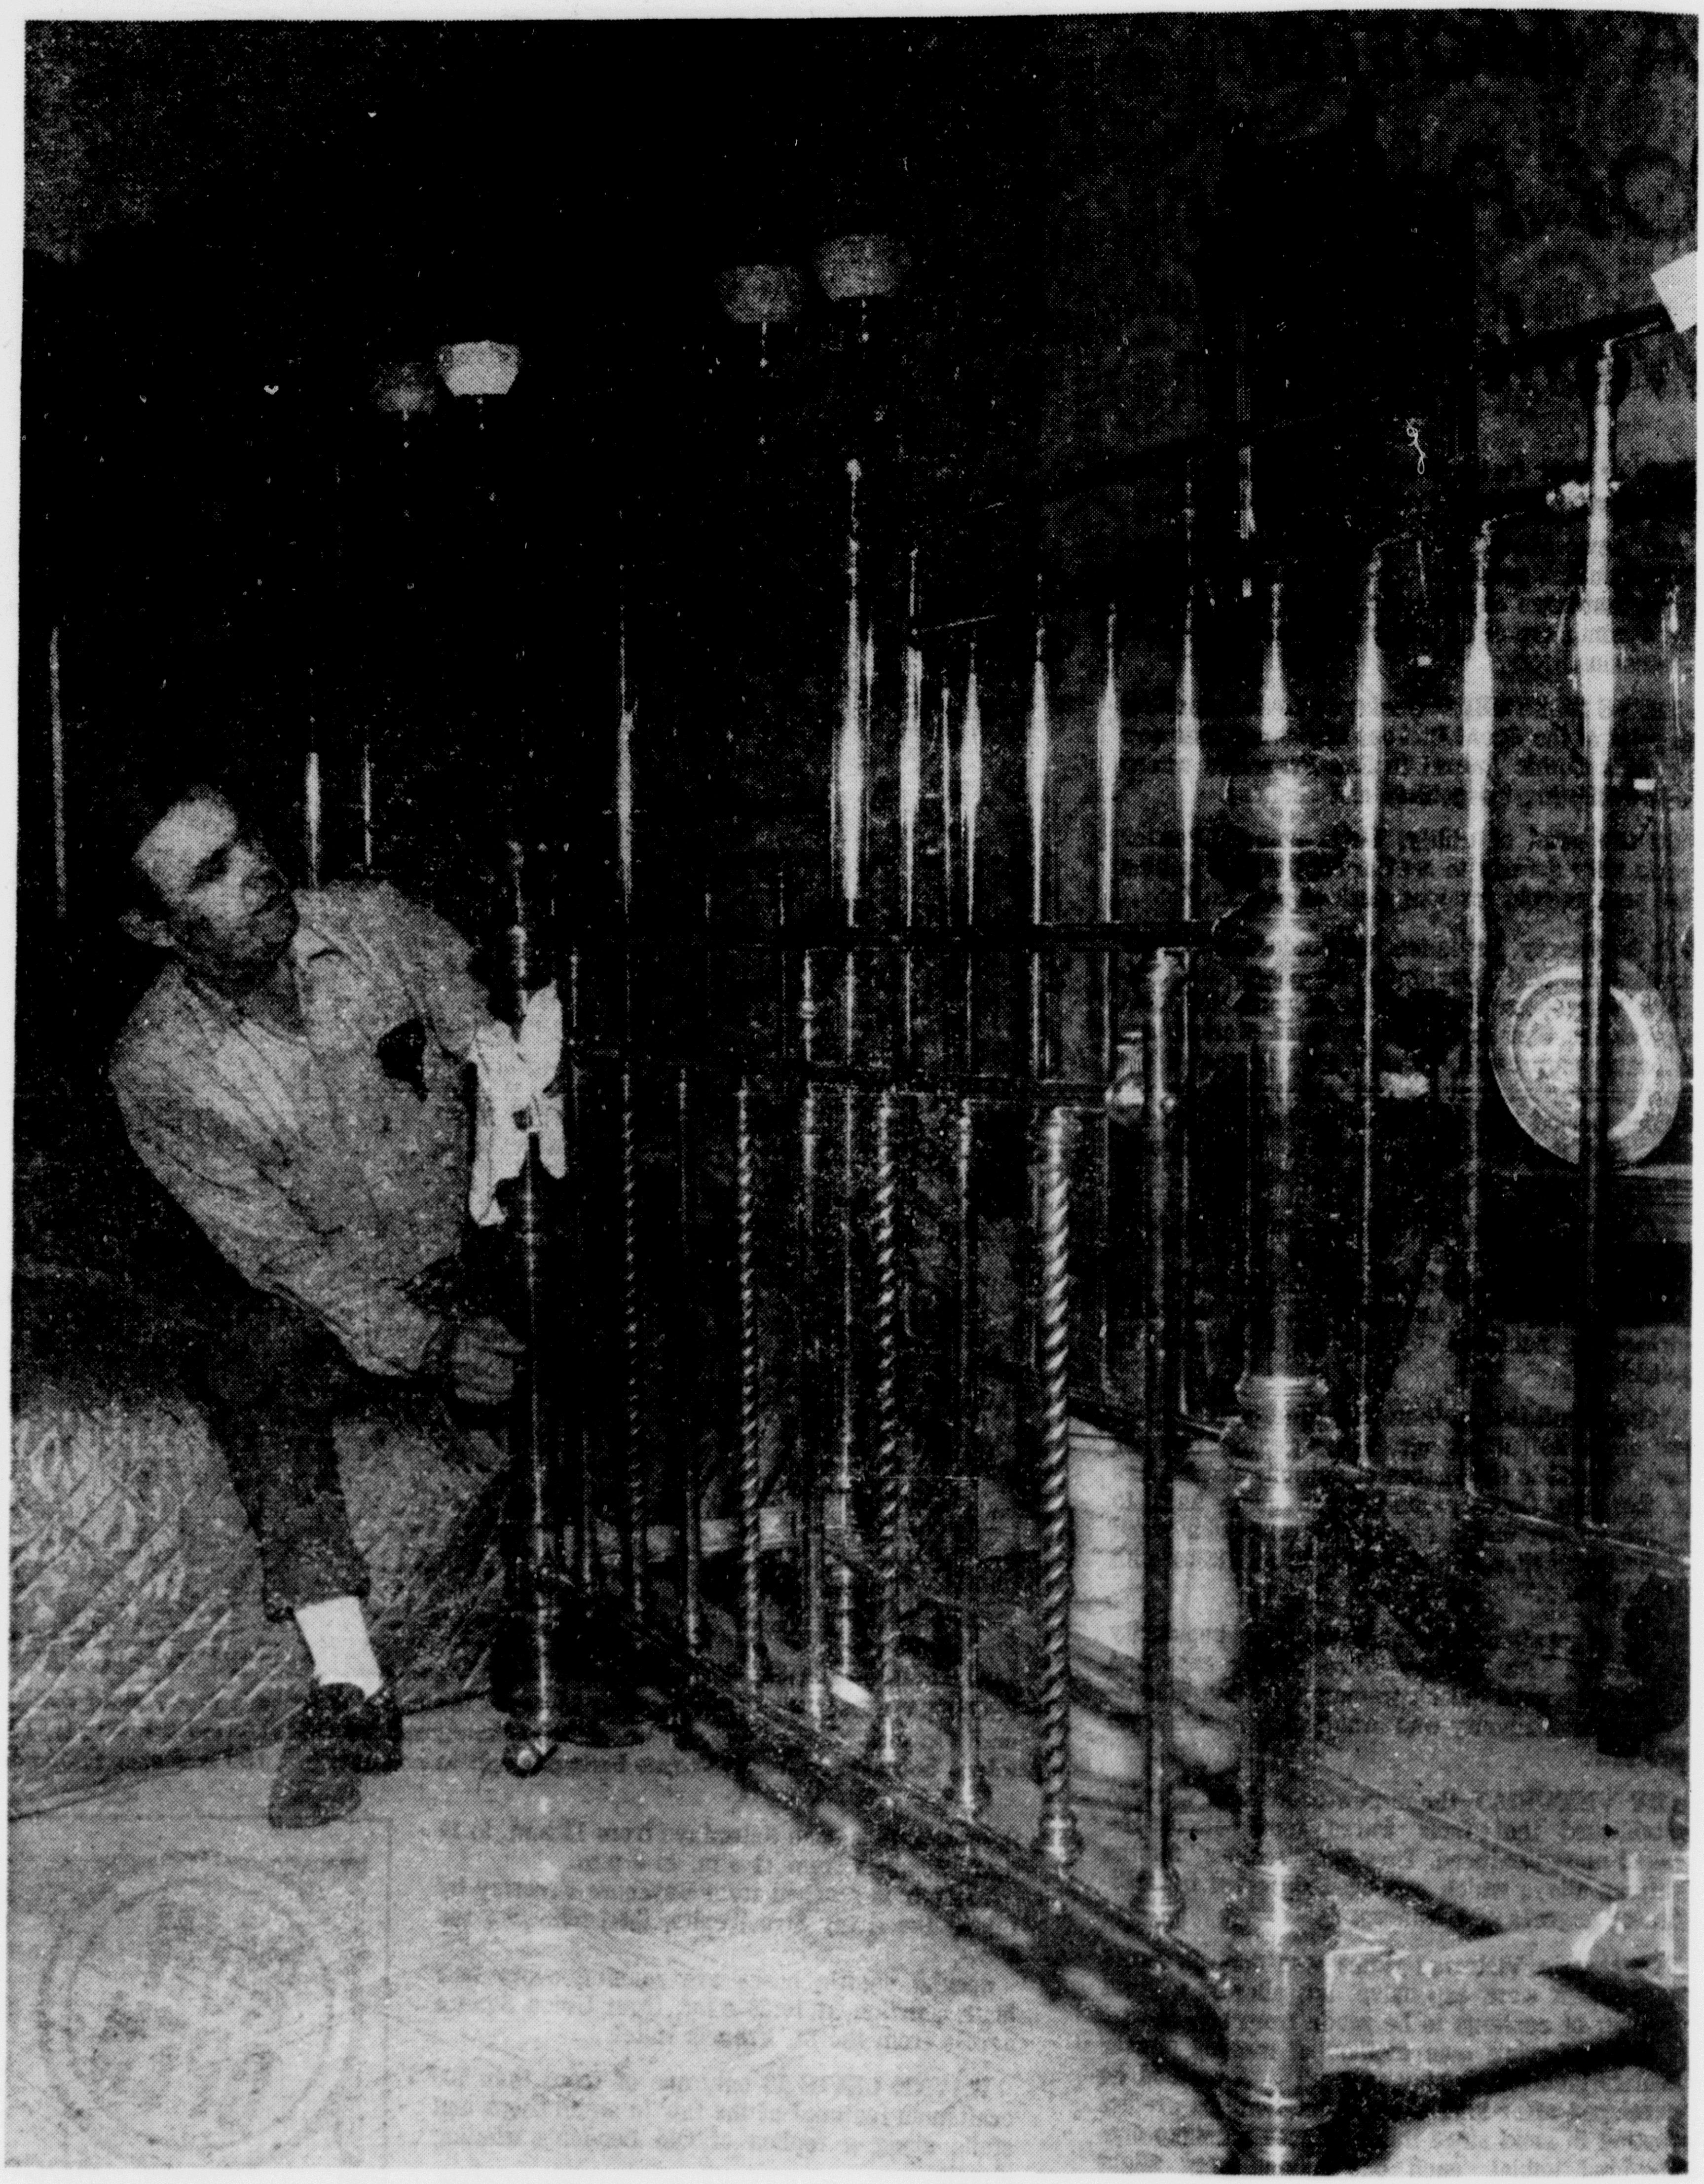
SINCE THEN, Jay Ring has turned out 60 replicas of the antique beds, fully as beautiful as the originals themselves.

"The way we work it," says Ring, "is to take the order and a deposit, then start building the bed to suit the customer. In other words, it's a custom business."

And why is there this demand for these replicas of relics of the past?

"It's a fad," admits Ring. But, he is confident, it is not one that will pass soon.

"THERE ALWAYS has been and there always will be a strong feeling for things that touch the nostalgia within us," he explains. "People see these beds some place, perhaps in a movie or on TV, and they say: 'Why my grandmother used to have a bed like that!' Or 'My folks had one of those brass beds when I was a kid.' And they want one for themselves.



JAY RING OF Jay's House of Silver hit upon the idea of turning out replicas of the old antique brass beds. And in the first year of production, he has made and sold some 60 of these remembrances of a past era. The beds are handcrafted, headboards and footboards, or headboards alone, and come in three different models.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

So confident is Jay Ring that the market for his brass beds will remain firm that he is negotiating a franchise set-up, with the first outlet due in San Francisco.

The only other place that Ring knows of on the West Coast that is producing the brass beds is located in Los Angeles "and they work with lamp parts."

RING USES brass that he buys in tubing in three or four different sizes direct from American Brass and Copper in Emeryville. The fittings, unavailable in the U.S., are made overseas.

Ring will put a good week's work into the handcrafting of one of his beds. The full brass bed, both headboard and footboard, comes in three models. The King Henry, a three poster that gives the impression of a pair of twin beds, side by side, sells for $595. The fancy Emperor sells for $675. And the even fancier Royal Queen for $875.

Ring and his helpers also make a headboard alone that can be attached to the modern Hollywood frame or bedstead.

"AND WE have made three headboards for waterbeds," he adds.

Jay Ring is the son of an Ohio sheet metalworker and as a youngster swore he would never himself become a metalworker — "I had dreams of being an airplane pilot."

But his father told him: "All right, but first you are going to learn my trade. Then whether you follow it or not is up to you."

And so Jay Ring went to work in his dad's sheet metal shop, hating it and determined it would never be his permanent occupation. "Mostly I helped install home heating and air conditioning systems," he says.

Young Ring put in four years with the Navy, most of it in the South Pacific.

"THE NAVY brought me to San Francisco in 1942," he re-

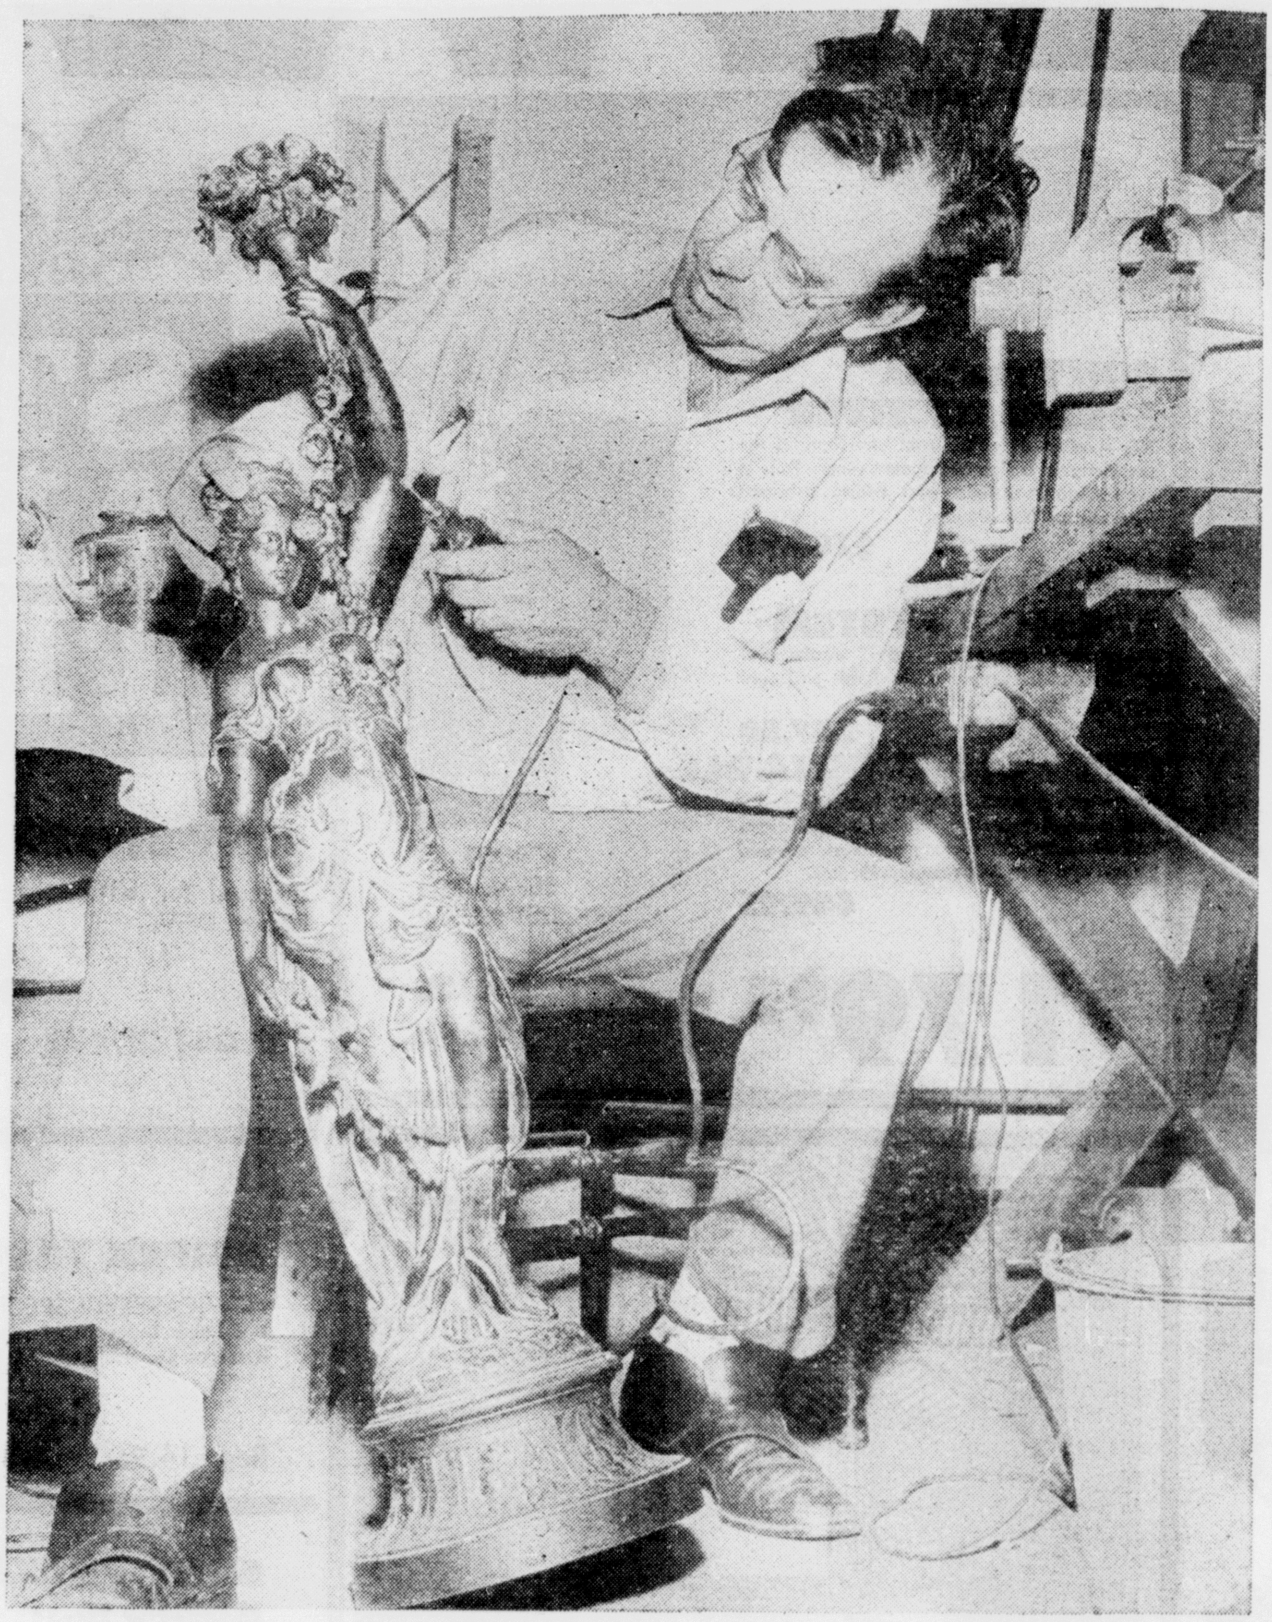
Beds Out Of Another Era



THE CRAFT OF repairing metal objects is a difficult one that Jay Ring is currently teaching Greg Yates, one of his helpers. Here he restores the broken arm of a statue that has graced a staircase. A serious knee injury now places some limitations on Silver's activities, but he puts in a full and busy day in his shop.

lates, and immediately I told myself: 'Wow! This San Francisco Bay Area is the place for me. It's where I'm going to live when I get out of service.''

He got out of the military in 1946, stayed in the Bay Area, and went into the trade he had sworn he would never follow — sheet metalwork.

"And I've been working with metal now for 26 years," he smiles.

While working for sheet metal firms, Jay Ring also found time to help his brother-in-law, Ed Cary of Concord, with some plating and polishing of metal pieces.

THE RESULT was that Ring set up a small lathe and silvering tank in his own garage. "That," he says, "was where it all really began — in a two-car garage at 32 Glen Air, San Rafael, as a hobby."

Ring turned out silver and brass plated pieces for himself and for his firends.

"My wife was working at Fairchild, and I was working for Allen Heating of Corte Madera, when we decided to open a little shop on Fourth Street as a sort of a retirement project."

THE FIRST Jay's House of Silver was located at 1611 Fourth St., and was operated by Alice, pleased to get away from the exacting and confining work of helping to produce Fairchild's semiconductor diodes. Jay pitched in evenings and weekends.

The shop dealt in both antiques and replicas, and also repaired and replated prize pieces of Marinites — a silver spoon that had fallen into the garbage disposal and had been mangled, a marred pewter pitcher, etc.

Ring continued to work for Allen Heating until three years ago he "tore out" the meniscus cartilage of a right knee while moving a coil of steel.

IT WAS A serious injury, and the doctor told him he would have to change his trade. There would be no climbing, no crawling, no kneeling for Jay Ring.

Fortunately, Ring and his family had Jay's House of Silver to fall back on. But for a time, Jay wasn't able to pull his full weight there.

"I was off my feet for two years," he says. "I just had to sit in a chair." But son-in-law Ed Cary gave him a hand with the replating, the polishing and the other metal work. "I would just sit there and give him directions," Jay recalls. "For awhile it was pretty much touch and go. But we were determined to keep the business going. And with Ed's help, we pulled through."

THE MOVEMENT of Ring's injured knee is still severely restricted, but he manages to work around that limitation, and now puts in a full day's work and better in his shop at the rear of the store now located at 1613 Fourth St. where Mrs. Ring still serves the customers up front.

Thanks partially to the popularity of the brass beds, the business has grown to the point where Ring is currently looking for larger premises and where he now has two helpers — presently Greg Yates and Bill Saunders — in addition to his son James who does all the plating and polishing these days.

He is teaching Yates the metal repair trade. "It's something you don't pick up in a day," Ring says. "After all, I've been at it 26 years."

BECAUSE OF his own experience, Jay Ring, while still confined to a chair, vowed that if his business did pull through, and if he were ever in a position to employ assistants, he would do at least part of his hiring through the California League for the Handicapped. And he has kept that pledge.

Two of his employees, past and present, have been employed through the League.

As for his own work, Ring says: "I can go at it the way I want at the pace I want. There are still a lot of things, such as climbing or kneeling, that I can't do. But what I do do is good therapy for the knee. And I can take care of the designing — now that's the most fun —, the assembling, the delivering, and a lot of other things."

IN THE JAY'S House of Silver — or, as he now calls the business, thanks to the brass bed "success story" — Jay's House of Silver and Brass shop, Ring and his co-workers also produce dorbells rung by the turning of a crank that are replicas of Scandinavian doorbells, and make brass halltrees. The bells are to be featured in Better Homes and Gardens.

The antiques sold out in front are for the most part purchased for the Rings in the East by sister-in-law Ruth Sarell who collects for them.

"Then once a year we go East and pick up what she has bought," Ring explains.

AND RUTH Sarell and her husband Jack spend five to six months of the year in California, working at Jay's House of Silver and Brass doing caning, reupholstering and other work.

"So we have a real family enterprise," says Jay Ring.

These December days have been especially busy ones for the Rings and their employees. "I've had four orders for brass beds as Christmas gifts," explains Jay. "But we have been held up by a shortage of parts, so it is going to be pretty darned close on getting them all out by Dec. 25. But we'll do our best."

And for a man who once vowed he would never be a metalworker, who was once laid up by a serious incapacitating injury, and who came up with his best-selling product only out of desperation and after it had become unavailable in its original form from the original sources, Jay Ring's best is very, very good.

BLESSED WITH four grown children and seven grandchildren, with a business that is their own and doing well, and with a product that demonstrates their pride in craftsmanship and satisfied the public need for solid contact with the past, Jay and Anna L. Ring have every reason to regard this season as a merry Christmas.

And to look forward to a prosperous 1973 when the brass bed production at Jay's House of Silver and Brass will exceed even this year's 60 units.

Paintings For A Holiday Ballet

Martha Baskett Mixes Art With Stagecraft

By DON KEOWN

Tomales artist Martha Baskett ordinarily does her paintings at her home in the greenhouse that she has converted into a light and airy studio.

But for her most recent assignment, she had to shift her working quarters to the gymnasium of the old, condemned Tomales High School.

She needed all that space, for she was working on canvases 20 by 24 feet in their dimensions, as she created the backdrops for this holiday season's performances by the Petaluma Ballet Guild of "The Nutcracker."

MRS. BASKETT did all three scenes for the production — the interior of the Victorian home of little Clara; the fantasy land Palace of Sweets, and the outdoor Snowflake Scene, the last all in blue and white and featuring a huge ornamented Christmas tree.

"The Nutcracker" scenes continue an interest in stagework which the petite Mrs. Baskett began developing five years ago.

The Basketts were then Petaluma residents, and the previous year she had enrolled daughter Brandie, then 5, in dancing classes at the Petaluma School of Ballet.

SOME OF the older ballet students and their parents were then in the process of forming the Petaluma Ballet Guild. And when they decided to present "Tales of the Vienna Woods" as a short ballet as part of the annual Petaluma School of Ballet recital, Mrs. Baskett volunteered to do the single scene or backdrop that was necessary.

WHEN NOT painting her gigantic stage backdrops for ballet performances, Martha Baskett works in her Tomales studio on more normal-size paintings.

This landscape shows the realistic approach she takes in her oils, which are usually done by commission, as requested by the buyer.

She smiles now as she admits that, taking artistic license, the trees she painted more closely resembled California redwoods than the species to be found in the actual Vienna Woods.

"But I used pastels — oranges, pinks, light greens, etc. — and, believe it or not, it really looked good," she sserts.

SO GOOD, in fact, that her scene was used again in 1971 for a repeat performance of "Vienna Woods."

Two years ago Mrs. Baskett did Cinderella's cottage for a Petaluma School of Ballet production.

But the three backdrops for "The Nutcracker" are by far her most ambitious undertaking in stagecraft. Each set is done in five hinged panels, on frames built for her by her carpenter husband, Larry Baskett, who also composes music in the rock, jazz and pop genres.

MRS. BASKETT works on unbleached muslin which she first stretches over the frames, then covers with Elmer's Glue, before applying water-base house paint.

"I love doing scenery," she says, "because I like the freedom afforded by all that space. But I also enjoy scenery because there is a whole other dimension to it. When the performers come on stage, in their costumes, they become a part of my 'painting.' They are, literally, my final brush strokes."

Mrs. Baskett is a Marin girl, reared in Mill Valley where she attended Tamalpais High School as Martha Schneider and began her studies of art. She has had courses at San Jose Junior College and College of Marin, but as an artist she is largely self-taught.

SHE PAINTS generally with oils and in a realistic style, doing still lifes, portraits, landscapes.

And generally, her paintings sell. In fact, usually they have been sold before she paints.

Since she lost a number of her paintings in a house fire a few years back, she says, she has followed the practice of receiving orders for a painting before beginning the work. "Thus I seldom paint for myself. I am usually painting for someone else."

WHICH DOES she enjoy the most, the paintings or the stage scenery? She refuses to make a selection. "I get so much enjoyment and satisfaction out of both."

Her work for "The Nutcracker" began with three months of research — on scenes for past productions of the ballet, on Victorian home interiors, etc. There followed another month devoted to the designing of the sets. And then four months for their execution.

Here she had the help of two apprentices, Darolyn Davis of Tomales and Doug KaCharos of Cotati "whom I taught the craft as we worked along."

"AND OF course," she says, "all the research, design and construction work was on a time-available basis when I wasn't busy as a housewife and a mother."

In addition to daughter Brandie, now 11, the Basketts have two sons, Zachary, 12, and Marc, 8. And the three children sometimes appear with their talented father as a singing group, featuring his compositions.

Mrs. Baskett's sets for "The Nutcracker" were first put into use last weekend when the Petaluma Ballet Guild production was performed twice in Santa Rosa.

SOUTHERN SONOMANS and Marinites will have an opportunity to see them this coming week, on Tuesday at 8 p.m. and Wednesday at 2 p.m., when the holiday ballet will be performed in the Veterans Memorial Building at Petaluma. Mary Paula, Petaluma School of Ballet and Petaluma Ballet Guild director, is also the director for the show. Lorraine Kirsch is the current Guild president.

Mrs. Baskett is especially anxious for the public reaction to her Snowflake Scene. "I just love it," she says. "The lighting gives it such a glittery effect. It is going to be beautiful."

Then, for a time, Martha Baskett will return to her more normal-sized paintings. "I have two commissions awaiting me," she says.

BUT SHE WILL be on the watch, too, for new and challenging assignments for the stage.

"I just like the idea of having living people as part of my painting," she says. "Now that is just about as realistic as I can get!"

IT TAKES muscles to hoist into place one of the huge panels painted by Tomales' Martha Baskett for the Petaluma Ballet Guild's production of "The Nutcracker." Here the stagehands erect one of the sections of the backdrop depicting the interior of little Clara's Victorian home. Another panel for that same scene can be seen already in place on the left. The scenery was going up for a dress rehearsal in Petaluma's Veterans Memorial Building.

SET DESIGNER and artist Martha Baskett of Tomales watches during rehearsal while a stage crew and production assistants go about the job of replacing the Snowflake Scene and its giant Christmas tree ornaments with the panels of the Victorian manor scene. Mrs. Baskett created all three backdrops for the Petaluma Ballet Guild performances of "The Nutcracker," to take place next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., and Wednesday, 2 p.m., in the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building.

MARTHA BASKETT, right, and Ann Ringstad, an assistant director, discuss the Victorian interior panels in place while stagehands await further instructions. Mrs. Baskett created the fireplace and the rest of the backdrop only after extensive research into Victorian homes and their decor.

Partake of Pacific Stereo's Latest HOLIDAY OFFERING

... before it's spirited away

Dickens' vivid portrayal of the Spirit of Christmas Present was drawn from the days when a Christmas feast might include a roasted peacock with feathers carefully replaced, a whole boar's head, and a procession of hearty desserts called "subtleties."

Our groaning board is laden with values in stereo components. Take your cue from Scrooge and don't let them vanish into thin air, leaving you only with regrets. We're introducing an entirely new offering for one week only, so you have to partake by this next Saturday. In fact some of the items are offered at such large savings and are in such short supply that they likely won't wait for the last minute rush.

You'll find additional special values in all of our stores, items that we've added to our offering too late to include here, and the prices are so low you'll surely want to consider them. Remember, the free accessories and special holiday services described in the "Free Offerings..." section apply to any system you select during the holidays.

But time IS running out and many of these desirable values WILL vanish rapidly, so let the spirit move you into coming to Pacific Stereo right away.

1. THIS WEEK ONLY: A $280 HARMAN-KARDON SYSTEM TO MAKE YOUR NEW YEAR HAPPY

You probably didn't know you could get such a good stereo system for so little money, and so you couldn't until Pacific Stereo managed to put this system together for only $280.

The Harman-Kardon 330A AM/FM stereo receiver is rated at 45 RMS watts, which provides ample power for medium to high efficiency speakers with very low distortion. Its tuner section is the best of six different receivers we tested in this price range. Source indicator lights show you what program source is currently switched on, there's provision for two sets of speakers, tape monitor facilities, and separate left and right bass and treble controls – luxury touches not usually found in a $199.95 receiver.

An automatic turntable as good as the BSR 310 ought to cost more than $50. A cueing lever protects your records, as does the anti-skate control, which reduces wear and also neutralizes one common form of distortion. We supply it with a base and a Shure M75 cartridge.

AR-4x's have been very highly rated by people who should know and they're among the best-selling speaker systems in the world. In each walnut cabinet is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker as well as a 2½-inch treble speaker. They sell for $115 a pair, which is quite low given how good they sound throughout their usable range.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

To purchase these separately you would pay:

H-K 330A	$199.95
BSR 310 with base and cartridge	50.00
AR 4x (pair)	115.00
TOTAL	$364.95

$$279^{95}$

SAVE $85.00

2. THE FIRST $400 SYSTEM THAT CAN DO JUSTICE TO BACH ORGAN FUGUES

If you've been wanting a component stereo system that can set a big room throbbing with Bach's low organ notes, you probably never hoped to find one for $400. Even the $136 saving doesn't entirely explain it. Three-way speaker systems with twelve-inch bass speakers make the low notes possible, and the TransAudio 1012's sell for a mere $159.90 a pair. The music's reproduced very cleanly, low bass notes and all, because the Spectrosonic 210-4 is a direct-coupled receiver with nothing between its transistors and the speakers to muddy the sound. The 210-4 has 64 RMS watts of power, a very good tuner section, and a host of convenience features including a convenient front panel switch for a four-channel adaptor. In fact, we don't know of any other $299.95 receiver that can come close to the 210-4 for power, performance and features. The walnut case is extra.

The Garrard SL55B record player has a synchronous motor that can't waver in speed even if house current fluctuates. There's a cueing mechanism, and an anti-skate control to prevent uneven record wear. The $75.90 price includes a base and the ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

To purchase these separately you would pay:

Spectrosonic 210-4	$299.95
Garrard SL55B with base & cartridge	75.90
TransAudio 1012 (pr)	159.90
TOTAL	$535.75

$$399^{95}$

SAVE $135.80

INTRODUCING FOUR-CHANNEL RECORDS AT A SPECIAL HOLIDAY PRICE

All Pacific Stereo stores now have a good selection of SQ-encoded four-channel records for every musical taste. They are fully compatible with stereo equipment, so if you think you will convert to four-channel soon you can start buying the records now and play them on your present equipment. To listen to them in four-channel sound you need a system equipped with an SQ decoder. The retail price on these SQ records is $6.98; our special holiday price is $4.98.

3. A PIONEER FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM FOR $150 LESS THAN THE RECEIVER'S ORIGINAL PRICE

The Pioneer QX-8000 was designed as a versatile foundation for your first four-channel system. It originally sold for $549.95, but now your entire system need cost you only $400 if you get it before our very limited supply is gone. Basically, the QX-8000 is a very good AM/FM stereo receiver with four amplifiers instead of the normal two, so you're all set to add a discrete four-channel tape unit or an SQ decoder. The receiver already has built-in synthesizing devices which let you enjoy four-channel effects from stereo records or FM. Power output is rated at 80 RMS watts with all four channels driven. There's a front-to-rear balance control plus separate balance controls and tone controls for each pair of speakers, all of which help tailor the four-channel sound field to your taste. In addition, the QX-8000 has the features and performance you'd expect of a $550 Pioneer receiver.

The Garrard 40B is a totally reliable record player with a cueing lever to put the ADC 220XE elliptical cartridge down gently on the records. With this cartridge and the base, it normally sells for $60.90.

Our $400 system price wouldn't be possible without the new TransAudio 1008 speaker systems. All four in this system normally cost only $150, but don't be misled by the low price. 1008's are solidly built two-way systems with an eight-inch bass speaker that can reproduce even the lowest notes of a cello.

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

To purchase these separately you would pay:

Pioneer QX-8000	$549.95
Garrard 40B with base & cartridge	60.90
TransAudio 1008 (4)	150.00
TOTAL	$760.85

$$399^{95}$

SAVE $360.90

4. HERE'S YOUR $1000 STEREO SYSTEM

If you've been thinking that this is the time to get something really special in the way of perfect sound reproduction, hold the thought and read on.

By improving their excellent S-8900 FM stereo receiver, Sherwood has produced probably the finest receiver you can find for $429.95. The new S-8900A delivers 120 RMS watts across the entire 20 to 20,000 Hz bandwidth with a miniscule .3% distortion. That's more power than you get almost anywhere else for the price. Also new is a built-in matrixing device to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, and an input and front-panel switch for adding a four-channel adaptor. The tuner section is superb of course. 1.7 microvolt sensitivity and a 70 dB signal-to-noise ratio ensure clean reception of any station on the air. You'll also find all the convenience features you'd expect on an outstanding $429.95 receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The straight-line tracking Garrard Zero 100 has a radically new tonearm which maintains tangency between the record grooves and the stylus across an entire record, thereby improving high frequency reproduction and reducing record wear. It has every feature you'd expect on a machine of this quality, and probably the lowest rumble of any automatic. We equip it with a base and the fine Shure M91E elliptical cartridge for $191.90.

You've probably read the praises of the Bose 901 in audio magazines, but this unique direct/reflecting system simply has to be heard to be appreciated. They reach as deeply into the bass region as anything, and their dispersion of sound is nothing short of phenomenal. The $476 fair trade price includes a device called an "active equalizer."

Price includes Pacific Stereo's extended five-year warranty

To purchase these separately you would pay:

Sherwood S 8900A	$429.95
Garrard Zero 100 w/base & cartridge	191.90
Bose 901 (pair with equalizer)	496.00
TOTAL	$1297.85

$$999^{95}$

SAVE $117.90

5. A BASIC DECK FOR A MODEST PRICE

The relatively low-priced TEAC A-1230 is a tape deck with everything you need for first rate performance. Three separate heads (for erasing, recording and playback) permit monitoring. Three separate motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their attendant problems. There's a pause control for editing and a bias control switch lets you use the different types of tape available to maximum advantage. Line and mike mixer inputs allow you to record two sources simultaneously. Automatic tape lifters and automatic shutoff help prevent accidental damage to your tapes. TEAC's solid construction and high standards of engineering should make the 1230 just what you're looking for in a high performance stereo deck at a moderate price. $359.50

6. SAVE $70 ON A NIKKO 6010 BY GETTING IT THIS WEEK

Just seeing the name Nikko on a receiver should alert you to look for features and performance that you otherwise wouldn't expect to find at the price. And the $200 Nikko 6010 AM/FM stereo receiver won't disappoint you. The direct coupled amplifier section delivers 30 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section is predictably better than you would expect for the price. It will provide quite good reception under almost any circumstances. Controls include tape monitoring and a loudness contour switch to compensate for bass loss at low listening levels. High and low filters cut out noise from scratchy records or FM interference. The 6010 can handle two pairs of speakers, and a front panel switch gives you a choice of listening to the main pair only or playing both simultaneously. The case is extra. The normal price is $199.95, but our sale price for this week only is $129.95.

7. A $50 SAVING ON A LIMITED SUPPLY OF LENCO RECORD PLAYERS

Lenco's B55 isn't as well known as their outstanding L75 manual record player, but it really should be. Like the L75, the B55 offers excellent performance with records and its normal price is even more reasonable than the L75's. The B55 has automatic damped cueing and an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the stylus centered in the groove. The low mass aluminum tonearm has a calibrated counterweight for adjusting balance and stylus pressure, and an 11.8" turntable makes it easy to pick up 12" records by their edge while still providing full record support. A unique Lenco feature is the infinitely variable speed control, useful to musicians for tuning pitch.

The B55 normally sells for $85 with a base, and we're equipping it with a $24.95 ADC 230XE elliptical cartridge. But instead of $109.95 you only have to pay $59.95 until our limited supply runs out.

8. GET ALL THE SCOTCH DYNARANGE TAPE YOU WANT FOR LESS THAN HALF PRICE

The only stipulation is that you have to do it this week, because the price goes back up the day before Christmas. Scotch 203 Dynarange is top quality low noise tape with a polyester backing. We're selling the 1800-foot 7-inch reels this week for $1.99, well under half of our usual $5.05 price. $1.99

Free Offerings During the Merrye Monthe of December at Pacific Stereo

FREE ELLIPTICAL CARTRIDGE

Instead of the conical cartridges usually supplied with value-oriented music systems, we're offering a very high quality elliptical cartridge which will help your records sound better and last longer. Except for a very few extremely low priced combinations, all of our holiday music systems will have ellipticals.

FREE HEADPHONES OR A SUBSCRIPTION TO "AUDIO"

You get to choose between a free pair of stereophones or a free one-year subscription to "Audio" magazine when you buy any music system at Pacific Stereo during the holiday season.

FREE CONNECTING WIRE

You can have whatever you need to connect your music system the way you want.

EXTENDED FIVE-YEAR WARRANTY

We won't start counting the elapsed time on our five-year warranty until January 1, so you get coverage for five years plus however much time there is between now and the 1st. The warranty covers free parts for five years and free labor for three years on absolutely everything but the needle on the record player. Even if you wrap up your system and don't use it until Christmas you get the full warranty.

EXTENDED EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

Our sixty-day exchange privilege and our one-year speaker trial privilege will also be dated from January 1st and cover the intervening time as well. You can exchange anything you aren't happy about within 60 days, and you have a full year to receive the purchase price on any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward more expensive speakers.

LAYAWAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

If you want to be sure of getting what you want but aren't quite ready to buy, just put a $10 deposit on the system. It's refundable and you're under no obligation, but you'll be able to get what you want at the price you've seen advertised.

BANKAMERICARD AND MASTERCHARGE O.K.

Use your credit card for any purchases you make at Pacific Stereo.

FINANCING AVAILABLE, NO PAYMENTS 'TIL FEB. 1

We've arranged for a financing contract that doesn't require you to start making payments until Feb. 1, 1973, well after the holidays.

9. JUST ABOUT HALF PRICE ON THE SHURE M91E THIS WEEK

The Shure M91E is an elliptical cartridge which is second only to the incomparable V15 II in the Shure line of cartridges. Its performance is bound to satisfy you by providing for long record wear and clean reproduction. Our regular price is $29.50; our $14.95 holiday price misses being half by 20¢, but that shouldn't stop you from getting one or more before next Sunday. $14.95

Auckland— Christmas In The Summer

The Travel Pages

By ROBIN KINKEAD

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — For a city where 10 years ago travelers complained they couldn't get a decent meal or a good room, things have certainly changed.

Three first-class hotels of international standards of service have risen, and many smaller inns, lodges and motels are available.

Restaurants of European cuisines have opened to business so brisk that advance bookings are advisable.

High-rise buildings are beginning to sprout, although most of the city has a delightful old-fashioned look because of the wooden sidewalk roofs, the low buildings and the great number of Victorian frame houses.

AUCKLAND, with 700,000 people, is about the size of San Francisco and has a mild climate similar to the Golden Gate city. In winter — that is July and August down here — a light topcoat will do.

Summers, which come along around Christmas, have days in the 60s and 70s, not too hot for strolls about the city.

Much of the city is walkable. Otherwise coach tours for all-round sightseeing and taxis to single points of interest are the thing.

AUCKLAND IS the starting point for tours of New Zealand's North and South islands, and the point of arrival for two-thirds of the country's visitors; 200,000 of them in the year ending last March. Another 100,000 visitors came in through Christchurch.

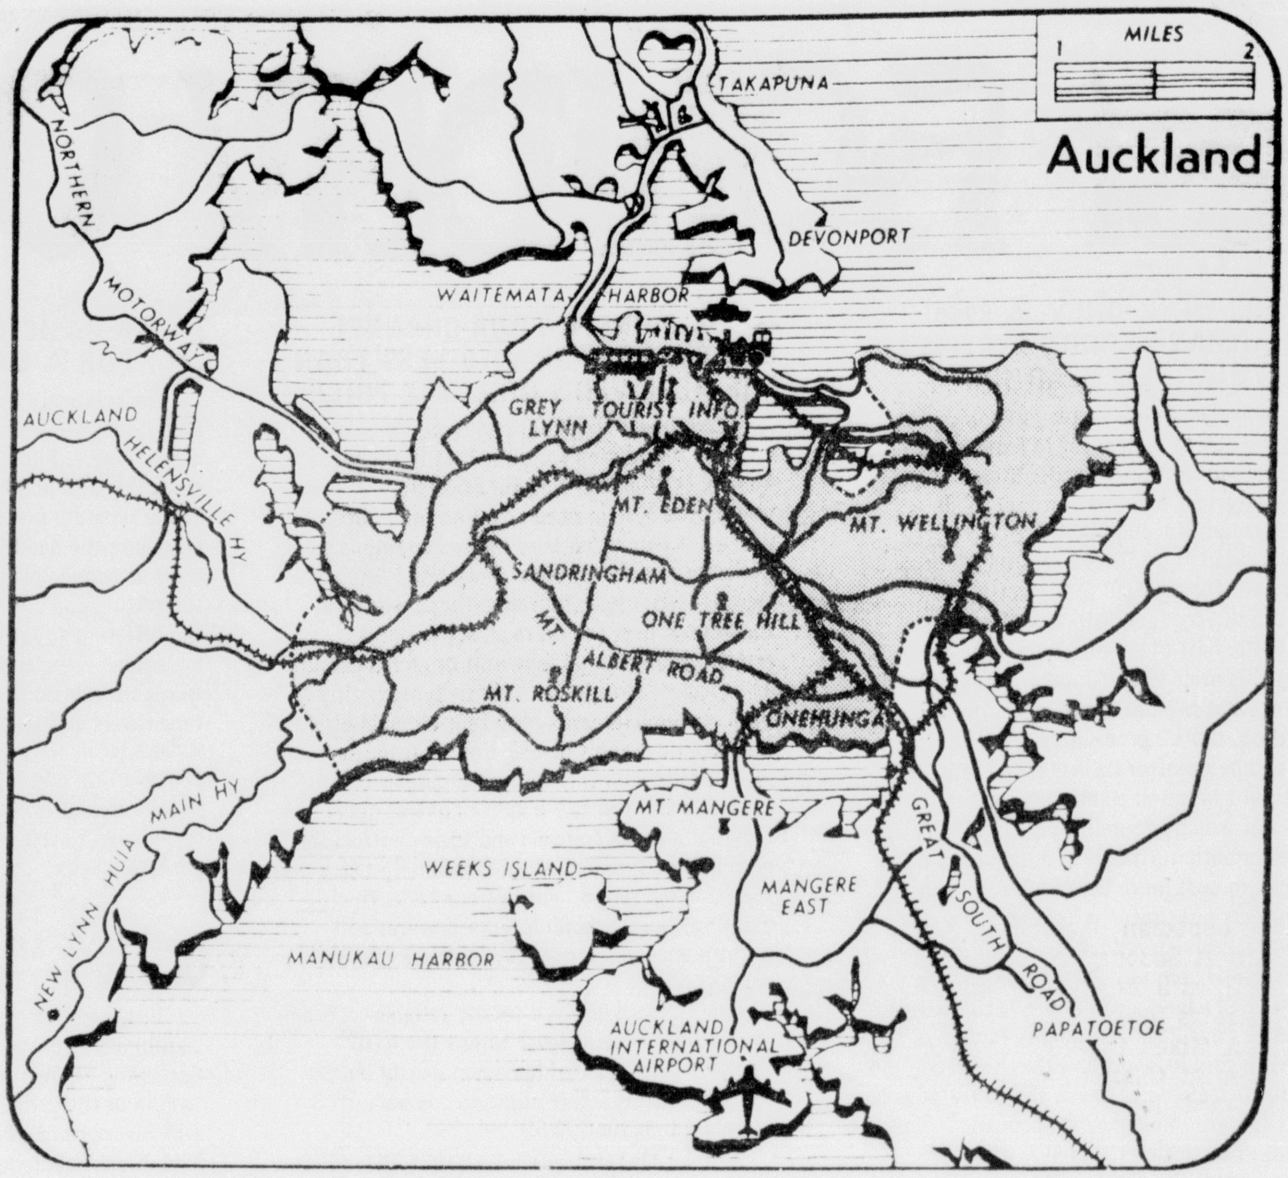
American tourists are up 220 per cent in five years.

One of the welcome surprises here is that the 10-cent tip is still current. Ten cents in New Zealand coin, or 12 cents U.S. (they use the decimal system now with dollars and cents). Airport porters are gratis. Taxis don't take tips.

HOTEL PORTERS are happy with 20 cents a bag, and waiters with a 50-cent tip for dinner.

In a country which once listed such culinary monstrosities as cold-spaghetti sandwiches, eating has shot up in quality and variety, what with an influx of talented Europeans and a rising economy.

A couple of dozen new restaurants have opened their doors to let the aroma of international cuisine tempt the hungry.



MICHEL'S, where the owner speaks Polish, Russian and French, specializes in continental dishes. The Deerstalker Inn, run by a former Hungarian, offers venison roasted in port wine, hare and guinea fowl as specialties.

Steaks, in a country of three million cattle nourished on extra-rich grass, is treated respectfully, broiled over charcoal.

The Angus Steak House lets the customer choose his own cut of meat, then broils it over a charcoal pit sunk in the floor.

THE TROIKA Restaurant, with a Danish chef, specializes in Baltic dishes.

They all offer the national specialties of New Zealand rock oysters, small and delicate, Toheroa and Paua shellfish soups, brook trout, and deep-sea fish, big red strawberries with cream so thick it has to be spooned, cheeseboards crowded with eight varieties, and rich ice cream, which is becoming famous.

In a land with as many cattle as people and 60 million sheep, dinners run around $5 to $6. Butter is 40 cents a pound, cheaper than margarine.

FIRST OF the new hotels that changed the face of Auckland is the InterContinental opened in 1967 and today ranking tops in the deluxe category. On its 14th floor is the Top of the Town, one of the city's plush restaurants, the kind where waiters in dress suits wheel in carts covered with silver vessels, with blue flames coming up from chafing dishes. Table d'hote dinner here, $10.

Two other major hotels, the South Pacific and the Travelodge, followed, both of first-class international standards.

A nickname for a New Zealander is "Kiwi," the national bird. It is a creature with wings that cannot fly, that sleeps in the day and feeds at night.

AUCKLAND Zoo's kiwi house is darkened so the bird thinks it is night and can be observed in action, if that word can be used for its lazy movements.

Another local bird isn't around any more, but its skeleton is. When the Polynesian Maori people came down from Tahiti in their double-hulled outrigger canoes to settle in New Zealand in 1300 A.D. they found a race of primitive people called "moa hunters."

They lived off a giant, ostrich-like moa, a veritable goliath of the feathered world, standing 10 feet from its foot-long claws to its tiny and stupid-looking head. One moa drumstick must have lasted a family for at least a week.

THEIR SKELETONS and one reconstructed bird are quite a sight at Auckland's War Memorial Museum. It also houses the world's biggest collection of Polynesian and Pacific island artifacts: war clubs and spears, household articles, clothes, houses, canoes and ornaments.

A different kind of exhibit, not in the guidebooks yet, is the Museum of Transport and Technology, far more fun than the sound of its name. Here are steam trains from an earlier day sitting on their tracks, early airplanes, reconstructed pioneer houses, early cameras, phonographs, radio sets and even steamrollers.

Queen Street is Auckland's chief artery, and here the bigger shops are found. They are closed Saturdays and Sundays, when the streets are almost bare of strollers.

AN EXCEPTION is the Downtown Passenger Terminal which is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Here and in other shops are handicraft items, all kinds of things made of sheepskin, including popular sheepskin rugs, silver and abalone shell jewelry, carved wood Maori war clubs and bowls.

Brown's Mill, in an alley off Durham Lane, is a remodeled 100-year-old brick building specializing in original New Zealand handicrafts, with artisans doing their work on the spot.

Aucklanders are cheery people, outgoing and friendly, glad to chat with the visitor who makes the opening gambit. In this land with 2,000 native Maori Polynesians, there is no segregation, no racial feeling.

THERE IS wide intermarriage so that in 50 years, some estimate, every New Zealander may have a touch of Polynesian blood.

Living standards in this city are high. There is no unemployment. Health care is nationalized. And New Zealand women were first in the world to get the vote. They deserve it.

The Canadians Go Curling Crazy During The Winter

Curling is one of the most popular winter sports in Canada, with some 750,000 stone-happy enthusiasts from coast to coast.

And the 1973 world championship for the Silver Broom will be held in Regina, Saskatchewan, March 19-24.

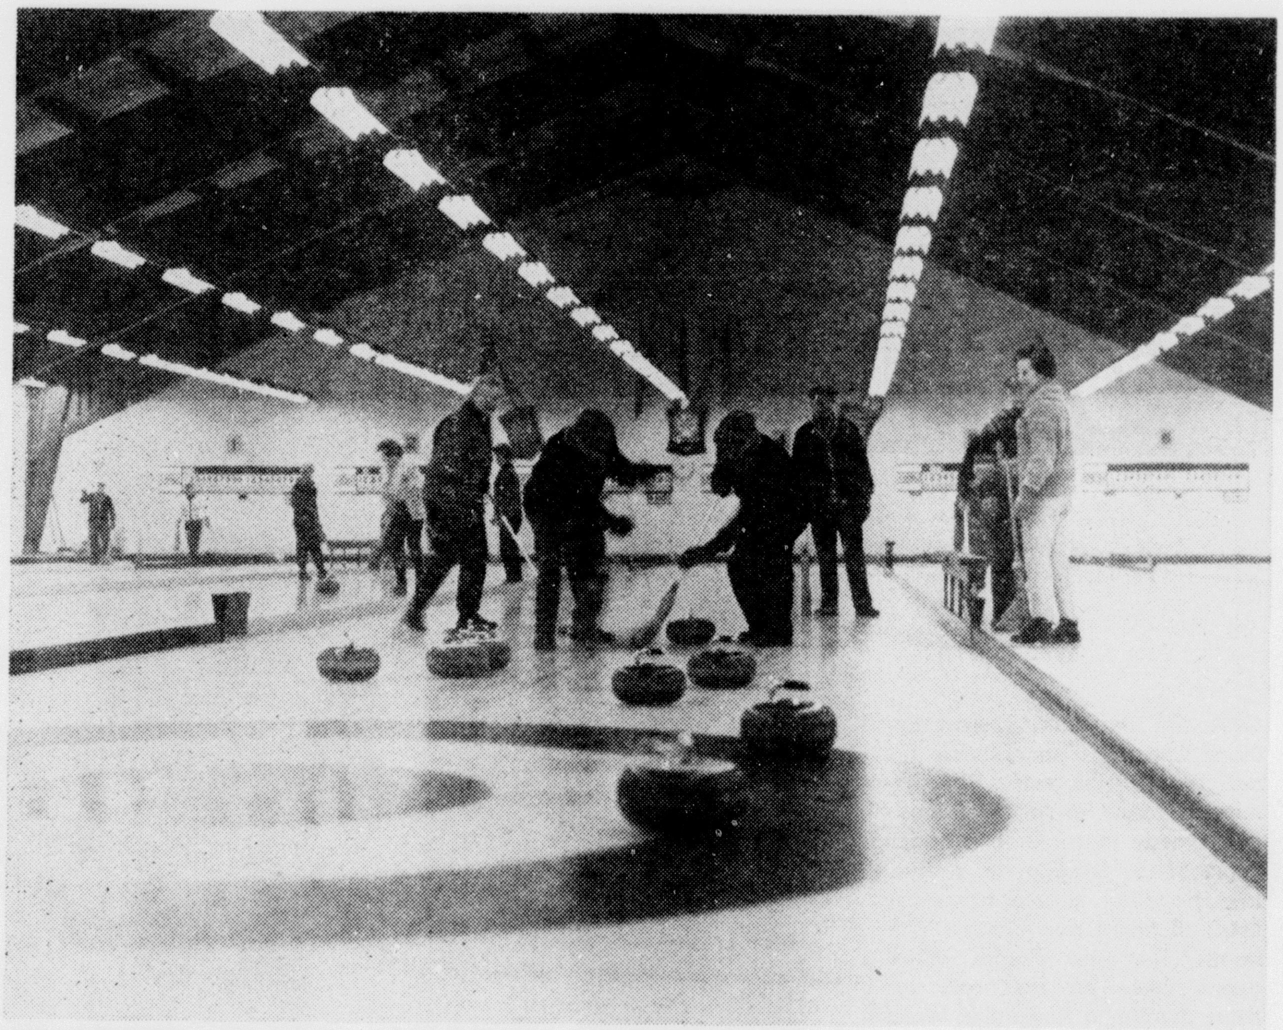
Ticket sales are already booming and officials believe demand is going to exceed supply —so booking now is a must.

Biggest spectator events are the Macdonald Brier for the Canadian championship in Edmonton, Alberta, March 5-9; the Canadian Senior Championship at Sudbury, Ontario, Feb. 18-23, with the famous Seagram Stone as top trophy; the Canadian Mixed Curling Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, March 25-31; the Canadian Schoolboy Championships at Moncton, New Brunswick, March 12-16; and the Canadian Ladies' Championships at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, from Feb. 26 to March 2, 1973.

The western province of Manitoba is the center of most of the action with 247 clubs going at it every winter. Ottawa is yet another hotbed of the sport. And the world's curling endurance record is held by Keith Sjaagesund and William Reid of Thompson, Manitoba, who skipped their rinks for 26 hours and 15 minutes.

Curling has even gone "mod" at the Highlander Club in Winnipeg with the addition of Go-Go girls.

And visitors from the States never fail to find the unfamiliar sport a fascinating spectacle.



IN CANADA, the curling rinks compete with bowling alleys and the ice skating ponds as a winter sports attraction. Here the scene is the capital, Ottawa, as curlers sweep furiously with their brooms to guide the stone's couse and to control its speed. (Canadian Government Travel Bureau photo)

The Celebration In Old Quebec Is Family Affair

There is probably nothing in North America like a Christmas in French-speaking Quebec — especially if you participate in a family party in this part of Canada.

Preparations start weeks and, in some cases, months in advance, depending on the number of guests expected. Parties are family affairs. And scores of relatives and friends, and friends-of-friends, are invited.

After midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, the party begins around two or three in the morning with the traditional exchange of gifts and greetings. And it can last until dawn breaks over the snow-covered countryside. In fact, it generally does.

There is much singing, dancing, laughter, drinking, and a huge feast is served up.

A few of the favorite dishes are:

"Tourtieres," a meat pie of ground pork and beef

Golden roast turkey, or suckling pig, the latter stuffed with delicacies

"Cipaille," layers of veal, pork, and beef alternating with layers of crust

Hare stew, stuffed partridges roasted on cabbage leaves, fine cuts of deer meat.

Desserts include:

Pies made with apple, strawberry, raspberry, blueberry, gooseberry

The Quebec specialty, maple sugar pie, and

The traditional cake, rolled in the shape of a log and loaded with maple icing.

There's also tea, coffee, or a glass of home-made cherry wine.

And, of course, whenever French-speaking peoples get together for a special occasion, the champagne is likely to flow.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

All veterans and their families are eligible for two 1973 tours, a 21-day trek to the South Pacific in August and a 10-day visit to Mexico City and Acapulco in March, under the auspices of the Air Force Assn., Post Office Box 5534, Washington, D.C., 20016 . . . The "Meet the Irish" program initiated six years ago to enable Emerald Island visitors to meet Irish families of similar interests has been extended to offer the same opportunity to tour groups . . . Passengers on P & O's Oronsay, leaving San Francisco in March on a 59-day Cherry Blossom Circle Pacific cruise, will have Guam and Guadalcanal stops added to their itinerary.

American Express has published a new 64-page full-color brochure, available at all its travel centers, describing its ski vacation packages to 12 Alpine resorts in France, Switzerland and Austria, one to three weeks . . . World Airways and Greyhound Lines Inc. have reached an agreement by which Greyhound offices will act as sales representative for World air charter tours, and World facillties will serve in a similar capacity for Greyhound's bus charter and airport transfer services . . . Sugar Bowl, a mile from Donner Summit, is again offering half-price ($4) lift rates Monday through Friday during non-holiday periods to members of the Far West Ski Assn., students, servicemen and departments, "clergymen and Playboy Bunnies."

England's Inns Are A Joy For The Tourist

One of the joys of travel in England is the exploration of her innumerable small villages and rural inns.

Their considerable charm is quite real and uncontrived and they have history caught fast in their timber and stone.

Travel writer Garry Hogg has been captivated by his country's hamlets and hostelries and has selected 120 of his favorites for inclusion in a new book, "English Inns and Villages," published by Arco Co., 219 Park Ave. South, New York.

Happily tourists, British Inns are strung out along the roads and very accessible. Most offer meals — often very good ones indeed. Many also have overnight accommodations and, of course, all purvey liquid refreshment.

MCMXLVIII
UNIVERSITY OF JONKUNNU
INCORPORATED
BABYLON City

ONE OF the world's most unusual Christmas pageants is Jamaica's traditional "Pantomime," really an original musical comedy that is different each year. Here, leading the chorus, are popular island favorites Louis Bennett and Ranny Williams. The new Panto, which opens Dec. 26 and runs for three months in Kingston's Ward Theater, will star Williams as an off-beat, comic Christopher Columbus, discovering Jamaica.

Christmas In Jamaica — Tropical Style

As the curtain goes up at Kingston's Ward Theater on the Christmas Pantomime this year, a wiry little guy in sagging tights and an oversized helmet will "discover" Jamaica.

He is the island's favorite comedian and he is going to play the title role in an original show called "Hail Columbus."

Jamaicans call their Christmas musical comedy the Pantomime (or Panto) because it was modeled after Britain's famous holiday pageants of that name. But in the 31 years of productions in Jamaica, the Panto has become totally Jamaican — written, staged, danced and performed by the highly talented members of the theatrical community.

It's funny, topical, with bright music and brighter costumes and it's different every year.

MUCH OF the credit for the popularity of the unique holiday show (which runs from Dec. 26 through mid-March) is due to Jamaica's most beloved poet, singer, comedienne and actress, Louise Bennett. This quadruple-threat lady is a master of folk humor and proof of her effectiveness is the fact that she is known all over the country simply as "Miz Lou."

She has written many of the scripts for the Panto and almost always appears in it as co-star with Ranny Williams. Her impressively statuesque figure contrasts perfectly with Williams' frankly scrawny appearance.

It has not been announced as yet what role Miz Lou will play this winter, but if she is Queen Isabella to his Columbus, the producers' description of the Panto this year as "history that never was" should prove accurate.

THE PANTO, of course, is only one of the ways Jamaicans celebrate the Christmas season. The show is performed on the stage of the Ward Theater in Kingston, while shows of other kinds are going on all around the island The most familiar are the troupes of Jonkunnu dancers, who parade through the streets in elaborate masks to the music of fifes and drums. They are usually in groups of six to 10, led by traditional characters: The King, his Queen, the Bull and the Pitchy-Patch — or Ragman.

Jonkunnu — sometimes spelled John Canoe — is a legendary West Indian folk hero, probably from Africa, and the music is a combination of early Jamaican, European and African.

During the Christmas season, which in the West Indies is celebrated for the full Old English 12 days, there are street dances, fireworks, traditional "jump-ups" and the very contemporary reggae, an irresistible dance beat that is as attractive to visitors as to locals and not at all hard to learn.

VENDORS SELL paper hats and feefees (whistles), braebrees (wooden rattles), toys and traditional sweets. And there are carols sung everywhere, just as at home.

Christmas Day is a bit more sedate but on Boxing Day — another derivative from England — gifts are opened and the Panto raises the curtain on Miz Lou and Ranny for the new show.

And oddly enough, during this tropical-style Christmas, the whole island is aflame with scarlet poinsettia, growing wild at every turn of the road.

"I asked a friend who travels extensively up and down this vast land how the country has changed in the past year, and he replied simply, 'There's more hate.' There's also more unemployment, more pollution, more crime, more drug addiction, more pornography, more bankruptcies, more suicides, more breakdowns of public service, more fear and despair, more cynicism and more screams in the night. A Doll With Harpoon

By DON KEOWN

NEVER GO ANYWHERE WITHOUT A PENCIL by Harriet Van Horne; Putnam, 313 pages, $7.95.

Not too many years back there was an almost total domination of the space allocated for columns in major newspapers by writers of a liberal persuasion.

While many argued that the arrangement was a fair one in that these columnists only helped to offset the prevailing conservative bias of the publishers, as reflected on their editorial pages, there was pressure to bring about a better balance of opinion among these commentators on the political, social and economic scenes.

William F. Buckley Jr. was joined by a host of like-minded writers in expounding the conservative philosophy and causes.

And gradually the pendulum has swung the other way, until, in many newspapers, the views of the columnists are generally to the right of even the editorials. Many spokesmen for the liberal perspective, including the dean of them all, Walter Lippman, have left the field. Others have altered their stance, sharply or slightly, to a more conservative posture.

Still, there remain a number of able columnists who reflect the liberal or progressive approach to our problems and our issues.

One such is Harriet Van Horne, window of the late David Lowe, a veteran of the New York Post as her home paper.

Physically slight, the attractive Miss Van Horne has been dubbed "the Dresden China doll with the harpoon."

Certainly the sharp-witted Miss Van Horne is capable of exchanging caustic barbs with the best of them — including the acidulous Mr. Buckley.

"Never Go Anywhere Without a Pencil" is a newly-published collection of her work, 1968 into 1972, that demonstrates her biting wit to fine effect, and which will delight those thirsting for an unabashed defense of their basic inner humanitarian instincts. For, make no mistake about it, liberalism has fallen into disrepute in many quarters, and many of us now hide our idealism like another skeleton shoved into the closet.

Harriet Van Horne feels no such compulson to hide her feelings and opinions.

"Our tax laws," she writes typically, "are written to punish the poor and pardon the rich. All concessions, all loopholes, all rebates are reserved for them that has."

And: "The shabbiest enemies of freedom in this country have been the Yankee Doodle zealots, the witch-hunters, the deniers of civil liberties. There are no swords as bloody as the swords of holy wars. And no patriots as unworthy of our flag as the flag-draped superpatriots."

After the Kent State tragedy: "At the cost of a great many innocent lives, we are beginning to learn that the National Guard in time of riot and civil commotion is a national menace . . . In the name of public safety, the National Guard should be abolished."

"Maybe the wobble and list, the general tackiness of today's goods and chattels can be blamed on our loss of Yankee thrift," she theorizes. "Upward strivers all, we are seduced by a name on a label, dazzled by a commercial in living color. We buy on the run. And we're pushovers for salesmen with a sweet line of blarney."

"There is a burning edge of hostility in Billy Graham's Christinaity," she finds. "It isn't simply the Graham theology that repels — though it certainly repels me — it's his hellfire and damnation preaching and his acceptance of Satan as a 'personal devil' that belongs back in the Bible-thumping days when snake oil was sold along with the religious tracts. But the really distressing aspect is the way he mixes politics and social commentary with sin and salvation."

Miss Van Horne also takes well-aimed potshots at such diverse targets as our treatment of the aged, Women's Liberation (their tactics, not their goals), youthful hairstyles (or the lack, thereof), organic food, sitar music, Richard M. Nixon and Spiro Agnew, modern films, our prisons, male fashions.

Unlike some liberal columnists, she doesn't think it necessary to endorse blindly all aspects of youth or every minority stand. "Young men today are becoming too girlish, too foppish, too feminized for their good or the good of society," she asserts. And of Women's Lib: "Officially, the movement appears to believe that karate lessons and coarse manners will scare men into promising them anything. Fools! It's the cool, feminine women who win their battles with men."

She is saddened and angered by the deterioration of life in New York City, and not beguiled by John Lindsay's charisma.

"The liberal," writes Miss Van Horne, "looks at the world affirmatively, believing that man can be liberated and that governments can be humane. He is as opposed to repression of human souls as he is to suppression of news. He abhors hierarchies, harsh authority and the selective justice that punishes the poor and the black.

"To those of us holding such views, the life around us confirms our judgment that repression, race prejudice and carefully maintained economic disparities have only worsened the suffering built into our system."

Against these inequities, "with the world growing dirtier, noisier, bloodier and meaner," she advises "it behooves us to become cleaner, quieter, kinder and more militant in our battle for a decent life. If ever our society needed activists, people who give a damn, it is now. The times demand an expression of outrage. Not muttered curses, not an occasional letter to the editor, but outrage, expressed in a socially constructive manner."

And, in the Van Horne columns at least, in a sprightly, witty manner as well.

Those newspapers that run Harriet Van Horne's column along with those of William Buckley, Joseph Alsop and Victor Lasky need not apologize for any imbalance. This charming and articulate lady can hold her own with any, all three, of those spokesmen for conservatism.

TRANSPLANTED New Englanders will find warmth and nostalgia in "Christmas In New England," a slim, well-illustrated picture album by photographer Taylor Lewis Jr. and writer Joanne Young. The snow-covered hills, the village church, the sleigh rides, the log fires and the people all bundled up are captured in color photos that carry the spirit of New England. Published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the attractive volume is priced at $5.95.

A BOOK ON BIKES

"RICHARD'S Bicycle Book" is the work of Richard Ballantine with illustrations by John Batchelor, and is offered as "a comprehensive guide that explains in detail and practical terms the exact functions of various parts of the bike" and "which enables the reader to evaluate and to repair bikes." Ballantine has published the book as an original paperback at $1.95, with today's ever increasing ranks of cycling enthusiasts in mind.

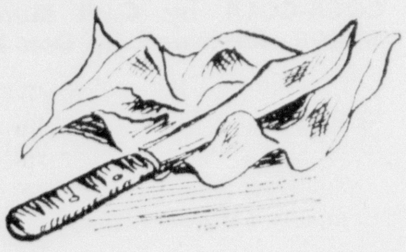
Sleuths & Suspense

SEANCE FOR TWO by Mark McShane; Doubleday, 177 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Pat Perry.

A shy bachelor who works as a librarian, William Wilson, has only one obsession - he loves murderesses. But always from afar, by reading reports of their trials and crimes. The vicarious thrill satisfies.

But one day he travels to the prison from which murderess Myra Savage is being released at the end of her sentence, and invites her to his home. Phlegmatically she accepts, and William basks in the pleasure.

Myra, in turn, has an obsession of her own - her psychic powers. It is an obsession that led to the murder for which she was convicted. And in a single-minded drive to justify her obsession, she shoves weak William into violent and uncharacteristic acts and proves her gifts of prediction.



This is one of those rare stories that maintains the sense of foreboding right through . . . you just know something awful is going to happen . . . and sure enough it does. Parapsychology nuts will appreciate the tale more than most.

A Psychiatrist Looks At An Artist With His Paintings As His Mirror

STRANGER ON THE EARTH: A Psychological Biography of Vincent Van Gogh, by Dr. Albert J. Lubin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 265 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

A biography of an artist should attempt, of course, to relate the life experiences to the development of the work; but perhaps the subject should remain something of an enigma - positively mysterious and unfathomable - to give his work that special dimension.

And should not Vincent Van Gogh remain just the eccentric genius, lonely, haunted and self-destructive, in order to make the viewing of his art such an emotional experience?

I must admit I approached Albert Lubin's psychological biography of Vincent Van Gogh with some apprehension; I did not believe I wanted Vincent clinically analyzed and psychologically dissected, and his art put into special compartments in relation to every emotional experience of his life. However, the special dimension I have looked for in art has been revealed by Albert Lubin's biography — the paintings of Van Gogh are in fact the mirrors of his experiences and his problems. The dark, earthy period with crude techniques, the light period with its yellow and blues, the themes and the relationships of his subjects inexorably reflect his loneliness, his depressions and his life.

Dr. Lubin is clinical professor of psychiatry at Stanford University and practices psychoanalysis. He has long studied the relationship between the lives and works of artists; in the case of Van Gogh (whom he calls Vincent because the artist never signed "Van Gogh" to any of his works) a vast amount of literature was available but no study of his psychological development had ever been attempted. Vincent's personal correspondence particularly his letters to his brother, Theo - is prolific, and from this Dr. Lubin has made his analysis. In one of the hundreds of expressive letters to Theo, Vincent says: " . . . telling you the thoughts that came into my mind without being afraid of letting myself go, without keeping back thoughts and censoring them . . ." That phrase reveals succinctly the potential value of such personal correspondence to the psychoanalyst.

Vincent Van Gogh was born, and died, on March 30, 1852. Exactly one year later, on March 30, 1853, another boy was born to the Van Goghs. He, too, was called Vincent (our Vincent), but, to his mother he could never replace her first born. Sharing the brother's name, he constantly reminded the mother of her loss; and as the first Vincent did not live long enough to be bad, the second Vincent would inevitably fail in comparison.

In this experience, further complicated by a strict religious upbringing (his father was a Dutch Reform minister), lay the roots of the psychological problems which tormented Vincent throughout his life, and contributed ultimately to his suicide in 1890. He passionately looked for close personal relationships (which he could never have effectively handled) but was always forced to accept a substitute for an intimate human bond; and all this precipitated a serious depression.

His first work as an art dealer, a thwarted love affair, his attempts to enter the formal ministry all ended in periods of long depressions. Finally, in 1879, after long months of inactivity, he turned to art, and turned much of the anger that he was unable to vent openly into the aggressive task of creating art. The many solitary figures in Vincent's work correspond to the lonely outcast - the stranger, the prisner and the vagabond - he saw himself to be.

"The story of Vincent Van Gogh," Dr. Lubin writes, "is a never-ending struggle to control, modify, glorify, or deny a deep-rooted melancholy and loneliness . . ."

The study of how Vincent transformed these problems into incredible achievements is an outstanding addition to the literature on the life and art of Van Gogh; and the illustrations in the book of his work take on a new and revealing image.

Saving The Vineyards From Their Deadly Insect Enemy

THE GREAT WINE BLIGHT by George Ordish; Scribners; 237 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Laura Potts.

This is a completely scholarly, fascinating book on the impact of a small insect attacking the European grape vineyards and causing all kinds of mischief before it was finally controlled. The added notes and tables make a story in themselves.

Biologists and their reputed cures and methods had gained little testing in the 1880s when the phylloxera became an insinuating problem affecting not only southern Europe, but Algeria, Greece, and other wine growing areas. America, which had taken so much culture from the Old World, finally came to the rescue with disease-resistant root-stock. The "good-wine European grape and the resistant American root-stock" soon became the common grafting throughout the old production areas.

With a measured but light touch, almost a "who-done-it" feel, George Ordish has written a fully documented story of a bewildered people whose whole life-style is threatened. Their sometimes foolish, sometimes noble thrusts persevere and finally put together a livable cure, saving the graces and pleasures of wines for all of us.

Galavanting Grandmas On The Go

TWICE OVER LIGHTLY by Helen Hayes and Antia Loos; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 343 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jorie Parr.

Two galavanting grandmas get off the phone and onto the streets of New York for a sedate romp through their chosen city. Having decided that New York is an okay place to live, and that it also would be stimulating to visit, this improbable combination of celebrated ladies takes off on a tour that hits the barber college and the Bronx, Staten Island, and the Stock Exchange.

"Twice Over Lightly" is fun when the principals recall incidents from the past, such as when Miss Hayes' late husband was asked on his "death bed" to name his religion, and he replied, "I am a phallic worshiper." It is also an inspiration to current over-65ers and others who haven't had a fling in their hometown in some time. A nice Christmas present for your mother.

Quakes, Past And Future, California And Elsewhere

WILL CALIFORNIA FALL INTO THE SEA? by Peter Briggs; David McKay Co., 243 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joan Erickson-Ingles.

After reading the list of books written by Peter Briggs the readers expectations of a great book is high. This book falls short.

From the title one would assume the subject be concerned with California earthquakes but Peter Briggs enlightens the reader to earthquakes worldwide. Probably the author found research for background material on California earthquakes limited, so that for filler he included famous earthquakes of Calcutta, India, Port Royal, Jamaica, and Tokyo, Japan.

In the last few chapters Peter Briggs does not answer his own question, "Will California Fall into the Sea?," but instead given the reader an imaginary account of what might happen in Los Angeles if an earthquake hits with the magnitude of 8.7 on the Richter scale. If you are easily alarmed, this is not for you.

This book reminds one of another published several years ago on the same subject, which became a best-seller. History probably will not be repeated.

A SLICE OF AMERICANA — THINGS BY COCA-COLA

THE ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO THE COLLECTIBLES OF COCA-COLA by Cecil Munsey; Hawthorn, 333 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

It seems that the ecology-minded aren't the only ones interested in picking up those Coca-Cola bottles and other memorabilia of America's soft drink thirst that sometimes litter our byways.

Collectors, too, have their eyes on the relics from the Coca-Cola Company's 86-year-history.

Most sought after are the Coke advertisements that began in the 1800s. Coveted, too, are the premiums and side products — jars, gum, glasses, razor blades, clocks, mirrors, etc. — that bore the Coca-Cola trademark. The bottles, too, have their seekers.

Cecil Munsey's "The Illustrated Guide to the Collectibles of Coca-Cola" reviews the history of the company and the drink, and then, with liberal illustrations, scans the "treasures" that history has dangled before collectors.

For collectors, of course, the book will be a must. But for other, it is an interesting excursion into nostalgia, for the Coke, for better or worse, cool refreshment or aching dental caries, has been as much a part of Americana as the apple pie. Those photos, alone, are worth a large slice of the price, but Munsey's entertaining text is not be be downgraded.

On The Stereo Scene

BY WILBUR LANDREY

The musically erotic massage parlor of all time was constructed by Richard Wagner when he wrote his opera "Tristan and Isolde."

Driven by the ideal of the unattainable Mathilde Wesendonk, one of the few women he couldn't get, Wagner poured forth a torrent of sensuality that overwhelms singers, orchestra and conductor in a music drama that can be described as subline. Its richness went to the limits of western chromatic harmonies. At the same time, it was the beginning of the atonality of the 20th Century.

Herbert von Karajan's production of Tristan on records with Helga Dernesch as Isolde and Jon Vickers as Tristan was something to anticipate, and it does not disappoint (Angel SEL-3777, five records).

Miss Dernesch's Isolde is a passionate, young Irish princess, Vickers is a powerful Tristan so caught between his feudal duty to King Mark and his inevitable love for Isolde that death was the only end.

Christa Ludwig as Isolde's nurse Bragane; Karl Ridderbusch as King Mark; Walter Berry as Tristan's retainer Kurwenal, and Bernd Weikl as Melot, the knight who betrayed the lovers, sing good supporting roles.

The conductor's problem is to control Wagner's flood of music. In this production with the Berlin Philharmonic and the Berlin German opera chorus, von Karajan does it and gives us a fine Tristan and Isolde.

HISTORICALLY THE most interesting of the opera albums so far this season is the first complete recording of Jean Philippe Rameau's "Castor et Pollux" (Das Alte Werke SAWT 9584-87-A).

Rameau, 1682-1764, stood at the end of the development of the French lyric tragedy in opera. In the time when Bach and Handel were writing their major works, Rameau was composing 36 ballets, ballet-operas and operas.

His sound anticipated that of Gluck by some 40 years. Only his ballet "Les Indes Galantes" holds its own at the Paris opera, perhaps because of its opulence, but in the past few years, there has been a growing renaissance of his works, of which the new recording is a part.

Nikolaus Harnoncourt is responsible for the revival, performed by his Concentus Musicus ensemble of Vienna and the Stockholm Chamber Choir under the direction of Eric Ericson.

The libretto is the Greek myth of Castor and Pollux, the brothers whose fidelity to each other elevated them to eternity as stars in the heavens.

The main roles are sung by Jeanette Scovotti, Norma Lerer, Zeger Vandersteene and Gerard Souzay.

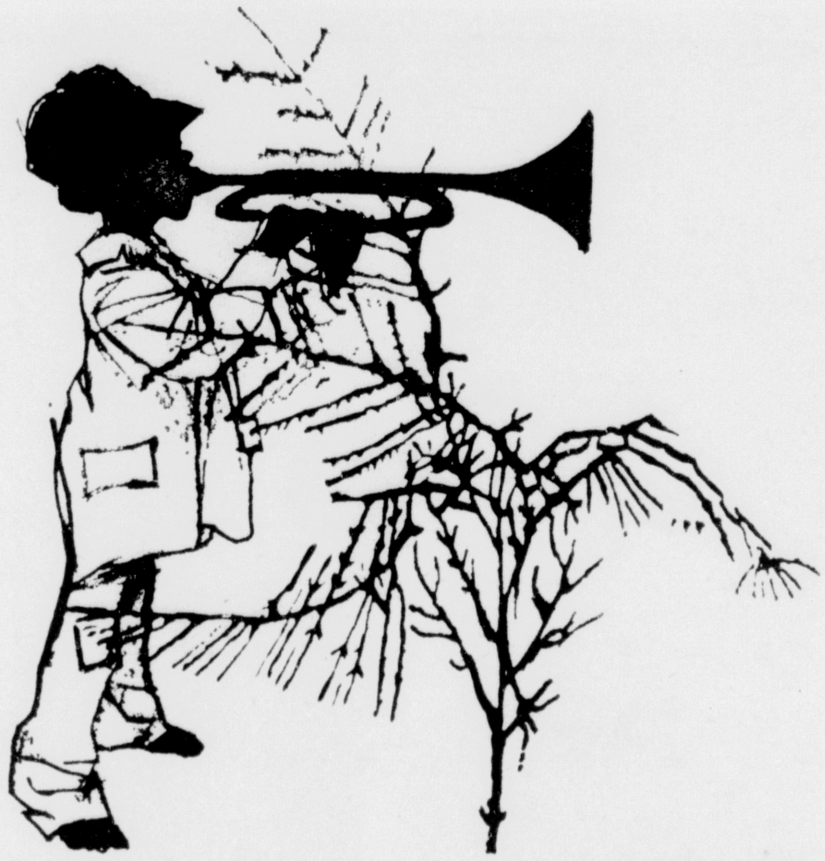
A CURIOSITY from the more recent past comes in a new recording of Giacomo Puccini's first two operas "Le Villi" of 1883 and "Edgar" of 1889 (RCA LSC-7096).

Puccini had to wait four years more after "Edgar" for his first large-scale success, "Manon Lescaut". After that, he was on his way with La Boeheme, Tosca, Madame Butterfly, La Fanciulla del West, Il Trittico and Turandot.

His first two operas served as the curtain raisers in which he learned his craft.

Le Villi, the story of the ghost maidens who dance to death the lovers that betrayed them, is given in its entirety in this two-record album, along with the second act of Edgar.

Barry Morell's vigorous tenor illuminates both, recorded by the Vienna Volksoper Orchestra under the direction of Anton Guadagno.



THIS EVALINE NESS illustration is from the cover of Lucille Clifton's "Everett Anderson's Christmas Coming," reprinted by Holt, Rinehart and Winston as a $1.25 paperback Owlet book and described by Horn Book as being "as moving as Tiny Tim's classic blessing in A Christmas Carol." One small lad explains what Christmas is really about.

NEW BOOKS FOR JUNIOR READERS

What a delight to find another of Raold Dahl's Charlie Bucket stories in a recent crop of books for junior readers.

Anyone of any age who enjoyed "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" will be happy to continue the adventures of Charlie, who has become the heir apparent to the fabulous chocolate factory of Mr. Willy Wonka.

"Charlie and the Great Glass Elevator," published by Alfred Knopf, $3.95, is a sure winner. Charlie, Grandpa Joe, Willy Wonka and all the old people become greatly elevated; as high as an American space hotel. They are pursued by the dreadful Knids, swallow some weird pills and encounter some unusual Gnoolies in Minusland.

It is an entertaining book that parents should read before they give it to the children, for they might not get another chance, and it would be fine Christmas gift for young readers.

ANOTHER series that has enchanted youngsters revolves around Gladys L. Adshead's delightful Brownies. The newest book detailing their adventures is "Smallest Brownie and the Flying Squirrel" (Walck, $4.50), with pictures by Richard Lebenson.

It deals with the Smallest Brownie's trip to visit Old Grandmother and Old Grandfather. Naturally the tiny one gets lost. But luckily, Flying Squirrel is on hand to effect the rescue.

It is a simple story preschoolers and kindergarteners will enjoy wholeheartedly. Lebenson's appealing pictures will add to the pleasure.

TAD BAUGH, language instructor at Redwood High School, did the translations for "Russian Folktales," published by Leswing Press of San Rafael. Robert A. and Marlene J. McCracken are the editors, as part of a series of "happiness is reading" books they are doing for young readers, and Brigitte Smith of San Francisco is the illustrator.

Baugh has translated six very old Russian stories that have stood the test of centuries. They are both familiar, in that they present characters and situations resembling favorite western folk and fairytales, and yet unfamiliar, in that they are distinctively Russian. You have the tsar instead of the king, the Frog Princess rather than a Frog Prince, a Gray Wolf, an Ash Boy and characters named Ivan and Elena instead of Jack and Goldilocks. The excellent book in a high quality softcover sells for a bargain $1.95, and will be available from Leswing, 750 Adrian Way, San Rafael, after Jan. 1.

Another country with a rich tradition of storytelling is Denmark, the land of Hans Christian Andersen. From there comes "Danish Fairy Tales," as collected by Svendt Grundtvig and first published in English in 1912. Now Dover has republished the book with new illustrations by Drew van Heusen, and another generation of children can be whisked into a world of Hans and Gretchen, of kings and queens, of magic and witchery. It is convincing proof that the Danish imagination has a special gift for enchanting small listeners and readers. And the price is $2.50 — small price, indeed, for transportation to a land where animals speak and good triumphs over evil.

Also from Dover: the charming Kate Greenaway's "Mother Goose Coloring Book" ($1.25) as rendered for coloring by Nancy Perkins. It's a Dover original with an irresistible opportunity to brighten the countenances, clothing and surroundings of Little Miss Muffet, Little Boy Blue and other childhood favorites. The verses are included.

HOLT, RINEHART and Winston continues its series of inexpensive paperback reprints for children under the Owlet label, with a new list that includes such proven favorites as "The Alphabeast Book" by Dorothy Schmiderer, "Everett Anderson's Christmas Coming" by Lucille Clifton, "All the Animals Were Angry" by William Wondriska, "The Scarecrow Clock" by George Mendoz and "Crabapple Night" by Jan Wahl. Prices run from 95 cents to $1.45. The latest selections are excellent, and the presentations lively with artwork.

The prairie dog is one of the cutest, most entertaining of all God's creatures. And fortunate is the boy, or girl, who has had the opportunity to observe the life of a prairie dog village. "Prairie Dog Summer" (Coward, McCann, $4.64) by Faith McNulty is about one lad, Joe, who gets that chance when his zoologist uncle invites him to accompany him for a field study. Joe develops a new understanding of and appreciation for prairie dogs — and for all wildlife. A meaningful, well-told story for youngsters about 9 and 10. Illustrations are by Bonnie Johnson.

"Datra the Muskrat" (Four Winds, $4.95) is a book for an older age group, done by Franklin Russell, the distinguished naturalist and writer. Volume 3 in an "At the Pond" trilogy, it covers a year in a muskrat's life realistically, treating nature honestly and the young readers with respect.

CHRISTMAS PAST

Far away and long ago
A stocking by the fireplace.
Santa rode his sleigh —
I watched and listened
For sight of a reindeer
The sound of a hoof
And dreamed of bright colored candies,
Oranges, apples, and assorted nuts,
A new cap, a baseball mitt,
A trike or bike,
And an electric train!

ROSS — SHIRLEY COCHELL

CHRISTMAS SCENE

I recall white Yuletides
Years ago in Eastern states,
Sleighs and ice skates.
Do I want to go
Where carols ring in the frosty night?

I remember mufflers, mittens, and overshoes,
A cold red nose and chilly toes —
"No snow for me,
Make my Christmas green!"

ROSS — SHIRLEY COCHELL

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

The Christmas Spirit seems almost dead
crushed beneath the frenzied tread
of our compulsive buying drive
before the holidays arrive.

Through bright tinsel overhead
creeps an atmosphere of dread;
in a troubled world where hate is bred
how can we hope to keep alive
the Christmas Spirit?

But Christmas Eve when we have read
of the Christ Child's birth — when prayers are said
and carols sung, then we will strive
with reborn faith and love to revive
and in our hearts once more embed
the Christmas Spirit.

Picking Your Christmas Tree

By EARL ARONSON

A man who has been giving advice about Christmas trees for years will help select your three this year.

Alex Dickson of the New York State Cooperative Extension Service, Cornell University, is a specialist and he trimmed my literary tree. He reminds that tradition and folklore have glorified evergreen and coniferous trees and that the Christmas tree still has great religious significance although the origin of much of its symbolism has been obscured by time.

Hessian soldiers are credited with bringing the idea of the Christmas tree to this country at the time of the Revolutionary War. But growing them specifically for use at Christmas was not taken seriously until after World War II.

HERE ARE Dickson's thoughts on there trees:

1. All pines hold their needles well — even better than firs. Scotch pine, not Balsam fir, is the most popular Christmas tree in the United States. But different regions have their own favorites.

2. Buy a fresh tree, which will keep its needles longer. The drying of a tree is indicated by the dropping of green needles. Brown or yellow needles drop because of natural aging processes.

3. Two-thirds taper of a tree is generally accepted as a desirable shape. Actually, a 50 per cent taper would be very narrow.

4. There should be a "handle" several inches long to provide good anchorage and to soak up water. The stump is what is left in the ground.

Handle designates the basal part of the Christmas tree stem that fits into a stand.

5. Research has shown conclusively that sugar and aspirin, used in solution with water in which the tree is kept, do not benefit the tree in any way.

6. Finally, spruce and hemlock do not make very good greens for indoor use.

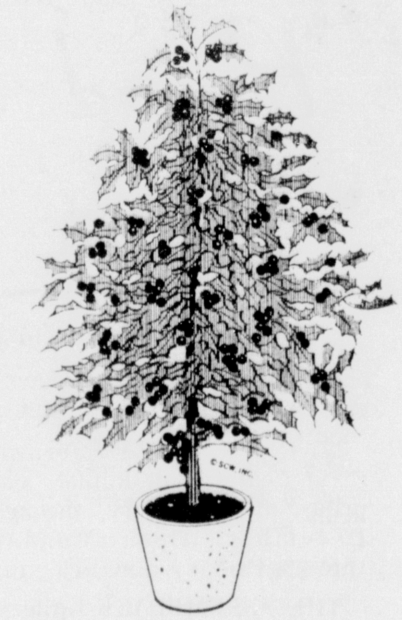
CHRISTMAS trees kept in a water reservoir not only will stay green and fresh longer but will thus have fire protection. Be sure there is ample water in the bucket.

Your own foundation planting of evergreens can help decorate your home. In this way you can also do some needed pruning that will enhance the beauty of your shrubs. Don't cut too much from any one branch. Cut sharply and cleanly on a slant.

Items that make good holiday greenery are holly, firethorn, pine, juniper, laurel, Rhododendron, azalea and bayberry. Keep them in water in a cool place until you are ready to use them.

ALEX DICKSON is co-author with Fred E. Winch Jr. of a booklet on Plantation Production of Christmas Trees in New York State. He estimates that almost 50 million Christmas trees are sold in this country each year, including about 30 varieties.

The ideal Christmas tree is one that is compact, has dense appearance: dark green or blue-green foliage; a symmetrical, pyramidal shape with the base no wider than 60 to 70 per cent of the height; retains needles and color indoors for at least two weeks; branches sturdy enough to hold ornaments, lights and small gifts; non-prickly foliage, and fragrant aroma. Now go out and get it.



THE HOLLY is one of those Christmas season traditionals that furnish not only around-the-calendar beauty out of doors, but decorative greenery for the indoors during the holiday period.

Garden Pages

A white Christmas is something only a relatively few Californians can hope for.

But most Californians, including Marin County residents, can expect and arrange a holiday season made bright by the reds and greens of berries and foliage in their gardens.

ONE OF THE most delightful examples of nature decorating for the holidays is the Strawberry Tree. This variety of the native Madrone bears edible fruit, strawberry-like in appearance, which color up to bright red just in time for Christmas. Grown naturally, it can provide a tall screen, with dark green, oblong leaves and red-brown trunk and branches, which become picturesquely twisted in age.

The Strawberry Tree — Arbutus unedo — may also be pruned into a patio-size tree.

Pyracanthas, Hollies, Cotoneasters and Toyon also exhibit natural intelligence of the color needs of the season, contributing their bright red berries for traditional decorating. Each is valued as an evergreen landscape shrub.

AN OUTSTANDING Christmas-colored tree is Chinese Pistache. The multi-paired leaflets of this large, dense tree start turning color with the first cool nights of fall. Color has intensified to a bright red by Christmas.

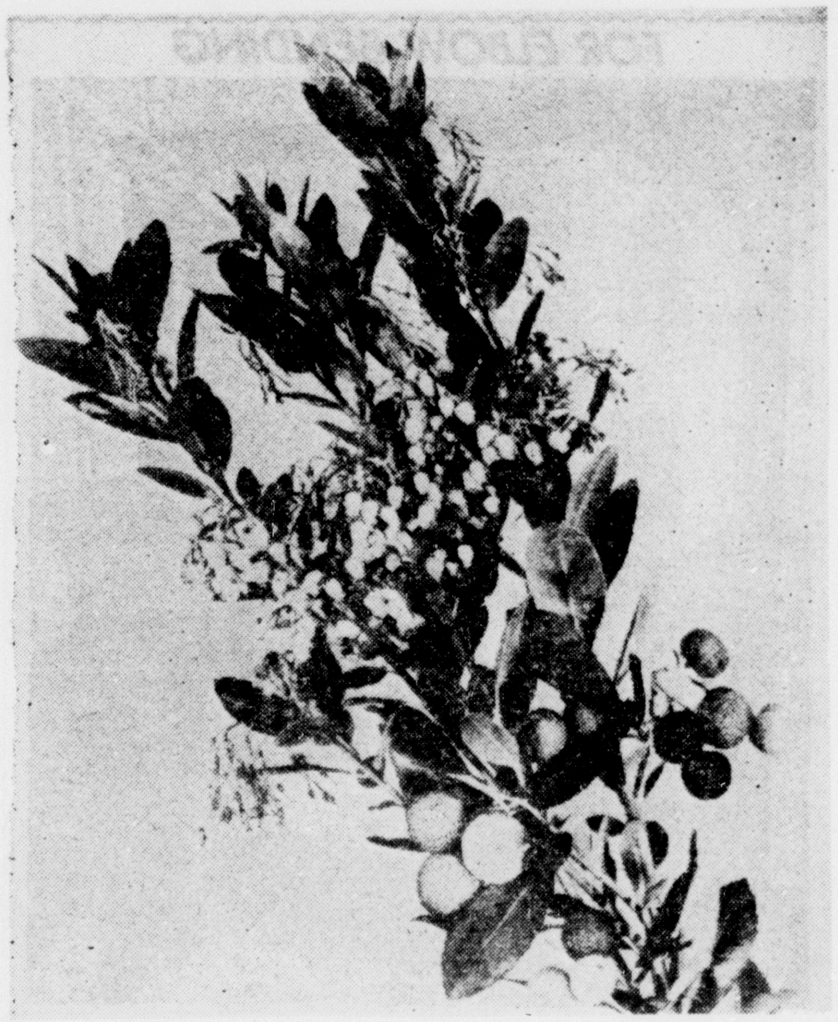
Leaves generally hang on through the holidays, and drop in January.

Heavenly Bamboo and Oregon Grape are medium-size landscape shrubs prized for their evergreen, cool weather color. From bright yellow and bronze-green to hints of pink and bright red, their mature brilliant foliage retains its color from early winter into spring.

New growth of Photinia, a large shrub or small tree, covers mature, deep-green foliage with a blanket of coppery-red, which holds through fall and winter.

OLD-FASHIONED Persimmon decorates itself for the holidays in modish color — bright orange fruit clinging to its deciduous, skeletal frame. Australian Fuchsia — Correa pulchella — adds its off-beat, winter color with its long, narrow pink flowers from November to April.

Color contributors from the conifer clan include Andorra Juniper, with its rosy plum cool weather foliage and Bar Harbor Juniper's silvery plum winter hues.



THIS CLOSE-UP VIEW of the Strawberry Tree shows the ornate fruits that give it its name, and make it such a winter-time delight in California gardens. Urn-shaped flowers are yet another of its eye-pleasing attractions.

Christmas Gift Suggestions For The Green Thumber

Giving a plant for Christmas is giving a gift that grows bigger and better as the years go by.

With each crop of flowers, seasonal display of berries or foliage, recipients are reminded of the good taste and thoughtfulness of the donor.

GARDENERS themselves enjoy giving plants to their friends and loved ones — and they also enjoy receiving them. There isn't a garden too small to handle something new, especially if its a gift from a good friend. Too, there are many garden devices that would be received enthusiastically on Christmas morning.

Gifts for gardeners are practical and some even could be considered "ego builders," as well. What green thumber wouldn't puff up with pride over owning his own spreader for feeding the lawn — or a second (or better) pair of pruning clippers? Gardening books, too, make excellent gifts.

How about a distinctive tree form Azalea or Camellia? These blooming aristocrats will be the envy of the neighborhood — in bloom or out. As landscape accents they excel.

A Kentia Palm will grace anyone's indoor decor.

THE ART OF bonsai is very popular and hobbyists and fledglings alike would be thrilled to receive a Bonsai plant in its handsome container. Besides being conversation pieces, the plants are decorative and beautiful.

The months of December and January signal the start of the bareroot planting season, and this offers many opportunities: Past and present All-American Roses, and other new introductions for 1973 — plus dwarf fruit trees. The latter fit into small garden spaces and also are appealing in containers for use on patio or entryway.

Seasonal favorites — blooming Azaleas, Cameallias, Rhododendrons, Bird of Paradise — make prized gifts which can be set-out in the shade garden after the holidays. For extra-special people these can be presented planted in redwood containers or attractive ceramin pots.

LITTLE GIFTS with big appeal include Cyclamen and African Violets. Nurserymen and florists have blooming specimens of these flowering gems. The color selection is outstanding.

Perhaps the most obvious gift item offered by nurseries is the gift certificate. This enables a person to choose for himself the plants he most desires. This is a thoughtful gift for the new home owner, especially, who is involved in landscaping his property.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Shop nurseries for your Christmas gifts. Blooming Poinsettias, Chrysanthemums, Azaleas, Camellias and Christmas Cactus are but a few living gift plants that will forever remind the recipient of your thoughtfulness.

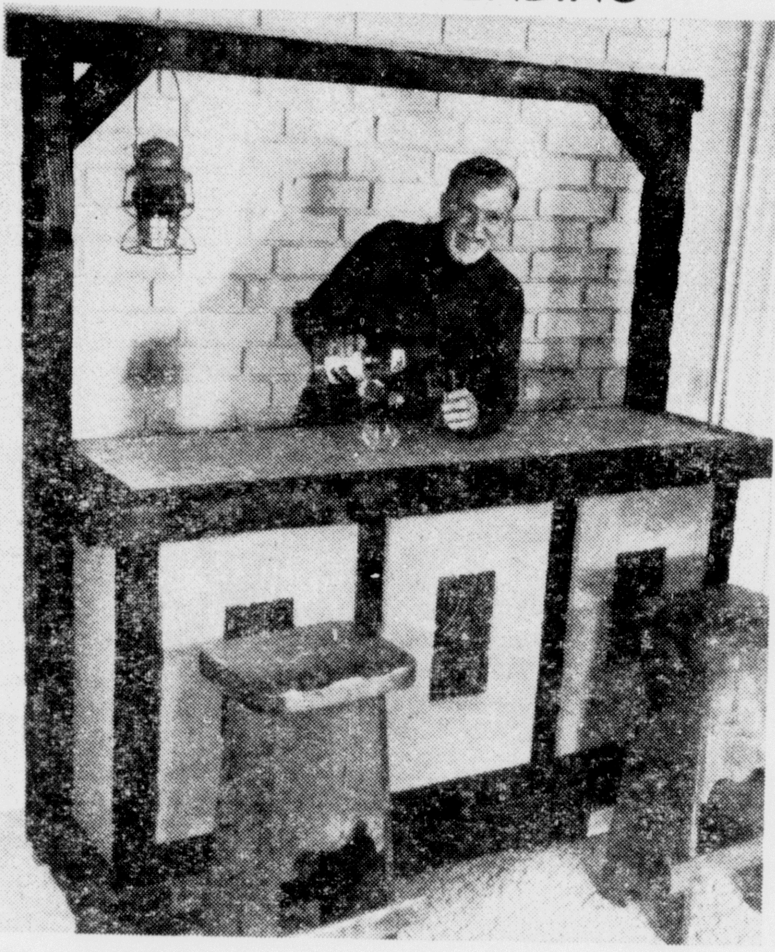
✓If you are enjoying a living Christmas tree this year, remember to keep it well watered indoors and away from heat vents.

✓Bulbs that may be planted now include the breath-taking hybrid Amaryllis, Ranunculas, Anemones, Gladiolus and Calla Lilies.

✓Chrysanthemums should be cut back to the ground if you haven't done so already. Wait until February, or later, to prune Fuchsias and Hydrangeas.

✓Check with your nurseryman on applying pre-emergence crabgrass control on your lawn this month.

FOR ELBOW-BENDING



THIS RUSTIC BAR was built from a Steve Ellingson pattern by a home handyman. And actor John Warburton finds it just right — elbow high. There's a rustic overhang that measures almost seven feet. And if western isn't your thing, you can modify the accents a bit and come up with a piece of Mediterranean style furniture. The kerosene lamp, for instance, can become a wrought iron Spanish-style lamp. Send $2 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. Ask for Rustic Bar Pattern 519. For Bar Stool Pattern 284, send another 50 cents. There are casters for easy mobility of the bar. Instructions and illustrations are sufficiently detailed to guide any amateur handyman through the project.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

If You Haven't A Fireplace, Create Another Focal Point

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Somehow all the glorious, blockbusting photographs in the shelter magazines seem to feature living rooms with fireplaces. Yet only about one out of a dozen of my friends (and that includes me) actually has a fireplace he can call his own.

My friends say: "Why don't you break a hole in the wall and attach the chimney to the exterior of the house, or get one of those free-standing units and tuck it into the corner?"

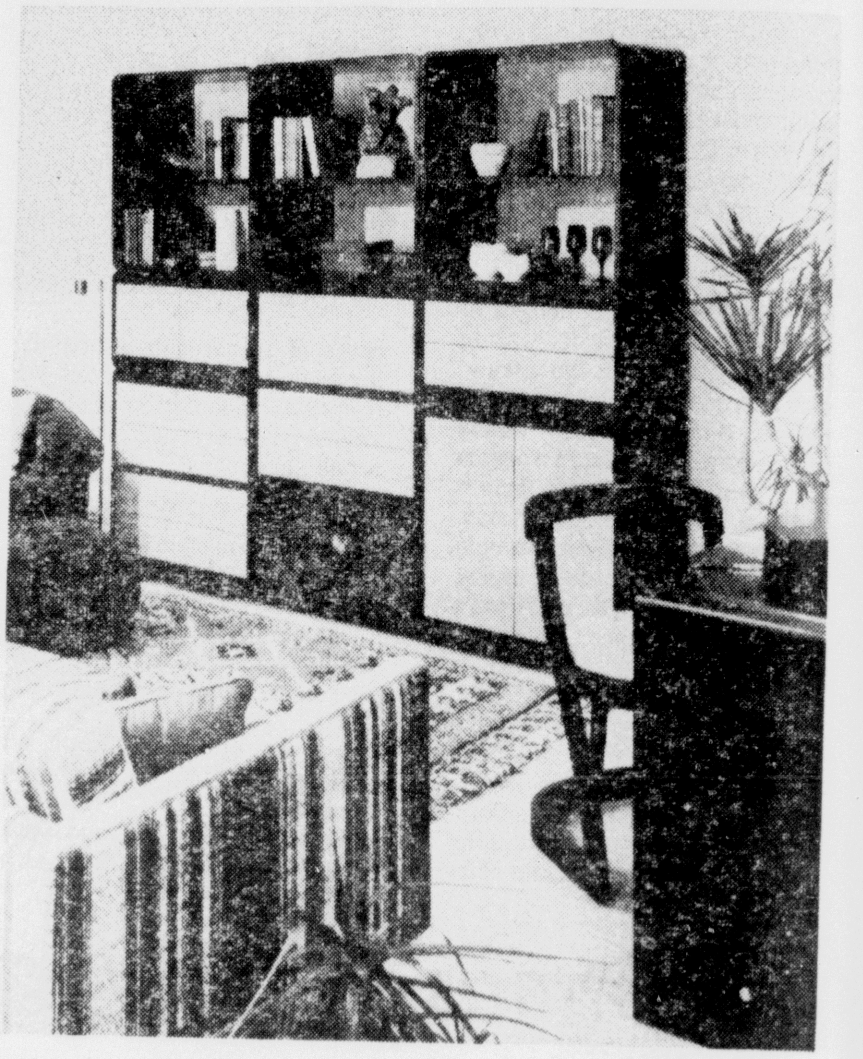
"What corner?" I say. "And whose money?"

INSTEAD OF succumbing to this "you've got to have a fireplace or it isn't home" philosophy, I've decided to go my own way and create some other center of interest in the living room.

I like looking at my stereo components. They light up nicely. And my receiver flashes a little green legend "stereo" when my FM is tuned in properly.

The television set is handsome when not in operation. It has a nice clean-looking black face and a stainless-steel indoor antenna that adds a bit of punctuation.

ACTUALLY THERE are lots of ways to create an important wall in a room. The illustration used today is just one. Composed of a series of nine new components being made by Directional Industries, it features the soft edge, rounded corners reminiscent of the 1930s modern.



INSTEAD OF a fireplace, which you would use only part of the time, you have here a group of components designed to hold two closets-full of possessions, while at the same time holding its own visually as the living room focal point. The storage space is invaluable to the occupants of the apartment or small home. And, unlike so much storage, it adds to, rather than detracts from, the appearance of the room.

But unlike other wall storage units, this one is designed to hold things you ordinarily store in closets. In fact the total amount of storage space is equivalent to two extra closets. And that's good news to anyone in a tiny house or confined apartment interior.

Most wall systems are based on open shelf space. So you usually wind up buying new accessories and plants to fill the gaps between books and record albums.

THIS SYSTEM allows you to go heavy on hidden storage units. And one component has a drop-down tray that allows it to become a desk-writing surface or temporary bar for refreshments.

The group has midnight brown-colored casing natural oak fronts, and there are companion pieces, such as the desk and chair, which encourage you to expand the new brown coloring into other areas of the room.

Some Facts About Aluminum And How To Use It

Handyman's Pages

By ANDY LANG

What you probably never knew about aluminum and never bothered to ask:

Bare aluminum will turn gray over a period of time outdoors, but the change of color can be prevented by coating it with lacquer or wax that doesn't contain an abrasive or cleaning agent.

WHEN ALUMINUM is said to be anodized, it means that it has been treated by an electrolytic action to give it a protective or decorative coat. Anodized aluminum changes color, too, but much more slowly.

Painted or porcelainized aluminum will not change color. When cleaning painted aluminum, water should be used first, then a mild soap. Porcelainized aluminum is so hard that it can be cleaned with any type of powder and soap.

When cleaning painted aluminum house siding, the long, hollow-handlebrush sold for car washing may be used. Wash from the bottom up and keep all the washer area wet until that side of the house is finished. This will prevent streaking.

IF YOU INTEND to paint new aluminum, the oil or grease applied at the factory to protect it during shipment must be washed off with a phosphoric acid available at most paint and hardware stores. When the aluminum has dried thoroughly, it should be primed with an exterior metal primer, preferably zinc chromate where corrosive conditions exist.

Mirror-bright aluminum cooking pots can be washed only with soaps and detergents. Polishes and nylon pads usually will dull their finish through abrasion. If the inside of an aluminum pot becomes blackish after cooking eggs or similar food in it, the coloring will neither harm the food nor the pot.

However, if the color is disturbing, it can be removed by boiling in it water to which cream of tartar has been added — two tablespoons to each quart of water. Boil about seven or eight minutes.

AN ALUMINUM boat will resist corrosion without cleaning, polishing or painting it. If you decide to paint it for appearance's sake, use a paint especially designed for aluminum, not a mercury, arsenic or copper-base anti-fouling paint.

While aluminum is exceptionally resistant to corrosive attack, galvanic corrosion may occur under certain conditions if any dissimilar metal is fastened to it. If aluminum fasteners are not used, a bituminous paint coating or insulating tape is recommended.
